Jerry Hinsley limited the Suns to four hits for the Syracuse victory.

At Atlanta, the Crackers snapped a 10-game losing streak with Jerry Fosnow going the distance on a seven-hitter for his third win.

Ralph Dupas Wins Over P. Schmidt

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Former junior middleweight champion Ralph Dupas scored a unanimous 10-round decision over Peter Schmidt of Toronto Thursday night.

But it was hardly a convincing win for Dupas, the New Orleans fighter trying to hit the comeback trail after being knocked out in three of his last four previous fights.

Dupas, weighing 147, showed some of the fancy footwork which was his trademark but his punching was mostly ineffectual. He opened a cut over Schmidt's left eye early in the sixth round and reopened it in the ninth.

Referee Lucien Joubert scored it 7-3-1, judge Peter Giarusso 8-2-2 and judge Maxie Docusen 7-3-1.

Schmidt, two years older than Dupas at 30 but much less of a ring veteran, weighed 149½, lifthardier blows had Dupas reeling in several rounds. There were no knockdowns.

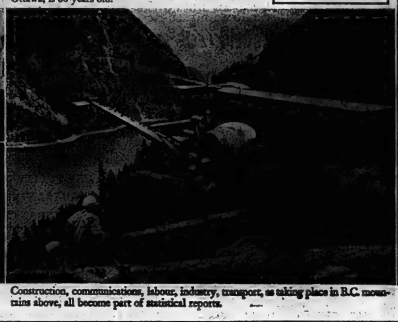
Vital Statistics Keep Nation Fit and Trim

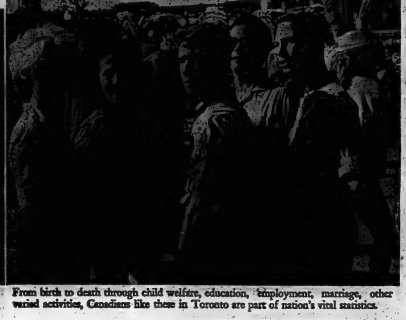
DBS Ottawa - Canada's Prolific Figure Factory

To keep up with requests for special reports and keep the tide of statistical information flowing, the DBS computor centre, above, is worked non-stop in five shifts. Bureau, in Ottawa, is 60 years old.

Canada exports whisky worth $100,000,000 a year to 100 different countries . . . Canadians spend an annual half-billion dollars in restaurants, nearly as much in drug stores . . . there are 115 daily newspapers in Canada . . . a third of the population is under 15 years of age. This sample of facts from the government's figure factory—the Dominion Bureau of Statistics—is part of the flood of statistical information appearing under the familiar signature of DBS Ottawa which today is vital to the nation as never before. In business, industry, marketing, welfare, communications, population trends—in all facets of Canadian daily life — the up-to-date numerical reports flowing from the electronic computers of the DBS act as both the fuel and lubricating oil without which the vast machinery of society would soon seize up in confusion. Importing-exporting, births and deaths, buying-selling, sex and age, hospital cases, law offenders, tourist travelling, pigs for market — all these and a variety of other subjects are studied and reported. From nearly 2,000,000 individual reports a year repeated in newspapers, company reports, campaign sheets, television-radio programs and by word-of-mouth, Canadians can see themselves as a society, business can plan ahead, governments chart their courses. To compile this mass of information the Dominion Bureau of Statistics employs 2,500 people including economic and social experts of a calibre which also makes the figure factory an intellectual centre. To ensure the public gets its information speedily the bureau's computor centre operates seven days a week, 24 hours a day, condensing information received from field men, regional offices and correspondents across Canada.



Claudette Audette, 18, varityper, at work in Dominion Bureau of Statistics, Ottawa.



NATIONAL FILM BOARD PHOTOSTORY

Bureau's statistics range from financial exchanges as in bank, above, to cabbage growing.

Construction, communications, labour, industry, transport, as taking place in B.C. mountains above, all become part of statistical reports.

From birth to death through child welfare, education, employment, marriage, other varied activities, Canadians like these in Toronto are part of nation's vital statistics.

Sport Snapshots

By GRAHAM COX

TORONTO (CP) — The way the chalk-eaters see it, E. P. Taylor's big-bred horses could finish one - two - three in Saturday's $50,000 - added Queen's Plate classic. No breeder has accomplished this in the 104 years of North America's oldest continuously run horse race.

But of course, there aren't many E. P. Taylors around.

The coochinion reached by the experts was a natural after Monday's double - barrelled Plate triumph over 13 miles of sand at suburban Toronto Woodbine track. The winners—Grand Garson and Florion—are alumni of Taylor's Windfields Farm.

Grand Garson was a $10,000 purchase by Frank Sharman of Hamilton and Florion was picked up at Taylor's price-priced yearling sales for $15,000 by J. Louis Levesque of Montreal.

Those colts will be shooting for place money. Every punter in the country has conceded the big pot to Taylor's Northern Dancer, who was 8-to-5 winter book favorite. He'll likely go to the post around 4:50 p.m. EDT at odds of 1 to 5 and pay a nickel on the dollar.

The Dancer captured the imagination of North American racing buffs when he won the Kentucky Derby and Preakness. He was favored to become the first Canadian-owned to win racing's triple crown and the first to do it since 1948 but this was dashed in the tough mile and 1/4-mile Belmont when he finished third.

Last year Taylor won the richest Plate race in history with Canebora, a leftover at his annual juke-it-to-sleave-it sale. No one vaunted the colt for Taylor's asking price of $7,500 and Taylor had to race him under his own colors. The Plate was worth $54,200.

It was Taylor's eighth victory in 15 years and five of those were accomplished with horses that buyers at his yearling sales didn't want. The other rejects that went on to win the big one were Lyford Cay in 1957, New Providence in 1950, Victoria Park in 1960 and the fifty Flaming Page in 1952.

Also in 1952, another reject, Chop-per-on, took the place money.

HARTACK WILL RIDE

It is well known that no one wanted Northern Dancer as a $25,000 yearling.

And up go the Dancer will be Bill Hartack who guided him to a two-minute-flat record in the Derby and an easy win in the Preakness before his horse ran out of gas in the Belmont Stakes.

Experts suggest the 1¼ miles of the Queen's Plate will be more to the liking of the most celebrated horse in Canadian racing history. It is the same distance as the Derby and one-sixteenth of a mile more than the Preakness.

Jockey Avelino Gomez, who was aboard both Grand Garson and Pierlou Monday and will ride one or the other Saturday, realistically summed up his chances when he said:

"What I must count ou is being on the second horse. I must try to win, of course, but I must be sure of second and then maybe the big little horse (Northern Dancer) will be sick. Maybe he will not feel like running."

Say CNR, CPR Seek Monopoly In Trucking

OTTAWA (CP) — The CNR and CPR will appear before Thursday by the Canadian Trucking Associations of trying to obtain a monopoly over trucking and other transportation services at Ottawa's new railway terminal expected to be in operation in 1958.

The accusation was made by Julius Gazdik of Montreal, counsel for the associations, before the Senate transportation committee during study of a government bill to incorporate the Ottawa Terminal Railway Company.

This company, to be owned jointly by the CNR and CPR, will operate the new Ottawa terminal.

Mr. Gazdik said that under the bill the Ottawa Terminal Railway Company would not only be a railway company but a "full fledged trucking company, bus operator and cab operator."

Through its transportation terminal facilities it would combine and monopolize all means of transportation centred at the terminal, he said.

K. W. Macdougal, counsel for the CNR, said it would be improper to limit the activities of the company to rail operations. The company wanted the right to operate rail hire trucks and other vehicles for the movement of freight and passengers to ensure efficient operation of the terminal.

Movie Column

R. Denny Happy Acting No Matter the Medium

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The elderly knock rapped on the dressing room door: "Half an hour, Mr. Denny."

For Reginald Denny it meant 30 minutes to climb into his formal clothes for the opening scene of My Fair Lady. The dresser who was supposed to speed him into the costumes wasn't appeared, and he would have to do the job himself. But he would be onstage in time. After 50-odd years as an actor, he was not apt to miss a cue.

Denny, 73, was backstage at the Santa Monica Civic Auditorium where he was appearing as Col. Pickering in My Fair Lady. He had played the role for two years on Broadway and after this summer will switch to the part of Eliza's roguish father when the musical plays in the New York Music Theatre.

As he dressed, he talked about his long, distinguished career. Born in Surrey, England, he toured with his parents in stock, later acted in Europe and North America.

"I started in films in this country back when actors didn't like to work for the movies. "When I was doing a New York play in 1911, I would sneak over to Fiddler's Green to see what I did some others for Famous Players in 1914.

My first real entrance to films was in 1919 during the actors' strike on Broadway. I had signed with the Shuberts for The Passing Show of 1919, but when the strike came along I went over to Fort Lee, N.J. to do some films."

He returned to the stage but meantime his movie career began to flourish. He became a star with the Leather Pushers movies, of which he made 24.

His polished diction helped him survive into the talkies.

An ardent hobbyist, Denny had long run a hobby shop in Hollywood and out of it came a pilotless plane model. The actor helped in developing drone planes for the government during the Second World War. But he lost control of the company and $4,000,000, he said—and went back to acting.

He hasn't made a movie since 1956, but he has done many television shows and appears to have found a career with My Fair Lady. "I'd like to keep on like to go on acting, whatever the medium," he remarked.

Come, Mom Don't Be A Spoilsport

CALGARY (CP) — Mrs. Anne Pallwoda of Calgary has been ordered to return two baseballs that fell in her backyard after being hit by Little Leaguers, but a charge of theft laid against her was dismissed.

Mrs. Pallwoda told magistrate's court this week windows had been broken and other damage done to her rooms and property during the last few years.

The problem appeared again this summer when a Little League team held practices on a diamond 30 feet from her home.

After a player retrieved the first ball that fell in her yard, Mrs. Pallwoda kept a second.

The team manager complained and police were called when a ball landed in her yard while she explained the situation to officers. She kept that one, too.

NEW YORK (AP)—Bobo Olson returns to a city where he has known great success—and dismal failures—to box young light heavyweight Johnny Farrell at Madison Square Garden tonight.

It has been 11 long years since Bobo last appeared in the Garden.

The former world middleweight champion, now 31, has designs on the light heavy crown, worn by Willie Pastrano. If he beats Farrel, a 24-year-old Brooklyn boy with only 12 pro fights, Bobo may get a shot at Pastrano.

The last time Bobo was in town he also had ambitions to become 175-pound king. Archie Moore ended that in three rounds. Following that knockout, Olson also lost his middleweight title and finally retired.

It wasn't always like that for Bobo in New York. He won the world middleweight title by whipping Randy Turpin Oct. 21, 1955, his last appearance in the Garden.

Income Tax Explained

By C. A. MILLER

There is one claim for dependants exemption that is made by many taxpayers each year, that is never allowed by the income tax department. This claim is for persons who are not visiting the taxpayer, and they usually are from another country. In some cases the taxpayer has paid big parents fare in order to get them over here. This in no way permits him to claim them as dependants even though the taxpayer supports them to the extent of board and lodging while they are with him.

In order to claim such visitors for dependant exemption, the taxpayer must have supported them before they arrived and again after they returned to their home. However if a taxpayers parents come to Canada as immigrants, intending it to make this country their permanent residence, but after a few months decide they did not like it and returned to their own country, then consideration might be given to allowing the claim for them on his return.

He must submit full details on a separate sheet of paper accurately attached to the income tax form. In no case should he show that when parents are claimed for the first time. Most taxpayers are so conscientious for the proof they were have. If they were not dependent on the taxpayer before coming to the visit their income must have been over $600 for the year. Over that amount, they are not dependants.

For personal replies pertaining to income tax problems please enclose a self-addressed five-cent stamped envelope and fill cents in coin for each question you wish answered.

QUESTION: My parents from Scotland visited me for 3 months in 1953. I supported them fully while they were here. Can I claim them for the period they were here? If so for how much?

ANSWER: You have no claim at all.

QUESTION: My mother who resided in England came to live with me in 1953. She stayed for 6 months but could not get used to Canada so returned to my brother back in England. When she came it was her intention to remain here. Can I claim her for exemption?

ANSWER: Yes. Claim $550 exemption.

The Smith a Mighty Man Is He, Gone the Horse, Gone the Tree, Still He Swings His Hammer Free

By ANDY TURNBULL

He doesn't shoe any horses, but Alvin McKenzie of Shannonville is a real live, hammer-swinging blacksmith. He maintains drills, repairs equipment and makes some new parts for the Canada Cement Company's plant number five, at Point Anne. He's been at it four years now.

The big drill bits used in the quarry-drills weigh about 900 pounds when they're new and it would take several days to form and sharpen one of them by hand, so there's a machine for that job. The bits are heated in an oil-fired furnace and swung by a light crane into a machine where a mechanical hammer pots several tons of force behind each blow. After they're sharpened, the bits are re-heated and quenched, to temper them. McKenzie sometimes puts a final edge on them with an eight-pound sledge-hammer.

But most of his time is spent at a coal-fired forge, working on smaller items with a two-and-a-half pound hammer and the traditional tongs. Forced air for the forge is provided by pumps now, (a small boy with a bellows is traditional), and a forced-draft chimney keeps smoke from drifting around the shop, but otherwise the forge is similar to those of hundreds of years ago.

TONGS MADE AT FORGE

The hammer is a traditional design too, and the tongs . . . well the tongs were made right at that forge by Jerry Palmer, who retired as the company blacksmith about six years ago. There are more than twenty pairs of them, shaped for holding different types of work, and they all have the rough-hammered wrought iron appearance of tools from Canada's pioneer days.

McKenzie started to learn blacksmithing when he was 18 years old. Ham Elmy, of Belleville, was his teacher. Elmy had several blacksmith shops at different times and McKenzie worked in most of them at one time or another. He worked at construction too, often with Elmy as a partner.

It was 16 years ago, when Number Two Kiln was being built at the Canada Cement Plant that Elmy and McKenzie first came to Point Anne. They worked for Carter Construction Co. at the time, building the kiln. When the job was finished, McKenzie stayed on with the cement company, working as a laborer. From general labor he was shifted to the utility gang, then he became a carpenter, and finally he became the company blacksmith. His most important single job now is sharpening the big bits, for the drills that work in the quarry. His favorite work though, is at the forge and the anvil.

TRADITIONAL ANVIL

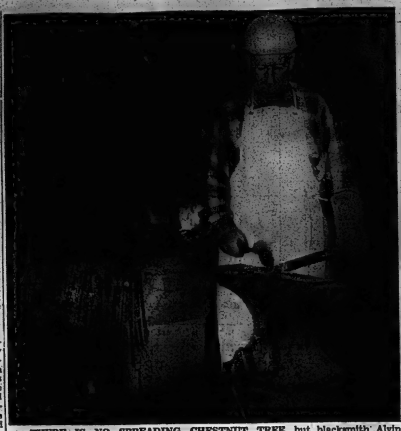
He has an anvil in the traditional pattern. Anchored firmly to the floor, it rises on a cast-steel pedestal to a flat platform about a foot long and six inches wide. At one end, the top of the anvil is rounded and narrowed down to a point — used for shaping curves and rings — and there is a short step near the end used for anchoring small work.

A square hole about one inch across in the flat surface supports two standard accessories — a cold chisel used for cutting heavy bars and a fork used to hold bars being bent — and one non - standard accessory, a small anvil he uses for delicate work. Between the forge, the anvil, the hammer and the tongs, a skilled blacksmith can make almost anything of iron or steel. McKenzie uses an oxy - acetylene torch to save time on some cutting jobs, but he could do the same cutting with the traditional tools.

And iron and steel are not the only metals worked at the forge. The huge crushers used at the plant run on soft babbitt-metal bearings, which wear out and must be replaced. It's a blacksmith's job to melt the remains of the old bearings out of castings, melt the babbitt and pour the new bearings in place. Modern machinery takes over only to drill out the centre of the newly - poured bearing. For some bearings, he molds and pours 1,000 pounds of babbitt.

CLOTHES IMPORTANT

A blacksmith's clothes are important. McKenzie wears an asbestos apron and asbestos gloves for protection from the heat of his forge and safety glasses to protect his eyes. Not traditional for blacksmiths, but required by company safety regulations is his fibreglass "hard hat" safety helmet.



McKenzie is married and has two daughters, one of them married. He lives has job he says, and wouldn't trade with any other man in the shop. He has no assistants, and there are no other blacksmiths in the firm, but he says a good man who is interested in the trade could be doing the basic jobs by himself after about six months of training. There's a future in the trade, he says, because no machine can properly handle a blacksmith's work. In fact the only blacksmith's job a machine could properly take over is making horseshoes and shoeing horses. And most blacksmiths quit doing those jobs years ago.

UNION CARBIDE

Equipment is on order now for expanded production facilities at Union Carbide's Bakelite plant here. The new equipment, which should be ready for use during the early fall, will expand the Bellevile plant's capacity for resin production by about 20 per cent.

WILSON CONCRETE PRODUCTS

Now being tested at the Wilson Concrete Products plant, a new truck carries a hydraulic boom to load and unload concrete blocks. The big tandem truck can carry up to ten "cubes" of 90 blocks each and, with a special fork slung below the boom, can unload them directly into, for example, a cellar excavation. The boom can be controlled from beside the truck, or by remote control through a portable control panel connected to the truck by a cable. The old trucks, with an unloading hoist running on rails, can unload only onto level ground. The new truck was delivered last Thursday, and will be put into regular use in a week or so. For the time being, the unit is being tested and the drivers are getting used to handling the boom.

THERE IS NO SPREADING CHESTNUT TREE but blacksmith Alvin McKenzie still does a lot of his work with traditional tools, at the Canada Cement Co. plant at Point Anne. The picture shows him at work sharpening a small rock drill. Behind him, on the side of the forge, are more than twenty pair of hand-made tongs, shaped to fit different jobs.

BOOM TRUCK being tested by Wilson Concrete Products can unload blocks anywhere on a construction site. In the picture, Jim Pickering of Belleville, is Practising unloading. He controls the boom through a remote control panel.

Hamilton 'Named', PM Asks CBC to Show 'Mr. Pearson'

OTTAWA (CP) — Political thunder and lightning shot through the House of Commons Friday in an angry climax to the storm which had been gathering over the CBC cancellation of a program about the prime minister.

The two key developments arising from the clash were:

1. New pressure was put on the CBC—this time by the prime minister himself—to televise the hour - long documentary on Mr. Pearson. He also wanted the longer, unedited version shown to MPs. The CBC said it would consider the request.

2. Former Conservative agriculture minister Alvin Hamilton was "named" — and barred from the rest of the day's sitting—after rejecting repeated requests from Speaker Alan Macnaughton to withdraw his allegation that the prime minister "attempted to mislead" the House in replies to opposition queries about the documentary.

The controversial documentary was prepared by the CBC as a day in the life of the prime minister at a cost of $33,000. It was killed on the grounds it was technically inadequate.

Within minutes of his promise to the Commons on Friday, Mr. Pearson called CBC President Alphonse Ouimet to ask that the film be shown publicly and that MPs get a screening of it as it was before the final editing.

Mr. Pearson said he didn't want to be accused of political interference with CBC independence. However, he was sure he would be.

CBC officials indicated the corporation will ponder the matter during the weekend before rendering a final decision. The corporation has been unyielding to earlier requests for showing the film.

The film subject had been raised seven times this month before Friday's blowup.

Mr. Hamilton started it by directing a question to the president of the Privy Council, George McIlraith, that Mr. Pearson quickly fielded.

Mr. Hamilton wound up by declining to withdraw an allegation that Mr. Pearson thrice had "attempted to mislead" the House in answers Friday and earlier in the week.

Mr. Pearson was stung by the word "attempted" which he said made it appear that he was deliberately misleading the Commons. At one point, he said Opposition Leader Diefenbaker stood for a minute competing for the floor, backed by colleagues providing noisy applause.

Mr. Macnaughton took Mr. Pearson's request for a Hamil-

Humble Prayer Irksome

By RONALD LEBEL

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons and the Senate unanimously passed the 1963 amendment to the Canadian constitution Friday and dashed off a humble address to the Queen "praying" that she refer it to the British Parliament for ratification.

Speakers in both Houses were equally unanimous in deploring the anomaly under which the mother of Parliaments still must sanction changes in Canada's constitution, 97 years after Confederation.

They noted that Britain's legislators have been anxious for years to get rid of this chore. They called for new efforts by the federal and provincial governments to devise a formula acceptable to all to amend the British North America Act in Canada without involving Westminster.

Prime Minister Pearson said in the Commons his government will "take appropriate measures" to do just that. The subject would be placed on the agenda of the next federal - provincial conference, slated for Charlottetown in August.

The latest amendment clears the way for new features in the proposed Canada Pension Plan. It empowers Parliament to pass laws relating to survivors' disability and death benefits as part of the contributory pension scheme. These fields now are reserved exclusively for the provinces.

The British Parliament, on the verge of being dissolved for a general election in October or earlier, must pass the constitutional amendment before the Canadian Parliament can proceed with the pension plan it-

Senators OK Civil Rights

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Senate, after 60 days of debate, the longest in its history, passed the civil rights bill Friday and by an overwhelming 73-to-27 vote.

With that historic hurdle cleared the bill goes to the House of Representatives on Monday where it is expected to receive prompt approval.

House leaders predicted that after a brief struggle the measure—to outlaw racial discrimination—will be on the president's desk ready to be signed into law by July 4.

In San Francisco, Johnson applauded the action, declaring: "Senators have made the right bill is a major step toward equal opportunities for all Americans. I congratulate senators of both parties who worked to make passage possible.

"I looked forward to the day, which will not be long forthcoming, when the bill becomes law. That will be a milestone in America's progress toward full justice for all her citizens."

From the South, however, came predictions of disaster from some southern U.S. governors. Alabama's George C. Wallace predicted the American people "will rise in revolt from offices those responsible."

Many Provinces Welcome Phases Of Health Plan

To Confer With Ottawa On Recommendations

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Provincial politicians Friday welcomed recommendations of the royal commission on health. A government - sponsored medical care program for all Canadians to be financed on a 50-50 basis with the provinces was recommended in the report, released in Ottawa. It would cost $468,000,000 a year.

Health Minister Eric Martin of British Columbia told a press conference a suggestion that mental health and tuberculosis treatment be brought under the hospital insurance plans was "fabulous . . . terrific, equal to medicare itself."

He also announced that Health Minister LaMarsh had invited him to a federal-provincial conference in Ottawa July 20-21 to discuss the report's recommendations.

A. E. Blakeney, minister of health in the former CCF Saskatchewan government, said in

PSI Says Report Took Easy Way

TORONTO (CP) — Stewart Major, general manager of Physicians' Services Incorporated here, said Friday the sweeping recommendations of the royal commission on health services are "the line of least resistance."

The commission recommended Friday a government-sponsored medical care program for all Canadians—costing $468,000,000 a year and financed 50-50 with the provinces.

They took the easy way out —it's simple to just recommend the works," said Mr. Major.

Mr. Major said there would not be enough doctors to handle such a broad plan and the government would have to spread its adoption over many years.

Federal-Provincial Meet Within 6 Months Urged

OTTAWA (CP)—For an extra $20 a year Canadians could be offered the biggest health-package deal in the country's history.

That's the price tag set by the royal commission on health services for progressively providing top-notch doctors' care for everyone under a proposed federal - provincial pay - paid health services program.

Ultimately, free dental care would be thrown in, too.

The commission, appointed three years ago today, tabled the government Friday to accept the responsibility for leading it in "a new thing" in "health charter for Canadians."

It called for a federal - provincial conference within six months to set the program rolling. The Liberal party's election campaign committee has promised the government to establishing a national health insurance plan and hold a federal - provincial meeting.

When the 914-page report—300,000 words, 4½ pounds in weight, and 14 years in the writing—was tabled in the Commons Friday, Prime Minister Pearson said:

"We will have to consider the recommendations first to see whether it is the government's policy to implement them. They have to be studied. Those which are to be implemented should be put into effect as soon as possible."

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker, under whose former Progressive Conservative administration the commission was set up, endorsed holding a federal-provincial conference.

New Democratic Leader T. C. Douglas who, prior to entering federal politics in 1961, was instrumental in implementing the medical care plan in Saskatchewan, was "pleasantly surprised" with the report.

"I am particularly pleased that the commission proposes a universal medical care insurance plan—that it should cover everyone," he said.

Social Credit Leader Thompson commended the commission for coming to grips with Canada's health problems.

Provincial officials generally welcomed the report except for the cost of hospitals and some of the possible means for provincial governments to raise their share of the costs. This suggestion brought immediate rebuffs from all but Quebec officials.

Report Quite a Mouthful, To Take Some Digesting

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Following are excerpts from editorials in representative Canadian newspapers on the report of the royal commission on health services. Except as noted all newspapers quoted describe themselves as politically independent.

Toronto Globe and Mail: The report commends in many respects . . . as the saying goes, spoken a mouthful, and its proposals will take some digesting. The plan for an all-embracing medical care program is more sweeping, we suspect, than even the keenest supporters of medicare had bargained for.

It will create a sensation across the country and will rock the politicians back on their heels—not to speak of the doctors, the dentists, the insurance companies, the drug houses and others.

Montreal Le Devoir: The royal commission on health services took three years to prepare its report. It has known for at least 30 years that it is inexcusable in a country as rich as ours that small wage-earning families be deprived of essential health cares and that there is no other way to remedy the situation today than to set up a universal health insurance plan without delay.

Ottawa Citizen: . . . It is one of the most important documents prepared for a government in this country. The commission's matters the timeworn myth that a distinction should be made between physical and mental illness when it comes to providing assistance from public funds.

Fin ancial Press: There are many nations which benefit from lotteries. . . . By supporting the lottery idea the government could kill two birds with one stone—help defray the cost of a health scheme and thus keep taxes down and cut two the supply of dollars which finance the underworld from many of the existing gambling enterprises.

Surprised Medical Men Oppose Arbitrary Action

UN Force To Stay 3 Months

UNITED NATIONS (CP)— The United Nations force will continue to operate in Cyprus for another three months, but controversy continues over what it can or cannot do to maintain the peace.

Continuance of the force was assured Friday when all countries and factions involved—including the Soviet Union—attending Security Council debate that they will not oppose extension.

VANCOUVER (CP) — The leaders of Canada's medical profession Friday warned the government against arbitrary imposition of a medical insurance plan on doctors.

They cautioned against situations that could lead to a "withdrawal of services" such as happened in Saskatchewan three years ago or to an exodus of doctors from the country. They said any medicare plan must be preceded by doctor-government talks.

The warnings were the strongest reaction of members of the executive of the Canadian Medical Association at a press conference called to discuss the report of the royal commission on health services.

Ready to Risk Escalation Of War in Southeast Asia

WASHINGTON (CP) — The United States has decided to treat the Asian crisis with the same degree of priority and importance as a crisis in Berlin or Cuba, it was learned authoritatively Friday.

This means the U.S. is ready to risk escalation of military action unless communist aggression forces ease pressures on Laos and South Viet Nam.

It is understood the U.S. wants this message brought forcibly to the attention of European allies, some of whom are suspected of treating the conflict in Laos and South Viet Nam as a peripheral matter.

The U.S. view is that the allies would be gravely miscalculating American policy and intentions if they fail to understand that the Pacific region is as important to the U.S. as the Atlantic.

Prospects of peace in the Southeast Asia area are described in informed quarters as dim.

The Johnson administration, however, also has decided to retain a flexible position, ready to consider the possibility of withdrawing American troops from the area of conflict if Hanoi and Peking could be persuaded to do the same and to agree to leave their neighbors alone.

Politicians and Protestants Oppose Lottery Proposal

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A suggestion by the royal commission on health services that lotteries might be used to help finance provincial health services got a negative reaction from politicians and Protestant clergymen Friday. Roman Catholics saw nothing wrong with the idea.

Prime Minister Pearson, in a report released Friday in Ottawa, stressed that it did not advocate lotteries.

"But where a province declares to operate a lottery solely to assist in financing its health services, the federal government, when required by a province to do so, might permit to Parliament appropriate amendments to the Criminal Code," the report said.

Attorney-General A. A. Wishart of Ontario said in an interview in Toronto: "I think that there would be a great deal of sentiment in the country that would mean a lot using money. I know it is used in some countries but it doesn't appeal to me as a best method of meeting our needs."

Health Minister Matthew Dymond of Saskatchewan said:

Rt. Rev. W. G. Burch, Anglican Bishop of Edmonton, said he was opposed to the use of lotteries.

"I don't think it has ever been proved that lotteries really advance the cause of health in any country," he said in Edmonton.

Governor-General Reconsiders Invitation to Society Parade

OTTAWA (CP) — GovErnor-General Vanier had decided to attend the St. Jean Baptiste Society's parade in Montreal next Wednesday after reconsidering his earlier acceptance of the society's invitation, a Government House spokesman said Friday.

The reconsideration resulted from a press report that said the Montreal branch of the society favored Quebec becoming a republic.

The society said earlier Friday that its June 24 feast program saying the Governor-General would not attend the parade unless the branch refuted a recommendation in favor of a Quebec republic.

The Government House spokesman said the Governor-General sent a telegram to Paul-Emile Robert, president of the Montreal branch, saying he would have to reconsider his acceptance of the invitation in light of the branch's reported recommendation.

Since then, said the spokesman, the Governor-General has given further consideration to his position and has decided to attend.

The annual parade of the influential French-language patriotic society is staged annually as part of the festivities connected with the June 24 feast day of St. Jean Baptiste, patron saint of French Canada.

Meanwhile, President Dr. Lucien Boulet of the Quebec City branch of the society said the recommendation of the Montreal branch does not reflect his group's feelings. He said the Montreal branch had not submitted its recommendation to other branches of the society in the province.

This Health Plan for the Birds, Start to Curb Pesticide Use

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — The future appears brighter for the preservation of migratory birds and darker for some pesticides following the annual federal-provincial wildlife conference held here this week.

Programs and pilot studies for preserving the marsh breeding grounds of the majority of North America's migratory game birds are being started while the national resources department appears to be going after the provinces for help in getting support from all taxpayers to preserve Canada's migratory birds.

Meanwhile, says a Canadian wildlife service biologist, Canada is starting to pull her weight in the investigation of the effect of pesticides on wildlife.

Dr. F. G. Cooch of Ottawa, speaking on current developments in the biocide - wildlife field, said there is growing awareness that the effects of persistent DDT chemicals are the greatest problem in the biocide field.

He pressed delegates to establish and maintain liaison and pool their information on pesticide residue in wildlife species.

In a private session, the conference discussed preservation of wildlife and later Resources Minister Arthur Laing said he is hopeful that the provinces' varying wildlife interests can be included in a national scheme they can support.

Part of this could be a federal migratory bird - hunting licence with the money going toward projects that would develop and preserve nesting grounds. He said the time has arrived when the federal and provincial governments must take some collective action to preserve migratory birds. It would cost "many millions" in a 10-year program.

Air Crash Injures Kennedy

By ROBERT P. SALMON

NORTHAMPTON, Mass. (AP) A doctor said today Senator Edward M. Kennedy (Dem. Mass.), younger brother of the late president John F. Kennedy, suffered a broken back in a crash of a private plane Friday night which took two lives.

Dr. Thomas F. Corriden, who supervised the immediate treatment of Kennedy at Cooley-Dickinson Hospital, said he saw "several fractured vertebrae" in x-rays taken of the 32-year-old senator's back.

Corriden said of Kennedy "he's very seriously injured."

Less seriously injured in the crash was Senator Birch Bayh (Dem. Ind.) and his wife. Both were reported in good condition today.

The pilot was killed in the crash.

DIES IN HOSPITAL

The second fatality was Edward Moss, 41, of Andover, an administrative aide to Senator Kennedy. Moss died today at a Northampton hospital.

Dr. Corriden said Senator Bayh suffered a hip injury and scratches on his arm. He said Mrs. Bayh complained of soreness but was not x-rayed.

He said neither suffered serious injury.

The private, twin - engined plane plunged into an apple orchard in the western Massachusetts town of Southampton as it neared West Springfield and the Massachusetts Democratic state convention.

Kennedy, 32, was coming here to be endorsed by acclamation for a full, six-year term in the Senate seat once held by his brother, the late president. Bayh had been scheduled to deliver the convention's keynote address.

Junior NCO Course Ends On Sunday

A course run for the past five months on alternate weekends will see its ending this Sunday as fourteen members of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment tay their written and practical test for Jr. NCO's. Freighter Runs Aground Off Salmon Point

PICTON (Staff) — A 10,000-ton Egyptian freighter went aground off Salmon Point this morning. The ship "Star of Suez", is a former U.S. Liberty ship registered in Alexandria and owned by the National Arabic Navigation Company. She was en-route from Toronto to Montreal with cargo when she struck bottom about 12 feet out of water on a shoal about one-quarter mile off shore. Most of the ship's length is out of water, according to observers.

Kingston harbormaster Edward Shipp-Walker has been contacted by the agents, Keele Shipping of Montreal, but according to reports was unable to make radio contact with the ship this morning. He did make contact with a few commercial fishermen near the grounded ship and asked them to ask the captain, master, Capt. Attia, to make contact. No contact had been established at the newspaper's press time.

Observers reported this morning the ship appeared to be attempting to free herself unaided at low water, but fishermen at the scene believe this will be impossible. Reports from the scene indicate the Egyptian crew is in no danger.

SUNDAY, JUNE 21st IS FATHER'S DAY

This will not be a usual Sunday, when Fathers are kept busy being a handyman in the home. No sir! That Sunday Father will be the King of the family instead of just a subject. This will be a day when everybody works but Father, who will spend his time opening up and enjoying his gifts.

We know Fathers deserve this tribute. Have you ever watched the expression on a Father's face while he is waiting for us to fill a prescription for a loved one who is very sick? We have, often. No one but a Father looks exactly that way.

Your Doctor can phone us when you need a medicine. Pick up your prescription if shopping nearby, or we will deliver promptly without extra charge. A great many people entrust us with their prescriptions. May we dispense yours?

See Support Price for Eggs Says Minister

OTTAWA (CP) — Present low egg prices indicate that the federal government should be ready to have to pay a support price for 1964, Agricultural Minister Hays said Friday.

He said in a statement that producers should retain delivery and grading slips so that they can make claims for such payments.

The egg year ends Sept. 30. While it still is too early to be definite, Mr. Hays says, "present egg price indicate that a deficiency payment likely will be made."

No such payment has been necessary for the last two years.

Sukarno Quits Conference, Then Returns

TOKYO (AP)—President Sukarno of Indonesia stalked out of the Malayzia summit conference today, but returned just as abruptly two hours later as the parley teetered on the brink of collapse.

An Asian diplomat said the meeting — the second summit session today—broke up in anger over Rahman's demand for the withdrawal of all Indonesian guerrillas from Malaysian Borneo within a month.

The Malaysian prime minister, Abdul Rahman, laid down this condition for agreeing to submit the dispute to a four-nation Asian mediation commission.

Philippine President Diosdado Macapagal proposed the commission at the first session today, and Sukarno and Rahman both agreed conditionally.

It was hoped that Sukarno and Rahman would agree at their second meeting on the members of the commission and its authority in trying to end the dispute.

COULD HURT CHANCES

From the Malaysian Borneo state of Sarawak, meanwhile, came an accusation against Indonesia that could imperil the Tokyo conference.

Sarawak's chief minister, Stephen Kalong Ningkan, told The Associated Press he thinks Indonesia staged a phoney withdrawal of 32 guerrillas Friday to force Rahman to meet with Sukarno.

Before sitting down with Sukarno, Rahman insisted on a token withdrawal of Indonesian guerrillas from Malaysian Borneo. Rahman's condition was met when the 32 Indonesians marched past a border checkpoint manned by observers from Thailand.

Ningkan said, however, that he believes Indonesia sent the men into Sarawak recently for the sole purpose of giving the appearance of a withdrawal.

Brighton Ontario Provincial Police are investigating. Further details were not available.

Gordon, Crump Will Consider No-op Report

OTTAWA (CP) — CNR President Donald Gordon said Friday he plans to meet soon with CPR President N. R. Crump to decide whether to accept or reject a conciliation board wage proposal involving 100,000 non-operating railway workers.

Mr. Gordon, appearing before the Commons railway committee, said the proposed 10-cent hourly increase for the CNR and CPR non-operating employees would cost $27,000,000 over the two-year contract.

He said he and Mr. Crump would have to meet to decide how to face this "enormous demand."

The conciliation board proposal is not binding on the railways. It was accepted by the less 15 unions that represent the employees, who do not actually run trains.

ROM RECEIVES GIFT

TORONTO (CP)—The Royal Ontario Museum announced Friday it has received a cast of the skull of a giant flesh-eating dinosaur as a gift from the Soviet Union. The skull belonged to the tarbosaurus, a 40-foot reptile which prowled the Gobi Desert 80,000,000 years ago.

Dope Ring Cracked at Montreal

By HAROLD MORRISON

WASHINGTON (CP) — Canadian and U.S. police, working together, believe they have cracked the biggest heroin smuggling ring in North America with the arrest Friday of five men, including four Canadians taken into custody in Montreal. Others are being sought.

Described by U.S. customs men as being linked with the Mafia, the ring began to crack when a United States border agent, checking the padding of an automobile seat, was puzzled by its hardness.

He discovered more than 75 pounds of the white powder in small plastic packages, valued in the U.S. black market at about $3,000,000. It was the biggest heroin haul on the Mexican border.

That was on Oct. 10, 1953, at Laredo, Tex., when Joseph Caron of Montreal, the automobile driver, was allegedly on his way home from a trip to Mexico. Named as a co-conspirator in the current indictment, Caron is serving a 10-year prison term for the smuggling attempt.

NAB KINGPIN?

The U.S. justice department believes the kingpin and most of the North American operators have been accounted for since RCMP took four Montrealers into custody. They are Lucien Rivard, 49; Charles Emile Groleau, 56; Julien Gagnon, 38, and Joseph Raymond Jones, 27.

Attorney-General Robert Kennedy of the U.S. said the five, who include Frank James Coppola, 37, picked up in his home town of Milford, Conn., were named in a secret indictment in a Houston, Tex., district court May 27.

Kennedy said in a statement the U.S. has asked the Canadian government to extradite the four Montrealers to face trial in the U.S.

Jury Says Walker Libeled By AP Stories

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)—A Fort Worth jury said Friday former Maj. - Gen. Edwin A. Walker was libelled in Associated Press stories during the 1962 University of Mississippi race riot.

The AP immediately gave notice of appeal.

The jury, in answering questions given by the judge, said Walker should receive $500,000 for actual damages and $300,000 for exemplary or punitive damages.

The Associated Press will appeal the verdict of the jury in this court," said Wes Gallagher, AP general manager, in a statement.

"In the light of the evidence presented by both sides, The Associated Press is confident that the verdict will not be upheld on appeal."

The appeals will go to the next highest state court, the second court of civil appeals, also in Fort Worth.

The verdict climaxed a nine-day trial of a civil suit in which Walker asked $2,000,000 alleged damages.

The case went to the jury of four women and eight men late Thursday after both sides rested before Judge Charles J. Murrah.

STORIES DEFENDED

In final arguments, lawyers for the former army major-general said some AP stories of Walker's actions during the Sept. 30, 1962, segregation riot at the University of Mississippi were slightly close to fiction with lots of embellishments." The AP contended its reports were accurate in fact and substance, without malice.

Yesterday, students from Grade 13 wrote their finals, but their results will not be known until August.

High school registration at the end of May stood at 1,198.

Meanwhile, 2,132 public school students will start their holidays, next Friday, June 26.

Next September, 313 students are expected to enter kindergarten and Grade One, while 179 students will graduate from Grade Six this June, to go on to Grade Seven classes at the Mary-School or to Grade Seven classes more Street Senior Public es in Prince Charles School.

The greatest amount of crowding will take place at North Trenton School and Queen Elizabeth Public. At Queen Elizabeth, the auditorium will be divided to make room for the expected influx of kindergarten pupils.

A request from town council for Ontario Municipal Board approval for an addition to the North Trenton School will not be given until the town submits a proected five-year capital costs budget to the OMB.

Council is working on the five-year budget, and this should be sent to the OMB sometime next week, according to a town hall authority.

Meanwhile, school authorities are faced with the fact that it's too late in the school year to get the $60,000 addition. North Trenton underway and completed by autumn.

Mr. Parker is chairman of the management committee with the Trenton school board, is brief address to the Trenton Kiwanis Club Thursday night, said that the school board was going to have to take a "very serious look at future expansion of Trenton schools."

Mr. Parker, who is also a past lieutenant governor of Kiwanis, said that almost all school expenditures were "preordained" before being considered by the board. Salaries must be kept competitive, in order to attract qualified teachers and the schools must be maintained in good condition to do away with costly repair bills.

However, said Mr. Parker, expansion of existing school facilities was something which could be partially controlled by school boards. He said that he thought in the case of rising school costs, boards should make certain that "frills" were left out when it came to planning.

Mr. Parker said that Trenton was in the middle of a school population explosion at the moment, and additional classrooms for existing schools must be considered along with the possibility of a new public school and a second high school for the town.

Kiwanis Hears Civic Reports

TRENTON — Thursday night, two members of the Trenton Kiwanis Club, Carl Weese and Ted Parker, who also sit on municipal boards, reported to the club on their participation in civic affairs.

Six other Kiwanians sit on boards, John Saylor and Norman Armstrong on the Trenton Board of Police Management; Dieter Rolf, Kiwanis President on Trenton Traffic Committee; Paul Tripp, Trenton Committee; Wayne Simmons, Trenton Memorial Library Board; Dr. W. A. L. Tidmarsh, chairman of the Trenton Planning Board. These members will address the club at a later date.

Thursday's program was arranged by Howard Aziz and Keith Bailey introduced the two speakers.

Will Be August Before Street Work Completed

TRENTON — Work on three of Trenton's main streets, Dundas St. of Front St. Bridge, and Sidney St., and supplementary side streets, is progressing, according to town engineer Eric Akhersey. But because of unexpected delays, work will "not be completed until August," Mr. Akhersey said this morning.

The work gangs hope to get conditions on all streets to the paving stage at the same time. Actual paving will take only a matter of days.

Gravel is now being put on Dundas St. East, and in a few days, concrete should be able to drive the gravelled surface.

Workmen are putting in curbs, work on gutters and sidewalks, on Dufferin Ave., and others are installing underground cables, on Gilmour Hill, to serve traffic lights.

Dundas St. West will be tied up to traffic very soon, for a two - week period, while underground services are joined up. Motorists will be forced to detour around this area.

On Sidney St., workmen are installing laterals from the sewer main of the houses on the street, and then the excavating work on the road itself should start.

Meanwhile, work on the widening of one section of Division St., between King and Dundas St., has been postponed until next month. The feeling of town council was that with the other streets torn up, traffic would be too congested if the work were started sooner.

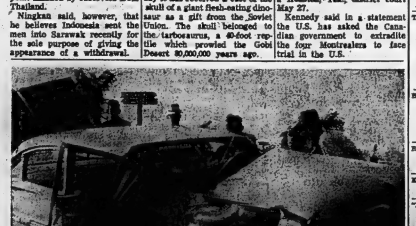
Hopes to See Day Council Grants $10,000 to Gardens

"TRENTON — Kiwanian Carl Weese, in nine promotions and rentals chairman with the Trenton Community Gardens' Commission, in an address to the members of his club Thursday night, he said that he looked forward to the day when town council would consider the gardens as a community service and grant the commission at least $10,000 annually, towards the running of the arena.

Until council does this, said Mr. Weese, the commission could not very well make the gardens' pay, and still contribute free time, on time at reduced rentals, to various community groups.

The gardens takes in between $60,000 and $65,000 annually, but spends around $4,000 in excess of this sum. It subsidizes such groups as the Trenton Minor Hockey Association by charging reduced rental for ice time. Each year, for the past few years, council has "picked up the tab" for the $4,000, which action constitutes giving a equivalent grant. And each year, council authorizes the commission to have a $2,000 overdraft at the bank, at the beginning of the year.

"We walk a thin line," said Mr. Weese. Thursday night, "we're afraid to undertake any ambitious program because it sts money. Our staff is cut down below minimum and they're working at lower salary ss than they should be."



ASKS MORE SUPPORT

Mr. Weese said that the commission would like more cooperation from the townspeople in general when special promotions come to the arena.

"Special promotions draw crowds of 1200 and 1800 when they go to BelleviRe . . . a mere 300 people come out when it's Trenton's turn," he said. "Rock and roll seems to appeal to teenagers all over . . . until it comes to Trenton."

Separatists Prove Realists

Separatists severely criticized the members of the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism when it concluded its round of informal public meetings by holding a gathering in Quebec City.

These attacks served a useful purpose. They clarified the general philosophy of the separatists. Frankly, it is vastly different from that which we had conceived.

Our revised estimate of the separatists involves admiration for their grasp of facts, a lowered opinion of their motives and a growing conviction that they are unlikely to carry the day in Quebec.

All these changes in our outlook arise from their attitude towards the French-speaking minorities outside Quebec and the English-speaking minority within Quebec's borders.

Many of the demands voiced by French-Canadians involve improved treatment for their fellows in English-speaking provinces.

Surprisingly, to us, the separatists at the Quebec City meeting did not echo these requests. Instead, they were ready to wash their hands of those of their tongue and race who happen to reside outside Quebec. Guy Pinsonneault, leading spokesman for Le Rassemblement pour l'Independance Nationale, said that the million French-Canadians outside Quebec should integrate with the English-speaking majority in the provinces where they live, and the English-speaking minority should integrate with the French-speaking majority in Quebec. Other separatists said that nation-wide bilingualism was a snare, because the English-speaking majority outside Quebec would never accept it.

This, we think, is a realistic attitude and realism deserves to be appreciated. The separatists are more logical than we had supposed.

But there is something to be said for idealism, too, and when one strips concern for all of their blood from the separatists one sees them for what they are, a group selfishly seeking independence because they believe it will make their own life in Quebec more comfortable.

Self interest is the motive force in most mass movements. It so happens, though, that the appeal of nationalism is an exception. Here emotion rules reason. The separatists are being reasonable. That very fact suggests they are unlikely to emerge victorious. The majority of French-Canadians, we suggest are not likely to take kindly to this suggestion that they abandon their flesh and blood outside Quebec. They will seek the utopia at which the separatists scoff, the provision of special facilities for preserving the French tongue and French-Canadian culture in provinces other than Quebec. They will, therefore, be extremely reluctant to sever Quebec's ties with the rest of Canada.

English-speaking Canadians ought to show some idealism, too, in the most difficult way. We can confound the separatists, who are realistic, by finding ways to meet at least some of the wishes of the French-Canadian idealists. The reward could be rich—a united Canada.

Is This Beneficial?

The country was all worked up about the Canada Pension Plan. People were talking about it. The House of Commons started considering it.

Suddenly, the pension plan dropped from sight. The new issue was a distinctive Canadian flag. People talked—nay argued heatedly—about it. On Parliament Hill members of Parliament got ready to debate it. Wednesday they did. Thursday, the flag started disappearing from sight, while the pension plan emerged once more as the next target of brickbats and bouquets. Then there came the health care proposals.

This, all will agree, would be a heck of a way to run a railroad. But is it, perchance, a good way to run the House of Commons?

Admittedly, this procedure of rotating measures up for discussion provides an automatic cooling off period, gives some members time to get the feeling of the country and, upon occasion, produces useful compromises. On the other hand, it would appear reasonable to suppose the lack of continuity in debate tends to duplication of effort, to repetition of arguments and to an avoidable delay in action.

On balance, is it beneficial or otherwise? Frankly, we do not feel we are qualified to judge, but it would be interesting to hear a bevy of MP's debate the issue some time, preferably on TV some Sunday evening. The CBC could make a private showing of the famous film "Mr. Pearson" the prize for the best contribution to the debate.

Sherbrooke La Tribune—A couple of thousand Eskimos live on the territory of Quebec province, in the northern regions. The federal government exercises its jurisdiction over these citizens as the provincial government wants this authority. Basically, it is a simple question not involving particular difficulty. Nevertheless, negotiations at the ministerial level in the last few months have made an extremely complicated issue of it.

The matter took on extravagant proportions a few days ago and the danger became acrued. Rene Levesque of Quebec and Arthur Laing of Ottawa, reached Quebec City accusing each other of bad faith. What is even more regrettable is that the matter assumes considerable importance in the eyes of some other provinces where they seem to think that for Ottawa to abandon its jurisdiction over the Eskimos of Quebec would be condemning them to slavery.

It is unfortunate that the two governments act like children and fight without reason

Although reports have been frequent of wolves having been seen in many parts of the county or that farm flocks have been raided by the marauders, only ten claims for wolf bounty have been paid this year by county authorities, it was stated by Mr. J. Haggerty, Hastings County treasurer.

Wolves killed have been from all parts of the County, one essentially striking instance being that of a pure white wolf shot in the Lake Baptiste district in North Hastings. Practically all the wolves killed have been of comparatively small size, although it was pointed out they can still be dangerous to farm stock. Thirty-five dollars in bounty is paid for the killing of a wolf in Hastings, $25 of this being paid by the province and $10 by the County.

In view of the scarcity of garage mechanics and of the dire necessity that civilian and commercial cars and trucks be kept on the highways in good running condition, the Garage Operators Association of Ontario is making representations to the provincial minister of labor to have the auto repair trade exempted from the recent amendment to labor calling for a 40-hour week This information was gained by the members of Belleville and Prince Edward branch of the above organization when they met at the Y.M.C.A. on Wednesday evening for their regular monthly dinner meeting

In the Provincial elections the Liberal Party after an absence of administrative control in the Ontario Legislature for 26 years, when the Ross government was defeated, was elected to power under the leadership of Mitchell Hepburn by a large majority over the Conservative Party, led by Hon. George S. Henry, who has been a member of the Legislature for many years, and who held the office of premier for some time. Mr. Henry was reelected in his riding of East York. Sixty-five seats out of a total of ninety were captured by the Liberals. From 54 members, — the number held out of 112 gidings before redistribution, the Conservatives dropped to 17. The Liberals ran up their total from 15 in the last house. Four Labor Progressives, who are expected to align themselves with Mr. Hepburn, were elected. In the same category are one independent, one United Farmers of Ontario and one Labor-Liberal. The Co-operative Commonwealth Federation made its first bid for recognition in Ontario, and elected one member in Hamilton East, over the Liberal candidate.

In West Hastings, W. H. Ireland, Conservative of Trenton, who has held the seat for the past 15 years, was defeated by Dr. J. Albert Faulkner, Liberal, of Madoc. The vote was officially estimated at this time of about 1,000 in East Hastings James F. Hill, Conservative, was defeated by the united the riding for the past 11 years, defeated the Liberal candidate Peter Aikens by an estimated majority of 350. Mr. Hill was first elected in 1923 and in two elections he was returned by acclamation.

In Prince Edward, T. Bowman, Liberal, was elected with about 600 majority: this is a Liberal gain. Conservative Horace Colliver was the Conservative candidate. He held the seat for two terms.

About 8,000 people witnessed the third presentation of the gorgeous pageant, and hundreds of people thronged the streets where dancing was enjoyed on the pavements to first class music. Triple visits of other attractions are open until tomorrow evening. The officials of the celebration are pleased with the business of the celebration and will render a statement in the near future. Everything has gone so well pleased at the way the citizens backed up the celebration and helped to make it a great success.

Water Restrictions Are Said Necessary

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer:

In answer to Mr. Misser's letter about water restriction in the City of Belleville.

Maybe we do need conscientiously in books, movies and smiling Sunday faces but we also need regulations regarding the use of water to keep lawns watered. Will all the citizens of the city complain because they can only water their lawns for 24 hours a week and try to rescind the regulation.

Not everybody lives at the cottage on weekend, or is self-employed and is complaining about the water regulation.

What would happen if all the people were to use the water for lawns and a fire broke out in the city or an emergency put all the hospitals on a 24 hour emergency? If the person in question were to call the pump house maybe they would inform the public as to why the water must be regulated.

Most Cancers Grow Slowly But Gain Speed Gradually

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Please discuss skin cancer. I understand that they spread rapidly, but the little lumps are removed by surgery, will they come back? — A. T.

With a few rare exceptions, all cancers grow slowly. In the beginning, that is. But like everything else, they gain speed as they go along — and for about the same reason.

To understand this, we have to understand what cancer is.

The body is made up of tiny, microscopic cells, just as an ocean is made up of drops of water.

How does the body grow, in childhood? By having a cell divide into two, and then each two into four, until there are enough.

Later in life, this process slows down, but does not stop. We are constantly replacing our bodies, cell by cell. When one cell dies, it divides into two, and the two "daughter cells" then grow to full size. The total number of cells stays the same.

But if, for reasons, we do not understand but are trying to comprehend the cells do not divide in this normal orderly manner there is trouble. Let's say that cell divides even though its next-door neighbor has not died off. Then we have an extra cell Something has gone wrong with the "dividing" order. Then two resulting cells also divide too soon. Their offspring divide before other cells in the like the mathematical puzzle about "If I give you one cent today, and two cents tomorrow, and four the next day, and keep doubling the amount every day, how long before you have a billion?"

Can the cancer "come back?" Not if we get it all out. Can a brand new cancer start at the first one did? Yes, it can but may not. If a new one starts it is just as curable as the first one. And when you think of it, that's a very optimistic thought.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Winters Celebrate Golden Wedding

Congratulations will be in order Sunday for Mr. and Mrs. Harry Winter, 173 Mary Street, who tomorrow will be celebrating their 50th wedding anniversary.

The couple will be "at home" to their many friends during the afternoon.

Both natives of England, Mrs. Winter is the former Eileen Ford. They were married at North Easington on June 21 in 1914 and in 1920 came to Canada. After three years in Montreal they moved to Belleville where they have since lived.

At 72 Mr. Winter still works as a city school guard in the busy North Front Street, College area. He had previously worked for American Optical Corp's, at Coca-Cola, and at one time as laborer for local building contractors. Mrs. Winter is the same age as her husband.

Lack of respect for their elders is one big failing of the present day younger generation, it is felt by Mr. and Mrs. Winter.

But they are unanimous in the feeling that the parents are as much at fault as the children.

"Children are so saucy these days," said Mr. Winter.

The couple have three children living, a son Thomas Winter in Hamilton, and two daughters, Mrs. Kathleen Kimmett of Colborne Street and Mrs. Doris Badgley at home. There are four grandchildren.

Forced Retirement at Age 65 Is Not Right, This Man Says

By THOMAS COLLINS

Why age 65?

Compulsory retirement could have been set at 63, or 60, or 72. Why not for most people at 65. Why?

W. H. Lancaster, who retired happily enough last year at age 65, is fretting for an answer.

"I know how we got these ideas from Europe," he says. "I know how the Government accepted it, and how business bought it. But why age 65? Why any one particular age for everybody..."

Mr. Lancaster thinks it is not enough to defend the practice by saying it is a tradition, a widespread practice, and a formula that is working well. "You could say duck-hunting is a tradition and is working well — it is, except for the ducks. Retirement at 65 is working well except for the 65-year-old people. . ."

We would not allow a rule in our society that said everybody had to stop going to school at age 34, according to Mr. Lancaster. "Or a rule that said people couldn't marry after age 26, have babies after age 30, or hold church membership after age 50. But we go for a rule that says people must pack up their jobs after age 65, when peace of mind, well-being and even life itself may be at stake. Why?

"What concerns me, as you can see, is the moral aspect of this matter. Not I seriously doubt that age 65 can be justified on any grounds — not for everybody. It may be convenient for personnel managers. It may be the best way to set up pension funds. It may be profitable, since two college kids can usually be hired with the money saved when one 65-year-old man is retired. But it is crazy to believe that a man's usefulness on his job ceases with his 65th birthday — this can vary from age 45 to 80. It would be difficult to prove that age 65 would be the right age, even if compulsory retirement is right. This indeed is an awkward age. . . too old to start over and too young to stop. . ."

Mr. Lancaster cited the growing bill taxpayers are having to pay because of people being retired—Old-Age Assistance, welfare homes and hospitals, and perhaps soon some form of Medicare. "Only a fraction of this would be required if those who wanted it could keep their jobs.

"I do not believe costs and taxes will change the retirement practice," Mr. Lancaster continues. "But I think the country's conscience may. I think the Civil Rights bill is setting the stage for it.

"If the people of the country come around to believing they cannot discriminate against the race, the color, or the religion of a man, they are going to start wondering whether they can discriminate against his age. Whether they can tell a man who is not ready for it, can't afford it, and is afraid, that he must give up his job. Just because he is 65 years old.

"You can patch this problem to death — with Medicare, charity, and platitudes. But it won't go away. And the people are soon going to have some second thoughts about the thing."

How Mr. Lancaster would handle retirement:

Drop the age 65 retirement policies.

Encourage voluntary retirement from age 58 on, offer a better break on early pensions, and offer any other financial inducements (one company now in repeated offering him a month, plus normal pension to any employee who retires at age 55).

Set up a labor-management board in each company that would pass on all compulsory retirement cases recommended by management, such cases being any employee past age 50 with 15 or more years of service.

Keep the top pension pegged at age 65, but grant it to any employee retired arbitrarily after age 50;

Make health insurance compulsory for employers, and make it a type of insurance that will be in force for life, and grant it free to all retiring employees.

REFLECTIONS OF A TEACHER

"A teacher affects eternity; he can never tell where his influence stops."— Henry Brooks Adams, (1838 - 1918).

Soon now, the passing-by of children to school will cease, as June draws to a close.

We'll miss these brief daily dips in pools of enthusiasm and youthful eternal vigor, like a brisk tonic to the spirit; and some remarks of a now retired Belleville school teacher, Miss Nellie Merry of 183 Ann Street, come to mind:

'It's the most wonderful thing in the world to work with a class of young people. There's a certain wondrous support with each pupil, who, regardless of ability, has something within that is divine, holy; it is this which provides a great challenge.

'And pupils do come forth with some remarkable thoughts.

"I recall one time, while teaching a lesson on Blake's "The Piper", wondering just how I could put across the why of evil in God's world, with the inspector there, who, unknown to the class, had recently met with a personal tragedy.

"A lad of sixteen, interested in physics rose to say; if some bad bacteria be put in a test-tube of most perfect and good culture, it never thrives but degenerates while the good culture is undisturbed, not destroying it. Evil, it seemed to him, proved, tested and strengthened the good in society."

What about teaching as a career, for those who are now making decisions for a life's work, we asked.

"As a career," Miss Merry said, "teaching has never been so attractive, as now. Especially for women, a very brilliant woman, once named, as top student of her university graduating year, the most likely to succeed in the business world told me:

" 'A woman in business, unless she gets to the top of her profession by the time she's 40 or 45, is finished. She can only continue to help the more men, who, in turn, will go on to good promotions never offered her. If I had it to do over again, I'd choose the teaching profession.

"At it, I'd specialize in one subject. I'd become an authority about it. Then one is set for life. As or out of school, people, young and old, often need a distance, for various reasons, from professional natures.' This I think is an excellent idea.

"Since his business is giving of self, a teacher often seeks renewal by skipping about from place to place. It's been my observation and experience that it's better to let refresher courses supply the need for new techniques, and not a new face, where there's plenty of enthusiasm, and settle down to that he must give up his job. Just because he is 65 years old.

"You can patch this problem to death — with Medicare, charity, and platitudes. But it won't go away. And the people are soon going to have some second thoughts about the thing."

Encourage voluntary retirement from age 58 on, offer a better break on early pensions, and offer any other financial inducements, (one company now is reported offering him a month, plus normal pension to any employee who retires at age 55).

Set up a labor-management board in each company that would pass on all compulsory retirement cases recommended by management, such cases being any employee past age 50 with 15 or more years of service.

Keep the top pension pegged at age 65, but grant it to any employee retired arbitrarily after age 50;

Make health insurance compulsory for employers, and make it a type of insurance that will be in force for life, and grant it free to all retiring employees.

Gideons Present Bibles to OSD Students

The Ontario School for the Deaf was host to the Belleville Gideons earlier this month when the annual presentation of New Testaments was made. Thirty six students received New Testaments.

School Principal J. G. Demers called on Roger Rawlings to conduct the devotionals which were carried out by the pupils.

In a brief talk to the assembly, Mr. Gene Hilchon, Chaplain of the Belleville Gideons, spoke briefly on the eternal value of the written words of God and Mr. B. Foster, president of the Belleville Gideons, explained a plan for reading through the Bible in two years.

The climax of the event was the actual presentation of the Testaments carried out by Rich and Tyrell, a local Gideon, who with Robert Turner and Vernon Weir, helped to represent the Belleville group.

Witnesses said Sgt. Hurst was injured after the club struck a small branch as he was finishing a shot.

Diane Burrows to Teach In Southern Freedom School

How many young Canadians would give up a well earned summer vacation to work as a volunteer teacher in a deep south Mississippi State freedom school?

Miss Diane Burrows, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Freeman Burrows of this city, is one who would and she will be doing just that until the end of August.

Home only for a short stay after a year's teaching at a reform school in Jamaica, Miss Burrows left last night for Toronto where today she will board a bus for the trip south.

She will stop off at an orientation centre in Oxford, Ohio, for a week and then go on to Mississippi.

Her experiences at the colored reform school in Jamaica fostered a deep interest in the lot of the Negro for Miss Burrows.

"The Negro racial problem is not just an American problem, but is also a human problem," she says. "But if there is a color problem anywhere it has to be solved first in the United States."

"The United States is considered the cradle of Democracy, and if they can't do anything to say in Africa and many other parts of the world they first will have to solve its racial problem."

She says that Canadians generally are complacent and that we in Canada could be faced with the same problem here.

Miss Burrows is one of three Canadians who this summer will teach in Mississippi State freedom schools where there is a ten-year program to raise the education level. Purpose of the schools is three phased featuring academic, recreational and cultural studies and leadership development.

"The idea is to try to make the student more aware of things about him and to understand the relationship between local and national affairs," she said.

A 1963 graduate in general arts from the University of Toronto, Miss Burrows last year took the Jamaica teaching job through her interest in the Canadian Peace Corps.

She said she enjoyed her year in Jamaica despite the fact that her school was in a remote area 90 miles from Kingston.

"I'll never complain about Canadian roads again," laughed Miss Burrows as she recalled weekend trips to Kingston over winding, tortuous roads on the tropical island.

After her summer in Mississippi, the Belleville girl expects to return to teaching or possibly another job with the Peace Corps.

Wildlife and Water Plentiful In Southeastern-Most Texas

By SHIRLEY and BOB SLOANE

PORT ISABEL, Tex. — This town lies in the point of the Texas boot that trails its toe in the Gulf of Mexico in southeastern-most Texas, a latitude as far south as Miami.

It is a quaint fishing village whose salient feature is an old lighthouse once used to guide sailing ships. Today, in a state with the biggest of everything, the lighthouse — on a 30 by 30-foot plot — is called the world's smallest state park. There are more parked trailers than houses around, and kids are decorated with driftwood and ancient rusty anchors. A road sign reads "20 m.p.h. — People at Play."

What they are playing at mostly is "cattin' around," or, in polite society, beach-bugging, and it doesn't go on at anything like 20 m.p.h.

Port Isabel is the only appreciable town adjacent to South Padre Island, which is almost one with North Padre Island. The whole business stretches from the Mexican border 130 miles north to Port Aransas, just north of Corpus Christi. Between the two towns there is,

RAGE WITH "IN-GROUP"

Which, of course, is why it's all the rage with a wild and wooly in-group that talks hard about developing the island as a "new resort frontier." It isn't the first time the matter has come up. Samuel Isaull, of Treasure Dome notoriety, had the foundation for a lavish hotel all poured in Port Isabel before the balloon went up. It still stands, overgrown with weeds. Except for a whimsical antebellum-type inn called the Queen Isabel and a few rudimentary motels and marinas, Padre Island as yet shows little sign of the sporting Except, of course, for beach-bugging.

Padre Island, north or south, is little more than a windswept weedy string of sand dunes, its smooth by an ever-rolling surf. There are a few lonely motels and pastel homes, but most of the population consists of coyotes, deer, ground squirrels and wild cows left over from long forgotten Spanish herds.

The beach-buggiers are mostly business and professional men from the nearby Rio Grande Valley towns of Harlingen, McAllen, and Brownsville — a kind of last frontier themselves — who take inordinate delight in rampaging across the dunes and beaches, en caravan, in four - wheel drive vehicles that surely represent the side of any given auto show.

One we saw, owned by a Harlingen banker, was complete with instrumentation worthy of a DC4, survival and hunting gear (sometimes they hunt), two-way radio, and the inevitable bar. It cost $5,000.

The pirate Lafitte brothers were said to have used the island as a base for their operations, and it looks like a movie setting for it. There are still rumors of secreted treasure from wrecked Spanish galleons. For shell lovers it is a beachcomber's paradise. Cannibalistic Indians once populated Padre, which may explain why it is unpopulated.

CLAIMED BY PRIEST

The island first was claimed by a Spanish priest, Padre Nicolas Ball, hence its name. He is said to have received the royal grant by galloping a horse from one end to the other from dawn to dusk. That was before the days of $5,000 beach buggies.

Water — surf or otherwise — is one of the last things most furriners think of in connection with Texas. But it dominates the character and commerce of all this coastal area of southeast Texas, from Port Arthur to Houston, Corpus Christi, and the valley towns.

The latter, just a wetback away from the Rio Grande and Mexico (their population is more than half of Mexican extraction), are among the richest farm lands in the country, thanks to skillful irrigation. Besides cotton and first rate citrus third only to California and Florida in quantity, 43 different vegetables are grown under semi-tropical conditions.

The salubrious climate also has attracted an increasing number of retirees to gaze upon landscapes of mesquite and flowering cactus.

From Brownsville 150 miles north to Corpus is almost nothing but the King Ranch near-by a million acres strong and one of the world's largest and most progressive. Corpus Christi is a seaside oasis, a surprisingly lovely and graceful modern city sprawling far along a shoreline lined with beaches and parkways. Bay and deep sea whole schools of sailfish and marlin bulls.

A little way northeast is Aransas National Wildlife Refuge, home of the last 32 whooping cranes known to exist in the world. At the private Welder Wildlife Refuge north of the city some 1,300 different forms of plant life, 180 varied mammals and reptiles, and more than 400 species of birds exist in their native state. Admission is free.

Up the line, big Houston is getting bigger and more prosperous all the time. Its access 50-mile ship channel to Galveston Bay now handles one of the heaviest tonnages of any port in the country. Adding to its prosperity is the new $130,000,000 National Aeronautics and Space Administration research centre, though most tourists will prefer to drive through the suburbs of Clear Lake and Bay Shore where little boys sell homemade guide maps to the astronauts' homes.

Near the end of the ship channel line San Jacinto, site of the Republic of Texas' final victory over Mexico, and of the San Jacinto Monument, taller than the Washington Monument and the largest masonry monument in the world.

Opposite the San Jacinto Inn, an old wooden barn serving monumental seafood dinners for $4.50 a head, is berthed and open for inspection the battleship Texas, purchased with the pennies of Texas school children. Sometimes kids' pennies can accomplish more than all men's millions, even in Texas.

Ann Landers

Victim of 'Child Beating' Offers Her Personal Advice

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Your reply to "Daughter of Sorrow" was good. She was the girl who for years was beaten unmercifully by her mother. Through therapy the girl was able to forgive her mother instead of spending her life filled with hatred and bitterness.

ANN LANDERS

Psychiatry isn't the only answer, Ann. My story was similar to hers — only worse.

I am 19 now, and the first nine years of my life were hell. Dad was the town drunk. I'm sure he turned to the bottle because it was the only way he could escape from mother's screaming and temper tantrums. My sister and I lived in constant fear of beatings, filthy language and humiliation before friends.

When I was in the 4th grade I passed out in school. For 20 minutes I could not be revived. The principal and school nurse took off my blouse. They found welts and bruises all over my back. When they questioned me I told them everything.

The next day the police and welfare authorities investigated our home life. My sister and I were placed in a foster home and my father, with the help of a clergyman and A.A., straightened out. Mother was put in a mental institution where she died two years ago.

If children who are beaten by their parents would tell the school authorities they might not need psychiatric care later. Will you please tell them? — SPARED.

DEAR SPARED — I do tell them. Perhaps you are not aware that the advice which appears in the newspapers is only a small part of the service we give. Every week thousands of readers who send self-addressed envelopes get personal advice in the mail.

I am aware that some kids exaggerate, and others make up stories out of whole cloth, but I always suggest that children talk to a favorite teacher or the principal if there is brutality at home. If the story is not true nothing has been lost.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I have a friend (?) who has been pulling a cheap little trick for years and I am darned sick of it.

Whenever she owes me an invitation she invariably invites me for an evening when she knows I've been invited somewhere else.

I'm sure you'll say such clods could hardly be considered friends and they are not worth bothering with. Of course, you are right, but please print my letter so they will know they are not getting away with anything. Thank you. — X-RAY EYES.

DEAR EYES — Here is your letter and I hope your sneaky acquaintance and others who pull such shenanigans will see it and realize that they are not putting anything over on anyone. You're welcome.

DEAR ANN — Our son will be one year old in August.

My husband's parents had a bitter divorce several years ago. His parents have both remarried but they hate each other and make no bones about it. It is not possible to have them in the house at the same time.

I don't want to give two birthday parties for our son every year and yet I don't want to offend either set of grandparents. How should I handle this hot potato? — D.P.T.

DEAR D. — Draw straws for the first birthday party and let the losers come over the night before, for a cup of coffee and a cupcake with a candle on it.

Alternate from then on — invite one set of parents one year and the other set the next year.

To solve some of the frustrations, disappointments and disillusionments of married life, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "What to Expect from Marriage," enclosing with your request 30 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

A.N. & A.F. Ladies' Auxiliary Hears Various Reports

Meeting of the Ladies' Auxiliary No. 49 Belleville, took place recently in the auditorium of Memorial Hall, Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans', 257 Front Street, with Comrade president Elizabeth Buckley presiding.

Meeting opened with two minutes silence, advancement of the ceremonial work of the Auxiliary Standard, which were placed in their holders for the duration of meeting.

Two new members were initiated. Several donations which were previously dispersed have been acknowledged with thanks. The Cancer clinic has contacted members with request of assistance at their worthy occupation, and the response for volunteers was extremely good, however as an allotted number was stated, the remaining will be available if needed. The work done by the Cancer Clinic is to be highly commended.

REPORT OF PROVINCIAL COMMAND

1st vice-president Gladys Fitzgerald gave her report pertaining to the Provincial meeting of the Ontario Provincial Command Ladies Auxiliaries Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans, which was held in Ottawa May 30th. Seven members of the local Auxiliary were in attendance. Entertainment chairman reported on previous activities and extended appreciation and thanks to those who have been of assistance in these projects. Sick committee reported that cards have been dispersed to those in hospital and at home, including a card of congratulations to past president Comrade Marion Dracup on becoming a grandparent of a baby girl born in Ottawa, June 12th. Cloak room reports are near nil as the season becomes warmer. Membership chairman reported and presents two new applications for approval, these will be notified to appear for the September meeting as there is no meeting during summer.

SPORTS ENJOYED

Regarding the series of sports enjoyed Saturday last in competition with the 48th of Toronto it is to be noted several of the coveted trophies were simultaneously swept back to Toronto by the 48th Association Ladies Aux. The "Charlotte" trophy for cribbage was won by the local Auxiliary. It is definitely stated a return bout will be made in October with high hopes of re-claiming the trophy for cribbage and symbol of good fellowship.

A social night of entertainment for all Auxiliary members will take place in the auditorium of No. 201 Friday, July 3rd, 8 p.m. and as large as possible will endeavor to be on hand.

Following sessions of business Comrade Buckley requested the Sergeant at Arms to escort Comrade Charlotte Clark to be brought forward, where she was presented with a surprise packet, which revealed an enlarged candid picture of herself (Charlotte) taken during the New Years Eve party held in the auditorium, it was most acceptable and pleasing to her and if one knows Charlotte a bit of humor was added. Though in her late late 80's she still maintains her ability to compete with the younger

QUESTION:

Would you have a recipe for Hungarian icing? I had it at one time but haven't used it for years and now I would like to use it . . . It has 3 egg yolks, icing sugar, chocolate and butter but I can't remember how much of each . . . Ruby K.

ANSWER:

Your recipe you are requesting was given here in 1960 as the frosting for a 4-layer torte. I will repeat it because it was so popular.

SATURDAY

Dinner Menu

Beef Stroganoff on Casserole (see Friday); Broad Noodles or Fluffy Mashed Potatoes; Green Peas; Crisp Greens with French Dressing; Citrus Fruit Cup; Coconut Macaroons; Tea.

HUNGARIAN CHOCOLATE FROSTING (repeated from April 5/60):

3 sq. unsweetened cooking chocolate, 1¼ cups unsifted icing sugar, 2½ tablespoons hot water, 3 egg yolks, 4 tablespoons butter.

Melt chocolate in double boiler. Remove from boiling water, add sugar and water; and blend. Add egg yolks, one at a time, beating well after each. Add butter, a tablespoon at a time, beating thoroughly after each amount. Spread thinly between and on top and sides of layer cake.

QUESTION:

I am planning on having a clam bake like they have in Ontario and am at a loss as to how to go about it. Please, if possible, let me know what to do. I intend to have about 35 guests. How many clams in the shell will be needed and what else to serve . . . D. I. M. (Alberta).

ANSWER:

I have never attended a clambake in Ontario, but the general rule follows.

CAN OR KETTLE CLAM-BAKE:

Get a shiny, now galvanized iron garbage can with a well fitting lid. (Or use a sound old-fashioned wash boiler as they do in New England.) You will need one big enough to hold a layer of seaweed (or well-soaked corn husks if you are not near the ocean) and all the food without crowding. Dig a deep pit, line it with stones, and get a hot fire going. The fire pit should be deep enough to accommodate 2-3 of the cans. Put 6" seaweed or husks in the bottom. Add cut-up chickens, scrubbed potatoes, corn (in husks but silk removed), and clams in shells (allow 5 each). (Lobsters are sometimes added.) Add a shallow layer of soaked corn husks or seaweed. Cover the top of the can with wet canvas. Shovel on sand (or earth) at least a foot deep and steam for an hour or longer. Carefully remove sand or earth and canvas and serve.

A kettle clambake is even faster and easier, though it will not serve so many. For this you need a large cast-iron kettle with a heavy top or a small sized garbage pail. Put 4" of water in the bottom. Add 4" of corn husks, well packed down. Add food, cover lightly with 2" of soaked husks and the tight lid. Set over a hot fire and steam for 1 hour.

It was officially stated the next Ontario Provincial meeting of The Command will convene in Belleville September 20th, 1964.

Comrade Fitzgerald and her assistants served refreshments.

Will to Be Good Not Enough, Soak Your Soul in Greatness

By REV. HAROLD R. KOHN

I early colonial days in America, before metal candle holders were available, our forefathers made candles by dipping strings into a pot of wax. Several hundredfeet of string were hung a few inches apart on a stick called a "candle rod." The wicks were laid on the rod at their middles. Then the two sections of the string were twisted together to form an extra thick wick. After the wax had been melted, the wicks were repeatedly dipped into the hot wax, and with each dipping another layer of wax was added to the white until at last candles were formed. Then the candles were burned, saving the world by freely spending themselves.

Living the worthwhile life is much like candle making; such living consists mainly of receiving and spending. We come to earth with certain wicks and native endowments. These are given to us at the start, our inherited physical equipment, appearances and capacities and our God - given possibilities. These are dipped into the world repeatedly and are covered with all sorts of influences — fellowships and friendships, schooling, testings and temptations, pains and pleasures, vexations and victories. And with this the original wick and the accumulated spiritual and intellectual substance, which is us we live. The quality of our light depends upon what kind of a wick we have and upon the value of the life-substance into which we are plunged.

THIS DIFFERENCE

But there is this difference between candle and character: unlike an inanimate wick which is dipped by forces wholly beyond its control, we make choices. We decide for a friend of this person, but not of that one. We choose to read this book and to leave another unread. We prepare for this profession, select this trade, school or college, date this girl, marry this woman, resist this temptation and every choice conditions our future, dimming or brightening the effect we will have upon our times.

Since this is the case, isn't it what kinds of influences will we dip ourselves from now on so that we may attain the kind of manhood and womanhood that these times need?

For one thing, we can assure the world more light of wisdom if we will plunge our minds into an unending educational process that does not end with terms or semesters, with diplomas or degrees. As someone once said, "Every time you open your mouth your mind is on parade. Believe it is. Our everyday conversation is a revelation of the poverty or richness of our intellectual life, whether it is drab or exciting, interested in the perverse and the evil or in the good, in destructive or the redemptive in gossip or in those expressions of praise that are the burtiful or the helpful. We will never have a better grade of conversation and communication until we have a higher grade of thought. To be soaking in the unending educative process means dipping one's intellectual wick into the great thoughts of all time. It means immersing one's mind again and again in the highest conceptions of human possibilities under God, of the most worthwhile goals and the most abiding values — until all these become a part of oneself. Only then can one's communications and conversations illumine the world.

INNER ENRICHMENT

Reading biographies of the great people of all time is one way we gain inner enrichment. Good biography opens our minds in greatness, immersing our thoughts in something bigger, better and worthier of meditation than we are. We learn what kinds of character have withstood temptation and testing and what kinds of activity have been most durable, realizing the wisdom of life. We see the good, the better and the best not as vague abstractions but vividly portrayed, clothed in flesh like our own and pulsating with life. When dipped in the memory of such greatness, our lives take on some of the unselfishness, purposefulness and high aims of the most noble servants of mankind.

Bible reading is a way of submerging the wick of our being in the revealed will and love of God. In the Book of Books we become immersed in the consciences of God's most sensitive servants, prophets, priests and poets, and we sense God's will coming to us through good. Reading the Old and New Testament Gospels are God's "love letter to a lonesome world, revealing through Jesus Christ how much God cares for us. To read the Bible with reverence means speaking one's mind in the secrets of attaining peace and poise in a troubled world, absorbing the highest standards of conduct and a sense of direction and destiny. An assurance of help and guidance along our way. Bible reading means becoming drenched by the encouraging memory of the mighty acts of God throughout human history. When we have accumulated the wholesome consequences of such a dipping of our thoughts into the Bible, we are ready to illumine our corner of the world.

Will to be good? Yes, but to be good is not enough. While the desire is a fair start, it is still but a starting point. The will to be good makes a very feeble light. But when we are immersed in the inspiration of a great book, the fellowship, great art, great moments of life, as well as in "the beauty of the Lord" as revealed in nature, then our light becomes brighter as by any illumination our own poor wick can offer to our times.

Soak your soul in greatness.

Regina the report appeared to be almost a blanket endorsation of the policies and actions of the CCF.

"It seems clear that after examining all of the programs for medicare across Canada-particular such as Albert's semi-care, and our own-the commission has brought down what is in almost every respect so far as can be determined an endorsation of our own."

IS SWEEPING

Fleurbet Oliver, Liberal house leader in the Ontario legislature, said the commission recommendation was a "sweeping report."

He said the provinces should not be afraid "to go ahead and work out a plan along these lines."

"We might not reach the ultimate as recommended in one fell swoop. But we are moving towards the ultimate."

Dr. John S. Macdonald, president of the University of British Columbia and a former dean of medicine at Toronto, said the free dental care contained in the report "will rest on whether or not available personnel in Canada can carry out the task."

In Halifax, John C. Turnbull of Toronto, executive-director of the Canadian Pharmaceutical Association, said he agreed with many of the recommendations but parts of the report are impractical.

CLAIMS 'NONSENSE'

He said a statement in the report which indicated drugs amounted to 43 per cent of the Canadian health bill "is nonsense." He added: "The percentage is closer to 18 or 20 per cent."

The Canadian Labor Congress welcomed the main recommendations of the commission.

In a statement issued by the CLC Secretary - Treasurer Donald MacDonald said that while it is too early for a detailed study "it is safe to say that the main recommendations of the commission are of a nature that warrant the support of our organization."

The commission had concluded the report of the CLC that voluntary health systems are inadequate, he said. "The commission's outright rejection of any form of means test is certainly to be commended."

"We hope that we will be able in moving toward the implementation of the major recommendation, particularly in the convening of a federal-provincial health conference within the next six months."

Working With Families of Alcoholics

by W. D. COLIN McEACHERN, B.A., M.S.W.

(PART SIX)

In most communities, there is a variety of agencies concerned with health and welfare. Some programs are directed to a variety of people with many needs; others are more specialized. Increased specialization, and the appearance of new services directed to specific problems, has led some of the older, less specialized agencies to review their places in the emerging pattern of services.

The private family agency, which is found in most medium sized and large cities in Canada, continues to deal with people who have a great variety of social needs and social problems. Its object is to strengthen family life through the prevention and treatment of family problems, having concern not only for the troubled person but for his family. These agencies assist people to cope with interpersonal relationships, environmental difficulties, or a combination of both. Many specific localities (such as serious quarreling or extra-marital relationships), difficulties in relationships between children (especially problem children), and financial difficulties often arise out of the necessity for a family to live on a marginal income, are the result, and trade of the family agency.

Family agencies, many of which have been in operation for over 50 years, have generally welcomed the advent of the specialized services. Psychiatric departments in general hospitals, child guidance clinics, the preventive programs of public health departments and private health clinics, and the special services for the discharged prisoner — to list just a few — have been regarded as additional resources which the family agency could call upon when dealing with troubled families. Interestingly enough, the advent of these services has not as yet detracted from the variety or complexity of the problems that confront the family agency's health and welfare programs, as well as in medical care, there seems to be a demand for the general practitioner.

ALCOHOLISM AND THE FAMILY AGENCY

The establishment of the Alcoholism and Drug Addiction Research Foundation, and the development of its very fine clinic in London, was certainly welcomed by our Family Service Bureau. We have not, however, stopped encountering the excessive use and abuse of alcohol as a serious problem among many serious problems that are besetting our clients in their day to day lives. Cases in which alcohol is to some extent a problem account for about 20 per cent of the caseload at any one time.

Our agency, we see alcoholism (using this term descriptively, rather than diagnostically) in two ways. First, there is the person who uses alcohol excessively, and where there is some disorganization — usually of a transitory or sporadic nature — in the family. Control over drinking has been entirely lost. The problem of alcohol is likely to be one of a constellation of problems, and is not necessarily at the centre of this constellation. Take, for example, the following case:

The M.'s marriage relationship was quite unsatisfactory. Mrs. M. had constant nagging of Mrs. M.'s part, and to staying away from home as much as possible on Mr. M.'s part. She complained bitterly about his beer drinking. He denied a problem, but described his consumption of alcohol, in detail, quite freely. The fact that Mrs. M. and her family were total abstainers, while Mr. M. worked with a group of men who were insulted if anyone refused to join the ritual of drinking beer after work, could not be overlooked. Improvement of the marriage relationship made some compromise possible, and the use of alcohol, although the pattern did not alter very much, ceased to be so large an issue.

THE CLASSICAL ALCOHOLIC

Secondly there is the person who habitually uses alcohol to excess and who has practically lost control in favor of a growing addiction, that is, the classical alcoholic. In such cases, family life is seriously affected, and the use of alcohol is a basic cause of the chronic disruption and the resulting permanent damage to the family. The agency's role with these families, particularly when the alcoholic has left the family, is one of long term rehabilitation through work with the other members in the family. The case of the S. family is an example of this.

The S. family became known to the agency 10 years ago when Mr. S. was charged with non-support. Mrs. S. described him as an alcoholic, and told of the many hardships and strains which the family had experienced. Three years later, under pressure from Mrs. S. and an older child who were strongly supported by the agency Mr. S. left the family. During the next few years, our role involved repairing the damage wrought by Mr. S., and rebuilding Mrs. S. and the children, with a great deal of practical advice and encouragement, that the outlook and their standard of living and to realize some of their ambitions.

Our method of dealing with families in which alcohol is a problem, is fundamentally the same as with families who have other problems. Our attitude basically, is that the excessive use of alcohol is probably symptomatic of some disturbance or dissatisfaction in the individual or some psychological or emotional conflict. But, then, so is serious maladjustment in marital partners, sex deviation and psychosomatic illness. We do not, therefore, limit our activities or psychosomatic illness, but we do try to involve ourselves in the dynamic manifestations of these disorders in working with more satisfactory relationships, in resolving some of their conflicts, and in gaining a measure of relief from their symptoms.

Through careful interviewing, our approach is to study the individual in his present situation (a psychosocial assessment); to evaluate, with him, his personality structure and other resources for coping with his problems; to assist him in making decisions; and to support him in a reasonable course of action. We are refraining from, of concern in a marital counselling case, for example, it is usually necessary to go into the history of the use of alcohol, the attitude of the marital partners to it, and its role in the background of experience. Then we must deal with the significance of the use of alcohol in the current situation.

CONSULTING WITH OTHER AGENCIES

We are fortunate in having the consultative services available from the Addiction Research Foundation clinic in London. This consultation is used in two ways. First, it is possible to have inter-agency staff meetings with the clinic so that our staff can develop a sound orientation to the problem. Secondly, and more frequently, it is possible for a social worker, when confronted with an alcoholic problem, to refer the client whom he is working, to get advice from the clinic staff on the best way to deal with the drinking problem. This is particularly important when the drinking pattern and its effects play a part toward specific treatment under medical direction.

Success in dealing with alcoholism, while not extensive, is sufficient to warrant some conclusions. The focus on inter-relationships tends to put the problem of the use of alcohol in perspective. In cases where addiction gradually increases over a long period of time, the question of cause and effect is just not answerable in simple terms. As the alcoholic brings more stress to the family, other members in their reactions to this stress put more pressure on the alcoholic. However, it does appear that insofar as personal and social relationships in the family can be improved, the use of alcohol can be modified. This is not a cure. But then, in the case of problem drinking we encounter so frequently, do we really have a disease? No one should overlook the matter of a person's will, or his capacity to choose whether or not he is going to overindulge. The majority of our clients — including those for whom alcohol is a problem — are people in charge of their own affairs, and they are only partially caught up in a predetermined course of events over which they have no control. The extent to which, in our assigned and possibly other community agencies, the concentration of the excessive use of alcohol and its ramifications in the family, rather than the causes of addiction and its treatment as is the case with the specialized treatment clinics.

A COMMUNITY PARTNERSHIP

It would be unfortunate in relation to alcoholism — or to any other problem — if specialized clinics, for that matter — if community agencies took the view that they were not a part of the problem (for example, in the use of alcohol) automatically implied referral to a specialized agency (such as a clinic for alcoholics). It would be equally unfortunate if the specialized agency, where presumably there is special knowledge and experience in the needs, was not able to assist the community agency in making sound judgments about referral, and to assist in those cases where specialized treatment is required, and provide that treatment. Although in its several manifestations is extensive. There is now a great deal known about how to reduce it or to eradicate its effects. Surely a partnership is required among all agencies having an essential service to offer.

Quebec Govt. Withholds Grant Of Newspaper

TORONTO (CP) — A $5,000 grant for Toronto's French newspaper, Le Canada, has been withheld by the Quebec department of cultural affairs because the publication has served English as well as French-Canadians.

The grant was refused by G. H. Dagneau, director of Le Service du Canada de langue Francaise of the province. The department said it felt the newspaper's policy should be to serve French-Canadians alone instead of English-Canadians who want to learn French.

The province's ministry asked that a supervisory editorial board be established to control the paper's policy as a condition for a grant.

Marc Foley, 31, editor and publisher of Le Canada, said outside the French Bookstore in downtown Toronto, said Thursday he is ready to fight for his independence.

The newspaper has already missed two editions since May 7, its cash-box is empty and bills are mounting up.

"But this paper will continue," Mr. Foley said.

Surprise

report contained a medicare recommendation, the executive was reluctant to comment on the basis of press reports. They said the report will be studied during the week and further comment could be expected next week during the association's annual meeting here.

IS FOURTH

But pressed by reporters, they repeated the CMA's stand that medicare is fourth in an order of priorities. Needed first were improvements in personnel, education and research; institutional facilities and special services. And they said government should not pay the full cost of medicare.

Several doctors said the report contained many things recommended by the association and contained nothing opposing principles previously stated by the CMA. But it did not contain a statement that a doctor should be free to practise privately under a medicare plan, a longstanding demand by the CMA.

Reporters asked about the "strike" of doctors in Saskatchewan in 1962 which made the government over its health insurance program. Dr. G. E. Wedgwood from Fredericton, secretary-treasurer, said there was no strike but a "withdrawal of services" and that there was little worry about a repeat of that crisis because the federal government would not impose a plan on doctors.

Dr. W. Wigle of Toronto said that if the same circumstances prevail under a Canada-wide plan as did in Saskatchewan "the same situation will prevail."

MUST BE HAPPY

Dr. Victor Goldbloom of Montreal, chairman of the CMA's committee on economics, said all of Canada must be happy with the report. He said it will be "unfortunate" if the government acted without discussion with the doctors.

The Quebec government had given doctors reason to believe that discussion would be consulted, he said, adding:

"We would not want something to happen that would cause doctors to leave Canada. We don't want to precipitate a considerable exodus of doctors from Canada."

Dr. Goldbloom and Dr. R. D. Atkinson, past president of the Ontario Medical Association, expressed concern over having an adequate number of doctors for a medicare scheme. Dr. Atkinson was a case against those caused by insufficient doctors.

WOULD BE SURPRISED

Dr. Wigle said he would be surprised if the government severely criticized but added that in saying this he was referring to a press report that gave no indication of this.

Dr. Kenneth Truman, past-president of the Dentists association, said that insurance companies already in the health insurance field are considered in a medicare plan.

Dr. Goldbloom said under a medicare plan doctors would usually run by the government the doctors would be government employees, or "free persons."

When a reporter mentioned that teachers are government employees and apparently free, Dr Atkinson said in Newfoundland teachers were employed by the government and are not free to go where they please as they are in other provinces.

Incestuous Relationship Needs Professional Advice

DEAR DORIS — Can a half brother get his sister in trouble? If this is possible, would the child be born with something wrong with it?

Can the baby and the claimed father have a blood test to prove the relationship? Does this have to be done at the baby's birth?

The girl acts like nothing has happened at all. When she is asked by her mother who the father is she says her brother. But when she was asked by the brother's wife she said she really didn't know who it was.

She has a wonderful mother and I know she would not be made to marry at all. Also, she is 18-some, and her mother provides for and raises the child. — WORRIED.

DORIS CLARE

DEAR WORRIED — To the first question: Yes. To the second: Not necessarily, although incestuous relationships do sometimes produce marked defects.

We don't use blood tests in Canada to prove paternity and it wouldn't prove it anyway. Could only say whether this particular couple could have had this particular baby.

Incest is a serious charge. This girl's couldn't-care-less pose may be a screen, and I'd talk with the counsellor at the Children's Aid Society of Belleville and Hastings County, 63 West Moira Street, Belleville, would help to straighten out her thinking. Urge her mother to get her there.

DEAR DORIS — I like this boy and I think he likes me. I call him on the phone every once in a while. I have no phone and the only way for us to get in touch is for me to call him. Do you think it is wrong for me to call him? — WONDERING.

Young Priest Gets Vacation

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The young priest who tried to get the Pope to remove his cardi nal is going on a retreat, a va cation, and to a new parish, says a chancery spokes man, adding:

"So far as we are concerned, the case is resolved."

Rev. William H. DuBay, 39, had written the Pope accusing Los Angeles Archbishop James Francis Cardinal McIntyre of "gross malfeasance in office" for failing to speak out on ra cial matters.

Father DuBay was summoned to the chancery of the Los An geles archdiocese Thursday for the second time since he made his letter public at a June 11 press conference.

Since the original announce ment, Father DuBay has said he would make no further state ment on the matter. But spokes men for him have done so. After the first conference, they said he would continue his cam paign.

After Friday's appearance, un official spokesmen for the priest said he apparently would drop his drive.

Sport Slices...

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARTER, Sports Editor

We're letting Canadian Press sport editor Jack Sullivan do a pinch-hit job today. Following is his "Sports Snapshots" column of the Queen's Plate:

Racehorses, like people, are funny. They'll do all sorts of weird things and get into intolerable situations.

The story of thoroughbred racing is filled with some incredible happenings at the track. The Queen's Plate classic is no exception.

With this in mind we can take it as a guarantee that Northern Dancer will break out of the starting gate at approximately 5.30 p.m. E.D.T. this afternoon (Saturday) and show his rump to the other horses over the 1¼-mile Plate distance. The odds will be about 1-to-5 that he'll give owner E. P. Taylor his ninth Queen's Plate.

There's no plausible reason why the Kentucky Derby and Preakness winner and the greatest Canadian-bred horse who ever lived shouldn't win it. But take a moment to ponder the fate of a few other can't-lose horses who did exactly that.

As a starter, there was a classy three-year-old in 1943 by the name of Ten To Ace. He won the Plate, as everybody said he would that year, and then was shipped to Winnipeg's Polo Park for the Canadian Derby.

The Polo Park operators reasoned it was ridiculous to suggest that any other horse in the field would beat the white-faced chestnut owned by Harry Giddings of Oakville, Ont. They declared the race a betting affair.

The fine "royal flush" horse promptly showed they were right by galloping into a 26-length lead in the first half mile. Then, for some reason that racehorses only know, Ten To Ace became a cantankerous cuss and sulked.

Horse after horse passed him and he finished dead last. Ten to Ace was quoted at 1-to-20 odds and race-track historians still shudder when they think back to that afternoon 22 years ago.

Then, consider the cases of King Maple and Winning Shot in the Plate stakes. In 1954, King Maple was the 1-to-4 favorite to take the Queen's 50 guineaus. He finished third behind Collister, an 11-to-1 outsider, and Queen's Own.

Five years later, Winning Shot was the 1-to-3 choice and stood to receive a measly five cents on the dollar if it won. The richest purse in Canadian history to that date—$78,900—was at stake with the winning owner to receive $51,825. Winning Shot finished third behind Taylor's Nice Providence and Major Flight.

Back in 1924, Reno of the West was the 2-to-7 choice and finished out of the money. Maternal Pride, a 50-to-1 shot, won it and returned the highest price in the history of the race—$193.35 for $2.

In 1943, Paolita won over a sloppy track and paid $76.50. She beat out the favorite, Arbor View, by a head.

Probe AFL-CFL Exhibition Game ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Montreal Given 1965 Grey Cup Final

By TED BLACKMAN

MONTREAL (CP)—The Canadian and American Football leagues may link up opposite each other this fall in the first inter-league all-star game.

The possibility that such a contest might be staged this season or next year will be explored by CFL and AFL representatives. Proceeds would go to the John F. Kennedy memorial library fund.

CFL commissioner Sydney Halter said Friday general managers Herb Capozzi of British Columbia and Jake Gaudaur of Hamilton would meet with AFL owners William H. Sullivan of Boston and David Werblin of New York.

The site of the game, the rules and other considerations will be explored, he said. "It might develop this year."

Halter said the contest could be staged before or after the regular seasons of both leagues but a game this summer probably is ruled out because of the late date. It could be played late in the year, however, in suitable climate in the United States.

CUP IN MONTREAL

The proposal was one of four major items discussed with Friday at the CFL's semi-annual meeting. Other decisions gave the 1965 Grey Cup game to Montreal, the Football Hall of Fame to Hamilton and rejected out-of-hand recruiting of "tunny Canadians."

The question of whether the CFL should open an eastern office and appoint a deputy commissioner, however, wasn't resolved. The nine teams huddle again today in hopes of reaching a conclusion.

Awarding of the national final to Montreal followed an intense campaign by the city that has staged in the planned 41,000-seat stadium to be built by the Alouettes. The Hamiltonians were overjoyed.

The league said it was confident the stadium would be ready for the first Grey Cup game held in this city since 1951. In recent years, Toronto and Vancouver have been the hosts.

Construction of the multi-million dollar stadium, financed by Alouette owner Nelson Workman, is expected to start soon and completion is due by next season.

'BE GREAT THING'

"It will be a great thing for football in this city," said Jim Trimble, Als general manager and coach whose job includes selling tickets to the basketball-minded French-speaking population. Ted could make or lose a pot of cash."

Capozzi, one of the supporters of Montreal's bid, said he backed Winnipeg because Jim interested in helping a league partner in making a new venture."

The funny Canadian" problem provided a lively morning as Ottawa's Sfred O'Quinn and Gaudaur squared off over dual citizens and naturalized Canadians.

The league passed a rule amendment that defines a non-import as a Canadian citizen who gained that status by five-year residence or birth in this country, provided he has lived here for 13 of his first 21 years. Only one unidentified team opposed.

It brought an end to an area of recruiting first opened by former all-star J. I. Albrecht, who enticed players from the United States to play as non-imports. All of them had been born in Canada but raised in the U.S.

NOT RETROACTIVE

It is effective immediately but is not retroactive. Players already signed or on negotiation lists are not affected.

O'Quinn introduced his proposal to limit each team to three naturalized Canadians but was opposed by Gaudaur, whose powerhouse Tiger-Cats possess five former Americans. The Ottawa motion was defeated.

Hamilton's selection as site of the hall of fame was confirmation of an earlier decision. A divided Hamilton city council that argued whether their taxpayers should support it forced the CFL to reconsider.

Hamilton Mayor Victor Copps, however, convinced the league his city really wanted it and said some $75,000 had been raised in public subscriptions. The rest of the $125,000 needed will be collected similarly.

Construction of the hall will begin next spring and should be completed by the fall, he said.

Cannifton Wins Over Oshawa 7-5

Clustering their hits to good advantage, Cannifton collected a 7-5 victory over the Oshawa Generals in an Eastern Ontario Senior Baseball game played in the Motor City last night.

Cannifton built a 3-0 lead in the top of the first frame, repping four hits, but the Mercs gotes got two in the run and in the inning and another in the second to tie it. Oshawa moved ahead 4-3 with one run in the fifth.

Harold Griffin's boys got moving again in the seventh, putting together a walk, fielder's choice, three hits and another walk for three runs and a 6-4 lead. They added another in the ninth but Oshawa threatened in the last turn at bat plate. The Merchants loaded the bases with none out but Cannifton cut the rally off with a single run to preserve the victory.

Bill Hill sweated the route for Cannifton getting credit for the win. He claimed 11 strikeout victims and walked three.

McCoskery was the loser for Oshawa, knocked out with nobody away during the winning Cannifton uprising. Jack J. Pipher taking over. They gave up ten hits, struck out 14 and walked a pair.

Don Forsythe laced a pair of doubles and a single for Cannifton. Ron Urch singled twice. Pat O'Connor and Harry Colebelted triples, Bill Hill, Butch Clapp and Ron Empey each got a single.

Four players accounted for all the Oshawa hits, B. Down and R. Reid had three singles apiece. Down also doubled and single and T. Whitley two singles.

In league play today, Belleville Joyce Realty clashes with the Bearens at Brockville in a 2.30 tilt. On Monday, Alex meets Joyces in an 8.30 game at the Belleville Fairgrounds. Cannifton entertains the 10 2 Oshawa 210 010 001—5 11 1

Batteries: Bill Hill and Rod Hill, L. Harvey (7); J. McCoskery, J. Pipher (7) and J. Cole.

Stroke Ahead Of Palmer

Jacobs Shoots Record-Tying 64

By JIM BECKER

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dimpled Tommy Jacobs tore up the Congressional Country Club course with a record-tying 64 Friday and found himself one stroke in front of Arnold Palmer at the halfway point of the United States Open.

That earned Jacobs, a head-to-head playing stop with Palmer down the pressure-cooker stretch of 36 final holes today.

Jacobs had 136, four under par Palmer, bidding for the the grand slam of golf, had 137. Jacobs' 64 was only the second ever shot in u'S. Open.

"It would have been a 36 on any other golf course," said veteran E. J. Dutch Harrison, who played with Jacobs. "I still don't believe it. This course can not be played in 64."

Jacobs capped the round with a putt that traveled a distance of 60 feet, five inches into the cup for a birdie at the 18th.

Palmer had 72 the first round, while Palmer added a 69 to his opening 68. So far there have been four rounds under 70 —and Palmer has two of them.

The 7,053-yard course is long, but ever inch of it is fair.

The field was cut to the low 50 scorers and ties. It took 150 to make it.

And right at the cutoff mark with rounds of 74-76—150 were Bob Toski,ak of Windsor, Ont., the only Canadian entered. His score notified him he was coming to the end of the gruelling competition.

Bill Collins, making a comback after a back operation, added a 71 to his opening 70 for 141 and third place.

Charley Sifford, the best Negro player on the pro tour, had 70 for 74, as did Ken Venturi. Tony Lema, who came into the tournament with two straight tour victories, shot 70-75 for 145.

Jack Nicklaus, the early co-favorite, sputtered to a 73 and was at 143.

Gary Player was well down the list at 149, adding a 74 to his opening 75 while Gene Sarazen matched his total by shooting a 72 after his disastrous opening-round 77.

SERIES TIED

PORTSMOUTH, England (AP) — Sovereign and Kurtews V, the British America's Cup hopes, had the most exciting of their trial races Friday. There was only a daylight backstretch between them during the 36-mile test but Sovereign finished two feet ahead. The last of the 12 trial races in British waters is scheduled for today and the score now is 9-9.

Persol Wins Decision Over Olson

NEW YORK (AP) — Young Johnny Persol ruined old Bob Olson's hopes for a light heavyweight title bout by whipping the former middleweight champion in a 10-round fight at Madison Square Garden Friday.

The 24-year-old New Yorker, knocked out last March by Eddie Machen, made a tremendous comeback against the 33-year-old fighter from San Francisco.

The official vote gave Persol the verdict by majority decision. Referee Ruby Goldstein had Persol ahead 9-1 in rounds while Judge Nick Gamboli had it 6-4 for Persol. Judge Mark Conn voted for a draw.

TAKES GOLF LEAD

TORONTO (CP) — Gail Harvey of Toronto shot a two-under-par 74 Friday to grab first place in the fourth tournament of a series of seven to decide the four-member Ontario interprovincial women's golf team.

Told To Quit Catholic League

4 Players Get Heave-Ho

OTTAWA (CP) — Four English-speaking players have been ordered to leave the St. Jean Baptiste Softball League in Ottawa because they cannot speak French.

League president Aurele Charron said Friday that to play in the league a player must join the St. Jean Baptiste Society. All society members must be Roman Catholic and speak French.

Marcel Lavigueur, league treasurer and coach of one team, said he may have to withdraw his squad from the league next year.

"I'm not for the rule," Lavigueur said. "It's not written anywhere. My team's spirit is gone and I may have to quit the league next year."

Morlands Win Oakdale Golf Crown

TORONTO (CP) — Brothers Bill and Dave Morland of North Bay Friday won the Oakdale Best-Ball championship for the second time with a six-under-par 67.

Gary Cowan and Mike Whitney of Kitchener and Bruce Jardine and Bill Burnett of Galt were tied for second place with 68.

Former Ontario amateur champion Jack Nash and his son Robert, both of London, Canadian amateur champion Nick Weslock and Wally Cronson both of Toronto, Bob Fair of Stratford and Jack Richardson of Toronto, and W. A. Miller and Al Cassidy, both of Toronto, were all tied for fourth at 70.

Bet Dancer To Show And Win A Dime

30,000 Watch

TORONTO (CP)—About 30,000 fans who wanted to watch a horse race the result of which already was generally conceded to be jammed into Woodbine Race Track today to see Northern Dancer run six exhibition furlongs in the 105th running of the Queen's Plate.

The Dancer, horse of the year in North American racing, was an early 1-to-8 favorite for the 1¼-mile romp and first prize money of $49,075, a $5,000 gold cup and the Queen's 50 guineas.

He would return a dime on a $2 show bet and could cost the Ontario Jockey Club an estimated $3,200 since they have guaranteed all bets should the payoff exceed the handle.

Two other horses bred by E P Taylor's Windfields Farm —Grand Garcon and Pierlon—were Northern Dancer's strongest challengers.

It is believed that only once before have horses bred by the same farm controlled the race. RAN LAST.

That was in 1916 when Joseph Seagram of Waterloo, Ont., won with Mixed Grain and Gala Day Water second and Gala Day third.

Post time for the race, to be broadcast nationally by the CBC television network, was 5:30 p.m. EDT.

The gross value of the race was $74,075 with the second horse getting $12,500, third $7,500 and fourth $5,000.

A win by Taylor would run his victory string in the event to 16 in the 18 years since Northern Dancer's earnings to $380,547.

Northern Dancer earlier this year won both the Kentucky Derby and the Preakness before missing the Belmont Stakes in his stab at the triple crown of North American racing.

Taylor sold Grand Garcon for the same as Top Ruler, owned by B W. Carmichael of St. Catharines, Ont.

Later Mel, the only filly, and Langcrest went off at 15 to 1 in early betting and All Seasons and Return Trip at about 20 to 1.

Later Mel, winner of the Canadian Oaks earlier this year and owned by W. J. Farr of Weston, Ont., carried 121 pounds. The others in the 9-colt field carried 126 pounds each, Langcrest ridden by Sidney Langrill of Montreal, All Seasons by Larry McGuiness of Toronto and Return Trip by Max Bell of Calgary.

Javier St. Louis Hero

Cards Nip Giants Again; Phils Up Lead

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Julian Javier, weak - hitting second baseman of the St. Louis Cardinals, has become the batting hero of Philadelphia Phillies.

While the National League leaders were sweeping to a doubleheader victory over the New York Mets Friday night, Javier was in St. Louis batting down the second-place Phillies' margin to a mere 3½ games.

Javier singled and tripled in the seventh inning, breaking a 1-1 tie. The night before he drove in two runs with a homer and a double in the Cardinals' 7-6 victory over the Giants.

Before the 27-year-old Javier started his one - man attack against the Giants, they were tied with the Phillies for first.

Javier had knocked in only 22 runs and hit six homers in 84 games. Now he has driven in 30, has eight home runs and a .239 average.

The Cardinals now are working on a streak of four victories.

The Phillies have a three-game winning streak with their victory over Washington Senators. It was the Athletics' seventh victory in nine games under new manager Mel McGaha.

Elsewhere in the league, Harmon Killebrew's 31st homer was one of four hit by Minnesota Twins in a 7-6 victory over Detroit Tigers and Bobby Knoop singled in the winning run in Los Angeles Angels' 2-1 triumph over Cleveland Indians.

New York Yankees and Chicago were rained out with the second place White Sox dropping one game behind the Orioles.

HURT BY ROCKY

Rocky Colavito did most of the damage for the Athletics. In the top of the sixth he threw Mike Brumley out at home plate, then came up with Kansas City trailing 2-1 in the bottom of the inning and hit a two-run homer, his 19th.

The Twins, who failed to hit a homer in losing a doubleheader at Cleveland Wednesday, brought their total to 96 in 63 games with Killebrew, Bob Allison, Tony Oliva and Rich Rollins connecting.

Gerry Arrigo got the victory in relief, bringing his record to 4-1 despite being tagged for a homer by Bill Freehan.

Bob Rodgers' triple and the single by Knoop produced the tie-breaking run for the Angels in the eighth inning, gave Bob Duliba the victory and handed the defeat to Dick Donovan.

Twins, Angels, Kansas Win

'Fireman' Miller Saves Pair For Birds

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Stingy Stu Miller went for aging against Boston Friday night and salvaged two more games for Baltimore, preserving 2-1 and 6-5 triumphs over the Red Sox that boosted the Orioles back into first place in the American League.

Baltimore now has been involved in 20 one-run ball games and won 13—an astonishing .900 record in the squeakers. And Miller has saved most of them with his assortment of scary-looking, tough-to-hit pitches.

Miller has been credited with 11 saves in the 18.

A 36-year-old righthander who set a league record by appearing in 71 games last season, Miller has an earned run average of 1.54 this year.

EXTENDS STREAK

While Miller was adding to his collection, former Baltimore reliever Wes Stock added to his record, posting the 13th victory without a loss since July 12, 1962.

Interrupted by Kansas City in a bid for catcher Charley Lau last Sunday, Stock stroked his first major league hit and received credit for a 5-4 Athletics' victory over Minnesota Twins.

Elsewhere in the league, Cincinnati Reds trampled Los Angeles Dodgers 11-2 in the second game. Sievers slammed a two-run homer in the four-run fourth and a run-scoring double in the sixth. Ed Kranepool hit a three-run homer in the third for the Mets.

Johnny Edwards led the Cincinnati attack with four hits, batted in on a double and two singles. Vada Pinson also had three hits, including a home run, while Leo Cardenas homered for the Reds.

Jim Maloney struck out 11 Dodgers and gave up five hits before leaving for a pinch hitter in the seventh.

Houston scored six runs in the eighth inning and held on against Philadelphia. Pitcher acquired from Baltimore last Monday ignited the outburst with a home run. Lee Mays and Frank Bolling homered for Milwaukee.

Four Jocks Hurt In Track Spill

EDMONTON (CP) — Four jockeys were injured, three seriously, in a series of spills and accidents which marred an eight-race card at Northlands Park in Edmonton Friday.

John Whitley of Calgary, who graduated from apprentice ranks this season and was second among riding leaders, was reported in serious condition in hospital.

Jockeys Armstrong and veteran Tommy Stadnyk, both of Calgary, and Norman Jewell, a veteran Edmonton rider, also were injured. Stadnyk and Jewell suffered broken legs and were expected to be out the remainder of the year.

Armstrong suffered a shoulder separation and bruised chip and was expected to be out a month.

The horse Flying Host suffered a heart attack, did a somersault on the track and died in the seventh race when Whitley, his rider, and Stadnyk, whose mount fell, were injured.

Second Off World Mark

Jerome Smashes Meet Record

EUGENE, Ore. (CP-AP) — Harry Jerome of Vancouver, B.C., who holds a share of the world 100-metre sprint record, smashed a meet record in the National Collegiate Athletic Association championships Friday. His time was 10.1 seconds, one second off the world mark he holds jointly with Armin Hary of Germany.

Jerome, running for the University of Oregon, and Trenton Jackson of Illinois, each covered 100 metres in 10.1 seconds in the semi-finals, equalling the United States and collegiate records and snapping the meet mark. The two sprint stars face each other today in the eight-man final.

Jerome in 1960 at Saskatoon equalled the world mark of 10 seconds for 100 metres that had been set in 1956 by Hary. The five-foot-10 Negro athlete, now 24 years old, was the first man in history to share the world 100-yard and 100-metre records at the same time.

Keeps Hillbillies Out Of Ring

Hiro, 'Hero' In Main Bout

The Scufflin' Hillbillies from Kentucky should ask for a change in wrestling rules.

They should demand that ring rope be replaced by barbed-wire fencing.

They have a habit of being tossed into the outer limits — and made stay there until they lose the decision.

After splitting the five, two falls with the rough tough Fred Atkins and biddy-buddy Professor Hiro last night, they were victims of forced eviction — and lost the bout.

Rip and Chuck had things going nicely for them in the third fall.

They mule-kicked the Atkins-Hiro duo into virtual submission, leaving footprints over the faces and torsos of the rugged pair.

Then the hon. Prof. put a paralzing karate hold on Rip or was it Chuck? — administered a couple of judo chops and tossed him outside the ring.

The mountaineer was in a tizzy. He attempted to clamber back into the ring but was met by the fierce chops of the Nipponese.

His brother went to his aid but Referee Bunny Dunlop bolted the fuff count and that was that.

Four mountaineer treat planted simultaneously on the rugged puss of Fred Atkins gave the Billies the nod in the first fall.

Atkins and Hiro had their innings in the second fall raising Ian ire by various bunks of skullduggery. Hiro was given the nod after doling out severe punishment to Chuck — or was it Rip?

Ray Villmer, the mighty buzz-saw, won over giant Big Bob Stanley in a Mutt-and-Jeff semi-final.

Villmer was awarded the first fall after his 6-9 opponent refused to clamber back into the ring after being slugged by the official.

The little guy came back to win the bout in two straight falls with a tremendous bodysmash and press after 26 minutes of fast action.

Mike Valantino and Frank Jardine wrestled in a time-limit draw in an action-packed preliminary.

There will be no wrestling card in Memorial Arena next Friday night. A Railroad Week dance takes over.

Questions and Answers On Highway Travel

Ontario Motor League
Eastern Ontario Club

QUESTION: We would like to take a trip to Lake Champlain and cross by ferry to Burlington. Would you please tell us the most scenic route, and how many miles. — G. S., Belleville

ANSWER: Cross over at Ivy Lea Bridge to Alexandria Bay, go on Highway 26 to Highway 11 at Antwerp, and from there to Governeur, then take Highway 56 to Star Lake and continue on to Tupper Lake and Saranac Lake on Highway No. 3. This is a very lovely drive. Then from Saranac Lake to Lake Placid and on to Highway 86 and 9N to Fort Kent, where you take the ferry to Burlington, Vermont. This trip from Belleville to Burlington is 255 miles.

QUESTION: We are planning a motor trip to New York City, and wish to stay for the summer. As we have a dog, which we want to take with us, I would like to know what has to be done, to be allowed to take him across the border? — Mrs. F. G., Picton.

ANSWER: Every dog entering the United States must have a health certificate and a valid rabies certificate from a veterinarian. Get the rabies injection more than 30 days before you leave, or else you'll have to keep the dog muzzled until the 30-day period has elapsed. A cat and dog will need certificates that they have been inoculated against rabies during the last six months. You will have to buy a licence for the pet at the park; it costs one dollar. Dogs must be kept on leashes.

QUESTION: What places of interest can we visit on our way to Quebec City, east of Brockville? We are driving along Highway No 2, and would appreciate places of historic interest. — C. L., Belleville.

ANSWER: On leaving Brockville, you can stop a few miles east of Morrisburg and visit Upper Canada Village, which is a good two to three hour tour, and then stop at Cornwall for a visit at the Robert H. Saunders St. Lawrence general in a station, also the United Counties Museum, 731 Second Street West, which has an historic setting. Then in Montreal the places are too numerous to mention. We would suggest you stop at the Tourist Information booth on entering Montreal and ask for brochures. In advance of your trip, please write to the Bureau, 12 rue Sainte Ann, Quebec, and they will be glad to mail them to you.

QUESTION: We would like to drive to Crystal Beach, Welland. Could you please tell us how to get there and what it has to offer? — Miss D. C., Rosemore

ANSWER: From Belleville take the 401 and at the west end of Toronto take the QE right through to Niagara Falls and Fort Erie, then Highway 3 to the Crystal Beach cut-off. On the shore of Lake Erie, Crystal Beach is one of Canada's best developed resort towns. It is equipped with a fine beach and modern bath-house, a large amusement park, a dance hall and picnicking grounds. The park is open from 11 a.m to 11:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday, 11 to 10 Sunday. Distance 210 miles.

QUESTION: Could you please tell us something about Muskoka Lakes? — J. P., Belleville

ANSWER: In the highlands of Ontario, 1,000 feet above sea level, about 100 miles north of Toronto, lie the Muskoka Lakes. Embracing 1,619 square miles and containing over 300 islands, they are reached by Highways 69 and 11 to Gravenhurst. The area extends from Algonquin Park on the east to Georgian Bay on the west. Of this famous group, Muskoka Lake is the largest, with Rosseau and Lake Joseph next in size. On the islands and along the shores are many summer residences, resorts, hotels and camps. Golf, tennis, boating and swimming are popular. There is fishing for trout, bass and pickerel. Resort communities in the Muskoka Lakes area include Bala, Bracebridge, Gravenhurst, Minett, Huntsville, Port Carling, Port Sydney, Baysville, Rosseau and Windermere. The distance from Belleville to Muskoka is 222 miles of scenic and lovely countryside with good roads, service stations and restaurants.

Family Situation Comedies Are Lessons for Real Life

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Sunday is Father's Day, and one of TV's most famous fathers, Fred MacMurray, has this observation:

"If only a father's problems with his children could be solved as simply and as neatly as they are in family situation comedies on television"!

Fred paused in the midst of filming his fifth year of My Three Sons to contemplate the differences.

"Oh, it seems like a cinch, the way the script boys work it out," he reflected. "One of my sons gets a problem and comes to me with it. I'm very sage and helpful, but of course I leave it up to him to find his own solution. And he does—all in the space of less than a half-hour.

"At home it's a different mat-

"I'm not and all that sage and thoughtful. In fact, I get mad a lot more easily. And I don't get anything solved in half an hour, believe me."

FATHER OF FOUR

Fred and his late first wife were parents of a daughter and son. He and June Haver adopted twin girls, now eight. Then there is his television father Tim Considine, Don Grady and Stanley Livingstone.

Fred said that having a famous father can present special difficulties.

"It's not so much a problem in Hollywood," he said, "but the kids can find it bothersome on the outside to be known as a movie star's child. My son Robby felt it at school when a lot of other boys would say, 'so you're Fred's kid, huh?' It's tough to be known all the time as Fred's kid when he wants to have an identity of his own."

Four Perish In Collision

POINTE AU BARIL, Ont. (CP)—Harry Shorten, 67, his wife Eva May, 53, and their children Sylvia 17, and Stephan, 11, of Toronto, died Friday in a car-truck collision on Highway 69 near this community 65 miles south of Sudbury.

David Berdman, 31, of Toronto, driver of the 10-ton truck, was in fair condition in hospital in Parry Sound where he was being treated for first- and second-degree burns.

Police said the truck and car collided head-on on a straight stretch of highway where visibility was good. There were no witnesses to the accident.

Gasoline in the truck's two tanks exploded on impact and burned out of control for two hours.

Astrological Forecasts

By SYDNEY OMARR

For June 21

Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Your ideas are expansive. But have you discovered way to carry them through? Humor, versatility best bets. Explore various methods. Keep mind open. Attend church of your choice.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): Your intentions are fine. But distinguish between what you would like — and what you can attain. Be realistic. Hold off on decision requiring legal agreement. More thought, study required.

Gemini (May 21 to June 20): Behind-scenes you are being "talked up." You have recently made quite an impression! Be especially considerate of fellow workers. Fine time to visit associate who is confined to home or hospital.

Cancer (June 21 to July 22): Finish tasks. Not so good for making start on "new" project. Good lunar aspect highlights romance, change of viewpoint. Break down barriers which cause fear. Look beyond superficial. Help others.

Leo (July 23 to Aug. 23): You are an enigma to yourself these days! Intuitions are bright. But, almost inexplicably you have become conservative. Why brood? Ask yourself seriously why you hold back. Then start moving ahead!

Virgo (Aug. 24 to Sept. 22): Pressure on where money, responsibility is concerned. Invest in cell — take time to do some research. Make this a day in which you relax and learn. Could be profitable enterprise!

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23): Fine for pursuit of hobby. Visit one who can help you in "collecting" activity. Exchange knowledge. Share desires, ambitions. Utilize innate sense of justice. Be fair and you will succeed.

Scorpio (Oct. 24 to Nov. 21): Cycle continues high. Important goals, personal heart. Remove unjustified apprehensions. Transform doubts into positive attitude. Obtain valuable hint from today's Virgo message. Act confidently!

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Surprise due. Be prepared for "speech of acceptance." Don't permit modesty to create awkward situation. Maintain neutral position — but show that you are firm in basic beliefs.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19): Excellent time for family get-together. Express feelings. Be affectionate — which is your "natural" way. Don't try to hold back. Avoid aura of happiness, good will. Attend church of your choice.

Aquarius (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18): By stating what you really believe — you will earn respect. And you get results! Be as specific as possible. Do so in enlightened, intelligent manner. Aid forthcoming from friends.

Pisces (Feb. 19 to Mar. 20): Good for travel. You can gain through experience, new places and persons. Constructive information contained in today's Aries message. Shake off lethargy. Attend church of your choice.

If today is your birthday . . . you have wonderful way of making people "laugh when trouble clouds appear.

General Tendencies: Cycle high for Scorpio, Sagittarius, Capricorn. Special word to Gemini: Remember that your reputation is at stake.

For June 22

Aries (Mar. 21 - April 19)— Put Philosophy to fast. You will gain encouragement if you are not afraid. Your basic beliefs will hold up. Give them a chance by practising what you preach.

Taurus—(Apr. 20 - May 20)— Money questions require special consideration. Be sure partial or intimate friends are consulted. Encourage basic change; avoid reckless action. One who "says" he'll help you is not sincere.

Gemini (May 21 - June 20)— Take special care in dealing with public travelling, making statements. Tendency is to be rash, impulsive. Be discreet. Exercise self-discipline. Don't wear hear on sleeve.

Cancer (June 21 - July 23)— Fellow workers may appear pugnacious. May be because you are a bit irritable. You get what you give today. Means when you smile—smiles are returned. When you complain, gloom take over.

Leo (July 23 - Aug. 23)— Member of opposite sex could provide inspiration. Your ambitions are fired. There is warmth generated. Personal magnetism rating high. Gain indicated—emotionally and financially.

Virgo (Aug. 23 - Sept. 23)— What is understood by authorities may puzzle you. Timing tells story. Important now to complete basic tasks.

Libra (Sept. 23 - Oct. 23)— Avoid unnecessary travel. Confusion indicated regarding directions, appointments. Don't trust important message to outsider. Rely upon personal efforts. Highlight simple approach.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 - Nov. 21)— Don't delay where money matters enter picture. Decisions called for—take definite stand. Share knowledge. What you receive in return spells out answer. Study actions of fellow person.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 - Dec. 21)— Utilize "soft-sell" approach. Others are in no mood to be pushed, forced. Rely upon common sense. You are able to perceive moods. Cycle high.

If you are patient — you gain.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 - Jan. 19)— Obtain valuable hint from today's Libra message. Be sure your statements are not distorted. Today many are super-sensitive. If means a cry, make peace offering. You'll be repaid.

Aquarius (Jan. 20 - Feb. 18)— Friends apt to try to impose their beliefs. But handle affairs personally — especially finances. One who attempts "cupid" means well but is not fully informed!

Pisces (Feb. 19 - Mar. 20)— Don't accept more than you can handle. Important to maintain harmony at home. Advice offered by family member is given "from the heart." Respond with warmth. Display affection. Be appreciative.

If Today Is Your Birthday— you are independent, anxious to try new fields of endeavor—could pioneer road to new knowledge.

General Tendencies — Disputes rage. Important people make statements which embarrass their friends.

Teen-Age Canada Brewing Revolution Will Outdate Childhoods

By JACK RUTTON

Canadian adults may not be aware of it, but a quiet revolution is brewing that will make their childhoods seem as outdated as Ancient Greece — and within two decades.

How will they all cope?

The answer is closer than they imagine; they need look no farther than their own children who are reasoning and challenging the goals and ideas of their parents in a way no previous Canadian generation has done.

I can't understand why reports of a youth panel at the Canadian Conference on the Family in Ottawa caused so much surprise across the country last week.

Six young people were invited to speak their minds before an audience of 400. And they did. By the time the air cleared the youth delegates had teed off on everything from the nuclear bomb to unemployment.

"Amazing," I heard a dowager remark later. "I never dreamed they had such strong opinions." Then she added succinctly, "Of course, they can't mean the things they say. They are just trying out opinions for shock value."

I can only base my judgment on the stories I read about the conference, but I think the lady was dead wrong.

The young delegates did mean what they said. During the last three years, I've received an increasing number of letters from readers across Canada who are worrying about matters their folks take for granted.

The same opinions emerged at Ottawa.

Nineteen-year-old Gilles Desmarais, a wholesale firm worker from Montreal, Que., was the most outspoken in the Ottawa discussion, according to people who heard him.

Why, he asked, does a top hockey player earn five times as much as a top teacher? Why does a garbage collector have to pass an intelligence test while he can get married without a diploma?

Why, the Montreal delegate wondered, are there 300,000 Canadians without jobs, while two-thirds of the world is starving? And he questioned whether poverty is something passed on from generation to generation in some parts of Canada.

The most thoughtful response I thought, came when it was suggested that young people should turn to their parents for answers. To that problem Gilles was emphatic in his answer: "Our parents cannot help us," he said. "They are products of the Depression and are satisfied with the security they've won."

Later he insisted that young people are not rejecting the values of their parents through sheer rebellion or a desire to be different.

"We're questioning our future but not finding solutions except as individuals," he said. I wouldn't go as far as Gilles, but he has a point: everyone has to decide their own future.

The same conference summed up the trends that social scientists have been predicting for the last few years: the changing role of the family, the changing role that fathers are playing, and so on.

One prediction was obvious. The person attending high school today can no longer count on working in one trade or profession for a lifetime, or living in one part of the country for that time.

More of us will live in apartments and fewer of us will live in the country. As we move around more in a world where facts seem outdated the moment they are born, will values adjust to meet the situations?

This generation will decide. GAGS

The mailbag brought the first new elephant joke I've heard in months. And, surprise of surprises, it struck me as funny.

QUESTION: What is the result when you cross an elephant and a jar of peanut butter?

ANSWER: There are two possibilities — a peanut butter sandwich that never forgets or an elephant that sticks to the roof of your mouth.

This gem, sent in by Joanne Hunter of Halifax, N.S., was accompanied by another story from her collection. It involves a man who was stopped while dragging a chain down the main street at 3 a.m.

"Just what makes you think you can drag a chain at this hour?" asked the policeman.

The man had an unbeatable reply: "Did you ever try pushing one?"

ton withdrawal under advisement after twice asking the former Conservative minister to withdraw.

Later in the day after studying the record, he again asked Mr. Hamilton, member for the Saskatchewan riding of Qu'Appelle, to withdraw, citing various House rules and precedents. He said he hoped tempers had cooled.

ADMITS INTRUSION

Mr. Pearson said he wanted to apologize for having intruded on the question put by Mr. Hamilton to Mr. McIlraith.

Mr. Hamilton, who said earlier he would withdraw if Mr. McIlraith was allowed to answer his question, said he could not change his qualifications.

Mr. Diefenbaker said Mr. Pearson was attempting to back out.

Speaker Macnaughton said he regretted the situation, but he had no course but to name Mr. Hamilton, who then walked out of the chamber.

Mr. Hamilton returned briefly until a motion was introduced for his expulsion. It was approved by 75 to 50 with only Douglas Fisher of the New Democrats backing the Conservatives in the lightly - attended Friday afternoon sitting.

Politicians

said in Toronto the royal commission did not do its homework in regard to lotteries.

"It's not based on economic wisdom at all," he said: In Ireland, only 10 per cent of the money collected in the Irish sweepstakes went to hospitals.

Rev. Frank Sloan of the Catholic Information Centre, Toronto said he sees no difficulty in the use of lotteries so long as they are kept out of the control of criminals.

Attorney - General Stewart McLean of Manitoba said that lotteries "are a wasteful and improvident method of raising money required for public purposes."

Attorney-General Robert Bonner of British Columbia said he did not know how his province would raise more money for health plans. But he was opposed to doing it through lotteries.

MODEL ASSEMBLY — Young people in Canada are forging a "quiet revolution" of ideas and values in projects like the above model U-N Assembly, says columnist Jack Rutton.

Conversation, adults may not be aware of it, but a quiet revolution is brewing that will make their childhoods seem as outdated as Ancient Greece — and within two decades.

Doctors Burning Midnight Oil Studying Plan

Plan Second Statement On Proposals Today

By STEPHEN SCOTT

VANCOUVER (C)—The 16,000-member Canadian Medical Association, representing the bulk of the country's medical profession, believes in medical health insurance.

But does it believe in the brand recommended by the royal commission on health whose report was released Friday?

The officers of the association burned the midnight oil during the weekend seeking the answer to that question.

They were to make their second statement in a press conference today. They said Friday that, on the basis of press reports, the medical insurance features of the commission recommendations did not conflict with a CMA statement of policy in 1960.

The association said there had to be an order of priorities and the government should not impose a medical plan on the profession without discussions with it.

HAS 34 POINTS

The 1960 statement of policy outlined 14 points which should be considered in a medical insurance plan. It said the association could support an insurance plan that did not violate these principles.

And it said: "While there are certain aspects of medical services in which tax-supported programs are necessary, a tax supported comprehensive program, compulsory for all, is neither necessary nor desirable."

In its brief to the royal commission the CMA said that it recognized that the benefits of comprehensive insurance cover should be made available to all Canadians. Then it said there should be subsidization for low-income groups who cannot afford to acquire medical insurance.

But before there was any medical insurance scheme there had to be improvements in medical schools to provide more doctors, improvements in hospital facilities and improvements in mental health and rehabilitative facilities.

The 180-member association general council — the "parliament of medicine" — with representatives from each province — was expected to consider the royal commission report today or Tuesday and the matter will come before the 1,500 delegates Friday.

The general council will meet for two days.

Today the scientific sessions will start, featuring a closed circuit color television hookup with the annual meeting of the American Medical Association for one hour for three days.

Young Man Will Win In Nipissing

NORTH BAY (CP)—A young man will win a House of Commons seat in Nipissing today.

This much is certain as 36,543 eligible voters choose a successor to revenue minister John Garland, who died during the spring after representing this northern Ontario riding since 1940. The average age of the three candidates is 35.

Carl Legault of Sturgeon Falls, who beat out Mrs. Garland for the Liberal nomination, is the oldest at 41. Progressive Conservative Richard Lumsden of North Bay, is 36, and the New Democratic Party hopeful Rev. Harry MacKay of Mattawa, is 27.

All three candidates continued a hand-shaking and speaking barrage until late Saturday. Mr. MacKay conducted services in the United Church at Mattawa Sunday while both Mr. Legault and Mr. Donnelly attended Roman Catholic Mass.

Mr. Donnelly, a lawyer, delved into every corner of the sausage riding during the last few weeks, using a campaign of personal contact in an effort to break the stranglehold the Liberals have held on Nipissing since 1921.

In the 1963 general election, Mr. Garland polled 16,547 votes. The PC candidate received 7,280, the NDP 2,351 and a Social Credit candidate 1,587.

The Nipissing election is one of two in Canada today. In Saskatoon, Mrs. Harry Jones is trying to defend the seat which was held for the PCs by her husband until his death in March. Mrs. Jones faces Liberal and NDP opposition in a province where all 17 seats went to the Conservatives in last year's general election.

One other remains vacant in the 265-seat federal House. Sherman Rideout, former mayor of Moncton, N.B., and Liberal MP for Westmorland, died last month and no byelection date has been set.

Present standing is Liberals 129, PCs 96, NDP 17, Social Credit 9, Rallieront des Creditistes 13 and vacant 3.

The 180 polling stations in Nipissing will be open from 9 a.m. EDT until 8 p.m.

CAMPAIGN LIVELY

Campaigns in the last few elections have lacked the punch of this year's because popular Jack Garland was considered almost unbeatable by his opponents.

This year there have been parades, cheer leaders, pipe

Election May Be On Tap

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP) — With byelections being held in Nipissing and Saskatoon constituencies today, anything can happen when the Commons starts its new legislative week.

And what may happen Tuesday is also anybody's guess after the vote results are in.

The Commons, winding up a long week with the "naming" and suspension of former agriculture minister, Alvin Hamilton Friday afternoon, is scheduled to begin debate today on interim government spending authority for July.

But the opening hours of the sitting, devoted to governments statements and the daily question period, is likely to be filled again with political one upmanship among the parties.

A ban on political broadcasting prevails in the Nipissing and Saskatoon districts until after the polls close. But that won't necessarily deter the politicians here from trying last-minute pitches to the late voters through parliamentary news reports.

ASK APPROVAL

The government will ask the House to appropriate one month's interim spending authority, pending approval of the normal appropriations later.

If the bill is not passed by July 13 — and Conservative sources indicate the party is sufficiently embittered against the Liberals and anxious for an election to debate it three weeks — the government may have to

Choo-Choo Puffs as Pipes Skirl

Toot, Toooooot!

That was the sound that echoed up and down Pinnacle Street today at noon as the last remaining operative steam engine owned by the CN rolled slowly down from the North Station.

Engine No. 6167, hauling a baggage car and coach, carried local crippled kiddies and Belleville Rotarians down the Pinnacle Street tracks to luncheon at the Hotel Quinte.

The train ride marked the opening of Railway Week in Belleville, and the end of the railway tracks on Pinnacle St. after a big noon-day crowd of onlookers on hand onside the hotel and on the sidewalk at the Bridge and Pinnacle Street intersection as the old steamer rolled to a stop outside the hotel.

Highland pipers "piped" the train down Pinnacle Street and a few cheers went up as the engine and its two cars braked to a halt.

Then the crippled kiddies were helped off the train and with Rotarians posed for pictures at the side of the engine.

Noon-day motor traffic added to the confusion.

It looked and sounded like old times but it was a scene which never again will be repeated on Pinnacle Street.

Nikita Gets Cold Reception On Arrival Today in Sweden

CP from Reuters-AP

STOCKHOLM — Soviet Premier Khrushchev got a cold reception today when he arrived here to start his five-day official visit to Sweden.

Only about six persons in the crowd of about 4,000 onlookers applauded as Khrushchev stepped ashore from a Swedish Navy torpedo boat that ferried him in from the Russian liner Bashkiriya in which he travelled from Copenhagen, Denmark.

There was dead silence as the Russian leader drove away from the waterfront in a bullet-proof Lincoln limousine.

During Khrushchev's brief arrival speech, Swedish Air Force jets circling overhead occasionally drowned him out. Police boats constantly patrolled the harbor.

Earlier, as Khrushchev's ship bore into sight, youths on a hilltop overlooking the channel unfurled a banner 60 feet long on which was written, in Swedish and Russian, "Disarmament demands mutual concessions." Police hauled the banner down.

There were more police than spectators gathered at the entrance to the castle park, where Khrushchev will live while he is here.

However, he appeared in good spirits.

The elaborate security precautions aimed at protecting the 70-year-old Kremlin boss went into high gear.

Massive traffic jams choked central Stockholm as police closed roads along the route.

Talk of an Early Election Mounting on Parliament Hill

OTTAWA (CP)—Talk of an early general election has been mounting on Parliament Hill but a lot still hangs on the outcome of two federal byelections Monday.

Political pundits will be watching the results of voting in Ontario's Nipissing riding and in Saskatoon, Sask., for indications of voter trends that might be influenced by the timing in other parts of the country.

Both ridings elected personally-popular MPs in recent general elections and their deaths this spring opened the way for more-partisan contests.

Speculation has been growing in Ottawa as the result of a combination of circumstances which puts power in the Conservative opposition to force a parliamentary stalemate next month.

By mid-July, the government must obtain interim spending authority from the Commons before it sets its bills. Any protracted debate on this can bring Parliament to a standstill and force the government to call a general election while meeting financial commitments through Governor-General's warrants.

Seeing the situation develop, there is always a possibility of the government itself calling an election and blaming the opposition for obstruction. Prime Minister Pearson, however, has denied any intention of himself seeking an election.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker has pointed to the danger of another federal election at this juncture in national affairs. With the issues of the flag and of bilingualism and biculturalism, the country would be torn apart for a generation, he has warned.

However, there are forces within the Conservative party which see the opportunity to force an election and believe it is a case of now or never if it Conservatives hope to regain power.

These forces want the contest to be held while comparisons between the former Diefenbaker administration and the present Pearson regime are vivid in the minds of electors. They believe the Conservatives would emerge crably in the balance.

Society Against Force

MONTREAL (CP) — French Canada, celebrating the feast of its patron saint with a week-long program of activities, has been warned against using force or violence to gain its rights.

The warning came from Paul-Emile Cardinal Leger, Roman Catholic Archbishop of Montreal, in a Sunday sermon at historic Notre Dame Church at downtown Place d'Armes.

"It's a nation really wishes to be strong and respected," the cardinal said during a mass celebrating St. Jean Baptiste Day festivities, "it must serve the cause of justice by insisting on the possession of all its rights with energy while respecting those of others with fairness."

No one could obtain real and lasting benefit from hate and social struggles.

"This applies to nations as well as individuals," Cardinal Leger said. "Between persons or human groups, the language of reason and patience must be chosen in place of recourse to force and violence."

ARE FIGHTING

St. Jean Baptiste Day falls Wednesday, June 24, but celebrations have been going on since Friday.

The festivities reach a climax Wednesday night with a giant torchlight parade along mid-town Sherbrooke street. Twenty-four floats, depicting various fields of endeavor, are included in the parade.

Theme of the festivities is "Le Canada Francais, realite vivante" (French Canada, a living reality).

Cardinal Leger called for study of the nature of French Canada's cultural and political community.

6-Hour Battle Rages In Borneo As Parley Fails

Subandrio Says He Now Feels Free to Act

By TONY ESCODA

KUALA LUMPUR (AP) — Indonesian guerrillas made one of the biggest attacks of the Borneo jungle war Sunday night, only 24 hours after the collapse of the second Malaysian summit conference a security forces spokesman announced in Sarawak.

Five Gurkhas were killed and five others wounded in the six-hour battle near the frontier about 50 miles west of Kuching, the spokesman said.

The number of guerrilla casualties was not known. The dead and wounded were reported carried back across the frontier as security forces forced the guerrillas to retreat.

The spokesman said the attack on the Gurkha patrol continued for six hours, until 2:30 a.m., in some of the fiercest fighting of the anti-guerrilla campaign.

Government officials predicted a major stepup in the Indonesian guerrilla campaign following collapse of the peace conference Saturday in Tokyo.

PREDICTS TOUGHER STAND

Radio Indonesia predicted a tougher new stand against Malaysia.

The state security council in the Malaysian Borneo state of Sarawak scheduled an emergency meeting today. Indonesia continues a military buildup and the situation on the frontier is grave, Chief Minister Stephen Kalong Ningkan said.

Ningkan added, however, that the British and Malaysian security forces could handle the situation if Indonesia tried to send more guerrillas into Sarawak.

Indonesian President Sukarno, who stalked out of the Tokyo summit meeting, then returned to a final futile session Saturday, has not commented on the conference breakup.

Foreign Minister Subandrio and Indonesian Ambassador to Japan of the Tokyo negotiations "satisfactory" because Indonesia "is no longer tied down by previous commitments.

"We now feel free to carry out the confrontation policy," he said. "... Our confrontation and crush Malaysia policy must be intensified with all consequences entailed."

Gul Philippine President Diosdado Macapagal, whose efforts brought Sukarno and Prime Minister Tunku Abdul Rahman of Malaysia to the conference table, continued his efforts for peace.

An aide said Macapagal would mail pleas to both Indonesia and Malaysia to order their foreign ministers to another meeting to seek an end to the undeclared war.

Rahma said the talks collapsed because Sukarno was not prepared to give anything." He said Indonesia had failed to fulfill the requirements for negotiations — withdrawal of her

Kennedy In Frame Six Months

NORTHAMPTON, Mass. (AP) A special canvas rigging constitutes Senator Edward M. Kennedy's immediate "world" as assassins search for Kennedy's youngest brother begins a long, slow recuperation from a broken back.

Known as a "Foster frame," it takes the place of a more uncomfortable, unwieldy plaster cast which for years was a must for persons with fractured vertabra.

It will keep the 32-year-old Massachusetts Democra'ic senator as comfortable as possible while surgeons determine whether surgery will be needed for the three broken vertabra Kennedy suffered in surviving a plane crash last Friday night, although the freshman senator, elected 19 months ago to fill his brother's unexpired seat in the U.S. Senate, faces a six- to eight-month period of recuperation, doctors stress he will recover completely barring any unforeseen complications.

Also still in hospital after surviving the crash are two persons were killed were Senator Birch Bayh (Dem. Ind.) and his wife.

IN GOOD SHAPE

They were in good condition but were expected to be held at the hospital the rest of the week.

Kennedy cannot be moved for another 10 to 12 days, Brig.-Gen. Henry Murphey, head of the army's recently closed General Hospital in Washington, said Sunday night.

He and Dr. Thomas F. Cogriden, also has been attending the senator since he was brought into the hospital early Saturday, said Kennedy continues to show "definite improvement." Both said previously, that there was no neurological damage and that Kennedy escaped spinal paralysis from the broken back.

Kennedy also suffered two broken ribs and fractures of three transverse processes which extend from the vertabra and gives the patient support. Mrs. John F Kennedy, the president's widow, visited her brother-in-law Sunday, spending 2½ hours at the hospital.

HEADED FOR CONVENTION

Kennedy was scheduled to the Massachusetts state Democratic primary convention in Springfield when the plane crashed in an apple orchard in Southampton.

Kennedy was to be endorsed by acclamation at the convention for a full six-year term as senator. The convention gave Kennedy the endorsement Saturday.

CF-104 Gets in More Trouble Navigation System Is Faulty

OTTAWA (CP) — Five years and $470,000,000 ago the then Conservative government decided to obtain the CF-104 low-level jet bomber for the RCAF air division in Europe.

The politically - buffeted plane, already $50,000,000 beyond its original cost estimate, still has operational because it has no armament, nuclear or conventional.

During the weekend officials disclosed that the plane's navigation system, with which the RCAF says it is still having trouble, has cost $50,900,000 so far. This figure includes an April contract of $5,000,000 for repairs to the navigation system.

The original contract and the repair contract both went to Litton Systems Inc. of California and its subsidiary, Litton Systems (Canada) Limited at Rexdale, Ont.

An air force spokesman said no CF-104s—there are 236 of them, including 38 trainers—have been grounded because of faults in the navigation system.

But the spokesman said the planes navigation system "has not been without its problems." Though the RCAF and the defence production department said repairs to such a complex system are not unusual, Associate Defence Minister Cardin told the Commons April 8 that the repair bill was "unforeseen."

He said at that time that repairs would cost up to $6,000,000 in the current fiscal year alone.

The defence production department announced Friday a new contract award to Litton in connection with the navigation system: $133,272 for "computer replacement cards."

Civil Rights Bill Now Faces Final Test in Year-Long Fight

WASHINGTON (AP)—The final stage of the year-long battle to pass a strong civil rights bill opens in the House of Representatives today with southern opponents determined to delay the final approval for another week.

The opponents are down to their last round of ammunition, however, and Speaker John W. McCormack has promised President Johnson the bill will be at the White House by July 4.

The delay in bringing the sweeping, Senate - passed civil rights bill to a final vote in the House is made possible by a requirement that the House rules committee approve a resolution sending it to the floor.

Chairman Howard W. Smith, Virginia Democrat who opposes the bill, must block action on the resolution by simply refusing to call a meeting. He can only hold up for a week, however, as the rules permit a majority of the committee to schedule a meeting within seven days of the requesting one, if the chairman fails to act.

A House action is necessary because the Senate passed a substitute for the bill approved four months ago by the House. In general, the two versions are virtually alike. But the new Senate bill gives more and cities more time to deal with complaints.

The Senate bill bans racial discrimination in most public places; bans major employers and unions from discriminating racially in jobs or membership; bars vote registrars from using different standards for disqualifying whites and Negro voting applicants; gives the attorney-general power to initiate suits in school desegregation and other discrimination cases; permits the cut off of funds to federally aided programs where racial discrimination is ordered to continue.

Once the bill gets to the floor, its passage is certain.

Honor Fathers In Services

Churches in Belleville were filled to capacity on Sunday to honor all fathers on Father's Day.

Temperatures rose to the high 70's. Evidence of the warm weather was seen as persons and children trekked off to church in their Sunday attire.

It is interesting to note that Father's Day was originally started by a "woman" some years ago after hearing a radio broadcast on the perils of being a father.

Edney Rink Of Kingston District Champs

A rink of Harold Buck, William Duncan Sr., William Duncan Jr. and Dick Kidney as skip from Kingston are district champions and a rink of Earl Moore, Preston Donegan and Doug Clarke as skip, also from Kingston are district champions in the Colts division after the playoffs were staged at the Belleville Bowling Club on Sunday afternoon and evening. Competing in the rink division were Belleville, Trenton and Kingston. There were two rinks from this city, two from Trenton and one from Kingston. In the Colts there were rinks from Belleville, Campbellford and Kingston.

The Kingston rink had little trouble in winning the district title defeating William Fuller of Trenton in the final by a 21-9 count. In the preliminary round a Belleville rink, skipped by Gerald Hyde lost to Ricoeur Ormshaw by one shot. This was a close contest all the way and the contest was won on the last end Ormshaw drew to Kidney of Kingston while Percy Graham's rink of Belleville tangled with William Fuller of Trenton and was defeated.

Campbellford Colts defeated a Belleville rink skipped by Jack Avery in the preliminary round by one shot. The local rink was tied down coming home and Avery ran the "cat" back for two but was heavy with the last end and could only get within one shot of the winners. In the final game the Campbellford rink was up by coming home and Doug Clarke's rink from Kingston scored a big "five" to clinch the verdict.

District chairman Ralph Tuck was in charge of the draw and a large crowd watched the various games throughout the afternoon and evening. Refreshments were served for the bowlers between games. The results:

Both Reports There on Time For Doctors

VANCOUVER (CP) — The story of a bilingual mixup involving doctors of the Canadian Medical Association and the royal commission report on bilingualism was told Sunday night.

When it was known Thursday that the report would be released the following day an official reception and dinner was asked to have copies sent by air to Vancouver, where the CMA is holding its annual meeting.

Friday night and early Saturday an official made repeated trips to the airport seeking the copies. They finally arrived at 6 a.m. Saturday. All six copies were in French.

Dr. Victor Goldbloom of Montreal immediately started a verbal translation of the voluminous text and secretaries were called to start typing translations.

An about noon someone thought of a doctor who had not yet arrived from Eastern Canada. An enquiry at the desk of his hotel showed there was a package for him from Ottawa.

It contained English - language copies of the report and had been here since Wednesday.

Duke, Duchess of Windsor Should Be Welcomed Back To Britain Says Biographer

By ALAN HARVEY

CP from AP-Reuters

LONDON (CP)—A plea that the Duke and Duchess of Windsor should be welcomed back to Britain without stings is sentenced by an authority on royalty.

James Pope - Hennessy, author and biographer of Queen Mary, writes in The Sunday Times:

"Surely . . . the duke and duchess should be welcomed back into this country, granted a grace-and-favor residence and invited to play a part in British public life."

The duke, who quit the throne in 1936 to marry the "woman I love," twice married Wallis Simpson, will be 70 next Tuesday. The suggestion by Pope-Hennessy appears under a headline suggesting that the duke's return would be an appropriate 70th birthday gift.

The Windsors live in France and come to Britain only occasionally. Recently, the British cabinet decision, has not been granted the title of royal highness. It has never been received by a member of the Royal Family.

The duke for his part is understood to feel that husband and wife should always be entitled, in his words, to "use the front door."

Evening Treatment Program Found Successful by CARS

The June meeting of The Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society, Quinte Branch, was held at the YMCA.

Mr. R. Freeman, president, opened the meeting with welcoming those present from the general membership, and stated that the general membership had been called for the purpose of amending the constitution to allow the election of the local branch from the Quinte Branch to Belleville Branch. In the future the name of the local branch shall be The Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society, Belleville Branch.

NEW STRUCTURE

This change was thought advisable, due to the new Ontario Division structure coming into being. The Belleville area with this new structure will be divided will be regarded as one area, each area. The area for the Rheumatism Disease Study at Queen's University opened June 1st, will be organized later on this year. It will have one representative from each branch in the area.

Mr. George Brown, the society's representative on the board of directors of the United Appeal stated that an alternate representative be named, so that the society will have representation at all meetings if he should find he was unable to attend some meetings. This would provide better continuity. Mrs. Enos David was appointed to represent the society when Mr. Brown found it impossible to attend.

Mr. Brown stressed the need of volunteers for canvassing in the United Appeal campaign, and noted that when last year's case was presented, besides himself.

A review was made of the activities of the treatment centre at the Belleville General Hospital and reported by the local branch.

TREATMENT CENTRE

This treatment centre has been in operation for the past nine months and has provided for a real need in the community. Arthritic patients may receive physiotherapy treatments two evening each week, Tuesday and Thursday evenings when referred by their family doctor.

The board of directors were most encouraged by the success of the treatment centre as this was a new venture for the Ontario Division when they set up the evening program. Although the treatment centres had been in operation in other parts of the province, they were carried out during the daytime.

The evening program was found necessary when the board was unable to secure a full time therapist. They were fortunate in finding a highly trained physiotherapist, a young mother living in Belleville, who was agreeable to working on a part time basis, in the person of Mrs. D. C. Brown.

The Ontario Division of the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society is so pleased with the success of this evening treatment centre, that similar programs may be started in other parts of the province, where there is difficulty in securing full time staff.

The consultation clinics held at the Belleville General Hospital, under the Queen's University medical branch, also have been well attended.

These clinics are held every three months. A rheumatologist, supervisor of physiotherapy and a social worker are in attendance and are for one day only.

Only patients referred by their family doctor are seen at these clinics.

A nominating committee was named to bring in a new slate of officers for the October meeting, Mr. E. G. O'Connor, Mrs. A. W. Hume and Mr. E. David.

The next meeting of the board will be held in September.

The Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society, Belleville Branch, is one of the participating agencies in the Belleville United Appeal.

Windsor, Sarnia, London Areas Hit by Storm

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—A severe wind and electrical storm hit this area early Sunday, destroying a barn near Iona, about 20 miles south of here.

Damage was reported in rural areas of Windsor, Tecumseh, Sandwich East and Sandwich West and in some districts it would be restored by Sunday afternoon. Several houses in the Windsor area were struck by lightning.

An estimated $85,000 damage was reported in Brigden, 17 miles southeast of Sarnia, where a small tornado ripped through the town Friday night.

The London district Swedish freighter Silva Plana, which was driven aground in the St. Clair River five miles south of Sarnia by the wind Friday night, was still fast Sunday.

U. S. Admits Private Plane Is Missing

CP from AP-Reuters

HAVANA—Cuba claimed Saturday that its forces shot down "pirate aircraft" after it dropped three bombs on a sugar mill in Las Villas province.

A communique by the armed forces ministry claimed the aircraft took off from U.S territory and expressed the hope the United States would not be "cynical enough" to deny it.

In Washington, the state department reported later that a private U.S. plane was missing from Florida. The announcement was made after a Cuban protest was delivered by the Czech embassy.

Kingston Rinks Win Honors in Hyde Tourney

Members of the Kingston Bowling Club carried home all of the major prizes from The C. Hyde and Son tournament held at the Belleville Bowling Club greens on Saturday afternoon. There was a full draw of 32 rinks gathered from Brighton, Campbellford, Cobourg, Madoc, Stirling and Trenton and Belleville. This was slightly smaller than the draw last year but Saturday seems to be a hard day for many to get away to bowl. Gerald B. Hyde, conducted the draw in the usual capable manner while Percy Graham, president of the local club, welcomed the visitors. The usual the greens were in perfect condition and the bowlers were kept busy from the time the first game started.

By two plus points, William Duncan, Jr., of Kingston and his rink skipped by Dick Kingston of the Belleville club, defeated a club mate, Morley Galt and Mrs. Kitty Graham of the Kingston rink for the trophy and the major prizes. In third place was Ed Donaldson of the Trenton club, Ron of Kingston, while William Duncan Sr. and Mrs. Muriel Duncan also of Kingston were fourth.

Clayton Maguire and Mrs. Pearl Frost of the Trenton club had the two-game high score while Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Hitts of the same club were the second place. William VanTassel and Mrs. Grace Clapp won the consolation prize with Fred Sarrard and Miss Rosa Spry of Stirling in second place. Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Wannamaker had high for no wins.

The women of the Belleville club supplied light refreshments of sandwiches, coffee and pies during the day. A social evening concluded a very happy event, which was favored by ideal weather conditions. It was hot and humid.

At Brighton on Wednesday afternoon William VanTassel and Mrs. Grace Clapp won the consolation prize at a mixed tournament staged by the Brighton club. Others attending but failing to get into the prize money were Mr. and Mrs. "Goldie" Fitzgibbon, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Fox and Hector Henderson and Mrs. Lil Macdonald.

Scene of the attempted robbery was York Trading Company, 131 Station Street.

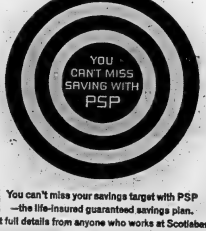
3 Americans Missing After Viet Cong Crash

SAIGON(Reuters) — One of the three Americans missing after a clash with Communist Viet Cong guerrillas in South Viet Nam Friday was killed in the battle and the other two were taken prisoner, it was reported today.

The report came from a South Vietnamese soldier who survived the clash, which took place 55 miles northwest of Saigon. He said the American officer reported missing was killed and the two Americans from the ranks were taken prisoner.

Officially, the three Americans were still listed as missing in action.



The three Americans were attached to a South Vietnamese special forces of about 100 men moving through Viet Cong country when it was attacked by a Viet Cong force estimated at between 300 and 400 Communist guerrillas.

Reliable military sources said 46 of the South Vietnamese soldiers still were unaccounted for, missing with over 30 weapons.

The battle, which took place in Tay Ninh province, included "human wave" assaults by the Viet Cong, who overran the government force.

Bethel Temple Quiz Team Wins Honors

TRENTON — Recently, a Bible Quiz Team from Bethel Temple, won out over area groups in competition and were presented with a trophy after the members of the team defeated the team from Stirling, achieving a perfect score in Bible knowledge.

Now, the Trenton group is preparing for district finals at Lakeshore Pentecostal Youth Camp near Cobourg, on August 8th.

Team members are: Dale Broadworth, James Reid, Glen Mallory and William Cronkwright. Coach is Miss Barbara McMaster.

July sees the start of activity at the Cobourg camp which serves Pentecostal assemblies in Eastern Ontario and Quebec.

Throughout July and the first two weeks of August, youth camps, children's camps, and family camps take possession of the campsites.

Trenton's Bethel Temple sends a good representation to all three camps, with the congregation paying the expenses of any child whose parents cannot afford the fees for board and housing.

Pastor at the Trenton church is the Rev. Ronald Reid.

Three Boats Locked Through On Sunday

TRENTON — Saturday, three boats were locked through No. One Lock on the Trent. Sunday eight boats were locked through. This brings to 73 the total number of boats through the lock since navagation's opening May 15. By June 21 of 1963, only 33 boats had been locked through.

One canal official attributes the greater number of boats this year to the fact that new locking hours are in operation. Lock hours are from 8.30 a.m. to 8.30 p.m. Friday and Saturdays . . . and from nine to nine on Sundays. Up until this year, regulation hours were more restrictive.

Band Concert Much Enjoyed By Large Crowd

TRENTON — What to do of a Sunday afternoon in Trenton?

Some people spent an hour in Bayshore Park yesterday, listening to the music of the Trenton Citizens' Band.

Band leader Ted Snider, CJBQ's Trenton manager, took his group through a varied program which included popular hits, such as "Hello Dolly", the stirring marches peculiar to groups of this kind, and familiar hymns.

As the band brought out the crystal-clear notes of "Land of Hope and Glory", the Red Ensign flying above the Legion Hall grounds where the concert was held, seemed to flutter with a new dignity.

The 25-man band has improved immensely, listeners were heard to comment, since Ted and a few music-minded friends decided to form the citizens' group. Not since the Good Old Days when Sunday afternoon concerts were held in the bandshell at Fireman's Park, have residents been able to enjoy a concert in the park.

Mr. Snider, an accomplished musician himself, leads the band with verve and enthusiasm, projecting his personality to his men, and wheedling from them pear-shaped notes.

At some of his musicians were unavoidably absent from yesterday's performance, the band couldn't launch into its newest accomplishment, music from the Music Man, Mr. Snider explained yesterday.

Meanwhile, the members of the band, among whom are such well-known men as D. R. (Nick) Fraser and Jim Wallace, are selling ball-point pens and mean to use the money cleared from the sale to buy uniforms.

Bo-Mayor Kenneth Coech, an unofficial "angel" to the group, has plans for a really big "show" which would bring together the bands from Trenton, Brighton and Stirling, in one big band concert.

Needs Careful Study

The royal commission on health services tabled a 914-page report in the House of Commons Friday afternoon.

Even before the report was tabled, Stanley Knowles of the New Democrats asked Prime Minister Pearson whether the Government would implement the commission's recommendations as soon as possible.

Mr. Pearson replied that the recommendations would have to be studied to determine whether they should become government policy.

He is so right. The commission recommends sweeping changes. It is almost unbelievable recommendations of this nature could be made only two short years after Saskatchewan initiated the country's first medicare plan. This is either indicative of a remarkably widespread and vigorous desire for comprehensive health insurance, or it shows how fast the roi spreads once a scheme of this nature is started. We shall leave to others the choice of interpretations and we may be sure we shall hear enough of both viewpoints before the commission's recommendations are either accepted or rejected by Parliament.

Some people may be wondering how the commission can say that it rejects state medicine and yet recommend a health service of this scope. An explanation is that the commission has its own definition—to it state medicine means a system in which all providers of health services are officials under state control.

It will be interesting to see what the detailed reaction of the medical profession is to the commission's proposals. Will the profession be satisfied with a protection which, it must seem to some, depends mainly on semantics? It would require a convincing orator to pin the label of state medicine on British's system, under the commission's definition.

The general public, though, is not likely to be much concerned about this point. What taxpayers will want to know is how much the plan will cost. The commission did not say—perhaps because it did not know. But it did make a point which will be greatly stressed by advocates of such a scheme. The additional cost, it said, would be only $20 per capita annually, over and above the cost of present services by 1971. Taxes, or subsidies such as premiums or lottery profits, would increase much more than this $20 per capita figure, but this increase would be offset by the elimination of the cost of private plans. To this must be added the cost of private payments by individuals themselves directly to those now providing the health services which would be covered by the plan.

This is an interesting point. To the question of whether we can afford the change must be added the question of whether we can afford to do without it. We have already established much of the machinery, in connection with hospitalization insurance. Can we afford to permit this machinery to operate at less than top efficiency?

These, and many other questions, concerning not only principles but also details, need to be answered before the government, or the opposition parties, take a firm stand on the commission's recommendation. Any study worthy of the name will require considerable time. A speedy decision would be an unmistakable sign of undue haste.

Correction Please

Speaking to members of the Belleville Rotary Club, Cpl. Harold Howting of the OPP, said it takes a lot of brains to operate a modern, high-powered automobile.

Any idiot, who can turn a key and step on a pedal, can get a couple of tons of steel moving at more than a hundred miles an hour. By some quirk of fate, it is exactly the fastest, heaviest and most powerful cars— the most dangerous ones in other words—that usually require the least intelligence and judgment on the part of the driver.

For the sake of accuracy then, let us amend Cpl. Howting's comments. It takes at least a reasonable amount of brains to operate a modern high-powered automobile—and survive.

Diet's New Writers Dish Up Punch, Wit, Sparkle Plenty

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

OTTAWA — Noticed a shorter, sharper, brighter tone to Conservative Leader Diefenbaker's speeches these days?

More zap? More bite? More sparkle? Laughs, even?

Got himself a couple of new speech-writers, eyewitness Ottawa Journal newsroom alumni — Tommy Van Dusen and Greg Guthrie.

Dief was always a good speaker. A tremendous performer on the stump. Especially if the crowd is "up" and applauding the punchier lines.

But some of his sentences could get long — one a recent 371 words — that you almost needed a Seeing Eye Dog to lead you through the oratorical fog.

No more of that now.

Punchy. Often one to a paragraph.

Now he is talking like a London Daily Express news dispatch reads. With bounce. Impact.

Like his reference the other day, mid-shelling his assessment of the three "Splitter" parties of the Opposition which have continuity down so much to prop up the minority Government.

He suspected they'd ride to the rescue of the Government again on the Red Ensign — Maple Leaf issue.

"Not that they love the flag less, but the love they have for $18,000 more," as he put it so blisteringly.

FUSSY CAT PICK

Others had said it before, Many others. And often. But when Dief found the right, brightly brittle speech, it registered exploding like a bomb in the Commons.

Of course, meaning no reflection on the Commons, he gracefully withdrew the $18,000 a formality only the MPs would appreciate or even note.

What was more important, he had got across his pledging allotment of the integrity of the "Splitter" groups and their no-again-ed-again line of opposition, with the cutting crack of their loving the flag-post less, but their $18,000 more.

Then he trotted out his political variation of the Nursery Rhyme "Pussy Cat, Pussy Cat."

Pickersgill, Pickersgill
Where have you been?
I've been to London
To see the Queen.
Pickersgill, Pickersgill,
What did you there?
I tried keeping Joey,
Out of Lester B's hair.

That is the kind of icing ex-newsman Van Dusen and Guthrie are concocting, lastly, on Dief's oratorical cake.

The Old Warrior and his Right Hand Man, Dalton Camp, Program editor Burt Richardson, of course, re-work the Van Dusen-Guthrie lines. Add a touch here in the bounce for the pace and impact it gives even routine political speeches.

Right now, with the Opposition Leader and Prime Minister Pearson, in the warm up to the coming election campaign both stumping the land on weekends, there are two writers of key men in the two political camps.

LOUD APPLAUSE

Where Dief has two, or with Richardson, at most three, the prime minister has what amounts to a staff.

At the top of the Prime Minister's speech-writing pedestal is brain trustee Tom Kent, the ex-Manchester Guardian man who masterminded and ran the Great John W. Defoe's editorial shoes at The Winnipeg Free Press.

Backing him up are former Vancouver public relations package Sid Dorosz, and former advertising man Richard O'Hagan and Maritime radio, alumnus Jim Hagan.

As a team they whip up a speech, delivering a text to the prime minister usually two days before a platform date.

But because Pearson, like Diefenbaker, is addicted to personally "touching up" these epics — with what the trade calls "low-spots" and "ink-low" — they never dare let the mimeographs spin out texts 30 minutes before actual platform delivery.

One of the reasons — aside from the professional pride they take in putting their own personal stamp on it — that both Dief and the PM "work over" their prepared texts, is the horrible example Speaker Prung man Jean Lesage left here in the Capital in his days as Federal Northern Affairs Minister.

Mr. Lesage, then a respected member of former Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent's Cabinet, was racking up tremendous wordages in the 1957 election campaign. Like most Cabinet Ministers, he was making so many speeches he couldn't find the time to write his own stuff — so, as it turned out, even read what others had prepared for him, until he was right there on the platform, facing the moment of oratorical truth.

So it was that one awful day, he was handed a speech in which "applause," "loud and prolonged applause," and even "cheering" had been written in anticipation of an ovation that turned out to be a humiliation. Since then, the Federal politicians leave the "applause" to the audience, and "work over" their speech-writers' stuff, just to be sure.

Proverbs Game Quite Unfair

Winnipeg Tribune

The need for a proverb-clear enhance agency is obvious at United Nations. It is quite unfair for instance to expect the United States State Department to interpret the animal aphorism which the Russian delegate hurled at the Assembly in reply to Adlai Stevenson's application of American policy in the Far East.

A monkey with a crown on his head still remains a monkey."

How does that kind of talk go down in the Baltimore zoo?

"A snake does not become straight even if he is put through a bamboo tube."

Now is that fair to the bamboo shoots industry?

At this point in international barnyard diplomacy, of course, it is difficult to say who started this game. After all, Churchill said "Some chickens have some neck," which is regarded as one of the great lines of history.

Mussolini frequently was referred to as a jackal, and African conservationists have been attempting to restore that maligned animal to respectability ever since.

In the current exchange, unfortunately, the Russians have an advantage. They can whip out a proverb faster than the sheriff's six-shooter. True, at times, they seem to be made up on the spur of the moment. A Russian can say "elephants don't climb chimneys," and immediately be established as a reputation for erudition. After all we don't know how many say in Russian about elephants. But just imagine the dull thud in the State Department if Adlai tried one like "cows don't fly". And what would the president have to say about it?

It is said that the Russians cranked up their proverb machine because of the late meeting of the Washington-Moscow hot line teletype. The Russian operator sent "Monkey say" in Russian about elephants. But just imagine the dull thud in the State Department if Adlai tried one like "cows don't fly". And what would the president have to say about it?

"Now just who is the lazy dog?", pondered the Kremlin and since that time the State Department has been boning up on Aesop.

Dishwashing 'Hard Labor'?

Kingston Whig-Standard

In the not-so-distant past, when a court made reference to hard labor in sentencing a man, there's exactly what was meant—breaking rocks, carrying coal and a hundred and one other heavy tasks which meant that the prisoner was in for no-easy period of imprisonment. In those days hard labor was assessed against a man guilty of a particularly heinous crime. Today, however, in view of the definition of "hard labor," we wonder why courts bother with the embellishment at all.

The other day a young man was sentenced to 30 days in jail — at hard labor — for careless driving. We won't go into the details of the case but it's evident that it involved irresponsibility at the wheel and a flippant attitude towards the gravity of his actions. But it is the report of what hard labor meant in this case which intrigues us.

Breaking rocks or even picking up litter? Not a bit of it. What institution would dare? According to an official at the county jail to which the youth was sent, hard labor today involves "washing dishes, cleaning and helping in other jail routines," to quote the news report. Sometimes housework (and some husbands, it is only fair to state) will be quite interesting. We don't think it is what they call the tasks which are routine in their households.

It strikes us that a young man "working his way through college" by sweating it out in a restaurant kitchen probably called upon to work harder than in this particular county jail. Here we could add some further examples, such as the recruit at R.M.C. or in another battalion or the man who wields a pick on a civic excavation. Or, again, even the housewife to whom dishwashing is only a minute part, or her fully adult at hard labor in the home.

CLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

30 YEARS AGO

Claimed to be the first result of wartime regulations making it inconvenient for a freer movement of cheese from whole seller., an influx of licenced cheese buyers has appeared at the Belleville Cheese Board within the past two years. At the beginning of the war only about six buyers regularly bought cheese on the Board, while this season there is a possibility of there being a dozen licenced buyers.

After several years' efforts on the part of the local cheese trade to have an official cheese weigher at the Belleville shipping point, this has been made possible this year as the result of new regulations permitting the appointment of a weigher by municipal authority. Such weight cards as Belleville enforces are subject to checking by officials of the Department of Agriculture, and the procedure greatly facilitates payment for cheese, it is stated.

Results of twelve months intensive drill and training were viewed by proud parents and near interested spectators as the personnel and officers of the Belleville "Quinte" Sea Cadet Corps put inspected by Lieut.-Commander Hugh Plaxton of H.M.C.S Calcaraqui at their annual inspection held in the Legislate Campus Thursday evening.

Epic and span in their natty naval uniforms, the proud local junior representatives of the naval services marched to the collegiate campus for their inspection from the Reliance Industries Factory where they were guests of their commanding officer for dinner. The six cadet band headed the march to the grounds and acted as duty band for the inspection.

It was led by two motorcycle police, who were followed by the Lindsay Boys' Band in their smart grey uniforms touched with scarlet. Three other bands, well placed in the parade, were the Pipe Band under the leadership of Pipe Major Albert Johnstone, the Citizens Band led by Bandmaster Reg Hinchey and the Argyll Regiment Band under Bandmaster Bert Wood. Ways in Which to Be A Good 'Hospital Visitor'

By RICHARD JACKSON

From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

A reader has sent me a leaflet called "How to Be A Good Visitor," meaning how to be a good hospital visitor.

It was printed by the General Board of Education of the Methodist Church.

Anyway, it consists of four clever cartoons, each with a paragraph of text, as follows:

"DON'T PLAY DOCTOR. If your Aunt Aspidistra expired of something that sounds a lot like what's ailing the patient, draw the diagnosis for the bridge club. Auntie may have died of old age. If the patient wants to tell you about his ailment, let him, but don't dwell on disease.

"Candy ain't always DANDY. Gifts of food should have special hospital approval. Flowers are fine, but not in carload lots; a single odorless plant is better. Books and magazines are handy perennials. Women's sickroom cologne and men like such chin-up gifts as shaving lotion.

"TOBACCO MAY BE TABOO Don't smoke unless it's all right with the hospital, with the patient you're visiting, and other patients close by. Even regular smokers may hate the smell of tobacco smoke when ill—fewer smoke in the corridors. Alcohol is always out of order.

"CURTAIN CALLS. Exit on a helpful, hopeful note. Don't be a Gloomy Gus. Ask if there's a service you can render (mailing a letter, watering a lawn, making a phone call) or whether there's something you can bring back (a bathrobe, book, bed jacket) the next time you visit." It's first class advice, and anything but stuffy.

Dear Dr. Molner: My doctor tells me to cut out coffee. Is the habit curable? — Nick

All you have to do to cure the habit is stop drinking coffee. This isn't an addiction.

Dear Dr. Molner: What about the probability of a woman bearing a deformed child if she has German measles (rubella) in the early months of pregnancy? — Mrs. A. F. T.

If you have German measles in the first three, or perhaps even four, months of pregnancy, there is thoroughly established evidence that the risk of bearing a deformed baby is much greater than otherwise.

This does not mean that all women having German measles in the early in pregnancy will bear deformed babies. Nor does it mean that all those who do have rubella at that time will necessarily have perfect babies.

The degree of deformity, if any, varies. It may be slight. It may be severe. But the risk is great.

Dear Dr. Molner: My two small children are near-sighted and must wear glasses. Can the problem be corrected by an operation? I am heartsick about this. — Mrs. R. C.

Stop being heartsick. Wearing glasses may be a nuisance, but it would prefer for my children to have that trouble than a few hundred other things that some youngsters must put up with.

If you keep on feeling this way, you will transmit the idea to your children and so will them resistant to the glasses. They'll be better off just taking the attention for granted and not feeling dramatically sorry for themselves.

How to get rid of leg cramps and foot pains? The answer may be simple. Write to Dr. Molner, in care of the Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P. O. Dog in House Is Sentimental 'Claptrap'

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Most of the reasons I have heard for having a dog in the house are sentimental claptrap — that a dog teaches children fidelity, loyalty, perseverance and so on. It teaches nothing of the kind; except perhaps, as Banchley once remarked, to feel two almost three times before sitting down.

The best reason, apart from the mere pleasure of it, is that a child can pick up three very important attitudes, not from the dog itself, but from aiding at pet to the family. He learns that love involves inconvenience; that love should be returned; and that "being bad" does not make us less loved.

I am indebted for these insights (confirmed by my own experience with dogs and children) to Dr. Boris M. Levinson, who presented a paper on the subject at the last quarterly social meeting of the American Psychological Association.

In a number of special techniques in child psychotherapy, Dr. Levinson, who is a professor of psychology at the graduate school of Yeshiva University, made the point that "When a family accepts a pet, a subtle change begins to occur in the family's dynamics, in its very subculture."

In the first place, he says, "the mere discussion of what the child can do for the pup, forces the child to turn his thoughts outwardly, and to think of himself in relation to his parents and his pet. The child may thus learn that he, too, like his parents, has to undergo many inconveniences for the sake of the loved one."

Secondly, the further learns that sharing a loved object, a pet, does not mean losing it or that the loved one loves him less merely because it also offers its love to others." That is, when the child shares a dog he can love many members of a family without taking anything away from any of them. He befriends how parents can love more than one child without undermining the supply because of this.

And, last, the child discovers that, even as a child, when the dog is naughty, he does not love it any less, but just wants to make it behave. Thus, the child can come to terms with his own "badness" and feel that he is still to be acceptable and loved (for many children fear that parental love will be withdrawn when they are "bad.")

These are lessons that children can learn; they are also lessons that adults can learn, if they remain open to the experience. A pet in the home acts as a "lightning rod" to divert pressure from the child; it can also act as a touchstone for the parent's appraisal of his own basic feelings toward the family.

Not Immoral To Bare Breasts Says Minister

RED DEER, Alta. (CP)—A Presbyterian minister says "there is nothing inherently immoral or lewd in any way in a woman baring her breasts."

Rev. Warren Mabb was commenting in an interview Friday on recent reports that topless bathing suits for women may be a coming fashion.

"I feel that they (the bathing suits) are being used to carry on the great emphasis on sex which is so prevalent in our Western society, and to a great extent I think this is just a swinging of the pendulum from the old Victorian days when ladies weren't allowed to show their ankles, let alone their knees.

"We're just reaching the far end of the pendulum where everything is starting to be all right."

He predicted that the time may come when people in Western society would be able to accept the fact of bare breasts without thinking it "lewd or immoral."

"Really it isn't, but our society has labelled it as such and certainly it would be a catastrophe, I think, if it were allowed to be commercialized and certainly this is what is happening now."

Need for Change Says United Church Minister

By GEORGE McNEVIN

PORT CARLING, Ont. (CP)—If any single statement could be said to sum up the work of the 1964 national conference of United Church Men, it likely would be "the need for change."

Speaker Rev. Donald Benedict who gave three major addresses during the three-day conference that ended Sunday, progressively developing his theme in each address—hammered constantly at this need.

It recurred throughout the conversations of many of the 45 discussion groups of the church's official men's organization.

Mr. Benedict is general director of the Chicago City Missionary Society and is on one-year loan to the United Church of Christ in the United States to head its study of the effects of urbanization of the church.

Some of Mr. Benedict's ideas:

1. Abandon the traditional local congregation form of public worship.

2. Redefine the job of the minister.

WANTS MORE VISITS

3. Get the minister out visiting the parishioners at their jobs as well as in their homes.

4. Take a closer look at the corporate structure of the church with a view to a wholesale jettisoning of useless activities and organizations now snugly ensconced within the framework of the church.

The conference was held at two Muskoka district resorts, the Canadian Keswick Conference Centre near this town 88 miles north of Barrie and at Elgin House, about five miles west of here.

Attendance was about 1,000.

In one discussion group, Rev. Herb Brough, minister of St. Luke's - on - the - Hill in Coniscville, Ont., questioned the wisdom of building expensive new churches "while half the world starves."

He asked: "Why can't the church operate, at least temporarily, out of a small portable building and sink the money into closing up some sewers in India?"

URGE CODE CHANGE

TORONTO (CP)—The central division of the Zionist organization of Canada urged the government Sunday to amend the Criminal Code to allow prosecution of persons distributing hate literature.

Plainfield Driver Wins Economy Run

Robert McKenzie of Plainfield yesterday won the Quinte Auto Sport Club's annual economy run. Driving a Peugeot, McKenzie averaged 48.13 miles per gallon, equal to 56.75 ton-miles per gallon, over the 90 mile course. Navigator in the car was Gary McKenzie, of Frankford. The ton-miles per gallon figure is used in official scoring to give heavy cars a chance to compete. Second place in the run went to a Volkswagen driven by Rodger Wilton of Cobourg and navigated by Miss Elizabeth Watson, of Port Hope. The VW averaged 56.56 miles per gallon, but only 55.71 ton-miles per gallon.

The run started at Morris' Service Station in Frankford, and finished at Burkitt's service station in Corbyville. Competing cars were weighed near Halloway, on scales owned by the Geo. Boe Construction Co., of Welland. Gordon Keary of the Quinte Auto Sport Club organized the event.

The late William D. Robb, father of Morse Robb of suburban Belleville, and one time vice president of the Canadian National Railways, took big part in early railway development Canada and was responsible for many of the "firsts" in this country's railway history.

Mr. Robb designed engine No. 223 famous fast Grand Trunk engine of Ber ting; was responsible for introducing the first diesel operated trains in Canada and also introduced telephone communications for the convenience of passengers on speeding trains.

Mr. Robb first came to Belleville as night foreman in 1883 and was later locomotive foreman of the Belleville division. He moved to Montreal in 1906.

He finally rose to be general manager and operating head of the Grand Trunk Railway and later was the system went in to national amalgamation became senior vice president of the C.N.R.

STARTED AT 14

Born 1857 at Longueuil where his parents settled on their arrival from Scotland, Mr. Robb began his railway career at the age of 14 as mechanical apprentice in the Grand Trunk shops.

Between that time and his retirement 63 years later, he ran the gamut of promotions which brought him from apprentice in the mechanical department to vice president of the system.

He played a big role in the development of the steam locomotive and was responsible for revolutionizing engine shop procedure resulting in locomotive being returned to service in less than three hours as against 12 to 24 hours under earlier systems.

In recognition of his contribution to railway operation, Mr. Robb was tendered a complimentary banquet at the Hotel Quinte in December 1922 at which Sir Henry Thornton, CN president and other high ranking officials were present.

SONS WELL KNOWN

Although he had already completed more than 50 years service, in 1923, Mr. Robb accepted the invitation of the railway president to remain as senior vice president with jurisdiction over various departments of the CNR. He retired in 1931.

Working With Families of Alcoholics

by ALICE G. NICOLLS, R.N., P.H.N., B.Sc.
(PART SEVEN)

The Role of the Public Health Nurse With the Alcoholic and his Family

Alcoholism or problem drinking is not a new problem for the public health nurse. On the contrary, many families it has been a chronic condition for which, until recently, the public health nurse has seen no relief and no solution. This excessive use of alcohol by a parent has been one of the greatest obstacles to progress in helping a family to a more healthful way of life. Many "multi problem" families include alcohol as one, if not the whole cause of their difficulties. In some way, children in these homes must be helped to achieve their right to some measure of equality and to have an opportunity on which to build or rebuild their lives.

If, as it seems likely from the reports of research and clinical workers, that alcoholism can be controlled, that the alcoholic can recover and again become a productive, self-reliant citizen, and that hidden aspects of alcoholism can be recognized and prevented, it seems timely to ask how the public health nurse can function most effectively as a member of one of the helping professions to aid the alcoholic and his family, and what is her preparation and health work is conducive to the development of the necessary skills.

"Alcoholism is a complex illness". The public health nurse is primarily prepared, as a nurse to understand and to care for those who are ill. Her education for, and experience in public health nursing has also prepared her to work with the family — the group in which alcohol is of primary concern to all members. Her function is to help the various age groups understand, value and maintain good health as a basis for a happier family life, and to know and use community resources. As a health worker, she is sensitive to deviations from normal in the areas of emotional, mental and social as well as physical health. As a health counsellor and teacher, she also has leadership responsibilities for health education in the community.

HELPING THE FAMILY

In spite of the disturbing, often devastating effects of problem drinking, particularly on the development of children — or perhaps because of it — the public health nurse continues to work with the family, mainly with the mother and the children, in the home and the child health centre, with teachers and children in school, with fathers and children in industrial health services, and in home care of the sick. In all her contacts, the family is helped to make the most of what can be termed normal in their way of life, and to build on that. Because of this primary concern with what is normal in situations confronting the family, conscious or unconscious defences in any member of the family that delay a trusting relationship are less likely to arise.

Community understanding has not always supported the public health nurse's efforts to be constructive and non-judgmental where these families have been concerned. Yet her health approach to the situation has been an asset. This positive approach seems to be accepted as inherent in health work. It sets a climate that makes it possible for her to help the family to help themselves, slowly but surely, to a healthier way of life, whatever their status, environment, behavior, or apparent lack of a goal. In each approach, she must begin where they are, accept and believe in them, try to understand the why of their needs, and with many, do one step at a time, often over many years, particularly where there are children.

WHY SHE IS ACCEPTED

The unique opportunity for the public health nurse — and the most normal — is the work done with parents (and often children) during and after the advent of a new baby in the family. It is always a period of expectancy, a new beginning, and a time for change that will skill, can be used to encourage a measure of progress for all members. Both the family and the community seem to accept, with equanimity, the nurse's presence and her continuity of contact during this period as being natural. It is perhaps within this framework of acceptance that she can best play her role as one of the team of workers needed to help both the family and the person with a drinker. In just such a contact, a public health nurse visiting in Mrs. Y whose drinking habits she knew of, but had never mentioned, noted her confused state and quietly said "I think you are having trouble. Could I help you?" — and the reply "I am having a lot of trouble. Can I talk to you about it?" led to hospitalization and treatment.

In her daily contacts with the members of a family in a city or rural area, the public health nurse not only sees their difficulties as they attempt to cope with life but her function, as the health counsellor, is to help them to cope with living; and when serious difficulties arise to meet them, or to seek other assistance. Continuity has often been the key to helping the family to understand, and sometimes to eliminate, the reasons for and the emotional problem that is interfering with the progress of a child in school. The following case is an example of this:

The M family's young child John was having problems in school that persisted in spite of his attendance at a mental health clinic. After several visits, Mrs. M said, "John's problem is his father's drinking." She accepted a visit to the wives group at the Addiction Research Foundation where she received counselling and support, and she has gradually learned to cope with her husband's problem and her own difficulties. The public health nurse was also able to help Mrs. M accept assistance from Alcoholics Anonymous.

PREVENTION BEGINS WITH EDUCATION

Health work with adolescents in secondary schools has long proved a productive area for preventive work. As the leaders and parents of tomorrow, adolescents need to be helped to cope with life today. In a counselling interview related to health and concern about achievement, the overtones of family life can frequently be heard; and the answer to the problem found in the home.

Mrs. Z's desperate appeal to the public health nurse for help with her husband's drinking problem also uncovered the fact that "only she and her children get home every night of his heavy drinking late at night, before retiring". In subsequent visits, in which she felt she had done all the wrong things," Mrs Z accepted the idea of attending the Addiction Research Foundation Clinic where a social worker guided her in her approach to get her husband to seek assistance. Three months later he had made his first appointment.

It may be in these areas of prevention that health workers in the community can contribute; not only to the family of the alcoholic, but to other families and individuals who, with a better understanding of how to cope with life's obstacles, may also learn to cope with alcohol itself.

SHARING KNOWLEDGE WITH OTHERS

There are many gaps in the health work with families that can only be bridged by the skills of others in related fields — the family physician and the psychiatrist, the social worker, teachers and others. Perhaps the reverse is also true: the public health nurse can fill the gap unfilled by other disciplines so that the needs of people will be met.

If public health nurses are to work with some measure of success with the family of the alcoholic, and to see the opportunity for preventive in those areas of their work, then they have an urgent need for current knowledge in this field, for the findings of research workers and other specialists who work more directly with patients and their families in research centres and clinics. They will need to understand and accept the drinking patterns that are part of custom in many cultures. Most important of all, each public health nurse must understand her own feelings about alcohol and its possible consequences.

In January of 1962, the staff of the Public Health Nursing Branch, Ontario Department of Health, was invited to meet with the staff of the Addiction Research Foundation Clinic in Toronto. It is mainly due to this opportunity to understand each other's function that public health nurse supervisors and staff nurses have begun seriously to consider what their role might be in the work with the family of the alcoholic.

An old Chinese proverb says "a miles journey with the first step." Public health nurses are taking that first step.

STRATEGIC ROLE SEEN FOR CLERGY IN HELPING ALCOHOLICS AND FAMILIES

By Irving Babow, Ph.D.

That the clergyman may have a strategic role to play in helping alcoholics is accepted by many. Some of the reasons supporting this direction are these:

(1) There is an increasing emphasis in public health programs for alcoholism control on family-centred and community-centred approaches.

(2) It is acknowledged that there is therapeutic importance in initiating and maintaining appropriate interpersonal relations with the alcoholic and his family.

(3) There is a shortage of professional manpower that is oriented to work with alcoholics and their families; community psychiatric resources are limited and have long waiting lists; and many troubled families are unable to pay the fees of psychiatrists and psychologists in private practice.

42 PERCENT TO CLERGY

(4) There is evidence that a substantial proportion of the public feels that a clergyman is the logical person to go for help with emotional and mental problems. (The Joint Commission on Mental Illness and Health reported in its survey of a representative national sample of the non-institutional, "normal" adult U.S. population that 23 percent of adult Americans have at some time in their lives experienced a serious mental health problem. Fourteen percent went to a clergyman, 29 percent to a non-psychiatric medical doctor, 18 percent to a psychiatrist or psychologist, and 10 percent to a social agency specializing in psychological or emotional problems.)

All of this suggests that members of the clergy may have an opportunity to reach families with an alcoholic problem. The hope is that the lead people so strategically placed will be able to help at an early stage before serious mental and physical damage has occurred and while preventive measures can still be taken.

In Belleville a group of Al-Anon meets on alternate Tuesdays at Tabernacle United Church. This is a non-denominational group for wives of alcoholics themselves, but who have this problem in their homes. They publish a weekly booklet which has proved helpful to many. There are also groups in the district at Trenton, Brighton, Read, Picton and Napanee.

The primary aim of Al-Anon is to help the relatives gain greater happiness by the removal of harmful attitudes such as resentment, self-pity, fear and despair.

Two books will be available soon at the two libraries in Belleville, "Living with an alcoholic" and "Alcoholics Anonymous."

For those requiring assistance, the telephone number in Belleville is WO6-6928 and in Trenton EX2-8190, or write Al-Anon Family Group, Box 164, Belleville.

Pioneer Girls Enjoy Dinner Western Style

An enjoyable time was spent recently when 45 Colonists of the Pioneer Girls, their fathers and the Colonist guides met in the lower auditorium of the Alliance Church for a "chuck-wagon dinner".

A typical western setting was depicted by a wagon, several leather saddles, western hats and chuckwagon lamps. Sketches of horses and western figures decorated the walls. The tables were attractively decorated with plaid cloths and hurricane lamps.

After the guests were seated at the tables, Mr. W. Rodberg led in prayer. Miss D. Alyea, chief guide of the Colonist division, introduced the guests at the head table and acted as chairman for the evening. Following the delicious meal, Mrs. D. Fenton led the group in a sing-song which was much enjoyed by all. The Pioneer Girls presented a special program for their fathers.

BADGES AND AWARDS

Over 40 badges and awards were presented to the girls for achievements done during the year. These were presented by the guides — Miss D. Alyea, Mrs. C. Fenton, Mrs. J. Large and Mrs. A. Whitmore.

Mrs. Sackville Palmer, committee chairman, expressed appreciation to the guides for their work and presented them with the badges they had earned during the year. Appreciation was also expressed to Mrs. J. Normington and to Mr. J. Large who were in charge of the decorations for the banquet.

The speaker for the evening was Mr. Angus Hannah, who brought a challenging message on the responsibility of Christian parents and closed his remarks by quoting the Scripture, "As for me and my house, we will serve the Lord".

Mrs. W. Leonard, Mrs. K. Thompson, Miss H. Dyck and Mrs. J. Chumbley were the supper conveners and the young people of the church assisted in the serving.

In-Laws Haunt Couple's Home — Privacy Needed

DORIS CLARK — Last year my mother-in-law got diabetes and they moved in next to us. Either he or she comes over every night as soon as my husband comes home. They are cranky and fault-finding.

Our friends don't like to find them here all the time so they hardly ever come any more. My husband and I never have any time to ourselves. Am I just being selfish? — WANTS PRIVACY.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR WANTS — No, indeed. Privacy is precious. This could worsen until it means an open break.

Talk it out thoroughly with your husband. Then, together, explore resources for a new life for the in-laws. When they find themselves being invited to a seniors' club or volunteer group, they'll get a new view of their own importance. And you'll get some peace.

DEAR DORIS — I am interested in X-ray technology. I noticed that if you are a bursary student you must sign an agreement to work one month for every month of your training after you have graduated in the hospital you trained in or in another hospital in the same province.

I was wondering if this was also the case when you paid your own way through your course. — WONDERING.

DEAR WONDERING — When your government helps you through, it is apt to claim your trained services for a while. If you find your own fare you have the say about where you go afterwards.

Wife Has Become Bit Fatalistic

MONTREAL (CP)—Mrs. Leo Plouffe is a worried wife. She has good cause.

Her husband, Sgt. Leo Plouffe, is a Montreal police department fingerprint expert whose keen assignments involve dismantling time bombs.

"I have become a bit fatalistic," says the wife who spends a great deal of time to her suburban Montreal basement apartment just waiting for her husband to come home from an assignment.

"I try to accept ahead of time; just accept that there will be a fatal bomb for my husband—saying all the while it won't be this hour. . . ."

Mrs. Plouffe knew when she married the society would be part of her life. But it is only since he completed his studies in technology at the University of Montreal that she has felt the burden of her role. Until that time Sgt. Plouffe was in the morality squad.

Sgt. Plouffe attributes his ability to go back again and again to the inherent dangers of his work to his wife and his faith.

"I'm a guy who believes there's somebody up there," he says. "I lost that faith I wouldn't go back to the bombs —because I am afraid."

He adds: "If I didn't have my wife, I wouldn't have survived."

Corned Beef Is Good in Casserole

by Mary Moore

It cheers me when I have a recipe like the following Corned Beef au Gratin for I know without any doubt that hundreds of you will try it and like it and file it for reference. I predict that once a month it will be popular.

It is another one of Helen Pollock's generous contributions to this column. She served it for lunch on Saturday when I was there for the week-end before we drove into town to deliver some maple syrup orders.

MONDAY

Dinner Menu

Barbecued Shoulder Pork Chops; Delicate Mashed Turnip or Rosebud Beets; Creamed Peas; Waldorf Salad; Canned Pears; Ginger Snaps; Coffee.

CORNED BEEF AU GRATIN:

2 cups cooked elbow macaroni or noodles (see below), 1 medium onion, chopped, 1 green pepper, chopped (see below), 2 tablespoons butter, margarine or cooking oil, one 12-oz. can corned beef (see below), one 8-oz. can tomato sauce (12c), ¼ cup chili sauce, 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, ½ cup water (or stock), 1 teaspoon prepared mustard, ½ cup grated Cheddar cheese.

Gently saute the chopped onion and green pepper in the butter or margarine or oil until limp but not brown. Break the canned corned beef into small bite-size chunks with a strong fork. Add to pan with onion and green pepper. Also add tomato and chili and Worcestershire sauce, water and mustard. Gently heat through. Arrange the cooked noodles or macaroni in bottom of greased casserole. Pour over mixture evenly over. Sprinkle the cheese evenly over the top. Bake 30 minutes at 320 deg. Fahr.

NOTES:

1) Helen freezes anything that is freezable and simply went to her freezer and found the cooked elbow macaroni in a plastic bag, measured 2 cups and used it for this casserole. 2) Helen freezes green peppers from her vegetable garden by just washing, drying and cutting them in halves and removing seeds. When perfectly dry she puts them in plastic freezer bags, fastens tops with wire tape and they are ready all winter for her green pepper needs. 3) Helen prefers North American packed corned beef but says Argentina pack will do too.

With the above luncheon casserole Helen served for dessert these simple

RHUBARB PUFFS

(will freeze):

¾ cup sugar, ½ cup water, 5 tablespoons shortening, 1 egg, 2 cups sifted all-purpose flour, 4 teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 cup finely chopped fresh rhubarb (or fresh frozen and thawed).

Mix in bowl in order given and beat by hand to mix well. Turn into well-greased custard cups (or muffin tins) and bake 25 minutes at 400 deg. Fahr. Serve with pouring cream.

READERS ATTENTION PLEASE:

When you read this I will be on vacation in the North with Pete and Margy and their children for 2 weeks. Would you please delay writing to me for 10 or 12 days? Then you can start writing again full steam ahead.

Turn Rejected Girls Into Splendid Brides

VANCOUVER (CP)—An interdenominational Christian mission in India is turning rejected girls into sought-after brides.

It was the Bhoby and Mosen custom of arranged marriages and finds the system works "surprisingly well."

The story of the Ramabai Mukti Mission in India's Poona district near Bombay is told by Lillian Doerksen of Vancouver, who spent 4½ years as a teacher at the mission.

Poor Hindu women abandon girl children if they can't support them, she says. Mission workers have found children abandoned in ditches moments after birth, buried alive in shallow graves, thrown on public garbage dumps and left by the side of the road.

The babies are taken to the mission, which gives medical aid and sanctuary to 750 to 800 girl orphans and Indian widows. The orphans are given elementary and sometimes high school and university education.

ARE IN DEMAND

"Our girls are much in demand as wives. Unlike most Indian girls, they are educated, and educated Indian men now are looking for wives who are the same literacy skills they do."

The mission arranges marriages. In keeping with local custom, in order to ensure the girls gain security.

"They work out surprisingly well. In India, every well-brought-up girl has her marriage arranged for her."

Men seeking wives must fill in a form giving age, employment and family background.

"We screen them carefully. References are asked for, and the boy, like the girl, must be of the Christian faith."

Girls Build Library for Tanganyika

MONTREAL (CP) — Girls from four Montreal colleges are building a library of English-language books for a girl's school in Tanganyika.

The African school, Rosary College, at Mwanza on the shores of Lake Victoria, offers a full secondary course, modelled on the British educational system, with the possibility of students going on to college in universities. Direction there is under the guidance of the American Maryknoll sisters with the assistance of a number of lay teachers.

The Montreal girls—from the colleges of Marianopolis, Macdonald, Loyola, Marymount and Jesus-Marie—decided on this project after they learned of the work of Canadian lady students from Sainte Marie College at Kamogun and Mpwapwa, where a building project has been undertaken.

Among the girls involved in the project here will go to Tanganyika to help organize the library, arriving there during the 10-weeks stay, students from the Tanganyika school will take over the library.

The books collected, mostly textbooks printed after 1958, cover varying subjects from history to home economics. Plays, novels, encyclopedias, books on art and travel, are still being sought.

To prepare for their trip, the Montreal girls are being taught Swahili, the most widely spoken language of East Africa, under the direction of Sister Jeanne-Mance of the White Sisters of Africa who spent eight years working in that continent.

The Rosary College students have written for the help offered them through the project—on collecting material from the various parts of Tanganyika as the girls can set up an African ethnological museum in Montreal.

'Mr. and Mrs.' Tournament Won by The Townsons'

The Bay of Quinte Country Club got off to a splendid seasonal start yesterday with a highly successful annual "Mr. and Mrs. Tournament."

Despite some last-minute cancellations, a field of a near-record thirty couples teed off in quest for the handsome Wilson Concrete Trophy.

Near-perfect weather and a course in splendid shape produced some highly competitive matches, close scores and fine play featuring the tournament.

Play was very close on the back nine with the lead changing hands more than once.

The low net score decided the championship and this was won by Mr. and Mrs. Allan Townson with a score of 70.

Close on their heels were Mr. and Mrs. Val Smith, veteran Quinte golfers with a 72. In third place finished Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Ketcheson.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Kempster of the Trenton RCAF Club were fourth with Mr. and Mrs. B. Mack of the Trenton Golf Club finishing in fifth position.

Quinte golfers took four of the first five low gross scores with Mr. and Mrs. Alex Ingram leading the field with an 84.

Mr. and Mrs. Mac White carded an 86 to take second place with Mr. and Mrs. Phil Coathup of Napanee next.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Acton came in fourth with Dr. and Mrs. Earla MacDonald finishing next.

President George O'Brien was in the chair for the delectable post-tournament dinner. Bowman, Mr. and Mrs. Dan Cowley and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Fisher.

Mr. Pete Acton of the Wilson Concrete Company, presented the handsome trophy bearing the firm's name to the winning Mr. and Mrs. Townson.

Messrs. Bowerman, Cowley and Fisher took over the presentation duties in post-dinner ceremonies. The prizes were lavish to say the least. A number of "lucky" members won handsome valuable door prizes.

With president and Mrs. O'Brien at the head table were vice-president Everett Fairman and ladies' division president, Mrs. Fairman, and members of the tournament committee.

HATS AND HAIR STYLES

Hats were once worn to proclaim the social status of the wearer. The correct hat is the accessory of the clown, the mark of the scholar and the cowboy's badge of office. In some parts of Europe, married women wear their hair and headdress in a different style than do the unmarried women.

A hat can be young, old, distinguished, coy, elegant, trimprim or casual, just by its color, characteristic design of material used to fashion it. An effective optical illusion can be gained by the selection of a hue one for the short woman. A hat with a slanted brim can smooth out facial features that are too prominent. And one in a becoming shade can bring out the lustre in color of the wearer's eyes. Finally, the right hat can accent the total effect of a costume.

The creative milliner first imagines a shape, then the material of his trade, such as straw felt, fabric or fur. The shape popular must have a block over which the material is draped and stretched. Then it is pressed, steamed and shaped. In expensive hats, this process is lengthy and done by hand. In cheaper hats, the details are handstitched and trims are put on by hand, if this shape proves popular, it is then stapled into the cheaper price points and short cuts are taken to allow for a reduced price.

NEW HAIR STYLES

Unless the cap hair style (i.e. smooth, cropped short) is accepted this fall, it is doubtful if hats will sell readily. Many women are still reluctant to give up their teased and puffed hair, although the recent cover of a leading magazine for women featured a picture of a young woman wearing this new, plain fashion.

Her hair is parted at one side, cut to fall midway between the ear and the base of the neck and the crown of the head is smooth. She looked wonderfully natural.

It has been rumored that some hair stylists are fighting this new look as they suspect that their customers will find them so easy to care for that they will no longer need professional aid. This is nonsense, of course. Just because this new, simple elegance looks casual, it does not mean it can be achieved with a few pins and a brush, at least by the average woman. Besides, a home-made haircut still looks like a back job.

The milliners are actively working for total acceptance of this new look, so as to give their business a boost. We will then be able to wear hats comfortably.

If you have a question on fashion just write Pegg Rogers in care of this paper.

MAIL CALL

QUESTION: Since it's always so difficult to get guests to make the first move to help themselves at a buffet, I wonder if it would be permissible for the host to lead the procession and help himself first, to get the others to follow suit. For some reason, guests tend to hold back and let the other fellow go first. I figure that if it's the host, others will more readily dig in. What do you think?

Mrs. R. R., Baltimore, Md.

ANSWER: If the host is busy filling his own plate, it will keep him from performing other duties, like pouring wine or helping some of the ladies. It's usually quite simple to get people started by leading one or two guests to the table and handing them plates. The others generally follow along, once they see the first few busy at the table.

WOOLWORTH'S DOWNTOWN

Nothing in Birth Foretold Events of Later Years

FOGO, Nfld. (CP) — There was nothing about the birth of Nancy Coughlan at nearby Dog Bay in 1773 that foretold she would grow up with royalty, see her portrait hung in the Palace of Versailles and lead a life of excitement and intrigue.

Her mother, Nancy Simms, was unmarried, although this was socially acceptable in a place where a clergyman might not be seen for years.

Jeremiah Coughlan, an English naval officer at Fogo, promised to marry Nancy Simms at the first opportunity. Coughlan followed the usual custom of English officers and returned to England for the winter, leaving his unwed wife with her parents.

When he returned in the spring to learn he was a father he took Nancy and "Little Nancy," as the baby was known, into his house, promising they would return to England in the fall and be married.

It was two years before Coughlan found it convenient to go back to England. There is no record that he ever took the trouble to get married, and eventually Nancy took up needlework in a small English town to support herself and the child.

SPY TO FRANCE

The Duke of Orleans, a French nobleman who had put his children into the care of one Madame de Genlis to be educated, wrote to a friend in London asking him to send to France a little six-year-old English girl. She was to become a companion for his children.

The duke's friend happened to see little Nancy and persuaded her mother to let her go.

Madame de Genlis took to the little girl immediately and renamed her Pamela. Later she paid Pamela's mother £28 to allow her to adopt the child.

The girl was educated with the royal children at Belle Chasse and grew into a graceful young woman.

The duke had a family portrait painted which included Pamela. It was hung at Versailles.

When the revolution broke out, Madame de Genlis fled to England with her charges.

Pamela met Lord Edward Fitzgerald of Kildare, an Irish poet, while in London and they were married a month later. The couple moved to the Fitzgerald ancestral home in Dublin and briefly Pamela experienced the only domestic bliss she was fated to enjoy.

FOUGHT BRITISH

Irish nationalism was soon embroiled in Ireland's revolutionary struggle against the British. A warrant was issued for Fitzgerald's arrest and he learned about in disguise. Later he went into hiding but was discovered by the British agents. Mortally wounded, he made his way to his castle and died in Pamela's arms.

Pamela was the sole beneficiary of her husband's estate and financially independent, left for Germany where, in 1800, she met and married an American named Pitcairn.

They were divorced and she went to France, hoping to become reunited with the French nobility who had been her childhood companions. Disappointed, she took up residence in a convent and died in 1831 at the age of 58.

She was not entirely forgotten in Fogo. Her cousin, Harry Simms, told her story to a schoolteacher here in 1884. Since then she has become part of the folklore of this little island off Newfoundland's northeast coast.

Big Turnout Expected in Sask. Byelection

SASKATOON (CP)—Vigorous campaigning, two prominent candidates and a parade of political bigwigs from Ottawa were expected to contribute to a large turnout in today's federal byelection in Saskatoon riding.

Three candidates are contesting the seat left vacant by the death of Harry Jones, Progressive Conservative member since 1957.

They are Mrs. Blodie Jones, 46 widow of Mr. Jones, for the Conservatives, Odd Buckwold, 47, Liberal and former Saskatoon mayor, and Jim Harding, 23, a university student representing the New Democratic Party.

A total of 37,429 residents were eligible to vote between 8 a.m and 7 p.m. MST.

Mr. Buckwold trailed Mr. Jones by more than 12,000 votes last year when all 17 Saskatchewan ridings were won by the Conservatives in the federal general election. DNP candidate Ed Mahood ran third.

Mr. Jones received 26,237 votes, Mr. Buckwold 13,490, Mr. Mahood 1,882 and the Social Credit candidate 1,324.

OFFERS CABINET JOB

Prime Minister Pearson has promised Mr. Buckwold a cabinet portfolio if he is elected, a move the Conservatives termed a "bribe" to obtain support for the former mayor.

Mr. Buckwold replied that it would be only natural that he would be given a cabinet post as the only Liberal MP from Saskatchewan.

Mrs. Jones, a psychiatrist making her first bid for election, based much of her campaign on a program of incentives to industry, claiming the Liberal government has introduced restrictive measures which reversed economic development in Canada.

Mr. Harding based much of his campaign on the need for young people to take a more active part in dealing with the problems that confront all age groups.

Among the prominent political figures to speak here during the campaign were Opposition Leader Diefenbaker, NDP Leader T. C. Douglas and Trade Minister Mitchell Sharp.

The Liberals said their biggest fear was that there would be an overwhelming sympathy vote for the widow of the former Conservative member.

Standing in the 265-seat Commons: 94 Liberals 127, Conservatives 96, NDP 17, Social Credit 9. Creditistes 12 and three vacant.

H. W. Warner-of Ottawa, who is well known in Belleville and district, has been elected president of the Sir John A. Macdonald Branch of the United Empire Loyalists' Association of Canada.

Four Are Tied For First Place In Chess Tourney

AMSTERDAM (CP - AP) — Bent Larsen of Denmark and three Soviet players tied for first place Sunday at the end of the 23-round interzonal chess tournament.

Larsen, Boris Spassky and former, world champions Mikhail Tal and Vasily Smyslov qualified along with Boris Ivkov of Yugoslavia for five of the six places open in the eight-man candidates' tournament which will be played in 1965 in Zurich, Switzerland.

The sixth place will be decided in a playoff between Samuel Reshevsky of New York City and Lajos Portisch of Hungary.

Larsen and the top three of the Russians competing here ended the tournament with 17 points out of a possible 23.

The winner of the knock-out candidates' tournament in 1965 will meet world champion Tigran Petrosian of the Soviet Union in 1966 for the title.

Svetozar Gligoric of Yugoslavia defeated Zvonko Vranesic of Toronto in 22 moves in the Sunday game, for a total of 14 points, but a half-point behind Reshevsky and Portisch.

Bulletins From Birdland

By WINIFRED E. WILSON

WOOD PEWEE

Strangely enough, the wood pewee was not so named because of its size. As a matter of fact, although only about the length of a sparrow, there are several smaller members of the family to which it belongs, the flycatchers. The call (or song, if you will) is made up of two phrases, "pee-a-wee" being one used very often, with a two syllabled phrase thrown in every now and then. This song is repeated over and over for three quarters of an hour or so at daylight and again at sunset all through the nesting season.

The same phrase, "pee-a-wee pronounced very slowly and distinctly, may be heard from May to October, off and on all day, in any wooded area in Canada which is supplied with a number of large trees. The plaintive voice may come from a few woods or merely an old orchard.

LOCATE BY EAR

But rarely is the pewee seen until located by the ear, because the voice carries well and the owner is quite inconspicuous — olive brown above and whitish below. Members of this family greatly resemble one another so it is well to remember points of distinction. The pewee has no eye-ring, there are two whitish bars on each wing, and it does not wag its tail. The eastern wood pewee breeds from the Atlantic to Manitoba, and the western variety, much the same as found from there to the Pacific.

Flycatchers do their feeding on the wing, and many of them use much the same method as does the pewee. It has a favorite perch (as we might have a favorite chair), rather high up on some tree, and there it sits waiting for an insect to fly past. Then it dashes off to catch the prey and returns to its lookout.

NEST WELL-PLACED

The nest of a pewee is so placed and decorated that it is difficult to locate even when we know it must be somewhere nearby. Saddled on a horizontal branch some twenty feet up, its exterior is covered with lichens, so that when we look up at the under side we see only a lump of bough. It appears much like an extremely large nest of a hummingbird. The thick-walled cup is quite shallow, made of weed stalks, bits of bark and other fibres, and well lined with plant down. This makes a soft bed for the creamy white eggs so strangely blotched with brown at the big end only.

Ann Landers

Posture Queen Should Relax Shoulders a Bit

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I'm a 15-year-old, hazel-eyed, honey blonde who just happens to measure 40-23-36. I have plenty of boy friends but the girls at school are cold and unfriendly. This really does hurt me, Ann. Besides I get bored with boys all the time.

I asked a very nice girl in my gym class what is the matter with me. She said, "It's the way you walk."

When I was at summer camp a few years ago we practiced walking with books on our heads and now I am in the habit of walking with my head high and my shoulders pulled way back.

I won a posture award at school last year and I am very proud of it. The girl said I walk as if I am advertising myself. She suggested I slouch a little and hold some books or a purse in front of me.

Do you think this girl is right and that she gave me good advice? — LILA.

DEAR LILA — Some of the girls may not like the way you walk, but this is not your real problem. People respond to the way you treat them — this goes for girls as well as boys. If you make a genuine effort to show girls that you are interested in their friendship they will warm up to you.

P.S. — Since you have already won the posture award, Doll, you might relax a little and not pull your shoulders back quite so much.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I have been married for eight years to a man I loved and had faith in. We have three children and want more.

Last month my husband's sister was my closest friend. I feel that she has done me a serious injustice and I'm heartsick. If I am wrong please tell me and I'll try to get over it.

Last week I found a lipstick in my husband's pocket. He confessed that he has been seeing another woman for about six months. His sister has been letting him bring this woman to her home during the afternoon.

Although I am shattered I have forgiven my husband and intend to give him every chance to straighten around. Now, what about my friendship? Am I wrong to feel she was no friend to me? — BONNIE BELLE.

DEAR BONNIE BELLE — By offering your husband the use of her home, your sister-in-law gave an affirmative nod, plus a helping hand, to the whole shoddy business. Tell her how you feel.

DEAR ANN — I am a woman almost 60 and I am tired, tired, tired. My two daughters keep me on the brink of exhaustion.

Last week I had their five children at my house over the weekend. The girls and their husbands went off to play duplicate bridge. The three-year-old got into the kitchen cabinet and cut himself with a butcher knife. I had to rush him to the hospital for stitches. The 7-year-old fell down the stairs and raised a lump on his head the size of a tomato. The others fought with each other constantly.

At least four nights a week I am asked to sit with either one set of grandchildren or the other.

When my daughters entertain they expect me to bake rolls and cakes and pies. I am never invited to their homes as a guest. It's either "Come to sit . . ." or "Come to cook and bake."

My husband gets furious with me because I am an easy mark. What can a mother say? — HELP NEEDED.

DEAR NEEDED — A mother can say, "Your kids are your responsibility, just as you were mine. Please don't invite me to your homes to do your cooking or baking or to sit with your children. When I want to do something for you I will let you know. Thank you very much."

Parents are people — they can be right and they can be wrong. To help understand their viewpoint and to promote harmony at home, write for Ann Landers' booklet, "How To Live With Your Parents," enclosing with your request 20c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) A 36-year-old former mental patient who has been charged with setting fire to a hotel and causing the death of 26 elderly guests took police Sunday through a re-enactment of last Nov. 28. Thomas G. Mack told police he poured gasoline into a section of a wall in the boiler room of the Sgroia Hotel, then dropped a match in the gasoline and fled with the fire "smouldering."

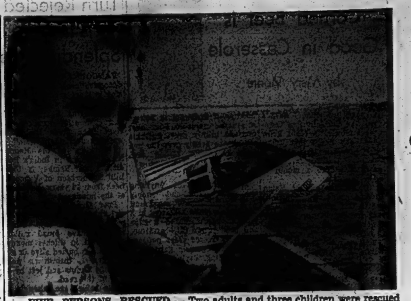
Firemen Busy Around Bay During Weekend

Firemen received a call to the Bay of Quinte Saturday afternoon where a light sea plane was reported to be in difficulty as it attempted a take off from the bay, just out from the OSD.

It was reported that as the plane attempted to lift from the water a wing was caught by a gust of wind. The aircraft went spinning to the water sending up a tremendous spray, but the pilot managed to right his craft and made a sucessful climb into the air.

When the fire department arrived, there was no one in sight.

BOAT CAPSIZES



Shortly after 3.00 p.m. Saturday the department received a second call to the bay off South Foster Avenue where a boat was reported floating upside down in the water.

Firemen lauched their motor boat and proceeded to the capsized boat, while anxious bystanders gazed in wonderment. There was no sign of activity near the boat — just a red lifejacket.

In the meantime however, owner Elmer Thompson of Toronto, brother Lyle and three young boys aged six, eight and ten, had been picked up by another brother Marvin in his boat and taken to shore.

Mr. Thompson said he was some distance out in the bay when he heard something hit the bow of his 15-foot cabin cruiser. "I heard water gushing in so I headed it for shore as fast as I could. I brought it in as far as I could but the motor went under water and then Merv. picked us up in his boat" Mr. Thompson said.

Mr. Thompson's younger brother, Marvin, returned to the scene with his diving equipment. He went below to retrieve the 60-horse-power, motor which enabled easier towing of the craft.

FIVE PERSONS RESCUED — Two adults and three children were rescued Saturday afternoon from this overturned 15-foot cabin cruiser, shown at right being taken in tow by fire department's rescue boat. Seen above towing boat are firemen E. McGrath and R. Reid. Two brothers, Elmer and Lyle Thompson and the three boys were picked up by a brother, Mervin Thompson of Belleville.

DENIES SATURDAY MASS

HAMILTON (CP) — Bishop Joseph F. Ryan of the Roman Catholic diocese of Hamilton denied in a letter to diocesan priests Sunday that the Vatican has approved substituting Saturday mass in place of Sunday under special circumstances. In Toronto, Rev. Bernard O'Keefe of the Catholic Information Centre said Canadian bishops had not been informed of any such Vatican decision.

dissolve Parliament for a new election.

July 18 is the first of the three big mid-month pay days for civil servants. Threatening to stop interim spending authority is a parliamentary game of brinkmanship against such a deadline. While an election is being held, a government can obtain spending authority by governor - general's warrants instead of parliamentary appropriation.

Meanwhile, debate on adoption of the proposed maple leaf flag stands adjourned. Reverberations from it spilled over into Friday's debate on an amendment to the British North America Act to permit inclusion of survivors for benefits under the proposed Canada Pension Plan. The BNA Act amendment was approved later by the Commons and Senate and sent to London for enactment by the British Parliament.

Some Conservatives are reported so staunch in support of the Canadian Red Ensign that they will use the interim spending bill as a vehicle to extend debate and ward off a return vote, the flag resolution to the Commons floor.

He appeal said he still believes Afro-Asian mediation is possible. He urged Malaysia and Indonesia to settle their dispute peacefully for their own national benefit and to build a bulwark against the expansionist plans of Communist China.

Malaysian and British troops resumed anti guerrilla operations Sunday in the Tebedu area of Sarawak, site of the only operational checkpoint for guerrilla withdrawal.

Reports from Sarawak said only 32 guerrillas were checked out of that Malaysian state by the neutralist Thailand teams sent there as the summit talks opened. Several hundred guerrillas are believed operating in Malaysian Borneo.

The Malaysian Federation, which includes the former British territories of Malaya, Singapore, Sarawak and Sabah, has a population of some 10,000,000 to Indonesia's more than 100,000,000. But the British, Australians and New Zealanders are pledged to defend their Asian Commonwealth partner.

Prime Minister Keith J. RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

That was the weekend that was!

It was one of those weekends where everybody and everything did what was expected of them.

Locally, I would say, the sports highlight was the appointment of John Lewis to Canada's Olympic weightlifting team. John received the honor following the Olympics trials held in Ottawa on Saturday. More about John on another page.

It was a weekend highlighted with highlights. Major League baseball fans got a happy gift over the perfect game pitched by the Phils' Jim Bunning. It was the first perfect twirling job, I believe, since the masterpiece tossed by the Yankees' Don Larsen in the New York subway series of 1957.

And the weatherman tossed a nice breezy bouquet the way of the Bay of Quinte Yacht Squadron on the occasion of the annual sail-past on Saturday afternoon.

It was made to order for the sail boys. And the turnout was a distinct tribute to the club's popular Commodore Orland Pinkston, who with Mrs. Pinkston, and John and Mrs. Luscombe took the salute aboard the official barge "Pink Lady."

Led by the beautiful "North Star" and heeling to a thirty-miles-an-hour breeze ten proud "white-wings" headed some 30 equally proud motor-powered craft past the saluting barge.

Aboard the "North Star" was owner Vice-Commomodor Ian Morch and Mrs. Morch, with Rear-Commodore Dr. Harold Craig and Mrs. Craig.

The power squadron was led by ex-Commodore Ernie Colbourne. Landlobbers were treated to an unusual colorful sight.

"It was," commented Commodore Pinkston later, "one of the most successful sail-pasts in the history of the yacht club. The large number of boats which turned out—and their crews—were exceptionally well-dressed. The Yacht Club should be—as I am—proud of Saturday's sail-past."

Commodore and Mrs. Pinkston headed a reception line later in the well-appointed clubhouse where some 150 members and guests enjoyed a delectable buffet dinner.

I was the guest of the inimitable "Stu" McDougall aboard his well-appointed cabin cruiser "Mabel E." And aboard were Mr. and Mrs. Don MacKinnon, perhaps the most efficient fishing couple in the city. And I found out from Mrs. MacKinnon just who is the better fisherman. For your information it "ain't" Don.

As in other sports fields, as if you didn't already know, "Northern Dancer" didn't let the news media down and romped home ahead of the Queen's Plate field by seven lengths. The "Brother-I-can-pay-a-dime" Taylor entry lived up to all advance notices at the prescribed mileage.

I don't know the calibre of the New York-Ontario Baseball League, but the Brockville Beavers, rated one of that loop's best, seem to have trouble whipping stories of the Eastern Ontario Baseball Association junior clubs.

Our Joyces have beaten them twice by convincing scores, the latest coming Saturday when they walloped the down-casters by a big score in a wide-open free-hitting game.

And Golf Club president George O'Brien got the Country Club off to a splendid tournament start with a highly successful "Mr. and Mrs." tourney yesterday. Some sixty couples took part in highly competitive play and the lucky go to Mr. and Mrs. Steve Bowerman, Mr. and Mrs. Dan Cowley and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Fisher for a fine job well done.

Break Record In Le Mans

LE MANS, France (AP)—Jean Guichet of France and Nino Vaccarella of Italy drove a Ferrari prototype to victory in the Le Mans 24-hour endurance auto race Sunday, shattering the record for speed and distance covered.

Guichet and Vaccarella covered the 2,904 miles at an average 121.35 miles an hour, unofficial calculations showed.

The old record for distance was 2,822 miles at an average of 117.84 mph, set by Ludovico Scarfiotti and Lorenzo Bandini of Italy in a Ferrari last year.

The race was marred by a two-car accident that took the lives of three spectators.

The victims, part of a crowd estimated at 300,000, were cut down by flying debris from the impact of a collision between a Cobra driven by Britain's Peter Bolton and a Ferrari handled by Umberto Maglioli of Italy.

Neither driver was seriously hurt.

Finishing in second place five laps behind the winners was the Ferrari driven by Joachim Bonnier of Sweden and Graham Hill of Britain. Ten laps behind them in third place was the Ferrari driven by John Surtees of Britain and Lorenzo Bandini of Italy.

This was the fifth straight Ferrari victory at Le Mans, but it failed to match last year's amazing triumph in which Ferrari took the first six places. This time Ferrari took the first three places.

An anticipated duel between Ford and Ferrari collapsed with the race little more than 12 hours old as the three Ford experimental cars dropped out with mechanical mishaps. Before his Ford gave out, however, Phil Hill of Santa Monica, Calif., set a new lap record.

Hill covered the tricky, twisting 8.3-mile course in three minutes, 49.2 seconds for an average of 131 mph. The old record of 2:53.3 and an average of 128.8 was set last year by John Surtees of Britain in a Ferrari.

A Ford-powered Cobra, built by Carroll Shelby of Venice, Calif., took fourth place.

Jim Bunning Pitches Perfect Game

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

New York Met fans thought they'd seen it all. Marvelous Mary Throneberry, a 32-inning doubleheader, you name it—until a slim, sidewinder from Southgate, Ky., came along and treated the new breed to the sweetest sight of all—perfection.

And, as Jim Bunning of Philadelphia Phillies set down Met after Met in the first flawless pitching performance in modern National League history—a 6-0, no - hit, no - base - runner masterpiece in the first game of a Sunday doubleheader — the Shea Stadium faithful were caught up in the wonder of it all.

They forgot to root for the home team.

The fans were with Bunning all the way and the 32-year-old right-hander, a National League newcomer after nine years with Detroit Tigers, didn't let them down. Pinpointing an assortment of curve balls and sliders, he retired each of the 27 batters he faced, a feat last accomplished by Don Larsen of New York Yankees in a 1956 World Series game.

Charlie Robertson pitched a regular season perfect game for Chicago White Sox in 1922. Harvey Haddix of Pittsburgh Pirates hurled 12 perfect innings against Milwauke Braves in 1959 but lost the game 1-0 on a 13th - inning hit. A National League pitcher hadn't won a perfect game since 1880.

WINS BOTH LEAGUES

Bunning also became the first to win no-hitters in each league, having blanked Boston Red Sox in 1958 for the Tigers.

The Mets found a place in the record book, too. Their three hits in the nightcap, won by the Phils 8-2, tied the low hit total for a doubleheader.

While Bunning was spinning his gem for the league-leading Phillies, the rest of the league went about its business with surprising, though less spectacular, results.

Houston Colts climbed into seventh place and sent Milwaukee reeling to ninth with 9-3 and 5-2 victories over the Braves. Chicago Cubs swept a twin bill from Pittsburgh 2-1 and 7-2. Los Angeles Dodgers split with Cincinnati Reds, winning 4-3 and losing 2-1. San Francisco Giants trimmed St. Louis Cardinals 7-3 in a single game.

In Saturday's game the Mets tripped the Phillies 7-3, the Giants bumbled the Cardinals 14-5, Pittsburgh blanked the Cubs 2-0, Houston edged Milwaukee 3 - 2 and Cincinnati downed the Dodgers 8-4.

WAS AWARE OF IT

Bunning was as much aware of the imminent no-hitter as the father's Day crowd of 22,026, which included his wife Mary and 13-year-old daughter Barbara, the oldest of seven children.

"You always start to think about it after the fifth inning," he said after it was over. "I don't believe in jinxes."

"He talked about it on the bench," said battery-mate Gus Triandos. "I'd never seen him so gabby. He must have felt something coming on."

So did Mrs. Bunning. "I was so nervous," she said, "that I lost my sunglasses twice."

Bunning—and everyone else—credited Phils' second baseman Tony Taylor with the game's fielding gem. Taylor dove to stop Jesse Gonder's fifth inning bid in the hole and threw Gonder out from a kneeling position.

Otherwise, it was all Bunning. He doubled home a pair of runs. He struck out 10 and went to three balls on only two batters. Philadelphia outfielders made four putouts.

CROWD ROARS

The crowd roared with every delivery as he got Charlie Smith leading off the ninth, on a foul pop-up. He fanned pinch hitter George Altman, went to a 2-2 count on pinch swinger John Stephenson and struck him out on a curve ball.

Elsewhere, Rusty Staub went on a four-hit, two-homer spree for Houston against Warren Spahn and two successors in the opener with Milwaukee. Second-game homers by winning pitcher Ken Johnson and Joe Gaines helped the Colts sweep the four-game set.

Larry Jackso pitched a three - hitter, retiring the last 22 Pirates in order, and drove in both Chicago runs in the opener. Lew Burdette allowed five hits through seven innings in the second game before yielding to Lindy McDaniel.

Sandy Koufax became the second no pitcher to win 10 games, checking Cincinnati in the first game with the help of Frank Howard, who drove in two runs with a single and his 15th homer. Vada Pinson doubled and Deron Johnson homered in the first-inning of the nightcap for the Reds' margin.

Hal Lanier, son of the former NL pitcher, collected four of San Francisco's 13 hits, including his first major league homer. Willie Mays followed the rookie's shot with his 22nd circuit.

Bill Bateman Vice-President Of B. P. A. O.

KITCHENER (CP)—Carl Malcolmson of Hamilton was named president of the Bowling Proprietors Association of Ontario at its annual meeting during the weekend. He succeeds John Martin of Toronto.

Elected to the four positions of vice-president were Bill Mattis of St. Thomas, Gord Ridgewell of London, Bill Bateman of Belleville and Ken Hulford of Acton.

The Trots

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Dolly Dale B, owned and driven by Fred Belore of Salford, Ont., paced the fastest mile of the season to win the featured mile race for a purse of $1,200 at Western Fair Raceway Saturday.

Sixth choice in the seven-horse field, Dally Dale B paced the mile in 2:05. The time was a lifetime record for the six-year-old mare by Joe Dale-Belva Hal.

Dolly Dale B returned $25.70 for a $2 win ticket.

Ralph Roy, 25, of Sudbury, dominated the Canadian lightweight clean and jerk lift when he hoisted a total of 299½ pounds. The existing record was 296¼ pounds.

Choose a pipe with a bowl wall at least ¼" thick. (The thicker the wall, the cooler the smoke.)

Fill it bit by bit and tamp down lightly. (Make sure it draws easily before you light up.)

Wait until the match tip burns off. (So you won't inhale acrid sulphur fumes.)

Insert a pipe cleaner after smoking. (Helps to keep it dry and sweet-smoking.)

Dancer Romps To Victory

Langcrest Second

By GERRY GLADMAN

TORONTO (CP) — The only mild disappointment in Saturday's 100th running of the Queen's Plate was Northern Dancer's failure to set a record in giving millionaire industrialist E. P. Taylor his ninth plate triumph in 16 years.

However, neither Taylor nor trainer Horatio Luro were concerned about the record for the 1¼-mile race following the Dancer's 7½-length victory over a field of horses that just didn't belong in the same class.

"We're not interested in breaking records," said the top-hatted Taylor after accepting the Queen's $2 guineas and a $5 000 gold cup from Hon. Earl Rowe, Ontario lieutenant-governor. "We're just interested in winning races."

Luro, the suave Argentinian, added: "If the boy (Jockey Bill Hartack) had pushed him hard the horse would have equalled the record."

Even so the Dancer, a top contender for horse of the year in the United States, came close. He was only one-fifth of a second off the 1-3-6 record at Woodbine track set by Taylor's Victoria Park in 1960.

LANGCREST SECOND

Langcrest, a 50 - to - 1 shot owned by S. James Lacgill of Montreal, never was worse than second and finished 4½ lengths in front of Grand Garcon, owned by Frank Sherman of Hamilton.

Return Trip, from the Max Bell Golden Rail Farms of Calgary, was fourth, two lengths ahead of disappointing second choice Victory Ville, owned by Louis Levesque of Montreal.

The others, in order of finish: Later Ann Lilly in the race, owned by Wilf Parr of Weston, Ont.; Top Ruler, from the Clan Carmichael stable of Toronto; and All Seasons, owned by Larry McGuiness of Toronto.

"It was very easy," said Hartack as he dismounted in the winner's circle.

But there were many in the record 31,226 and others watching on television who didn't share Hartack's confidence as the half-mile pole the Dancer trailed the field.

KEPT CLEAR

Hartack, who piloted the diminutive colt to victory in the Kentucky Derby and Preakness Stakes and who could do no better than third in his bid for the triple crown at the Belmont Stakes, was under instructions to keep clear on the outside at the ¾ pole.

"After that he was told to use his own judgment," said Luro.

Every time Hartack tried to go to the outside there was a horse beside him and he was forced to drop back in order to make his move. This gave many a few anxious moments as the 1-to-9 choice appeared as if he might have trouble 'catching' the rest of the field.

However, these doubts were removed as Hartack let his horse go at the three-quarter pole. The Dancer took off and was all over at the rails with the Taylor colt leading Langcrest by one-half length.

In the stretch he started to gallop and increased the margin to four lengths. Even then Hartack refused to let his horse all out.

WAR SUPERIOR

"I didn't ride him out because I didn't have to," said the jockey. "He is far superior to the others in the field."

Taylor told reporters: "I knew the horse and I wasn't too concerned early in the race, but I was glad to see him make his move. I thought he would make it sooner."

It marked the sixth time since 1957 that Taylor has won the 50 guineas with horses passed up at his yearling sales. Taylor was also with the son of Nearctic out of Natalma when Northern Dancer was passed up at $25,000 in 1962 because of his small size.

The other rejects were Lyford Cay in 1957, New Providence in 1959, Victoria Park in 1960, the filly Flaming Page in 1962 and Canadore in 1963.

The win was the Dancer's 14th in 18 outings and the first-place prize of $46,075 brought his total earnings to $580,647.

Read Defeats Foxboro 18-5

With one player driving in exactly half of the winners' run total, Read trounced Foxboro by an 18-5 count in a South Hastings Baseball League tilt on the weekend.

Read's Gerald Brennan pounded out two grand-slam home runs and also drove in another, giving him a total of nine runs-batted-in for the contest.

Percy Milligan pitched the victory, scattering half a dozen hits. He struck out three and walked four.

Keith Dickey was the losing moundsman. He gave up ten hits, whiffed four and hurt his own cause walking 13 batters.

Aiding Brennan in the hit department for Read were Pat Stafford, Carm Milligan, back with a pair of safeties.

Turcott was the pick of the losers with two Foxboro safeties.

Weslock Wins Tournament

HAMILTON (CP)—Nick Weslock of Toronto finished strongly to win the annual Adam Brown golf tournament Saturday with a three-under-par 69.

Weslock finished two strokes ahead of Greg Patterson, of Mount Hope.

Last year's winner, Andy Ballachey of the N.Y. Rovers of Hockey League Toronto Maple Leafs finished in a tie for third with a 74 with Paul Williams of Burlington.

Tied For Second

Tweed Trims Trudeau 9-2

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff -Sportswriter

TWEED — Making the most of a golden opportunity, Tweed Lumbanks climbed into a tie for second place in the B. and D. softball league standing here last night by dumping a makeshift Trudeau Motors squad 9-2.

The defeat prevented Trudeaus from tying Trenton at the top of the standing and allowed Tweed to catch the losers two points off Trenton's pace.

Ellis Gignac met the Lombanks on a 6.45 tilt here tonight.

Trudeaus found themselves with eight players and not a pitcher among them at game time last night and an angry Manager Harold Reid was prepared to forfeit the game to Tweed. The Lombank club told Reid that they would give him permission to play, promising not to protest, rather than to forfeit the decision before their largest crowd of the season.

Reid finally agreed to play and the winners of some years back took over at first base, sending second-baseman Bill McGuire to the pitching mound.

McGuire, who also pitched one game and won it last season was not so fortunate this time. He was combed for 10 hits, issued 10 walks and his mates committed six errors in all. Tweed scored one run in the third, four in the fourth and a final four in the seventh.

Richard Morton made his seasonal debut on the Tweed hilltop, stopping Trudeaus on four hits, striking out eight and walking four.

Gorr's double and sacrifices by Carleton and T. LeSage, two errors and D. LeSage's long single made it 5-0.

Trudeau's bagged their pair in the fifth on a walk, a two-base hitting error on Locke's bunt single and Ab Wright's long fly ball.

McGuire's trouble stemmed from four walks in the seventh, mixed in with a costly error and a long ground-rule double by Gray which took one hop over the right field fence with the bases loaded. Trudeaus prevented a higher score in the eighth, getting an odd double play after Gorr's single when two Tweed runners ended up on third base.

Jim Gray, with two doubles and Gary Gorr, with a double and single, paced the winners. Don Cotton, Bert Sherry, Ray LeSage, Don LeSage, Lorne Carleton and Terry LeSage also hit safely.

Bert Faulkner had two of the Trudeau safeties. Bill McGuire and Rick Locke one apiece.

Game Awarded To Barriages

Barriage Landscapers share top spot with Lightfoots and City Hotel in the Comercial Softball League standings today after being awarded a 9-0 default victory over the Tw-Haar Dashers last night.

Tw-Haar started the game with 10 players but made one lineup change early in the contest. They fell behind by a 6-3 score by the fourth inning and when catcher Gary Little was tossed out of the game, the Dashers were left with only eight players.

Plate umpire Bruce Nickie then awarded the 9-0 win to Barriages. Harold Bawden was the base umpire.

The game was one that had been rained out last Monday night.

Pitching—Jim Bunning, Philadelphia, pitched a perfect game, retiring all 27 batters he faced, in the Phillies' 6-0 victory over New York Mets in the first game of a doubleheader. Bunning became the first pitcher in modern baseball to pitch without walking batters in both the National and American Leagues and the first in 42 years to hurl a perfect game in regular season play and win.

Batting—Dick Stuart, Boston, belted three hits and drove in four runs, three on a homer, as the Red Sox defeated Baltimore 9-6. The loss helped knock the Orioles out of first place in the American League.

Leafs Split With Jets, Suns Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

TORONTO—Maple Leafs are in fifth place in the International League standings today, but they are only 1½ games behind the pace-setting Jacksonville Suns.

And if the Leafs could find a couple more pitchers like Chi Chi Olivo, the tight five-team race might be another matter.

The 37-year-old relief specialist started his first game of the season Sunday and blanked Columbus Jets 2-0 in the second game of a doubleheader after the Jets took the opener 5-3. The win was Olivo's ninth in a row. It has yet to lose a game.

Elsewhere in the league Sunday, Jacksonville Suns came up with two runs in the bottom of the ninth inning to beat Rochester Red-Wings 7-6 and extend their lead to 1½ games Richmond Virginians split a twin bill with Buffalo losing the first 4-2, but coming back to win the nightcap 8-7 on Buffalo's Rookie winning streak at 11 games. Syracuse Chiefs and Atlanta Crackers also divided a doubleheader, the Chiefs winning the opener 6-4, then dropping a 7-5 decision in the second game that saw the end of Jack McKeon's reign as manager of the last-place Crackers.

McKeon was fired after the second game and replaced by Pete Appleton, a scout for parent Minnesota Twins of the American League. A team official said McKeon would be offered a scouting job with the Twins.

Little Leaguer Dies of Heart Attack

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — An 11-year-old South Bend boy literally played his heart out for his Little League baseball team Saturday.

The youngster, John Metz, fielded a ground ball at first base to make the final putout in a 5-4 victory for his team.

Then he clutched his chest, walked across the field and to his parents, and died in the family car before they could get him to a hospital.

The family physician said the boy had suffered a heart ailment since infancy.

The Metz youngster hit a double with the bases loaded to drive in the three winning runs two innings before his death.

Yankees Sweep Chisox; Take Top

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Bo Belinsky's mouth says he wants to go to Hawaii, but his left arm isn't helping buy the ticket.

The notorious southpaw of Los Angeles Angels came within one out of hurling his first shutout in nearly three years Sunday but had to settle for relief help and a 4-1 triumph over Cleveland Indians.

The victory was Belinsky's third straight, giving him a 5-3 record. He reduced his earned run average to 3.12 while scattering six hits and striking out five.

It was Belinsky's first appearance since the 29-year-old lefty revealed last week that he had asked the Angels' management to return him to Hawaii, where he pitched for the Pacific Coast League club last season.

The pressure of being a star in the big leagues is too much, Belinsky contended, adding:

"I thought I was getting an ulcer. I didn't want to see or talk with anybody. I was living like a hermit."

His request, however, was rejected, and Belinsky, who used to get into trouble because of too much night life, must content himself with pitching for the Angels until he earns his return trip.

The way he's going now, he may have to wait until winter.

In other AL action, New York Yankees romped into first place by sweeping a doubleheader over Chicago White Sox 2-0 and 7-2 in 10 innings. Boston Red Sox downed Baltimore Orioles 9-6, Detroit Tigers defeated the Minnesota Twins 4-2, Kansas City Athletics 13-2 and 8-2.

On Saturday, New Yorkers nipped the White Sox 1-0 in 11 innings, Detroit outslugged Minnesota 9-7, Baltimore clobbered Boston 11 - 5, Kansas City pounded Washington 8-2 and Los Angeles edged Cleveland 3-1.

Belinsky had a four-hit shutout until the Indians got to him for a walk and Max Alvis' only one out remaining in the game. Bob Dullba came on and retired the last batter, preserving the Angels' five-game winning streak.

The Yankees continued their mastery of Chicago, extending their record this season to 9-0 with the White Sox. The double victory moved the Yankees eight percentage points ahead of the Orioles.

Home runs by Elston Howard and Mickey Mantle took care of the opener. New York, however, needed an error by shortstop Al Weis with the bases loaded in the 17th to win the nightcap.

Dick Stuart belted four hits and scored on a wild pitch, and added a homer, as the Red Sox helped dump the Orioles from the top. John Orsino also had two homers for Baltimore.

Dave Wicker ham beat Minnesota for the fourth time with out a defeat this season George Thomas singled across two runs for the Tigers in the first while Bubba Phillips homered in the seventh.

The Senators cooled off the Athletics, winners of eight of their previous nine games. Don Lock drove in five runs with two homers in the opener and Al Koch had three singles to three hits in the nightcap.

SPAIN WINS 2-1

MADRID (AP) — Spain won the European Soccer Cup of Nations by beating Russia 2-1 in the final Sunday. The Russians were defending champions. This was the first time the two national selections had met in soccer, and a record crowd of more than 100,000 turned out.

Win Wide Open Game 14-10
Joyces Whip Brockville

Belleville Joyce Realty scored their runs by batches while outlasting the Brockville Reavers 14-10 in an Eastern Ontario Senior Baseball League game played in Brockville Saturday afternoon.

The victory came on the strength of a five-run explosion in the second, a big six-run blast in the fourth and a final threerons in the eighth, giving Joyces a record of four wins in five attempts.

The Goat St. Louis-coached squad will attempt to even the score for that loss defeat in an 8.30 game at the Belleville Fairgrounds tonight. Ajax, one of the loop's strongest entries to date, will supply the opposition.

A base hit by Weston got Belleville rolling in the second frame. Saturday. Before the rally was over, Brailey had doubled, one batter was hit by pitch, McKibbon had singled and the Beavers had committed two errors for the 5-0 score. Starter Dave Young was knocked out in favor of Rod Spicer during the uprising.

Spicer got one back for the losers in the bottom of the inning with a double and a triple by Brockville on the third on walks, passed balls and Coughlin's double.

Both clubs cut loose in the fourth. Belleville doubled to open the Joyce eruption and all hands were safe on a fielder's choice. Joyce Soule doubled, Chatland walked and Hunter also doubled. Weston, Brailey and Mavety followed with base singles and it was an 11-3 game.

Brockville ripped right back with five runs, chasing Belleville starter Bev McLean in the bargain. Snider singled, Spicer did the same, Glass drew a pass and MacNaull slammed a double. Latchford then gave up a walk, Coughlin a two-bagger and another walk and it was, 11-4.

The score stayed there until the eighth when Soule doubled, Chatland and Brailey singled and Mavety tripled to complete the Belleville scoring.

Glass led off with a Brockville homer in the bottom of the frame and put together a pair of errors and Spicer's triple in the ninth before the bats were finally silenced.

Mavety, ordinarily not a pitcher's day but Bill Latchford got the win in relief of McLean. He gave up 13 hits in all, Latchford fanning eight and McLean five. Dave Young was the loser as he and Dolores were belted for 18 hits in all. Spicer struck out nine Young fanned four.

Court Brailey went four-for-five for Belleville with a double; and three singles. Larry Mavety, late arriving for the game along with Latchford, crashed a single, double and triple in as many trips to the plate. Larry Soule doubled twice. Dick Hurst doubled and singled, Mike Chatland and Pete Weston each singled twice, Moe Hunter doubled and John McKibbon and Bill Latchford added a base hit apiece.

Rod Spicer tripled and singled for the Beavers and Jack Coughlin got a pair of two-baggers. Bob MacNaull and Barry Dexter singled and had a double and single, Snider had two other base knocks, Dick Glass his home run, Keith Miller and Brian McRobie a single each.

Al Lopez Named Manager

Yankees, Twins Dominate All-Star Team

NEW YORK (AP)—Not a single 1963 starter returned to the American League All-Star opening line-up which will face the National League's best on July 7 at Shea Stadium, in New York.

Three New York Yankees, three Minnesota Twins and one each from Los Angeles Angels and Baltimore Orioles made up the starting team, exclusive of the pitchers, chosen by a vote of 321 league players, coaches and managers.

Second baseman Bobby Richardson, who drew 333 votes, the most of any player, headed the Yankee contingent, which included catcher Elston Howard, 317 votes, and center fielder Mickey Mantle, 309 votes.

Mantle was named to the 1962 starting team but a broken leg moved Alvin Pearson of the Angels into his spot.

PEGGOTT AS STOOGE

Jim Fregosi, who beat out Baltimore's Luis Aparicio for the shortstop berth, 161 votes to 73, was the Angels' representative. Brooks Robinson of Baltimore won the third base nomination hands down.

Al Lopez of the Chicago White Sox, is the manager. The White Sox did not even place a runner-up in any position.

The National League starting line-up will be announced Tuesday. Remainder of the squad, including the pitchers, will be announced later.

The American League holds a slim edge, 17 victories to 16 with one game ending in a tie. The 1963 starting line-up had New York's Joe Pepitone at first, Chicago's Nellie Fox at second, Boston's Frank Malzone at third, Minnesota's Zoilo Versalles at shortstop and Earl Battey behind the plate. The outfielders, besides Pearson, were Detroit's Al Kaline in right and Cleveland's Leon Wagner, then of Los Angeles, in left.

Crothers, Kidd Help Win Relay

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto runners Bruce Kidd and Bill Crothers paced East York Track Club to a Canadian distance medley mark of 10:00.8 in the North York-Givens Relay Saturday.

George Sheppard and Don McCarten, also of Toronto, were the other members of the team, which also has a time of 9:56.9 pending approval.

The previous recognized mark, held by the same team, was 10:01.4 over the 3¼-mile route.

Sheppard ran the opening mile, McCarten ran the next quarter-mile, Crothers ran the three-quarters and Kidd ran the one-mile anchor.

Palmer, Nicklaus Well Beaten

Ken Venturi Wins U.S. Open

WASHINGTON (CP)—It's one thing to have Arnie's Army following you around. They're on your side.

"But I had a gang that was just as persistent," said Ken Venturi, the newly - crowned United States Open golf champion. "I called them Venturi's Vultures."

Venturi vanquished the vultures, a persistent flock of his fellow - professionals who pursued him relentlessly through the last nine holes Saturday, to finish with a 72-hole total of 278, the second-best score ever shot in the tournament.

The Los Angeles veteran, dogged by injuries and frustrations throughout his career, fired a 66 and a 70 in Saturday's 36-hole finale to take over at had shaped up as a stretch duel between Tommy Jacobs and Arnie Palmer at the halfway mark.

Venturi, only man in the tournament to break par for the 72 holes, shot into the lead as Jacobs, the 36-hole leader, blew to a closing 76 after shooting a part 70 in Saturday's opening round. Jack Charles, the left-handed British Open champion, closed with a 68 to total 283, just one stroke behind the second-place Jacobs.

TIES FOR FIFTH

Palmer, a stroke behind Jacobs when the day began, carded 75 and 74 to finish at 286, tying with Gay Brewer for fifth place behind Bill Casper, whose 69-71 got him home with one stroke less.

Other pre-tournament favorites fared even worse. Gary Player, who never got lower than 72, finished at 290 and Jack Nicklaus matched Player's score, taking a horrendous 77 in the third round.

Bob Panasiuk of Windsor, the only Canadian entry, salvaged $225 for his 72-78-76-75—301.

The 35-year-old Venturi, a onetime wonder boy of the tournament trail, tamed the 7,053-yard "monster" Congressional Country Club course for the lowest U.S. Open total since Ben Hogan shot a 276 at Los Angeles in 1948.

Minor Baseball Results

Late-inning rallies, spectacular pitching and some fine hitting dingers featured another full day of action in the SMBA at Park Dale on Saturday.

Bonter's Little Giants slipped DeMille Construction 14-5 in tyke; IBEW 115 rallied for a 7-7 tie with the Jaycees in wee; and Sarriage Landscapers combined near-perfect hitting and pitching to whip the Jaycees 15-3 in bantam.

BANTAM

Steven King came close to hurling a no-hitter for Sarriages, stopping the Jaycees on a lonely single by Al Lapenetie in the game's early innings. Ling fired third strikes past 15 batters and also paced his club at the plate with a triple and two singles.

Other big hitters for the Landscapers included T. Wilson with a homer and a single, P. Howe with a home run and Howard Wark with a double and a single. D. Edgar got two hits, R. Scully a triple, Roper, B. Howe and catcher Brooks Windsor a single each.

Lee Baker, Randy Lambert and Paul Goodfellow all saw action on the Jaycee mound, tagged for 13 hits while whiffing seven. Curtis and Goodfellow shared the catching.

PEEWEE

IBEW 115, trailing 7-3 in the bottom of the seventh, scored four times and had the potential winning run on third although badly outhit by the Jaycees. The tying rally was started by three Jaycee errors and Steve Moore tied it with a grand-slam triple.

S. Moore pitched the win despite 13 Jaycee hits and seven walks. He fanned two. Venutti was his catcher. D. Demers burned seven-bit BB to losing with seven strikeouts. J. Hall was the receiver.

Bob Harrison had two IBEW hits while S. Moore hit his key triple. C. Adams, Carleton and Venutti had doubles, Johnson a single.

J. Hall got three Jaycee hits, including two triples, while Danny Lupenette got three singles, Demers and T. Mosher two each, Cornwall, A. Smith and S. Hodgson one apiece.

TYKE

Bolter's Little Giants received three-hit pitching from Larry Hughes and D. Coughlin in their victory. They fanned seven with M. Burley catching. Ron Guest and Venutti were tagged for 13 hits in defeat. They struck out 10. R. Bell was their catcher.

P. Wiseman had a perfect four-for-four day at the plate for the Little Giants. L. Hughes hit a double, and single, Mike Burley, K. Brooks and Terry Maracle two singles each.

DeMille's three singles went to R. O'Neil with a pair and M. Bell with one.

T. And S. Softball Results

Centenary nosed out a 4-3 T. and S. Softball League victory over Wallbridge on the losers' home diamond Saturday night.

Skills of McGiver No Match For Weak Script of Show

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—Any program with a name like The Mission Bank of Rupert X. Humperdink had to be broad comedy, or an attempt at it. By similar deduction, any comedy with John McGiver in the cast was likely to be funny.

But the considerable skills of M. Giver were no match for the impossible script on NBC's Show of the Week Sunday night.

McGiver was cast as a high-living rascal with a taste for blondes, quadruple martinis and shady deals. As the show opened, he was impoverished, being dunned by his most recent ex-wife and trying desperately to remember the name of a country bank where, 35 years before on a drunken spree, he had opened a $60,000 savings account.

Somehow he remembers the name of the town, and the action then moved to the bank and that mid-century character — the shy, quiet bank teller who is quietly dipping into the accounts. The $60,000 account of Rupert X. Humperdink, of course, was his best source.

Naturally, the two collide, with the country bank teller ultimately outwitting the city slicker, a good predictable comedy theme. Unfortunately it was played at a pitch of hysteria. McGiver was left to be shouting in full-throated fury for the whole hour, as if sheer noise could make up for the total lack of good lines.

That Was The Week That Was on Friday night looked pretty much the way it has on other Fridays, although Director Marshall Jamison resigned in a "policy disagreement" with Producer Leland Hayward.

Although Hayward would not be specific about his areas of disconcert with the show, he repeated that he "prefers the use of the rapier to the shotgun"—and it is hard to deny that "TWS" often has been brutally blunt where wit and satire would have been more appropriate.

Jerome Paces Win Of Oregon U

EUGENE, Ore. (CP-AP) — University of Oregon, with Canadian sprinter Harry Jerome capturing the 100-metre event, won the U.S. national collegiate track championship Saturday.

Jerome, a 24-year-old native of Prince Albert, Sask., who has been a Vancouver resident since 1960 except while attending school, won the 100-metre finals in a time of 10.1 seconds, in a finish so tight that the judges' decision was not announced until an hour after the race.

Darwin and Trenton Jackson of Illinois had also run close event in 10.1 in separate heats of the semi-finals.

In the final, Jerome, Edwin Roberts of North Carolina and Jackson all were timed in 10.1. The wind was measured at 2.9 feet a second for the 100, well under the allowable 6.5.6.

Jerome in 1960 at Saskatoon equalled the world mark of 10 seconds in that event, a record he shares with Armin Hary of Germany.

The Tracks

NE WYORK (CP)—Rex Ellsworth's Crimson Times carried top weight of 125 pounds to an impressive victory in the $111,500 Illinois Handicap at Chicago's Arlington Park Saturday.

Although eased near the finish by jockey Bill Shoemaker, Olden Times finished 1¼ lengths ahead of Babington.

Admiral Vic Ran third

Olden Times was timed in 2:34.4-5 for the 1 1-16 miles.

The winner earned $66,300 to add to previous season's earnings of $114,785.

Olden Times paid $4.60 $3.80 and $2.80. Babington returned $12 and $5.40. Admiral Vic paid $3.40.

Native Diver held off the march run of Mustard Plaster to win the $53,200 Inglewood Handicap at Hollywood Park in California.

The time for the 1 1-16 miles was 1:41 3-5 as Native Diver returned $28.80, $12.20 and $4.80.

Secret Meetings Opposed by Association Head

SUDBURY (CP)—Mayor Angus A. Campbell of Pembroke, president of the Association of Ontario Mayors and Reeves, said Sunday secret negotiations of elected municipal bodies foster civic inefficiency and public distrust.

He told a press conference before the opening of the association's conference that meetings of municipal bodies should be open to the press on the understanding that matters detrimental to the public interest would be withheld from publication.

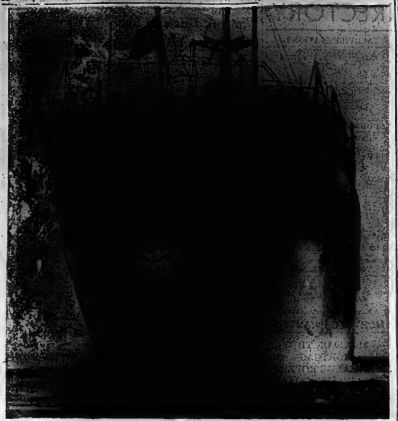
He said the public was often ill-informed about matters of legitimate public concern because too many municipal meetings in the province were held behind closed doors.

As a result, public debate was inhibited, elected councils tended to become slack and inefficient and public interest reduced, he said.

A frequent result, he said, was penalization in office of incompetent elected officials who would not be tolerated in public if the extent of their incompetence became known.

He said Canada's industrial and financial commissions should hold open meetings.

Mr. Campbell also said many elected officials in Ontario are part-time citizens, drawn from proved business ability should get into municipal politics.



Mr. Campbell also said he opposes introducing party politics into municipal government.

He said Canada, unlike any unofficial European cities where the party system prevails, said it tends to stifle debate and frustrates individual initiative.

The slightly increased mechanical efficiency of an elected council would not be worth the price.

He also said the provincial government should direct some industries away from major population centres to areas with high unemployment rates.

Mr. Campbell called on the provincial government to share the cost of non-basic municipal services such as education, welfare and administration of justice. Municipalities would be left with the responsibility for sewerage, police and fire protection services.

PROPELLER THRASHING the "Star of Suez," a 10,000-ton Egyptian freighter, attempts to free herself from the shoal where she grounded off Salmon Point Friday morning. The light-loaded ship was still aground Monday morning, with a tug from Kingston standing by.

STAR OF SUEZ, a 10,000-ton Egyptian freighter, was still aground this morning off Salmon Point in Prince Edward county, where she grounded in about 13 feet of water Friday. Reports indicate little damage to the ship and no danger to the crew.

Egyptian Ship Still Aground Off Salmon Point

PICTON— The tugs Graeme Stewart of Kingston, Saturday was sent to the aid of the Egyptian ship "Star of Suez," aground off Salmon Point in Prince Edward County, but had been unable to free the ship by this morning, according to reports from the scene. The ship went ground in about 13 feet of water at 6.30 a.m. Friday. Two Scuba divers from Kingston inspected the hull of the ship Sunday and found only slight damage to the bow. The ship has taken no water since she went aground.

Plans this morning were to lighten the "Star of Suez" by removing all or part of the nearly 1000 tons of pulpwood she carries and to make another attempt to free the ship from the shoal on which she is stuck. The pulpwood might be transferred ashore in small boats, or, transferred to a barge.

Dollar Deals for Romanians To Obtain Freedom Closed

By LAWRENCE MALKIN

LONDON (AP)—Dollar deals to obtain freedom for Romanians have stopped since their Communist government began earning hard currency from new trade with the West, Romanian exiles reported Sunday.

The existence of the human trade has been known a long time to Romanian exiles in Western—Europe. Some have paid $15,000 or more to buy a relative out of prison and out of Romania. Others have paid lesser sums for wives, brothers and sisters or children who were not in prison but could not get exit permits.

An American company is reported to have purchased the freedom of its former manager, a Romanian who had been in prison for 11 years. He now works in the company's Paris office, and Romanians here said his price was more than $15,000.

Also brought to the West was the former president of the Romanian Yacht Club, a large landowner in the country before the Communists took over.

The key figure at the western end is believed to have been a London businessman who was born in Transylvania — now a part of Romania—but who now is a naturalized Briton.

Since the war the businessman handled most of Romania's trade with the west.

Construction Roundup

By ANDY TURNBULL

More than a million dollars worth of buildings were started in Belleville this week. This is equal to about one-quarter the value of annual construction in the city during the past few years.

ONTARIO INTELLIGENCER BUILDING

Biggest job is the new building for The Ontario Intelligencer and radio station CJBQ, at the corner of Bridge and Pinnacle streets. Nathan Carr is supervisor on the job for Andra Construction of Kingston. Work so far has concentrated on erection of hoardings and removal of a brick wall and a small brick building on the property, with machinery rented from Robert Tracey Ltd. of Belleville. Carr plans to use local labor and subtrades as much as possible, and will rent some local equipment for heavy work. The job will take about a year.

SIR MACKENZIE BOWELL PUBLIC SCHOOL

Dick Wickering is supervisor for Miron Wiggers Construction, of Trenton, on the $243,000 Sir Mackenzie Bowell Public School building just west of Sidney street, between West Bridge and Dundas West. The 11-room school will have a partial basement, and all classrooms will be at ground level. Construction will be cement block below ground, brick above ground, and the roof will be of prestressed concrete. The partial basement is being blasted out of rock that comes to within two feet, at some points, of ground level. The school will be ready for use in about four months.

NEW LIQUOR STORE

Donald Jackson is supervisor for Hugh Murray Construction on the new liquor store being built on Station Street. Work started Friday morning, and the full basement will be blasted out starting Monday. The building will have only one floor above ground. Cost of the building is about $150,000, and it will take between four and five months to complete.

SMITH TRANSPORT TERMINAL

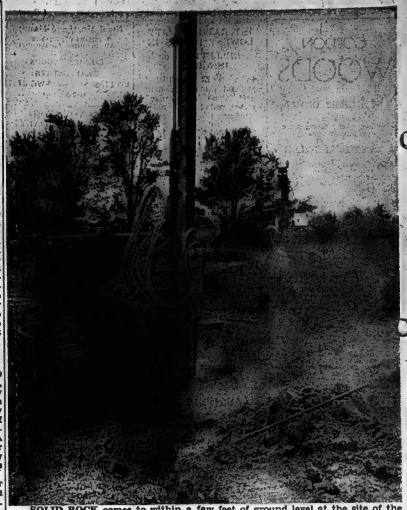
More work is underway at the site of the new Smith Transport Terminal, at the east end of Adam Street. Donald Newton, of M. Sole Construction in Peterborough, arrived this week to start construction of a $50,000 garage just north of the new terminal building. Lightfoot Construction men have already completed most of the foundation digging.

The new building will be of reinforced concrete, and will be about 30 by 70 feet. One greasepit is included in the plan, and three service bays. Newton plans to use local labor and subtrades where possible, and expects to have the garage finished by the end of August.

Meanwhile, work at the terminal building, Standard Painting and Tile of Brockville is laying tile in the office section. Bill Northrop came down three weeks ago from Brockville, where he built a similar building, to take over as supervisor here. Howard Lewis, who built most of the Belleville terminal, is now laying street curbs in Trenton. Northrop expects to be finished with the terminal next week.

DOUGLAS R. ATKINS SCHOOL

Harry Carr-Brainf took over Thursday from Ken Carr-Brainf on the one-room addition to Douglas R. Atkins School, on Elmwood Drive. Ken Carr-Brainf is in Warkworth now, on another contract. Walls of the addition are nearly completed, (brick and block laid by A. Van Rompaey, of Belleville), and the "double T" prestressed concrete roof will be put on next week. The floor will be poured as soon as the roof is finished. The whole job will be finished in about three weeks, Carr-Brainf says.



WATER MAIN

Lightfoot's men are about 900 feet south of Bridge St. now, working south, on the Sidney St. water main contract. With two back-hoes on the job, they are laying about 125 feet of pipe per day. One crew is working full time on blasting. A hole is still open at the corner of West Bridge St. and Sidney St., where a valve chamber is being built.

Another crew working under George Hopkins has started tunnelling under the C.P.R. tracks, just west of Sidney St., where the water main will enter the city filter plant. Ernest Rose is handling the powder, blasting through solid rock, and it will take nearly ten days to put the tunnel through. Charges are small, so the blasting will not disturb the railway.

BUILDING PERMITS

Total value of the building permits issued in the week June 12 to 19 is $1,077,800, according to city building inspector Grant Stickle. In addition to the new jobs listed above, the total includes permits for five house additions and one alteration, one commercial addition to Alton Haley Farm Equipment Sales, and seven new houses.

SOLID ROCK comes to within a few feet of ground level at the site of the new Sir Mackenzie Bowell Public School, just west of Sidney Street. In the picture, Elmer Thibault of Trenton is almost hidden by dust kicked up from a mobile drill cutting holes for blasting.

SKYVIEW sleeper-lounge cars will see service late this fall on Canadian National Railways Ocean Limited and Scotian passenger trains running between Montreal and Halifax. The lounge section at the rear of these cars features a partially-glassed roof. Sleeping accommodation is forward. The Skyview cars are part of a recent acquisition of 10 glass-topped passenger lounge cars by CN.

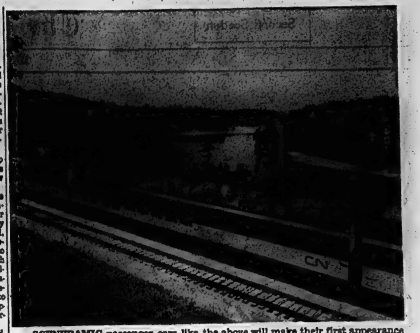
The Elegance of the Long-Distance Runners

Canadian National Railways have acquired 10 glass - topped passenger lounge railway cars to meet an increasing demand for accommodation on its main-line trains.

Included are six "Skyview" cars — a type that combines sleeping and lounge accommodation, the lounge section at the rear featuring a partially glassed roof — destined for service on the Ocean Limited and Scotian, CN's crack Maritime trains running between Montreal and Halifax.

Also acquired are four "Scenaramic" double-deck cars — glass-roofed over the entire length and accommodating 68 "travel-vie-w" seats for coach passengers in addition to a downstairs lounge with facilities for light meals and refreshments. These "Scenaramic" cars will be operated on some runs of CN's twin transcontinental trains, the Super Continental and the Panorama, through the Rocky Mountains.

They will be the only full length glass - topped railway passenger accommodation in Canada.



The cars have been acquired from the Milwaukee Road, and services, said the additional are being decked out in CN's distinctive colors before going int. service. The "Scenaramic" cars will make their first runs shortly, while the "Skyview" sleeper-lounge cars will go into service in the late fall after refurbishing in CN shops.

Pierre Delagrave, CN's vice-president, passenger sales and c..rs "will harmonize well with the comfortable equipment already in service on these main-line trains and will complement the attractive new lounge cars for both coach and sleeping car passengers which were introduced last fall."

He said the cars will "help meet the demands of customers who have discovered the n a w advantages of travel by rail.

"It is quite clear that t h e response to our various campaigns to encourage use of our passenger services, particularly th- introduction of the R e d, White and Blue system of reduced fares, is developing to the point that we are faced with an immediate need for specialized equipment," said Mr. Delagrave "It is fortunate, therefore that we have been able to obtain this equipment at the opportune time and under favourable conditions."

A valuable feature, he added, was that the cars can be interchanged readily with conventional equipment.

SCENERAMIC passenger cars like the above will make their first appearance in Canada in about a month's time on some runs of the Canadian National Railways' twin transcontinental trains — the Super Continental and the Panorama, through the Rocky Mountains. Double-decked, the cars have a glass roof over the entire length, 68" "travel-view" seats and a downstairs lounge for light meals and refreshments.

HERE COMES OUR HISTORY ON WHEELS

Burning Wood (1872)

For Belleville: "Railway Week"

The history of Canada as a modern nation is the history of the railroad.

Where the railroad went into the wilderness the pioneer and prospector followed. One discovered rich farmland; the other, the vast potential of natural resources. In the wake of the right-of-way came fruitful settlement of a significant slice of the world's land space. The tracks linked scattered communities into a national warp and woof.

Canada's conquest of nationhood's initial challenges relied, not on armies, simply on railroaders, whose enemies were mainly climate and terrain. Ironically, these are the traditional opponents to man's settlement in his sphere.

Today, Canada has no museum collection of once-revolutionary armaments to display as the tools that made, and guaranteed, its national prerogatives—no Gatling, or gun-that-won-the-west.

And today, railroading, as any corporative enterprise, must simply seek its customers where it finds them.

Yet, railroad enterprise now extends the opportunity of personal contact with a basic truth about Canada in a travelling museum stationed in Belleville.

Semi-promotional enterprise or no, it is not fitting to dismiss Railway Week simply as a carnival on wheels. Canadian railroading guaranteed posterity. As such it is history.

Basking in Luxury (1964)

The Week That Is

. . . as a week seems like a real railroader of a time! And why not?

Belleville has a railroad history almost as old as Canadian railroading itself.

Hence, the events of this week should have an added significance for the community.

The first railway line in Canada was opened in 1836 from St. John's, to Montreal — a distance of about 14 miles. By 1851 Belleville had become a railroad centre as railroading began to put out its first tentative link between Montreal and Toronto. It saw its first passenger train on October 27, 1856.

That too, was a Monday.

The program was big, colorful, jubilant.

While today's opening ceremonies may differ in content of sophistication, the program drawn for the next week, also is colorful and ambitious.

All it needs is public attention.

For instance.

Centrepiece of the gala week is of course the exhibition of historic railroad equipment — some of it pictured here — by Canadian National Railways.

This display goes on show at the outset at the CNR station and remain there through the rest of the week. In three words — It's a Must!

As is pointed out elsewhere on this page there's something unique about railroading in Canada that gets down to the bones of the country's latter-day history. Besides that, there is of course the thrill of meeting nearly a hundred years of railroading face - to - face for the first time.

Probably the most significant event of the week will come Thursday — 8 p.m. it's scheduled for on the program.

This is the symbolic track-lifting of Belleville's bug bear for years — the Pinnacle Street track.

Civic and CN officials will gather at that time at Victoria Avenue and Pinnacle Street to formally mark the occasion.

In other big events there'll be:

(1) A special steam excursion Saturday to Peterborough with stops for photographers;

(2) A Hootenanny by the Jaycees at the Arena Saturday;

(3) Moe Koffman at the Arena Friday — again by the Jaycees;

(4) Live broadcast of the CBC's Tommy Hunter Show on Thursday night from the Pinnacle Street Parking Lot.

Oh yes! For details see program inside the paper.

FIT FOR A KING! Which was the truth about this locomotive model. On exhibition in Belleville this week is one of these streamlined mammoths of the 6400 Northern series built in 1936. One of them hauled the train for the Royal visit just before World War II and was at the New York World's Fair.

The Man That Was

. . . responsible more than anyone else for instigating events leading to Railway Week was A. McLean Haig.

Not that Mr. Haig had anything to do with the actual festivities planned for the week. But these grew out of a practical piece of business—the removal of CNR's Pinnacle St. right-of-way.

That was where Mr. Haig came in.

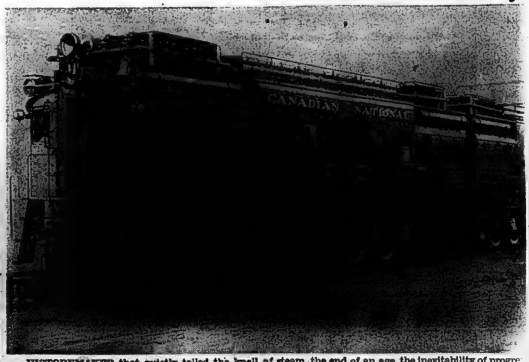
It was during Mr. Haig's second period as mayor of Belleville that negotiations were pressed in earnest for removal of railroad tracks that had plagued city traffic for decades.

It was in the second year of the three successive terms he served from 1960 that Mayor Haig firmly embarked on the series of discussions with the railway and the Board of Transport for abolition of its right-of-way down on of the city's main trafic arteries.

Such negotiations often wither in the light of publicity and require delicate handling. The mayor attended to them personally, progress being made known intermittently, when he reported to city council.

So far had affairs progressed that Mr. Haig made the right-of-way a part of his re-election plea for a third and final year in office. He said he wanted to bring the transactions to a successful close.

He won the election—and in the same year was able to announce the success of negotiations.



A Young Giant Carries On . . .

SUPER CONTINENTAL pulls out of Montreal on the first leg of its 3,000-mile trip to Vancouver . . . powered by locomotives generating 3,500 horsepower. The lead unit is on display in Belleville during Railway Week.

Motorists Soon Will Have Right To Sue Pedestrians for Negligence

TORONTO (CP) — Motorists will soon be able to sue pedestrians for negligence, Rowcal E. Laishley, an Ottawa lawyer, says.

Mr. Laishley told about 300 Canadian insurance claims adjusters at their annual convention that the modern definition of negligence—the assumption of an unreasonable risk in a given set of circumstances—would come to the motorist's aid where the pedestrian could be expected to get out of the way.

"I look forward to the day when a motorist who has been forced to swerve off the road to avoid a pedestrian can sue that pedestrian for negligence," he said.

Mr. Laishley also said he can see "more realistic" shifts in the law in cases involving small children and automobile passengers.

For several years children under seven were not subject to negligence laws, he said, but now they can be held responsible where it is reasonable to expect them to act otherwise.

He cited a recent case in Nova Scotia in which a five-year-old was held 85-per-cent responsible for damages and another where a four-year-old was considered for negligence charges.

The Ottawa lawyer said passengers who are not paying the driver of a car, but are riding in the vehicle for commercial reasons, will soon be able to sue the driver if hurt in an accident caused by negligence. Those passengers who ride purely for pleasure are the only ones unable to take such a case to court, he added.

SUBMITS DESIGN

MONTREAL (CP) — Capt. Yvette Demers of the Canadian Women's Army Corps designed herself a new uniform after trying in vain to remodel the 1941 version issued by the army, and has submitted it to Ottawa as a suggested replacement for the old uniform. "It's impossible to tailor the old ones because they're cut to fit a man, with no allowance for a woman's hips and curves," she says.

MONTREAL (CP)—A major railway that turns a profit on its passenger operations is about as common these days as a steam engine.

The automobile and the airliner have combined to put the railway business into the red on any services involving people, placing extra money — making pressure on freight operations.

But the two big Canadian railways have begun to fight backwooing the public with free meals for sleeping car passengers, lower fares on certain days, reductions for family or group travel, and such extras as supervised playtime for children on long runs.

The government-owned Canadian National Railways and privately run Canadian Pacific Railway still aren't predicting flatly that they'll soon convert passenger operations into a paying proposition. But they are encouraged by an increase in revenue from this part of their business.

The CNR, which inaugurated a second fast transcontinental passenger train this May 3 and has made its first major purchase of passenger cars since 1954, figures on hitting its objective of $49,000,000 in passenger revenue this year, a 10-per-cent increase.

The CPR reports higher passenger traffic since it cut fares last Oct. 27 on long passenger runs at the same time as the CNR extended its new fare policy to transcontinental service.

Pierre Delagrave, CNR vice-president, says "the volume of traffic is far above the minimum considered necessary to make up for the reduction in fares."

The results had led to estimates that the railway might begin making a profit on passenger traffic in five years but this was not certain.

One reason for the railways' optimism, Mr. Delagrave says, is that their main competition is the automobile, and they feel time is on the side of rail travel because of increasing highway congestion.

But they're also countering some of the attraction of air travel by offering additional services. On long trips coffee is served, dining car sittings are prearranged, and free pillows are provided for coach passengers.

The CNR employs what it calls the Red, White and Blue fare plan, tested for 18 months on the run between Montreal and Halifax before it was extended to the transcontinental runs.

Now reduced fares have been offered on CNR-CPR pool train runs between Montreal, Toronto, Ottawa and Quebec City, making it possible to save on travel between all Canadian cities.

The CNR plan cuts fares as much as 58 per cent for 163 days a year—from October to May. Tickets are called Red Bargain Days fares.

Economy fares, issued on white tickets, provide a 22-per-cent saving for trips starting on days other than Friday and Sunday from June 1 to Sept. 30, and for trips beginning on Fridays and Sundays in the remainder of the year, for a total of 144 days.

The remaining days of the year are standard fare days, peak travel times on which blue tickets are used.

Passengers in sleeping cars, roomettes and bedrooms get free meals at all times.

The CPR initiated its Fare Saver plan valid seven days a week for trips in excess of 520 miles one way. For example, one - way coach tickets from Montreal to Vancouver were reduced to $81 from $90.00. One-way fare in a bedroom was cut to $122, including meals, from $162 plus meals.

On trips less than 520 miles reductions were also made but prices for weekend travel remain slightly higher than for the rest of the week.

Mr. Delagrave says that after the reduced fares were introduced on the Montreal-Maritimes run in May, 1963, some runs reported a 100-per-cent increase in passengers within two weeks. Traffic doubled in a two-year period.

When they were introduced on the Montreal-Vancouver run the response was such that the CNR decided to add its first new transcontinental train since 1955, although it's not yet certain this will continue after the summer.

Another new train is scheduled to be put into service between Montreal and the Maritimes.

Passenger traffic accounts for less than 10 per cent of CNR revenue but, Mr. Delagrave says, the public judges the railways by their passenger service and growing public acceptance is indicated by the fact that CNR passenger revenue increased in 1963 and 1963 for the first time since 1957.

He adds that the CNR is determined "to remain in the passenger service and to make it a paying proposition." One way to do this was to encourage travel in off-peak periods while maintaining business on normal peak days.

However, Mr. Delagrave says, the railways must go further by increasing the number of passengers in each car. Coaches, each carrying 80 passengers were the most profitable. But parlor cars, now with 32 to 52 seats, and sleeping cars with 28 roomettes could be increased with out sacrificing passenger comfort.

Ways must also be found to increase efficiency of dining cars. Formerly they operated at less than capacity but, with free meals, they now were inadequate.

Belleville's Grand Junction RR

The Failure That Left Its Legacy In a Motorist's Muttered Curses

Forever — as of now — the benighted years have gone when a Canadian railroad could be the target of a downtown motorists' muttered curses.

Forever — in this part of Canada at least.

With the agreed abolition of the CNR right-of-way on Pinnacle Street in downtown Belleville go the grudging blessings of two Automobile Age generations.

To the motorist it must have epitomized communal bevinky. Trapped in a downtown traffic jam, perspiring as he wrestled with his patience. Then — along comes a freight train just for good measure.

Not an ordinary lumbering old freight at that — but a sedate thing of no end. It took its time. And everyone else seemed to accept the fact. For good reason.

It daily excursioi down a main street had been going on longer than anyone could really remember.

In fact what looked like an anachronism in 1964 actually signified the ultimate progressiveness — once upon a time.

What has been ended recently by CNR started nearly a century ago as a highly promising venture of local initiative — the Grand Junction Railway.

Originally, it was planned as a link between Peterborough and the Belleville docks. It succeeded, briefly, and its legacy — the tracks on Pinnacle Street — were left to posterity.

The Grand Junction was conceived at the height of the railroad fever of mid-Victorian Canada.

Local railroad historian Bill Michaud in his recent "Pioneer Railways of Central Ontario" recounts how the abortive enterprise was affected:

"The Grand Junction Railway was the result of an effort on the part of a group of Belleville citizens to gain access to the north and west of Central Ontario. The Grand Trunk, running through Belleville from Montreal to Toronto, was in financial difficulties and had been forced to cancel plans for a loop line from Belleville, through Peterborough and Lindsay, to Toronto. Its charter, originally issued in 1853 and later acquired by a group of Toronto financiers, was revived by a Belleville group in 1876. Some $50,000 was obtained by them from the province and the municipality of Belleville and $200,000 in stocks at par value were projected and sold."

So far, so good. Track was laid from the wharves up Pinnacle Street (what is now Holland's Plumbing is believed to have been a Grand Junction Station) and along Great St. James Street.

Work crawled along as contractors went broke, or "were" led of the various difficulties encountered. The Trent was crossed at Hastings, the railroad crept toward Peterborough, where, finally, in 1880 a station was erected.

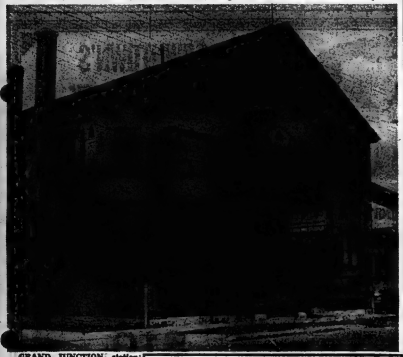
The success was bitter. The railroad was not to last more than a year.

Business rivalry and construction delays wrought the inevitable end — sealed by a rate war with the Midland Railway.

A heavy winter apparently added the quietus as washouts were common.

Writes Mr. Michaud: "Earnings went almost nil and the wages due the employees were in arrears. Further financial aid was refused. The overdue wages of the trainmen and engineers — $1.00 per day for brakemen, $1.25 for firemen and $1.50 for engineers, and lesser rates for other employees — were made available from various sources, but the Grand Junction had become a liability and was folding. As a result, it had lived just one short year."

The Grand Trunk stepped in, bought out the rolling stock for $100,000 and added the Grand Junction to the Midland Railway — which it also had absorbed.



Notes Mr. Michaud in tribute, however: "The dogged persistence of Belleville's pioneer group in the face of difficulties, and subject to groups more powerful than they, did not prevent the eventual completion of their project."

Historically, the Grand Trunk itself wound up in difficulties and had its system nationalized in Canadian National — the same complex now promised to remove the last traces of Belleville's fitful flirtation with railroading.

HURT CATTLE

CHURCHILL, England (CP) Thomas Bateman was fine $420 for dehorning two cattle without anesthetic. A witness from the Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals said the animals suffered as much pain as a human would if all his teeth were yanked out.

GRAND JUNCTION station today a plumbing contractor's on Pinnacle (above) and old woodturner (above, right), at Belleville docks. The locomotive was probably photographed about 1879 — the year the ill-starred railroad completed its 90 - mile right-of-way to Peterborough. It went broke the following year and was absorbed into Grand Trunk. The completed Grand Trunk itself was later to suffer a similar fate.

This Was Railroading!

It was a heckuva wreck.

No one was hurt, of course.

But that's not exactly the point.

If you look closely at that pile-up (on the left) on the Grand Trunk way back maybe you can discern the features of the railroader posing before the shambles in this old print.

Look at that bearing, haughty, erect. Beneath, that walrus moustache his features seem to scorn the world — that part of it not in railroading.

For this was the age of steam. The great day of the railways when the wood-burning, coal-eating juggernauts pictured above set the pace for the era, and the world measured its standard of living — and survival — by the speed of a locomotive.

Inevitably it bred its own kind of human personality among the men who served it, self-reliant and proud.

This may be the message in the attitude of himself at the right.

He could well be saying: "Mister! Nobody goes as fast, goes as far, goes as surely as we do! And when we don't — it's still a sight to see. So look your fill!

"Mister! This is railroading!"

And so it was.

Deepsea Fishermen Turn To Lucrative Tourist Trade

By DON ANGUS

HALIFAX (CP)—Men of the sea along the Nova Scotia coast are turning their sturdy craft into deepsea fishing charters for tourists seeking the thrill of hooking a battling salt-water fish.

Deepsea fishing can be "a lot of fun for people who are not dyed - in - the - wool flycasters," says Michael Knight, deputy minister of trade and industry, whose department initiated the program.

With inland salmon fishing on the decline, experienced skippers are giving tourists a chance to catch fish for sport. And the landing of a good-sized pollack or cod can be every bit as exciting as pulling a salmon or trout from a stream, they say.

International sports fishermen had long known Wedgeport, N.S., as the centre of tuna fishing in North America. But about five years ago the tuna switched their feeding grounds to Newfoundland waters and the famous Wedgeport tuna fishing competitions were cancelled.

'73 BOATS FOR HIRE

That was when the trade and industry department got the idea of encouraging tourists, most of whom are novice fishermen, to charter regular commercial fishing boats for sport. Summer is a slack season for the men who make their living from the sea, and the chance to supplement meagre summer incomes caught on fast.

Now in its fifth year, the deepsea fishing program has increased from five boats operating out of Wedgeport to a total of 73 sailing out of harbors and bays the length of the province.

A government brochure lists addresses of all fishermen who will take tourists. Halifax has 13 boats for charter. And at the tip of Cape Breton the Ingonish fleet of swordfishing craft is available.

Most skippers charge $25 for half a day for a group of several persons. Cost of an entire day's fishing party is often less than $50.

Tuna sometimes strike at the light line cast for pollack and mackerel and occasionally a lucky fisherman can haul one in, but usually the big bluefins escape. The real fun is in landing a flapping pollack.

SKIPPERS TAKE COURSE

It's a scrapper that "really wiggles" when hooked, says Mr. Knight. A good one will range between three and 20 pounds and a skipper can guarantee at least one catch a trip, with assurance of a 10-to-51-minute battle.

When the mackerel are running in schools "you can haul in a whole pile."

Mr. Knight and John D. McIntyre, department official who has directed most of the government's efforts, emphasize that fishing experience isn't necessary. It's a sport for the whole family and the skipper of the chartered Cape Island boat supplies all the gear.

The Cape Islanders are 38 to 50 feet long, and all the vessels used for charters are thoroughly inspected by the federal transport department. The boats must carry adequate safety equipment such as rafts and lifeboats. Many have such conveniences as heads (toilets).

The skippers themselves are required to take safety and navigation courses offered by the transport department.

"These sails are men of the sea who can sail by the seat of their pants, but they must take these courses in case anything goes wrong," Mr. Knight says.

In four years, nothing has gone wrong.

PLAN NEW FERRY

OTTAWA (CP) — Transport Minister Pickersgill announced Thursday night the federal government has purchased a large ferry to go into service between Newfoundland and Nova Scotia early in 1965. He also said in Commons a contract has been let to Marine Industries Limited, Sorel, Que., for a second ferry to go into Newfoundland service by November, 1967.

Running the Railroad's Rideau Area

Railroad Reorganized

In 1961, Canadian National underwent a major reorganization. Until then, the Company had four levels of authority, System Headquarters, Regional Headquarters — in which there were three, Atlantic, Central and Western. The Regions were divided into Districts which were in turn divided into Divisions.

Under the re-organization program, one level of authority was wiped out. There are now only three; System Headquarters at Montreal, five Regions instead of the former three and 18 Areas. The Regions are the Atlantic Region with Headquarters at Moncton; the St. Lawrence region with Headquarters at Montreal; the Great Lakes Region with Headquarters at Toronto; the Prairie Region with headquarters at Winnipeg and the Mountain Region with Headquarters at Edmonton. Each Region is in turn divided into Areas, each headed by a manager, which has been given wide authority. Under re-organization, therefore, the old District and Division levels of authority have disappeared and have been replaced by the Area. As against the former set-up, the Area Manager has complete jurisdiction over all the activities of the Railway within his territory.

K. E. Hunt: Area Manager

K. E. Hunt was born near St. Thomas, Ontario and entered the Canadian National service in 1940 as an apprentice electrician at the Car Shops in London, Ontario.

During World War II he served on active service with the RCAF, rising from AC2 to Flying Officer and specializing in aerotroop and supply dropping devices, and in 1945 spent a short time in commercial airline operations.

While in the employment of the GN he graduated in electrical engineering with a BSc degree from Queen's University in 1951 and in 1954 took an extension course in Economics at McGill University. The various positions and posts occupied within the railway from 1940 to the present time have been many and varied as follows: — the electrical apprenticeship was started at Montreal in 1940 following which he was appointed special engineer in the Motive Power Shops in Montreal in 52; Mechanical Engineer, Steam, at Montreal headquarters in 1952 and back out in a line position as General Foreman of the Point St. Charles Diesel Electric Shop later the same year. In 1956, he was promoted to assistant Superintendent Motive Power, Montreal District, and six months later assigned special duties with the Economics Branch of Research and Development at headquarters. In 1957 Mr. Hunt was promoted to Assistant General Superintendent Equipment on the CN's American Line at Battle Creek, Michigan and two years later was promoted to the position of Chief Budget Officer, System, in 1959, he was named Chief of Budgets and Engineering Economics for the System and in 1961, General Superintendent Equipment, St. Lawrence Region, Montreal. In 1963, Mr. Hunt was transferred to Belleville as Area Manager.

Mr. Hunt has several athletic interests and in previous years spent considerable time playing baseball and basketball and still shows a great interest in these two sports plus golf and curling. Hobbies include woodworking, gardening, and when time permits, attempts to keep up with the current information on personnel and management subjects.

In Belleville, he is a Director of the YMCA and a member of the Rotary Club. Mr. Hunt is also a member of the Canadian Railway Club, Montreal, and a Engineering Institute of Canada. Mr Hunt lives on Dundas St. West and has three young daughters, two of whom go to Bayside Public School. The family attends Holloway Street United Church.

Mrs. Hunt, formerly Marion Jack from Kirkland Lake, one of Northern Ontario's pioneer towns, has had to draw on that spirit to handle the various household moves that she has had to make during her husband's career.

Philately Popular In China

By ADAM KELLET-LONG

PEKING (Reuters) — Stamp-collecting is a popular hobby with young and old in China.

Every day around lunchtime, but particularly on Sunday afternoons, a small crowd gathers in and outside the large stamp shop off Wang Fu Ching, Peking's main shopping street, to buy, exchange or just look at stamps.

A good deal of friendly business is transacted on the pavement outside the shop where a flourishing "free market" in stamps is conducted under the benevolent eyes of nearby traffic policemen.

A newcomer with an interesting collection soon becomes the centre of a jostling group of prospective purchasers.

Inside the shop, run by the state - owned Philatelic Company, salesmen are busy selling and buying used and unused stamps from all over the world.

Belleville Gets HQ

The Rideau Area, with headquarters in Belleville, is one of 18 which make up the Canadian National of today. Territory served by the Area includes most of the heavy density double track main line between Canada's two largest cities. More than 10,000 passenger trains and 13,000 freight trains are supervised yearly from this point. In addition to serving many established and growing communities, the Area also shares in the growing industrial development now going on throughout the territory. Employees number 2,500 and total population served is in the order of one and a quarter million people. Administration of the Rideau Area is the responsibility of a Manager whose functions are to direct sales, industrial development and operations for the convenience of shippers and travellers.

W. D. Newell: Operations

A native of Exeter, Ontario, W. D. Newell received his schooling at Stratford, and entered railway service there as a brakeman in 1940. A year later, he transferred to Belleville and worked at various locations on the former Belleville Division as brakeman and conductor until 1954 when he became a transportation assistant. In 1953 he was named Trainmaster at Brantford. He also served in that capacity at Windsor until he was transferred to Montreal as Assistant Superintendent in 1956. Upon reorganization of the Company in 1961, he was appointed Superintendent of Transportation for the Champlain Area at Montreal. In 1963 he was appointed Operations Manager of the Rideau Area at Belleville.

Mr. Newell is a member of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce, the Canadian Railway Club, Montreal, and the American Association of Railroad Superintendents, Chicago.

Mr. Newell is married to the former Olga Haiko of Brockville and has two sons, Patrick, 13, attending the Harry J Clarke School and Paul, 10, a student of the Moira Secondary School

Unlike what is happening only a few feet away, no bargaining is allowed inside the shop.

SCHOOL HAVE CLUBS

During recent years, nearly every Peking secondary school has formed its own stamp-collecting club.

China produces a great number of stamp issues to commemorate political or sports occasions, or to portray the country's scenery, culture and art. More than 150 new sets have been produced since 1949 to commemorate events ranging from the Castro revolution in Cuba to the death of China's most famous Peking opera actor, Mei Lan-fang.

The non - political stamps, often very beautifully designed in a wide range of colors, form a not insignificant part of China's exports and are sold on every continent.

Folk-dances, traditional toys, flowers, mountains, bridges, porcelain animals, goldfish—all these things, and many more, have been portrayed in stamp issues in the last three years.

Most Chinese stamps have one big drawback, especially for foreign residents here: They have no glue.

Ambition: Own 300 Hotels; Write a Hit Tune

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—At 67, Ernest Henderson, a dry, spare proper Bostonian with deep-set blue eyes, has two goals left.

He'd like to write a hit song, and he'd like to operate a $1,000,000,000-system of 300 hotels.

"I don't know when I'll turn out a popular song that is really popular—although I did get a $1.65 royalty cheque for one," he said. "But we hope to have the 300 hotels in 10 or a dozen years."

There are solid grounds for Henderson's optimism.

As chairman of Sheraton Corporation of America, he now operates a system of 80 hotels with some 30,000 rooms that served 15,000,000 guests last year and did a business of $234,000,000 in 1963.

Henderson and his Harvard classmate, Robert Moore, co-founder of the Sheraton system, became innkeepers by accident.

In 1927 they were in the business of building battery radios. As an investment they bought control of a small real estate investment trust for $1,000.

"One of the properties turned out to be a hotel—and we've been in the field ever since," said Henderson. In 37 years he and Moore parlayed their $10,000 into an empire with assets of $250,000,000, 24,000 employees and about 19,000 shareholders.

The two partners direct their enterprises from a small, old-fashioned office they share which overlooks Boston Harbor.

Henderson has a simple, direct business philosophy:

"When you work at something, you like to see something come out of it—results," he observed.

"The main factor in success is the determination to succeed. What defeats most people is insufficient follow-through. They become too easily discouraged."

He is a man of many hobbies because "hobbies create good mental habits." He collects antiques, likes photography, was a pilot in his early years, as ham radio operator has reached other enthusiasts in 10 countries, and once had the world's largest collections of early New England pennies until he sold them to museums.

Henderson is reconciled to the fact that as a songwriter he is as yet no rival to Irving Berlin or Richard Rodgers. His latest effort is entitled In Outer Space.

"The words are just an excuse to get people to hum the tune," he said.

You and Canadian National are hosts. And everybody's invited! C'mon out for the fun. Steam train rides to Peterboro and Cobourg, band concerts, exciting train displays, races, the Tommy Hunter Show, dancing to Moe "Swinging Shepherd Blues" Koffman, a hootenanny, a big Sunday picnic!

There's good reason for all the celebrating. On June 25, up come the old Pinnacle Street tracks . . . another sign of Belleville and Canadian National moving with the modern times. Belleville has been a vital railway centre since 1851 and headquarters for CN's large Rideau Area since 1961. It's been a happy past – and the CN-Belleville future looks even brighter! Now, that's worth celebrating.

Join us? It's going to be a grand party. All Railway Week long.

15820--Numbers in the Epitaph for an Era of Steam

By J. NORMAN LOWE

To most of us, the date of August 14, 1990, has no particular significance.

At General Motors Diesel plant at London, Ont., that day, a Canadian National transfer engine leisurely coupled onto a new 1200 h.p. unit and pulled it to the Railway's nearby diesel shop for servicing. The assignment marked no special ceremony because for weeks before then, similar units were becoming a common sight across the 94,000-mile long and continually growing CN system.

But a special honor fell to this 222,000 pound giant. It marked the completion of Canada's largest railway dieselization program (two years ahead of time) and became part of a plan which was finalized within a six year period, eliminating as a result, total withdrawal of steam power on the Canadian National after 127 years service.

The diesel locomotive as the principal form of motive power is today the generally accepted means of moving goods and people faster and more economically. It is a well known fact that before this present method, the North American Railway industry had retained steam power for well over one hundred years, but the retaining of this old principle was not due to the lack of initiative to develop something better; many experiments were made, but failed to prove successful.

Canadian National, a world leader in the motive power field was convinced that a cheaper form of power existed and if found, could be successfully adapted to main-line service.

CN's Vice-President of Operations during the twenties, S. J. Hungerford, succeeding Sir Henry Thornton, who was then President, and C. E. Brooks, Chief of Motive Power and Rolling Stock were delegated to develop and adapt this new power concept to CN use.

UNITS FOUND

After much investigation, particularly in Sweden and Russia, where the units were found to be cumbersome, inefficient and unreliable, a clue to their success was discovered in the shops of William Beardmore Co., Glasgow, in the form of a light aero engine. Although the British Air Ministry was experimenting with it for airship adaptation, it did offer definite conversion possibilities. It was bought and shipped to Canada.

From this chance find was born North America's well known self-propelled car, the world renowned CN No. 15820, which changed Railway history. On a trial run from Montreal to Vancouver, November 1, 1925, it completed the 2837 miles in 67 hours without either stopping the engine or developing appreciable trouble. Having proved to themselves and to the railway industry that Rudolf Diesel's idea of ignition by compression in the form of a locomotive could be a success, Hungerford and Brooks undertook to develop an enlarged and more powerful version of the 200-horsepower car in the form of a 2660 h.p. fully independent power unit, a unit which the Railway industry had been seeking for over a quarter of century.

At Montreal, work orders for the locomotive were quickly drawn up. William Beardmore and Company designed and built the engines and the mechanical parts were the joint design of Canadian National, Westinghouse, Baldwin and the Commonwealth Steel Company. Canadian Locomotive Co. Kingston, Ont., assembled the locomotives.

It was from the latter company less than a year before, that the first of over 300 famed northern-type steam locomotives for Canadian National started its thunder off the property and placed in dual high speed service. Excellent examples of this type of locomotive will be on display during Railway week in Belleville.

SMALL ARMY

For weeks before the delivery date a small army of Canadian National mechanical officers, distributor representatives, and builders' inspectors swarmed around, through and between the various part of the new titan of the rails. Promptly at seven-o'clock on the morning of November 23, 1926, three years after the successful trip of car No. 15820, the veil of secrecy which had been drawn around the new method of propulsion since construction started a year before, was lifted and the first of the two units, No. 9000, growled out of the Kingston plant and was taken delivery of by CN officials. Gleaming in her new coat of green paint with gold striping, she was indeed a locomotive which not only marked another Canadian National contribution in the locomotive field, but was, as well, the most powerful and first diesel locomotive in North America designed for main line operation. Ironically, its appearance was exactly one hundred and one years after George Stephenson's "Rocket" started the English countryside by thundering along two miles of track at a speed of 29 miles per hour. The age of steam was then born; it lasted but a century.

Leaving Kingston that day, No. 9000 went to Belleville, pulling a dynamometer car and a caboose.

The following morning it was ordered eastbound for a freight service test of about 45 loads to the now defunct Turcot yards and roundhouse, a distance of 222 miles. The morning of its test was ended with the temperature hovering around the 30's. Minor trouble occurred shortly after the test run commenced when a fuel pipe broke and was temporarily repaired. Approaching Montreal, it was necessary to cool down the front No. 1 wheel journal on the front truck. The trouble was permanently rectified upon arrival at Turcot by relieving some of the weight distribution from this area of the locomotive.

RELEASED

After minor alterations at the builders' plant, No. 9000 was released during the first week of December and operated in passenger service between Toronto and London, until Unit No. 9001 was received during the latter part of the same month.

Upon its arrival at Montreal, both were then coupled and officially known as a V-1-A Class Locomotive. Coupling was achieved much the same way as the old drawbar type used between a steam locomotive and tender. When it was desired to operate the units independently, special 9001 number plates were placed over one of the two Units. Before a publicity program was announced, both were operated extensively in freight service between Toronto and Niagara Falls.

The time had now come to use the locomotive on an official run. During August 1929, they were sent to the Point St. Charles Shops at Montreal and placed in readiness. It was decided that the articulated type locomotive would pull the second section of No. 3, "The International Limited", operating between Montreal and Chicago, as far as Toronto.

Making all regular stops, it was felt that this run would be an exacting one and would determine their true worth.

Precisely at 10:30 a.m. on the morning of August 26, the second section, following thirty-minutes behind the regular, pulled out of the once historic Bonaventure Station with a consist of a combination baggage and smoking car, day coach, three solarium club observation cars and two business cars, representing a total weight of 663 tons. On board were dignitaries and press representatives.

FLAWLESS

During the 334-mile trip of flawless performance, speeds went as high as 80 mph. Average speed over a five - mile stretch was 75 mph, and over a 10-mile area 70 mph. Had there been any strong head wind, it is possible these speeds could have been exceeded. Near Toronto, the train had to wait for a short time because it was running close to the regular train. Upon arrival at Toronto's Union Station, after a seven hour and forty minute run which included thirteen stops, some as long as eight minutes, the special left an hour later and was at the centre of attraction at the Toronto Exhibition which was located just outside the City proper. It was a strange coincidence that the day of its appearance marked the close of Highway and Automotive Day.

The press was enthusiastic about the locomotive. The Rotor, Globe called the 4-8-2 - 2-8-4 wheel arrangement locomotive a tremendous success. The Virginian Pilot said the locomotive "threatens to seriously interrupt the growing electrification of the World's railroads" and the Wichita Eagle headlined it would not be surprised to see this new type of locomotive "the next form of motive power to come". The News Journal of Chicago said that "for years the railways have been looking forward to the time when they could use such a locomotive, and they have found it", the paper said.

After its official run, No. 9000 was used during 1930-31 in regular passenger service between Montreal and Toronto and on October 17, 1939, was retired. In 1941, No. 9000, the single unit, was commissioned by the Canadian Government, rebuilt at the Transcona Shops in Winnipeg, camouflaged as a boxcar, and it served as a power unit as part of a special defence train in Western Canada during the war. After the end of hostilities, it was placed back in passenger service and operated between Quebec City and Edmundston, N.B., until May 20, 1946, when it was retired. A short time later, the second unit - 9001 - was also retired.

There is no doubt that No. 9000 was a tremendous and instant success despite some minor weaknesses. Electrically, the 2660 h.p. locomotive was so advanced as present day units. While a better electrical control system, wheel slip detection improvements and a greatly improved transmission system are now in use, it is interesting to note that the basic design of today's unit has changed very little from the world's first prototype.

BOILER

Statistically, No. 9000 weighed 420,000 lbs. of which 400,000 lbs. were carried on the driving wheels. It consisted essentially of an engine generator mounted on a locomotive frame, boiler equipment for heating passenger coaches, four traction motors, air brake equipment and other auxiliary equipment.

The unit weighed 384 tons and measured 94'1". The power, developed by the engine, was converted into electrical energy by the generator and transmitted to four traction motors geared to the driving axles. With the gear ratio arranged for high speed passenger service, the locomotive could develop a traction effort of 125,000 lbs. during accelerating periods and 42,000 lbs. continuously.

Each of the units had a twelve-cylinder and oil-cooled solid injection type, 12-inch bore and 12-inch stroke. The nominal rating of the engine was 1320 h.p. at 800 rpm. It could be started by power taken from a storage battery on the locomotive, using the main generator as a motor.

Engine cooling was accomplished by circulating the engine cooling water through radiators of the honeycomb type which were mounted on the locomotive roof. Lubricating - oil cooling was effected by circulation through tubular finned units mounted on the roof. Radiator blower motors were controlled by separate thermostats in the oil and water to maintain desirable operating temperatures for each.

HEAT SAVING

Exhaust gases were directed to an economizing boiler which was located in the cab and discharged to the atmosphere at a reduced temperature. The heat saving in the exhaust gas was sufficient to heat a passenger train. The main frame of each unit consisted of a single Commonwealth cast which supported the engine, boiler casing, brackets, air duct, brake hangers. The four and two-wheel truck frames were also of the Commonwealth type. The two-wheel trucks, journals were waste-packed and oil-distributed while those of the four wheel trucks were of the outside bearing type, floating bushing and grease lubricated. Each unit carried 8000 lbs. of fuel oil, 11,700 lbs. of boiler water, 3000 lbs. of sand and 1000 lbs. of engine lubricating oil. Fuel supply was sufficient for a twelve-hour operation.

Comparing work output between No. 9000 and a 6000 series Mountain 4-8-2 Type CN locomotive of that day, the ratio averaged seven to one. Traction from peak speed to stop, and back to peak, was accomplished in less than half the distance required for a steam locomotive, and No. 9000 cut the need for water during summer from 20,000 gallons on a 334-mile run to a small amount for cooling the engines only, not to mention the many greatly improved working conditions. Locomotive operation and speed were controlled from either of two cabs which were located in separate compartments at the end of each unit. It is interesting to note that the engineer and helper sat in opposite locations to each other, a practice which lasted throughout the ex

Striving to Make Victoriana Contemporary

Canadian National long ago demonstrated it lacks neither the imagination, nor the initiative, to compete for its share of the money market. The popular Red, White and Blue coast to coast passenger fare plan is an example of this.

There are, however, other programs aimed at winning revenue back to the rails, such as the re-designed passenger equipment seen frequently in the Rideau Area between Montreal and Toronto. Following this are new color schemes for tickets, letterheads, forms, motor vehicles, freight equipment, signs station buildings, etc.

These new designs and colors are part of a co-ordinated program aimed at presenting a unified image of a modern versatile service company, constantly on the move.

Perhaps you have wondered about some of the stations within the Rideau Area now being revamped, such as at Belleville, Cobourg as well as at other points across the System.

Many of these buildings were constructed around the turn of the century. A period when Victorian influence on architecture was still very strong. Today, this ornamental style is out of tune with the times. Yet economically it is impossible to replace these stations with the airy structures which are so much a part of the modern scene.

Instead a carefully planned color scheme has done much to impart a contemporary appearance.

The new station color scheme is both utilitarian and esthetically pleasing. Charcoal grey is used as a base to mask much of the old-fashioned detail. Clean, simple lines formed by eaves and window frames are defined in crisp white accents. Interest is provided by painting doors in bright contemporary colors. Outbuildings, such as freight sheds and storage structures, being smaller and of simpler design than stations, are painted entirely in color to enliven the overall picture. Although the pattern is established, variations have been worked out to take advantage of the finer points of desirable architectural features and styles.

In time, more and more stations in the Rideau Area will be restyled — a potent reminder that a highly efficient travel and communications system operates behind the simple facade.

STILL WITH IT! — Joe Hunter, (right), president of the Belleville (CN) Pensioners' Association, talks over fare structure with passenger sales manager Ken Fleming. Pensioners play important subsidiary role in sales promotion . . . although retired. (See story elsewhere).

Western Trade With Reds Slowly Rising

PARIS (AP)—Western trade with Communist nations is slowly and steadily rising, but the Western embargo on exports of strategic items is holding firm, according to the International watchdog group which keeps a close eye on the exchanges.

Exports to the Soviet bloc and China made up 4.3 per cent of the West's total exports in 1961, the last full year for which figures are available. Imports from the Soviet bloc and China made up 3.9 per cent of the Western world's total in 1961. Both these figures are almost double the comparative 1953 figure.

Sources close to the 15-nation Co-ordinating Committee (called Cocom) for East-West Trade say that the controls over exports to the Communist nations are not intended to dampen international commerce.

"We are not waging economic warfare," said one informant. "The principal objective is to prevent the flow of strategic materials which could add to the ability of the Communist powers to wage war."

The hitch comes in the definition of strategic materials. For some items there is immediate unanimous agreement. For others, long and heated technical arguments consume days every year before a compromise is reached.

"If you wanted to carry it to the extreme, you could say that automobiles are a 'strategic item,'" explained one man who follows the work of the yearly review of the embargo lists.

"If the Russians didn't have any buttons, the soldiers might not be able to keep their pants up. But we aren't trying to prevent the export of buttons. We're aiming principally at slowing down the development of industries with a war potential."

The United States has been ranked by the sale of British buses and French locomotives to Cuba.

Nevertheless, the Coco manufactions—all the Atlantic Alliance members except Iceland but plus Japan—have agreed not to ship arms or implements of war to Cuba. Most of them have also taken measures to prevent transshipment of American goods to Cuba. But there has been little inclination to go any farther in clamping down on Cuba trade.

istence of the locomotive.

Why then were not more units similar to V-1-A built by CN. There are several reasons. The principal ones are that the early death of Mr. Brooks had much to do with further expansion. Construction costs in those days were another factor and since CN is a Crown Corporation, Government spending was very closely watched. Possibly, too, the feeling of Sir Henry Thornton who was then President, prevented a great drive of additional static or development, despite his enthusiastic backing of the locomotive itself. In an address to a group of fuel engineers at Chicago in 1939, after the No. 9000 had been operated on Second No. 15, he said: "I will not in any sense make the prediction that the diesel locomotive will supplant the steam locomotive for either yard or main line service." If development had been allowed and more units built, the feeling is that CN might have been the first large Northern American Railway to be fully dieselized, and that as early as 1940. The thirty-second diesel locomotive to be built in North America remained shelved until 1939 when a number of locomotive builders made serious attempts to convince the railway industry of their economic advantages, despite a cost of $100. per diesel horsepower as compared to $35. for steam power. The result is now well known history.

With the second round of dieselization now making its debut, it will be interesting to see how long it lasts in this day and age of rapid improvements in railway motive power. Already other forms of power are giving strong threats to the diesel. Canadian National may yet develop a new form of motive power and once again, set another first.

Finding Identification For a Railroad System

In April 1962, Canadian National Railways' Public Relations department got the results of a public attitudes study conducted the previous summer. This survey confirmed that Canadians have a poor impression of the railway industry. Those interviewed rated it low on progressiveness. Specifically, they thought railways were slow about experimenting with new methods or services. They also gave railways few marks for any real effort to better their performance or improve their service to the public.

The survey's findings made it clear that Canadian National was getting little credit publicly for the billion dollars it had invested since 1950 in modernizing its equipment and methods. This investment is reflected in such improvements as dieselization, centralized traffic control, new microwave facilities, Telex communications, integrated data processing, training programs, modern electronic hump yards and other innovations.

Major speeches by the President and other senior officers, the Annual Report and dozens of publicity releases are full of references to this sort of progress. Why then did the public look upon CN as old fashioned and backward, about trying to find new and better ways of doing things?

According to Charles Harris, Director of CN's Department of Public Relations, "A large part of the answer can be summed up in the slogan, 'Seeing is believing'. Like an iceberg, CNR modernization lies mostly below the visible surface. Public attitudes or corporate images can't be changed just by telling people the opposite of what they believe.

"The trouble is, few outsiders ever get to inspect CN's IBM machines, CTC installations or other behind-the-scenes improvements. It's judged by what people see, and unfortunately many of its external appearances are drab, colorless and out of style with the times. A company's reputation isn't based on appearances alone, but the way it dresses itself is certainly a major factor. About 85 percent of a person's awareness is of what's going on around him comes in him through his eyes."

Management decided to undertake a co-ordinated program of visual redesign for Canadian National.

New Company Trademark

The first step was the development of a new company trademark.

James Valkus and Associates, an industrial design firm, was selected as design consultants to work under the direction of the Public Relations Department and in consultation with a committee representing other interested departments. Allan Fleming of Toronto, a top graphics designer, was assigned the biggest task in the first phase of the program — development of the new symbol for Canadian National to replace the traditional maple leaf and square.

The visual redesign program was set up to extend to every area of CN operations. Its main task was to tell the people that Canadian National is as modern a method as can be found for moving men, materials and messages promptly and efficiently from place to place — and to leave this concept of the modern Canadian National in the public mind.

The designers were asked to create a symbol that would be expressive of the system as a whole, that would emphasize that Canadian National, in addition to being a railway, is many more things as well. A symbol that would readily lend itself to the needs of all the company's major divisions: railways, hotels, transport, communications, marine and so on. This led to the conclusion that the trademark should be built around, or incorporate, the letters CN rather than CNR.

Another consideration here was that "CN" is bilingual; "CNR" is not — the "R" has meaning only in English; in French "railway" becomes "chemin de fer".

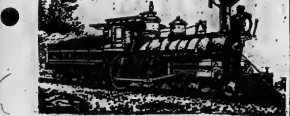
The result is a trademark with clean, flowing lines, reflecting a modern company on the move.

Soon after the new symbol was approved by CN's management board, it began to make its appearance across Canada, wherever the Canadian National name is seen: on redesigned diesel locomotives, "freight cars, trucks, ferries and other marine equipment," stations and other buildings, menus, mailing pieces, labels, tickets, letterheads, soap wrappers, signs, telegram blanks, the annual report. New symbols also have been designed for the Grand Trunk Western and the Central Vermont Railway, two U.S. subsidiaries of Canadian National.

New Look in New Colors

Along with the flowing CN goes an alphabet which will be standard throughout the system, a style of lettering and spacing that will be recognizable as Canadian National for all departments, whether it is the identification of a hotel, by an electric sign on the roof, a telegram blank, a letterhead, a station name or a ticket.

But the symbol is only part of the visual redesign program. The new look is seen in new colors: in the orange nose and black and white diagonal stripes of the diesel, in the new standard orange of all trucks, in the basic color schemes for stations and other buildings. Exteriors and interiors of passenger cars are being redesigned for a fresh new appearance, simple clean and smart.



The changes do not take place over night. The big white CN on the box car does not replace the maple leaf until the car is in the shop for a repaint job. New style locomotives, piggyback trailers, trucks, stations, do not make their appearance until they are scheduled for repainting. Some changes are still being studied, such as uniforms.

Enough has been seen, however, to catch the public's imagination, to make travelers and shippers realize that the Canadian National is not still chugging along in the era of the steam locomotive. Employee morale has been given a lift, too. There is a new pride in the organization among railroaders, telecommunications and hotel employees. They have eagerly responded to the program, coming up with ideas of their own.

"Good design needn't be more expensive than poor design: in fact it's often cheaper," says Charles Harris. "Substantial savings may be realized through simplifying the designs and stencils used in the repainting of equipment." With employees becoming design-conscious, and therefore eager to streamline operations, economies sound result. Indeed, savings have already been made in getting rid of unnecessary forms, and simplifying new ones. An example is in the reduction in tickets where nine new forms have replaced over 200 old ones.

BIRTH RATE

Births in Britain are likely to exceed 1,000,000 a year in the 1970s. There were 867,000 in 1963.

Pensioners Make the Best Boosters!

SALESMEN are Bill Michaud, (seated) and Bob Muir, of the Pensioners' group, outlining fare plans and benefits of railroad travel to prospective customers.

Once a railroader, always a railroader.

This familiar expression is particularly true at Belleville, where 325 members of the Canadian National Railways Pensioners' Association (Canara Club) meet regularly to discuss, among other things, how to boost CN to their friends and casual acquaintances.

Ken Fleming, passenger sales manager of the Rideau Area, says the veterans' work as unpaid ambassadors of the railway is simply amazing. "Last summer," he said, "the boys brought in nearly $5,000 worth of business by simply mentioning, at the right time, our new train services and conducted tours which were available."

Joe Hunter, a former passenger conductor and president of the district branch, says that informing local community clubs and reminding friends of the new fares and modernized equipment in service is always well received and, more often than not, leads to sales. "Of course," he says, "most of us belong to one club or another and in this way we never miss an opportunity of spreading the new CN image to those sitting next to us."

Steve Garvin, who sold Canada Savings Bonds last year, said that a casual mention of the new Red, White and Blue plan was not only welcome, but in many cases led to requests for more detailed information as well as for copies of the plan calendar.

The hospital is also a good place to visit, according to Newt Thompson. "Nurses," he says, "are always on the go, either home for weekends or to Toronto for shopping, and letting them know of frequent train services never does any harm."

A sure-fire way of bringing friends up to date; according to Bert Berry, is to mention to those who drop in for an evening's chatter what the CN is doing, to attract passengers. "Surprisingly," he says, "they listen and, quite frequently, they'll say that a friend of theirs is going to such and such a place and would be very interested in one of the new travel plans."

Once a sale looks reasonably definite, the matter is then handed over to either Ken Fleming or the station ticket agent. "Often," says Ken, "a customer's original plan is enlarged upon, and if he's going to a convention lasting several days he will bring his wife."

The local district club was formed in 1957 at the suggestion of a retired conductor, 88-year-old Tony Hallman, to Joseph Phalen. "In those days, Joe says, "36 of us used to meet in a railway coach parked near the station. Today we gather in a modern two-storey brick building with a banquet hall — Club Canara."

Over 600 active members belong to the Belleville branch of Canara which extends from Cornwall to Oshawa. Many of the Belleville members, whose length of service ranges from 40 to 49 years, third generation residents, and all are active in community undertakings.

Their advice to employees active to retire — "Keep busy and don't sit down." From "Keeping Track" — CN employees magazine.)

The Congo - - 4 Years Later

Faint Signs of Maturity

By LYNN HEINZERLING

LEOPOLDVILLE (AP)—The Congo is showing the first faint signs of approaching maturity.

After four years of adolescent economic and political excesses, bloody tribal hostilities and cheek backwardness, there may be a little something to celebrate June 30—the fourth anniversary of the Congo's independence from Belgian rule.

It is by no means certain. The most optimistic and knowing observers here hedge a little when they look into the Congo's immediate future.

But the vast international effort led by the United Nations to pacify and put this sprawling, undisciplined nation on its feet is beginning to have some impact. By June 30, the UN will have withdrawn the remaining 4,000 UN soldiers, including 266 Canadians, from The Congo.

Gen. Joseph Mobutu and his Congolese National Army of 22,000 men then will face the unruly tribes, the angry insurgents of Katanga and a growing conspiracy of Communist China alone.

DANGERS AHEAD

There are dangers and difficulties ahead. The Congolese are near exhaustion from inflation, privation and sheer emotionalism. The most immediate and alarming threat at present is the determined effort by Peking and Moscow to keep The Congo in turmoil through subversion and guerrilla activities.

The Red Chinese are supporting a group of disgruntled, power-seeking Congolese politicians known collectively as the Committee of National Liberation.

Pierre Mulele, who served as minister of education in the disastrous 1960 government of Premier Patrice Lumumba and later studied in Peking, is the best known of these politicians. He has led a campaign of hut-burning, pillage and bloodshed in Kwilu province, which has tied up some of the Congo's best troops.

This campaign now has spread to the Coquilhatville region in the old province of Equateur and to the Bukavu area in the far eastern reaches of The Congo. A wide campaign to keep The Congo unsettled and off balance seems to be in progress.

UN military experts here do not think these Communist-supported guerrillas could take the entire Congo. But they could greatly complicate the holding of a national referendum on the new Congolese constitution as planned within the next month or two. Under the new constitution, general elections would be scheduled nine or 10 months later.

The Congo is potentially a rich and powerful African nation, but it can not move forward in the present atmosphere. Exports are up about 15 per cent this year and efforts to halt the inflationary spiral through devaluation and a rigid wage freeze are having some effect.

SALARIES FIRST

There remains the unhappy circumstance that about 50 per cent of the budget goes to meet government salaries and wages and not into national development.

But no new money has been printed for three months. And Congolese authorities are getting the diamond - smuggling trade under control.

Politically, the future of The Congo is cloudier. No political leader with a truly national following has emerged from the disorder, assassination, tribal fighting and governmental inaction which followed independence in 1960.

Under the new constitution, a president with strong executive powers will be elected. The only political leader in The Congo who even remotely approaches that prescription is the present premier, Cyrille Adoula. And Adoula has no real political foundation. Given an improving economic climate, Adoula might be able to form a national following strong enough to swing the election. Many Western diplomats here favor him for the post.

On the fringes of the Congolese political picture is the shadow of Moise Tshombe, the sulking, self - exiled political leader of Katanga, who tried to make Katanga an independent state and was frustrated by the UN. Now living in Spain, Tshombe still is a political force in Katanga.

UNEMPLOYMENT DOWN — Canada's unemployed declined 110,000 from mid-April to mid-May. With increased seasonal job activity, unemployment figures declined to 293,000 from 403,000 over the month-long period. The Dominion Bureau of Statistics and the federal labor department said this figure was 53,000 less than in May, 1963 and the lowest for May since 1957.

Graph shows monthly totals, including persons without jobs and looking for work, and those on temporary layoff.

'Deliver the Goods Fast, Fast, Fast!'

The slow and easy roll of the newly painted caboose brings a quick response from the conductor.

An instinctive glance from his desk to the rear of the car reveals the fading lights of Montreal Yard. He picks up the radio-telephone. "Let her roll," he signals the engine man. "We're on the main line."

It is 12:13 a.m. and Canadian National "piggyback" No. 301, the fastest scheduled freight train in Canada — according to current world-wide freight and passenger speed survey conducted by Trains magazine — is beginning to burn up the 337 miles to its destination at Toronto. Silhouetted against the white glow of Montreal Yard's lights are the 71 track trailers that are rolling over a steel highway that night.

About a mile ahead in the locomotive cab, the engineman pumps sand to get better traction on the slippery rails. He gently eases back the throttle to third notch on one of three 1800 hp "3100" series diesel locomotive units.

After terminal "clearances" are picked up from the station agent at nearby Dorval, it isn't long before the speedo-meter needle passes 40, then 55, then levels off around the 70 mph mark. A quick train and engine crew change "on the fly" at Brockville is the only scheduled stop for the roller bearing-equipped freight train before it reaches the Ontario capital, for it stops for no one and nothing, other than restrictions, as it barrels through the still night.

Train 301's swift and carefully controlled night passage between Canada's two largest cities is another example of emphasized strict adherence to "on time" performance to make absolutely sure that fast freight trains get over the line without undue delays.

"No. 301 is given such high priority," the conductor says, "that it often passes the overnight Inter-City Limited along the way."

Inside the 2341-ton consist are packaged freight shipments in the equipment of twelve transport companies as well as from CN's Express-Freight department. They range from animal foods to zinc oxide.

Here's a typical flyer log:

1:23 — Cornwall.

2:10 — Prescott. Mail train from Toronto rears by.

2:15 — Brockville. (crew change).

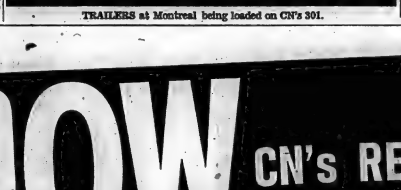
3:15 — Speed reduction passing Kingston.

3.39 — Meet No. 390 on its way to Montreal.

4:13 — Belleville and a wave to the operator.

5.45 — Oshawa.

6:10 — Reach the outskirts of Toronto.



Upon arrival at Toronto, (Bathurst) a few minutes later, 301's trailers are immediately unloaded and picked up by waiting tractors which hustle them to their metropolitan destinations. The merchandise in many of the vans will be on sale the same morning.

Because of No. 301's 65-car limit, an advance section was added to the service in 1958. It picks up traffic from CN piggyback ramps at intermediate points between Montreal and Toronto, and carries trailers for such other centres as Hamilton, London and Sarnia.

And, like their sister trains, Advance 300 and No. 300 running in the opposite direction, Advance 301 and No. 301 run five nights a week — regardless of weather conditions.

"Trains" magazine based their findings on 301's schedule between Brockville and Belleville, a distance of 93.5 miles. The train averaged 53.4 mph in 105 minutes. Fastest Freight train in the world belongs to the U.S.

The shipping list of firms sending their products on Train 301 reads like the Canadian Trade Index, the official register of Canadian industry — emphasizing again how piggyback service has come to be one of the most successful new service introduced by Canadian National in recent years.

Some Hints on Improving Your Ability to Speak Well

By FRANK SULLIVAN

HALIFAX (CP) — Almost everyone has the basic ability to speak well but "good sweating work" is also needed if you're going to improve your speech, says Jenny Archibald, drama adviser for the Nova Scotia education department.

"You can't get a pill, swallow it and expect to speak well."

The best way to learn good speech habits, she says, is to consult a speech specialist. This is particularly true if you are thinking of a career where effective speaking is especially important — theatre, politics, law.

But if you want to improve without the help of a specialist, you can "learn to listen."

Pick someone whose speech you admire — a television announcer or perhaps an actor or actress—and "listen hard and try to emulate same."

Miss Archibald, who also instructs classes in speech technique, emphasizes that "motivation is the basis of all education," and therefore the desire to speak well is particularly important.

GIVES CONFIDENCE

The advantages are obvious, even if your field isn't one where speech habits are evident to a large audience. In personal and business relations, for example, a person who speaks clearly gives his listener a sense of confidence in him.

And when you know you're giving others this sort of feeling, the chances are you'll be more self-confident as well, an asset whether you're a salesman or an office boy trying to work your way up.

Miss Archibald says adults have a duty to set an example for young people by showing an appreciation of the beauty of language.

Teachers can do much by making students aware of how attractive good speech can be but "I'm sorry to say this isn't being done."

With a bachelor's degree in music and experience in teaching and drama in addition to acting and directing herself, Miss Archibald feels good conversational speech is an advantage for singers because it is likely to be translated into good diction in singing.

Containerization

Research Yields New Departures for Rolling Stock

Containerization in Canada is going through a series of new and important developments.

One of the pioneers in containerization design and development is Canadian National Railways, a system whose lines cover half the continent.

The headquarters research and development department does the work of general co-ordination across the system but most of the field tests are carried out in Canada's Atlantic provinces. There are two basic reasons for this:

Most tests are conducted on the train-ship-train service between mainland Canada and the island province of Newfoundland. In this way, containers can be examined for success under both land and sea conditions.

Because of the dual transfer of goods between the mainland and Newfoundland (from mainland train to ship, and from ship to the narrow-gauge Newfoundland trains) containers which prove successful have the greatest immediate economic application in this area.

Several CN innovations in container design and construction have reached fruition in recent years. One of the first was Canada built primarily for the transport of fresh fish from Atlantic and Pacific ports to central Canada.

The Canex container is of aluminium construction, 35½ X31 X 34 inches and is a product of CN's research and development department. Inside the box, six cooling plates, containing an eutectic solution cover all exposed areas: the four sides, top and bottom. These plates, coupled with thick insulation built into the Canex box construction, maintain the fish at a temperature of 29.5 degrees F., the correct temperature to maximize the fresh flavor of the fish. This temperature is important for Canex is designed to carry fresh fish, not "frozen", or so-called "fresh frozen" fish.

Canadian National maintains ownership of the Canex containers leasing them to the fisherfor. All that is required of the shipper is the pre-cooling of the fresh fish and freezing of the eutectic plates. No further, special handling is needed of the containers.

In addition to the transportation of fresh fish, other uses have been found for Canex containers. Aluminum rivets, for instance, have travelled by Canex since the container is able to keep the rivets at a cool temperature, essential if they are to retain full ductility. Yeast is another commodity to use Canex, and freshly-cut flowers another.

In the way of a paradox, Canex is not being used now for the transport of fish. A steady supply of fresh fish has become hard to obtain and it is possible that Canex is premature for the fresh fish market.

Tri-milk, a milk by-product, forms the bulk of Canex shipments today. Shipped out of Charlottetown, P.E.I., tri-milk travels by Canex to points throughout Newfoundland.

Three years ago, CN cooperated on a limited scale with a private industry which developed a 20-foot van-sided highway-railway container. This container had two inherent advantages: it was demountable from a highway delivery truck chassis and stood on its own legs. Removal of the container freed the truck for other duties. The other advantage involved the transfer of the loaded container from the truck to a specially-equipped railway flat car. With the aid of an hydraulic system, the container, aligned at an angle to a flat car, can be pushed onto a turntable device located on the flat car. Once aboard the turntable, the container is swung into its proper position on the car and locked. With practice, the entire operation can be completed within five minutes.

The process of moving goods across the Cabot Strait, from North Sydney N.S. on the mainland to Port aux Basques, Nfld. has been made very costly by the need for dual transfer. Until recently, railway cars were loaded at the beginning of the trip and unloaded at North Sydney. The shipments were then stowed aboard ships, taken out at Port aux Basques, and reloaded in Newfoundland railway cars.

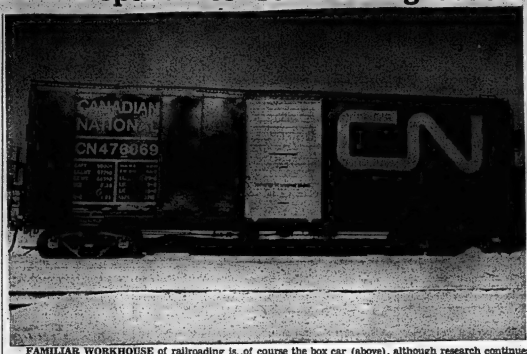
That containerization applied to this service would greatly alleviate the problem was early recognized by CN's research and development department. When the M. V. William Carson was built in 1953, she was designed to carry containers and she was certainly one of the earliest "container ships" in the world. However, the original semi-live containers especially designed for the service were at first only used for the ocean voyage. It recently became evident that the system could be profitably extended on the railway at both ends, so a new and more modern all-steel container was designed, 10 ft. long six ft., eight ins. wide and eight ft., four ins. high. Five prototype units were built, each with a carrying capacity of 10,000 pounds. Because transfer was required between flat car and ship, mobility of the container was essential.

CN research engineers equipped the new, all-steel prototypes with two longitudinal legs, or skids. A dolly with a pair of small wheels at one end was designed to slip under the slightly raised container. As a result, when the wheel-less end of the dolly was raised by a fork-lift truck the entire container became mobile.

Commenting on the "wheelbarrow" apparatus, Harold C. T. Boyd, CN's Chief of Special Research Projects and co-ordinator of the company's containerization devel., says "the idea is so simple, it almost borders on the ridiculous. Yet the amazing part is that this simple device works, and works effectively."

The five prototype all-steel containers have proved to be so successful, that CN is having others built, for the movement of less-than-carload express freight traffic between the mainland and Newfoundland.

Similar success is being obtained from the testing of four refrigerated containers in the Newfoundland service.



The refrigerated models, constructed of aluminum, hold about 4,000 pounds in beef quarters, or 10,000 pounds of small goods that can be tightly packed.

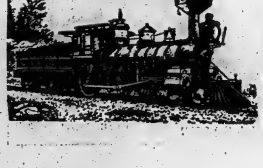
Developed by CN, the containers ride four on a flat car. Specially built generators attached to the centre of the car keep the containers' integral electric refrigeration systems operating. The containers are hooked into the William Carson's electrical system when taken aboard. They can also be plugged into any ordinary 220-volt, three-phase 60-cycle circuit.

The Newfoundland trips follow a series of dry and full runs over shorter distances in the Maritimes so that CN researchers could check the equipment, built for the railway by a private contractor. As expected, they found several "bugs", but these have now been successfully eliminated. For instance, the containers originally had bare aluminum walls inside. Meat, rubbing against them, sometimes picked up black marks so the walls were panelled with plywood. Similarly it was found that the iron hooks which suspended the meat from the overhead bars wore against this aluminum, and brought a shower of fine, metallic particles down on the beef. The bars were covered with nylon and the trouble eliminated.

CN says the containers could be used to haul any type of perishable traffic — meat, fish, fruits or farm produce — not only in its Newfoundland service, but on the mainland as well.

Field tests on the refrigerated containers, successful to date are nearing completion.

FAMILIAR WORKHOUSE of railroading is, of course the box car (above), although research continues to yield new results in freighting. Among the latest (below) are new all steel containers for mainland - Newfoundland service being fastened to flat car.



Piggyback, too, is another technique involved in converting the terminal-to-handle this extended form of containerization and in trailers — could travel through this field CN recently completed CN's St. Clair River tunnel, linking Sarnia, Ont., with Port of testing of bogieless piggyback Huron, Michigan. The tests trailers.

Prime concern of the tests proved that this could be done, was to establish physically if but because of the expense in- of gantry cranes, augmenting the company's existing trailer fleet, etc. — the system is being held in abeyance until a better market for it becomes available.

Not all experiments in containerization proved to be welcome holes of success. The public is of being first sometimes has to be paid.

"It is better," says Mr. Boyd, "to go right ahead in a small way and conduct what one might call experimental operations. Some will be successes and some will be failures. We should be able to learn from our failures just as much as we do from our successes." As organization, active as it may be in its research and development, cannot afford to put all its eggs in one basket, or container. "After all," he says, "Canadian National already has more than 95,000 containers on its Canadian lines. We call them freight cars."

DRAWLING BEES

LONDON (CP) — Conservative MP Sir John Maitland says the $7,000 bees he imported from the U.S. for his garden near Spilsby are definitely from Texas because "they buzz with a drawl."

How good are your pictures? How good could they be? Here are some pointers from Canadian National Railways' photographers to help change your shots from average to excellent.

Taking good pictures depends on many things. There are, however, certain basic rules that, if observed, will improve all your prints and slides.

Rule number one — people. Some photographers say to include them always; others say that it depends on the picture. Most are inclined towards the latter view. If there is enough activity in the scene — a lot of trees, boats on a lake and so on — then they can be omitted. A good way to make scenic shots more attractive, however, is by the inclusion of someone in them (and a scene is always more meaningful to you if there is someone in it you know).

A person in a photo draws the eye towards the central theme of the picture. A person can be looking at something you want to emphasize, for example, as long as the back is not turned towards the camera. Or you can use a person to contrast the size of something, like a particularly big tree or mountain. The idea to keep in mind when you are considering composition is to lead the eye to a definite focal point in the picture. This can be done effectively by using a row of trees running towards the main object, or have a tree branch frame a subject. Many wedding photos are taken this way.

If it's a close-up, throw in more sky than usual — this will make your look down to the subject. Anything that will automatically draw the viewer's eye to the main subject of the picture is useful. In other words, avoid distracting objects in your pictures.

Filters can do a lot to make your pictures more professional looking. A filter should always be used in bright sunlight for it makes outlines clearer. A K-2 with black and white film is useful and for color shots, a haze or skylight filter should be used.

Amateur shutter-bugs often wonder how to take good flash pictures with color film and have the color appear true. With daylight film, the most popular of the color films, use blue bulbs or a conversion filter with clear bulbs. Either will give you the same effect.

For outdoor shots, the sun is the best bet. Many people are leery of taking shots facing into the sun because of fear of failure. The important thing to remember is that if you are taking a picture facing the sun, either include the whole sun or none of it. If you just get a portion of it at the edge of your picture, it will result in a flare effect in your picture. Most cameras come equipped with a coated lens which will reduce the glare of the sun.

Bob Boden, supervisor of still photography at CN's photographic services, says, "When you are facing the sun, use twice as much exposure as you would ordinarily.

If you don't, your picture will have a bluish cast, the reason being that, since you are facing the shadow, the only illumination they have is from the blue sky. This results in a picture tinged in blue.

If you do want to use a flash outdoors, either to eliminate a shadow or create a moon, don't use the flash too close to your subject. It will overpower the sun as well as spoil your effect."

What you take is as important as how you take it. This can often pose a problem if you are visiting a strange city for the first time. Browse through the postcard racks where you are staying, or at the local drugstore for ideas on places which are of most interest, as well as the best angles from which to take pictures of these noteworthy spots. Look through the color transparencies they have for sale, too. It's usually worth a dollar or two to pick up extra special slides to supplement your own efforts.

If you are planning to travel by rail this summer, CN offers a number of hints for picture taking from the wide window of a railway coach.

The majority of these suggestions are for adjustable cameras, although many of them are applicable to cameras with fixed lens and apertures.

If you have an adjustable camera, check the light intensity with your light meter whenever you have the opportunity.

By setting your camera at a general reading ahead of time, you have only to aim and "fire".

If you come upon a scene you want to shoot. Guidebooks placed in CN trains often give advance notice of particularly fine upcoming scenery.

Most railway car windows have a double pane of glass. To avoid reflections, hold your camera as close to the window as possible, but be careful not to touch it. Shoot through the window at an angle, never straight out.

Even though your car will be air-conditioned, your camera and film are extremely sensitive to heat and you should never leave them on the seat in direct sunlight. When not in use, put your camera under the seat, away from sun.

To photograph subjects close to the right-of-way, set your camera at a fast shutter speed For more distant subjects, a slightly slower speed may be used. You can prevent blurring in your pictures by always shooting with the train direction, not at a 90-degree angle to its movement.

If possible, try not to use a tripod. They conduct vibrations from the car body to your camera. To obtain a steady picture, hold the camera firmly in your hands, using your arms as support again. your body Keep your feet apart and your body away from the side of the car.

A good idea is to arrange photo coverage of your trip in sequence. This will give continuity to your shots. Have someone take your picture as you board the train. At stops along the line, add photos of the stations, making sure their names appear in the pictures. This will help you to identify your pictures when you return home and show off your vacation slides and prints to your friends.

There's all kinds of scenery to shoot between stops!

Household hints: When doing the dishes, put a piece of lemon peel into the dish pan or sink. . . . It will soften the water, remove stale food odors, and put a fine gloss on china.

Odd legislation: In Connecticut it once was a misdemeanor to chew tobacco without a doctor's permit.

Folkjore: If a girl pins a four-leaf clover over her door, the first bachelor who enters is the man she'll marry. . . . To get rid of freckles, go to a brook, catch a frog alive and rub him across your face. . . . Say the Lord's Prayer backwards out loud and you will see the devil

Exit lines: Joan of Arc cried amid the flames: "JESUS! Jesus! Jesus! Blessed be God" . . . . Pericles concluded: "I have never caused any citizen to put on mourning on my account.". . . And Machiavelli said: "I love my country more than my soul"

NEED BUILDING

ST. ALBERT, Alta. (CP)—Members of the Western Canada Historical Institute have everything they need except money to build a $300,000 museum here. Land for the project has been provided here by the Oblate Order, which has presided to museum officials its priceless archives, collected since 1845. If a building is completed.

Astrological Forecasts

By SYDNEY OMARR

"The wise man controls his destiny . . . Astrology points the way."

Aries (Mar. 21 - Apr. 19): You seek beauty, understanding and pitfalls. But those in a position to give may appear reluctant. Be philosophical. You are being appreciated. Don't go overboard on luxury items.

Taurus (Apr. 20 - May 20): If you demand too much, there is apt to be disillusionment. Seek basic qualities, needs . . . appreciate what is close, available. Then the "big" things will come naturally.

Gemini (May 21 - June 20): Have faith in own ideas. Dress than up, prepare format, presentation. Leave nothing to chance. Be critical. Analyze potential. Time now to plant seeds for future programs.

Cancer (June 21 - July 22): Added rest required. You will be called upon to expend energy — both physical and creative. Don't waste time, talent! Reward due. Your efforts would strike pay dirt!

Leo (July 23 - Aug. 22): Study all aspects of current situation. Make the most of opportunity. Don't be in too much of a hurry. Many watch to see if you are sincere. Set fine example. Raise personal level.

Virgo (Aug. 23 - Sept. 22): Light of greater understanding shines. Recent puzzles solved. Opportunity for new project appears. You may be handed difficult assignment. Don't hide head in sand! !

Libra (Sept. 23 - Oct. 22): Intuitive instinct serves well. Running from problem will not solve it. Solution found through process of experimentation. You are able to sense trends, potentials. Be adventurous!

Scorpio (Oct. 23 - Nov. 21): News due which will strengthen financial position. Follow through — set with confidence. Make or business partner to combine work with pleasure . . . and results will directly aid you!

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Cycle high. Your judgment concerning intricate details will prove accurate. Distend "given call" is made of tinsel. Your best course is to remain firmly on familiar ground.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 - Jan. 19): Overcome apprehensions. You will receive aid, make progress. Her, one who aided you in past. Includes signing of petition, if necessary. Day features change, travel, creative endeavors.

Aquarius (Jan. 20 - Feb. 18): Fulfill hopes, wishes. Do so by trying for greater domestic harmony. Make concessions. Display love. Don't permit false pride to result in way of ultimate happiness.

Pisces (Feb. 19 - Mar. 20): Deception may exist in connection with job. Get to heart of matter. Highlight truth. Be frank and you will receive answers. Co-operate in communicating. Accept added responsibility.

If today is your birthday . . . your creative energies make you an individual in the true sense. You would never be satisfied with a completely routine job or life.

General Tendencies: Cycle high for Sagittarius, Capricorn, Aquarius. Special word to Gemini: Do some basic research. Add to knowledge through written word.

SENDS WARNINGS

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal food and drug directorate has sent warnings to firms that were found to be selling milk or fruit juices in waxed cartons containing less than full measure. Health Minister Judy LaMarsh told the Commons Wednesday. She also said the directorate is making rechecks to ensure that the firms aren't returning to short measures.

3 Civil Rights Workers Vanish In Mississippi

Arrested for Speeding, Missing After Release

PHILADELPHIA, Miss. (AP) — Mystery deepened today into the strange disappearance of three young civil rights workers. They were last heard from Sunday night after paying a speeding fine in this east central Mississippi town.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation joined the state highway patrol pressed a search for the two white persons and a Negro part of the first wave of summer volunteers seeking to reform this state politically.

Missing were Andy Goodman, 20, and Mickey Schwerner, 24, both of New York. With them was James Chaney, 22-year-old Negro member of the Congress of Racial Equality from Meridian.

They came here Saturday for a week's training course for the Mississippi Freedom Summer Project in Oxford, Ohio. Other orientation centers spread over the state during the weekend to launch voter registration drives and advise Negro citizens of their rights.

Two brothers stopped the three Sunday and charged them with speeding. They were let go after being held in jail several hours. Cheney paid a $20 fine.

Sheriff's deputies said they detained the trio about 10:30 p.m. A spokesman for the Neshoba County sheriff's office said a report was filed and the workers "several blocks to make sure they got out of town all right."

The trio were passed without any sign of the trio, concern rose. Cries came from civil rights groups for a search.

FBI agents arrived in Philadelphia Monday night. In Washington, Edwin O. Guthman, justice department information officer, said the FBI was making a full probe of the "possibility that they are being held against their will — or that they are otherwise being deprived of their civil rights."

Perhaps English Are Stinkers But Pact Kept

By ED TREVIAK

BANFF, Alta. (CP)—It seems dangerous that a perfectly sound case for more biculturalism and bilingualism in Canada often is based on unfounded constitutional statements by French-Canadians, a leading political scientist said today.

Dr. Eugene Forsey, research director of the Canadian Labor Congress, said the British North America Act, basis of Canada's constitution, was drafted to create a strong centralized union and provided for only limited bilingualism and biculturalism.

"We English-Canadians may be stinkers about bilingualism and biculturalism," he told a closed meeting on problems of Canadian unity.

"I think we are certainly often foolish and narrow-minded about it, but accusing us of breaches of an agreement with no evidence, is not likely to make us more sensible or broader minded.

"It is more likely to make us angrier than a nest of hornets stirred up by a stick."

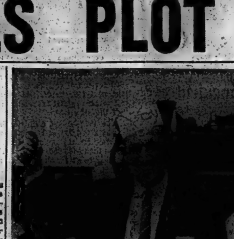
Lawyer To Probe Charges

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP) — Allegations that have rained down on the immigration department in recent weeks about the way some illegal immigrants have been treated are going to be collected and distilled by a prominent Toronto lawyer, the Commons was told Monday.

Joseph Sedgwick was handed the job by Justice Minister Favreau, who told him to go to work on all the allegations made in the Commons "or any other allegations relevant thereto." All charges that certain Greeks were unduly confined and sometimes deprived of legal advice, will come under the one-man scrutiny.



And if the inquiry indicates a need for deeper probing, Mr. Favreau indicated that this would be done. "I do not say this will be the final means to which the minister will resort" with the details of this problem."

Meanwhile, he gave Mr. Sedgwick plenty of elbow room for a wide-ranging study of the problem that has been raised. Immigration Minister Rene Tremblay through many question periods.

Apart from the specific charges referred to we should also like you to inquire into the general procedure now being followed in relation to the arrest, deportation and prosecution of persons who enter Canada or remain therein illegally," Mr. Favreau said in his letter to Mr. Sedgwick, read in the House. "Your assessment of the reasonableness and correctness of these procedures should be included in the report together with any recommendations which, in your view, should be adopted in this regard."

CENTRES IN TORONTO

Mr. Sedgwick's inquiry likely will start in Toronto where much of the controversy over the detention of aliens has been centred. There have been allegations that some of these persons have been held for long periods without access to legal advice. A few weeks ago, 17

CN RIDEAU AREA Manager K. E. Hunt gives the high sign to officially open Railway Week. At brief ceremony yesterday at CN station, Mr. Hunt welcomed visitors to the city and declared celebrations officially opened.

Railway Week Officially Opened by Area Manager; Many Visit Display Area

Railway Week got underway yesterday afternoon at the CN station as Rideau Area Manager K. E. Hunt welcomed visitors and declared Railway Week celebrations officially opened.

Following Mr. Hunt's brief remarks a long, loud blast of horns, rose from the diesel engines standing by. Joining in the chorus was the steamer, which had just returned to the station from its trip down Picnacle St.

The formalities over, members of the various news media, including newspaper, radio and television, were taken on a tour of the display area.

The display area features railway equipment both past and present, ranging from an ancient wood-burning locomotive to the latest in diesel engines equipment, and the post-passenger equipment recently put into service.

The display will be open daily throughout the week.

Representatives were present from The Ontario Intelligencer, Radio Station CJBQ, CKWS-TV, Kingston, CHEX-TV, Peterborough, the Kingston Whig-Standard and the Napanee Beaver.

To conclude the tour members of the press boarded a special train which took them to Anson Junction.

It didn't take long for press and radio reporters to discover that passenger comfort is No. 1 on the list in CN's drive to recapture some of the passenger trade lost to the automobile and airplane.

Riding in air conditioned comfort, press and radio representatives lolled back in comfy lounge chairs and watched the countside roll by.

And in the 20-mile jaunt out to Anson Junction which will be repeated many times this week for the benefit of school children, local CN officials made no mistake in what will be the first train experience for the majority of kiddies.

Peaceful pastures, rolling countryside and farmers at hay making operations, were a restful change from the clamor of city bustle and urban traffic jams.

The twice a day school children's train ride to Anson Junction and return has been sold out until Friday afternoon, and

Probe, Reason Unknown, Launched at Jail Here

An official investigation into reasons not revealed — has been launched at Hastings County jail.

The probe was confirmed today by county warden Tom Marsden.

County officials, however, would not reveal any details.

"There is an investigation being made by the Department of Reform Institutions with county officials co-operating," Mr. Barnside corroborated in a telephone interview from his hometown of Madoc. He refused to say any details forthcoming from the department in Toronto.

"The investigation has not been completed yet; it's a county matter", L. E. Hackl, executive assistant to deputy minister J. A. Graham, replied when reached at Queen's Park.

Mr. Hackl said the department's chief inspector of prisons, D. Dougall, was carrying out the inquiry — believed to have started late last week.

A formal inquiry was expected when two teenagers made a short-lived bid for freedom after escaping over jail walls June 11th. They were recaptured late by police.

However, Mr. Burnside was asked if the current investigations concerned more "than the breakout."

"Yes," he answered tersely.

He added further information might be forthcoming in "a day or two."

Parties Retain Seats

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Two federal byelections Monday left party representation in the House of Commons unchanged. A Liberal won in Nipissing and a Progressive Conservative in Saskatoon. Neither had any difficulty.

In the Northern Ontario constituency, long held for the Liberals by the late John Garland, Carl Tegerdi, 47-year-old Sturgeon Falls furniture dealer, defeated Richard Donnelly of North Bay, Progressive Conservative, and Rev. Harry Mackay of Mattawa, New Democrat Party.

In Saskatoon, Eloise Jones was elected to the seat held by her husband, Harry Jones, until his death earlier this year. She defeated former mayor Sid Buckwold, Liberal, and Jim Harding, 23-year-old university student, NDP.

The results left one Commons vacancy, Westmorland in New Brunswick. It has been represented by Liberal S. H. Rideout who died suddenly May 29. A byelection will be held, it is called for that constituency.

Standing of the Commons:

Liberal	129
Progressive Conservative	97
New Democratic Party	17
Social Credit	9
Creditiste	13
Total	265

When counting of ballots ceased for the night, with all but one of 101 polls reported, Mr. Legault had 18,914 votes, Mr. Donnelly, 8,373 and Mr. MacKay, 3,567.

It was a little closer in Saskatoon. With all but 215 polls reported, Mrs. Jones had 18,627 votes, Mr. Buckwold 14,383 and Mr. Harding 9,351.

In Ottawa, party leaders each claimed to find something to cheer about. Prime Minister Pearson was quoted by a spokesman as feeling "immensely cheerful" of the Liberal showing in both byelections—the party's candidate had won

Charge Refugees Planned To Seize Him As Hostage

Aimed to Win Release Of Political Captives

By JOHN O. KOEHLER

STOCKHOLM (AP)—Swedish police have smashed a plot to kidnap Soviet Premier Khrushchev and hold him hostage for the release of political prisoners behind the Iron Curtain.

Police confirmed that at least one man, described only as a 30-year-old foreigner, was arrested Monday near Haga Castle, where the Soviet leader is staying during his five-day state visit.

The man was reported to have confessed that he and several other men had planned to smash their way through the castle gates in a truck armed with machine guns.

The newspaper Aftonbladet, which has close connections with the Swedish government, said the man in custody was a Hungarian. Police declined to confirm this.

There also was speculation that the plot was hatched by members of the Ustashi, a fanatic Croatian anti-Communist organization which fought for the Nazis during the Second World War.

The Ustashi has a strong membership in Sweden, which is haven for about 30,000 refugees from Communist countries.

REPORT THEREAT

Two weeks before Khrushchev's arrival in Sweden, the Swedish newspaper Expressen said the Ustashi had threatened openly to kill the Soviet leader.

"Khrushchev will die in Sweden," Expressen quoted a Ustashi leader as saying.

County Police Supt Aake Magnusson signed the charge sheet against the arrested man.

"It is correct that yesterday I arrested a man suspected of preparing dangerous activi-

Says Laziness Main Cause of Urban Blight

SUDBURY (CP) — Lorne Cumming, Ontario deputy minister of municipal affairs, Monday blamed indifference and laziness, among elected municipal leaders as the major cause of urban blight.

He told second day sessions of the Ontario Association of Mayors and Reeves that lack of willingness to make use of existing legislation is more than half the cause of the trouble.

Mr. Cumming suggested that recent amendments to the Municipal Act give municipalities even more authority than before to effect slight and improve the physical appearance of their areas.

"The worst fault of all is laziness," he said. "It is an unwillingness to study the problem, an unwillingness to enforce standards of fire and health inspectors and an unwillingness to interfere with what are considered to be private property rights.

"Urban blight just doesn't fall from the sky."

Doctors Ask Patients Pay, Virtually Reject Report

VANCOUVER (CP) — The leaders of Canada's medical profession say that patients who can should pay at least part of the cost of the services they receive from their doctors.

They say without this "patient participation" in medical insurance plans, whether public or doctor - sponsored, the medical service of the country will suffer because doctors will be overworked.

The principle, described as similar to the deductible clause in an automobile insurance policy, would be aimed, at curbing pressure on the doctor by the patient to provide services he does not need.

The "philosophy" of patient participation in doctor-sponsored plans was defended Monday by members of a special committee which drew up a report on the matter for the general council of the Canadian Medical Association.

Today's Chuckle

A man can usually tell what kind of a time he is having at a party by the look on his wife's face.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Showers and thunderstorms are occurring near Lake Superior and this unsettled weather is expected to spread into the rest of Ontario during Tuesday. By Wednesday morning the weather disturbance will have moved into southern Quebec and the strong northerly winds following the storm will bring gradually clearing skies and somewhat cooler temperatures to the province.

And earlier the general council—the "parliament of medicine"—approved an executive committee statement which virtually rejected the idea that "the run impair the quality of medical care" in Canada.

The study in Canada should be aware that similar plans which are operative in other countries have resulted in excessive demands for services which have overtaxed the ability of health workers to provide.

"The consequence has been to substitute quantity for quality and has caused, in many instances, the interest of the sick patient."

The committee presented its report to the 180-member general council in summary form. The council voted to send the report to all Canadian doctors for study. The matter will be dealt with again at an extraordinary council meeting next year.

The summary said: "We believe that to maintain the quality of medical care in the sponsored plans should evolve from their present concept of a service plan to the sound, more economical and more logical one of patient participation at the level of the item of service."

The summary, and committee members who attended a press conference explained that those who could should pay some of the cost of doctor services at the time they receive them. Indigents should be looked after by arrangements made by the medical profession and government. Government could also pay a subsidy equal to that collected by indigents and those who are self-supporting. The self-supporting group would be those who pay income tax.

Meanwhile, government officials met with the administration of medical insurance plans.

Committee members said the summary is a condensation of a 39-page document variously described as "rather convoluted matter of philosophy" and a "philosophical document."

Dr. Patrick Brown-Lockhart of Sudbury, Ont., Dr. Ken Truman of Winnipeg, Dr. Victor Goldbloom of Montreal and others said patient participation is essential because of "overuse" and "misuse" by some overworking doctors and affecting the quality of service they could give. Doctors cannot limit their services so the limitation must be sought through the patient.

Dr. Truman said doctor-spon-

EOKA's Grivas Back, Turks See Trouble

NICOSIA (AP) — Turkish-Cypriot officials and United Nations officers said today the return of Greek underground leader George Grivas to Cyprus spelled trouble for the tension-ridden island.

"Grivas' return means things will go from bad to worse," said a worried Turkish-Cypriot authority attached to the staff of Dr. Fazil Kuchuk, Turkish vice-president.

Glafkos Clerides, president of the Cyprus House of Representatives, said Monday night the Greek general returned from Greece "several days ago" to "see what the situation is like on the island."

Grivas led the Greek-Cypriot EOKA underground against the British in the fight for independence of the island. EOKA stands for Ethniki Organosis Kyprion Agoniston (national organization of Cypriot fighters).

Informed sources said he had come back in an advisory capacity on the military question concerning the Turkish-Cypriot community. A stronger line was expected during the next few weeks.

Military sources said Grivas — if he stayed on in Cyprus — would likely co-ordinate Greek Cypriot military moves which

Pope Says Birth Control Being Studied by Church

The question is being subjected to "profound study" "which we hope to conclude soon with the co-operation of the most competent experts," the pontiff declared.

The pontiff discussed birth control in a general speech on church and world affairs to a group of cardinals.

His remarks came amid growing discussion among Roman Catholics about the use of contraceptive pills. Some people have been suggestions that they might be used to regulate the population explosion. The birth method could be used with greater precision. The church opposes contraceptives devised but permits the rhythm system.

Pope Paul said he hoped the problem would soon be concluded.

"But let us say frankly that the church has not yet sufficient reasons to consider overcome, and therefore not obligatory, the rules given by Pope Pius XII in this connection."

Pius in a 1958 speech said birth control could be used to prevent pregnancy. But he added that they could be used to check the stillness if they were prescribed by a doctor without the intention of preventing pregnancy.

Pope Paul's references to birth control announcement, to new developments in the birth control field and his emphasis on the population explosion in a general speech made clear that he was speaking of the pills.

"The problem, everyone speaks of it, is that of the so-called control of births: that of the increase of populations on one side, and of family morality on the other. It is an extremely grave problem. It touches the sources of human life. It touches the sentiments and the interests nearest to the experience of man and woman. It is a problem extremely complex and delicate.

"The church recognizes its (the problem's) multiple aspects, that is to say its multiple competences, among which certainly the most important are those of married couples, of their liberty, of their conscience, of their love, and of their duty.

"But the church must also affirm its (duty), that of the law of God, interpreted, taught, favored and defended by it. The church will have to proclaim such a law of God in the light of scientific, social and psychological truths, which in fact of recent times have had new and very full studies and documentations.

"It will be necessary to watch closely . . . both theoretic and practical developments of the question (of birth control) and that is exactly what the church is doing.

"But let us say frankly that we have not yet sufficient reasons to consider overcome, and therefore not obligatory, the rules given by Pope Pius XII in this connection. They must therefore be considered valid, and to be kept as long as we do not find in conscience obliged to declare them, in the aspect of such gravity, it will seem well that Catholics want to follow a single law, that authoritatively proposed by the church. And it will seem for this reason opportune to recommend that no one for now takes upon himself to pronounce himself in terms different from the merits in force."

Pony Bolts And All Join Chase!

Kids afoot and riding bikes; cops on motorcycles and aboard a sprightly pony; the press; public in general confusion — last night chased a run-away pony from Parkdale to Hillcrest.

The pony was captured finally by its owner Thomas Lucas, near his home at 89 Dufferin St. The six-year-old pony is kept for the use of 12-year-old Beverley Lucas.

Terry Clapper of Herman St., had ridden the pony across town to Parkdale playgrounds during the late afternoon, and allowed other children to ride it in the park.

The pony bucked slightly as one girl mounted.

The girl tightened up on the reins. The reins broke. The girl tumbled — and the pony bolted with the youngsters in pursuit.

Constable Barry Titterson of Belleville police joined in on a motorcycle as the pony took along College Street. OPP Constable Wm. Wilmot drove up just before the pony crossed the Moira River, north of College St. Bridge. The pony was nearly cornered in a field north of Bryson St. and east of Camilton Road — but stopped, bolting for the Lucas' yard.

The pony was sweating, but otherwise unhurt when recaptured. Constable Titterson later found Terry Clapper, also unhurt, walking home along College St.

Five-Year Capital Budget Approved by Town Council

TRENTON — Trenton Council meeting last night in special session, approved a five-year capital budget which allows for the expenditure this year of more than $760,000, mostly on public works projects and $700,000 for school requirements for the next four years, and types all other capital expenditures off the slate.

The 1964 budget estimates include a $60,000 addition to the North Trenton public school. More than $400,000 of this year's total is to go for such things as street reconstruction work, already in progress, the installation of sanitary sewers and land improvements.

In the 1964 estimates, $150,000 has been allowed for the buying up of land along the approaches to the proposed new bridge for the Bay of Quinte, but Mayor James MacDonald and the members of the council expect this will be met by being interested in the location.

In 1965, $260,000 will be spent on the construction of the new roomed school in the North Ryan St. area.

In 1966, an $80,000 addition will be built onto Prince Charles public school in west Trenton and in 1967 a like sum will be spent on enlarging Dufferin Ave. public school, also in west Trenton.

In 1968, a new high school will be built, at a projected cost of $2,000,000.

Now the five year plan will be placed before the Ontario Municipal Board for approval. Recently, the OMB refused to approve a number of capital expenditures, including the addition to the North Trenton school, but the five year budget was submitted.

ON SOUND BASIS

Meanwhile, Mayor MacDonald said that the town is on a very sound financial basis. The percentage of debentures debt to taxable assessment is within the 20 per cent ratio recommended by most municipal government experts.

And the mayor said there was absolutely no justification in a rumor circulating around town to the effect that council had overspent its budget on capital works this year by several thousands and was on the brink of having a supplementary tax to cover an expected deficit.

"This is absolutely nonsense," the mayor told reporters, following last night's meeting.

Trenton's debenture debt at the end of this year is expected to be in the neighborhood of three million dollars. The projected assessment figure for this year is more than $18 million. Hence, the ratio of debt to assessment will be 19.3 per cent.

Allowance has been made in the five year budget for payments of the debenture debt each year, with annual retirements of principle running from $182,291 this year to $255,468 in 1968. Assessment by 1968 is expected to be $17,857,720. The ratio of debt to assessment will drop from 19.2 this year to 17.3 in 1968, and the mill rate is expected to stay close to the pegged line of 15 mills.

Clerk Campbellier, Q. W. Larry has advocated that council stick to the projected budget and not succumb to the temptation of breaking out of the physical straight-jacket by spending money on "road" municipal projects . . . unless an absolute emergency arises.

"I believe this would result in serious local financial disaster, and establishment an unfavorable climate in which to sell future debentures," Mr. Larry told council last night.

Recover Goods, Three Charged In Incident

Trenton police, working in cooperation with RCAF police and Metro Toronto police have recovered $1,000 worth of goods, stolen from David's Furniture and Appliance Store in Trenton last March.

HOSPITAL BUSY

Trenton Memorial Hospital, with a 150-bed capacity, averaged 111 patients through the month of May. Average daily population in the nursery was 12.8.

Seventy-one births were registered at the institution and 18 deaths, three of these being newborns.

During the month, 83 major operations were performed. Out patients treated numbered 933 and 577 emergencies were handled.

With the new pathological department in operation, 12,675 tests were done in the hospital and 658 sent out to other labs.

Students Will Be Orientated At High School

TRENTON — Today is Orientation Day at Trenton High School. Students from the town's Grade Eight classes will visit the school to become acquainted with their future "home," and perhaps to get ideas about a future career. Choosing of courses next year will hinge on the student's decision as to what type of work he would like to follow. Some may choose to take a straight Arts course and go on to specialize later. Others, having already made up their minds will follow through with a business training, may decide to enter the commercial classes at the school. Still others may wish training along mechanical lines and enter the vocational classes.

NEW YEAR BOOK

Trenton High School's 1963-64 hard cover yearbook, The Spotlight, is in the hands of the students. A total glimpse through the annual reveals a spate of clear cut pictures — of the principal, Mr. Garrett, the chairman of the school board, T. E. Ketchson, teachers, students and sports' teams. Some of the pictures are formal . . . others have caught students and teachers alike off-base. The literary section features stories, poems and essays by junior and senior students, and news reporters have done an excellent job of reporting events in the sporting events throughout the school year. Editor this year is Allan Sierolawski.

Water Bills Will Be Upped By 50 Per cent

TRENTON — The new "sewer surcharge" on Trenton water bills, scheduled to be imposed by July 1, will not now become effective until August 1.

Then, the present water bills will be upped by approximately 50 per cent.

Town council plans in this way to have tenants as well as property owners help pay for existing sewers. Those who are not serviced by sewers on their streets will pay a calculated percentage of the new rate, with a view to pre-paying for future sewer installations.

By this method, the mill rate is kept stable, (at approximately 15 mills) and needed services are paid for without increasing the general tax rate.

Commencing for the first of a month is that the plan has not yet been approved by the Ontario Municipal Board, although board approval is anticipated as this system of paying for services is prevalent throughout the province. The Public Utilities Commission will be asked to collect the sur-charge for a certain percentage of the monies collected by the fashion, especially, not to exceed $7,000.

GETS NEW HAT

The century-old Town Hall on the Market Square in Trenton is getting a "new hat". Local carpenter Frank Meyers and his men have taken on the contract for replacing the roof. They are applying a plywood base and reshingling. Costs are calculated at $1,000 for materials, $468 for labor.

Children Will Be Given Train Ride

TRENTON — Two classes, Junior Third and Four at St. Peter's School are to enjoy a day in Belleville Wednesday morning, when the Trenton Separate School Board, The children will be taken on a train ride, on a similar trip, also on Wednesday. This trip is being paid for by the Home and Schhol Association.

Other Trenton students will be able to take part in the activity of the special week in Belleville. Donald Sutherland will be guest speaker at the Trenton school board have promised to see to the making of this.

Supervising principal of public schools, V.P. Carwell, attended a board meeting last night that it would be well-nigh impossible to organize a trip on the trains for the 2,000 public school students. Even if the lower classes were left out, teachers would still be left to cope with 1,500 students.

School board member Douglas Whitney raised the possibility of taking the students on the "once in a lifetime" trip.

Choose Site For Township Office Bldg.

The members of Murray Township council will meet Friday night to choose a site for the new township office building, which is to be the town's Centennial project. As such, the $30,000 building is eligible for a $10,000 grant from the Centennial Committee. With other grants and considering '64 taxes, allocated for the project, council will only have to debenture for $15,500.

Some members of council, and a reported large number of Wooler residents, would like to see the building located in the village, considered by many as the "hub" of the township.

Other members of council, and presumably rural residents of the township would like to see the building located in the vicinity of the existing township equipment sheds.

In all events, council will soon have to make up its mind about the location and other details concerning the proposed building, as applications for Centennial grants must be in the hands of the department by Aug. 1.

Reeve Douglas McMaster and the members of his council, meeting last Friday night, were told by township clerk, Angus Gunter, that offers to purchase had been prepared and now awaited the new department heads to approach the township residents, whose land is on the new proposed highway road with offers to buy up 34 feet of their land along the road. The purchase is necessary to provide for the widening of the road allowance from the present 66 feet to 99 feet. The road, already well under way, is being paid for by the Ontario Department of Highways. For the most part, but the township must buy up the necessary land and offer a reasonable price, however, will receive a subsidy on the cost from government agencies.

Next Friday, the councillors will also set the mill rate for the current year.

Purchase of Tractor Loader Referred Back by Council

Site Preparation Work Will Cost $700,000

Site preparation work in connection with the proposed new addition to the Belleville General Hospital, along with architect's fees, will cost an estimated $700,000, city council was told yesterday.

Mayor Jack Ellis made the report yesterday, following objection raised two weeks ago that information in the hospital's 1964 budget report was not sufficiently complete.

Mayor Ellis said changes to the present boiler room making way for the new addition would cost an estimated $474,000, which with architects fees and other site preparation would raise the figure to $700,000.

Of this amount about $450,000 would be required this year, it was stated.

With the new hospital addition to be built on the present hospital site, the boiler room and certain other hospital services will have to be moved to make way for the addition.

Suggests Stop Signs Be Reversed

A new proposal for the elimination of rush hour traffic bottlenecks at the intersection of Coleman and Moira Streets, was heart at city council yesterday.

Alderman Don Joss said that suggestions were invited as a means of eliminating traffic tie-ups seeing that the city could not afford traffic lights and a four-way stop system was frowned on by city police.

Alderman Allin said the police objection to the four-way stop was that it would unnecessarily back up traffic.

As an alternative he suggested that the present stop sign system be reversed putting the stop signs on Moira Street instead of on Coleman Street as at present.

Learn-to-Swim Classes Active

To date the Family Y.M.C.A.'s June learn-to-swim program has been quite successful with practically full attendances in all classes for boys and girls, men and women.

Parents of the boys and girls taking the lessons will be given the opportunity to see the progress their child has made during the ten lessons. This takes place at the child's respective classes starting at 4.30 on Thursday afternoon, the last day for the June session.

Registration for the July learn-to-swim program are filling up fast for the girls' and boys' classes, which begin June 29th. More registrants may be accommodated in the ladies' and men's classes. The ladies' classes run for eight lessons at 7.00 p.m. every Tuesday and Thursday throughout the month of ... while men's classes are every Tuesday and Friday at 7.00 p.m.

To Petition For Extension Of Sidewalk

Despite the fact that one councillor termed it ridiculous that the sidewalk was not being continued to Farley Ave., council yesterday voted to construct a five-foot walk on the south side of Victoria Ave. past the new YMCA. Total estimated cost of the walk is $4,407.

Alderman Frank Murray said it was ridiculous that the walk was not being continued on to Farley Ave.

"There was no petition for the walk that far," returned one councillor.

The policy of department heads at city hall making recommendations for purchase of equipment, without reference to committees concerned, drew objection at city council yesterday.

The objection arose from the city engineer's recommendation for purchase of a four wheel drive tractor loader, which did not quite come up to the specifications called in the tender.

Council was advised that the machine recommended met specifications except for maximum horsepower and two other minor mechanical differences considered not sufficiently important to warrant extra expenditure of $2,561.

The machine recommended for purchase would cost $12,288 as compared with the next lowest tender of $14,471.

CLOSE TO SPECIFICATIONS

Alderman Don Joss said he was alarmed that a machine not meeting specifications was being considered and asked why the works department had not known before tenders were called that it could get along with lesser equipment.

Alderman W. Jarvah said council should not be expected to accept equipment with specifications less than called for in the tender.

He wanted the recommendation referred back for further consideration.

But Mayor Jack Ellis said the machine recommended came almost as close to specifications as was possible.

City manager J. R. Reynolds noted that under the circumstances if the city was to keep faith with tenderers, specifications should be written in such way that it would be understood similar types of equipment would be acceptable.

CONTRACT ACCEPTED

Council referred the matter recommendation back to the city manager. Mayor Ellis noted that under procedure city department heads were authorized to make recommendations for equipment purchases without reference to committee.

But City Manager Reynolds assured that any such recommendations would come to council without their being referred to committee.

The tender of Beaver Construction for the 1964 city sewer contract was accepted by council. The contract price was $73,325 as compared with the city engineer's estimate of $76,787.

The tender of General supply for a self-propelled line striper costing $2,442 was referred back for further consideration. The price was approximately $500 more than had been provided in the 1966 budget for the equipment purchase.

PAINT CITY HALL

Belleville city hall is to receive a new coat of paint.

Council yesterday approved the tender of George Crocker, former city hall janitor, to paint the city hall at a cost of $267.75.

At least one councillor wondered if Mr. Crocker had the necessary equipment to do the work.

He was told that Mr. Crocker had painted the city hall 23 years ago — including the flagpole which was not included in the present contract.

2 Young Boys Caught Turning In False Alarms

WELLINGTON (Special) — They are not old enough to become firemen but they apparently like to see fire fighting equipment in action.

Two young boys, said one and eleven years old, have had a field day the last two months turning in false fire alarms to the village volunteer fire department.

They reached an all-time high yesterday telephoning at least six false calls before some neighbor, on the part of the fire department officials and police uncovered the young culprits.

During May and June some eighteen false alarms were registered.

Yesterday's rash started about 4.30 p.m. when a fire was reported at the farm of Allan Fortunguil, some five miles northwest of the village.

This was a false alarm. No sooner had the equipment arrived at the station than the second alarm came in.

Firemen checked the call by phone. It was false. Four other calls from the same vicinity followed shortly in quick succession.

Members of the fire department scouted the area and the search narrowed down to one place.

A youngster tipped the searchers when he accidently gave a nickname. Close check revealed the identity of the boy. The other followed shortly afterwards.

The youngsters were turned over to Chief of Police Earl Marsden who said later "they will not do it again."

The boys were back in school this morning.

Survey Cost To Be $1,500 Council Told

The Canadian Welfare Council will be asked to do a needs and resources study in Belleville with the view of determining if another welfare council should be established here.

Cost of the survey to be done by Harold Knight of Social Planning Council in Toronto, will be $1,500.

Mayor Jack Ellis yesterday told council that the matter of a welfare council in the city had been gone into thoroughly by the local committee.

"We have got to the point that we now don't know where to go," he said.

The proposed needs and resources study would see every facet of welfare work gone into with statistical and financial information sought from each group.

The results of the survey would be the basis on which a welfare council would be established in the city, he said.

District Governor Presents New Kiwanis Club Charter, George Brown 1st President

Before a large number of Kiwanians gathered from the district and their Kiwanis Queens, the charter of the new Quinte Kiwanis Club was presented by Clarie Fentiman, governor of the O.Q.M. district to George Brown, first president of the club at a Charter Night banquet held at the Hotel Quinte. The meeting was presided over by Carl F. Reid of Picton, Lieutenant-Governor of the district. The seal leaders were Harold Carruthers and Bill Stewart and the pianist, Dan Davenport. A special hour was spent before the meeting and at the conclusion the floor of the main dining room was cleared and the assembly enjoyed a dance with music by the Hotel Trio.

The club was sponsored by the Belleville Kiwanis Club with Bob Prentiss as president and the past Lieutenant-Governor, Gerald Wishart, headed up the committee that made the club possible. This new club will meet on Monday evening at the Kiwanis Centre so that many of the members can belong to a service club. There are 25 charter members with a strong executive and will no doubt be a power in service work in the community. The welcome to the visitors was extended by the new president of the club and the guests were welcomed by Ald. William Jarvah on behalf of the city. The head table guests were introduced by Gerald Wishart and gives a rousing welcome. Mel Osborne, vice-president of Kiwanis International, replied and congratulated the new club on their formation and hoped for the members years of service in Kiwanis.

The gifts to the new club were presented by Robert H. Stroud, district chairman of new club building, while the gong and gavel was presented by Bob Prentone and all these gifts were accepted by Bob Carleton, vice-president of the new club.

CLUB WISHED SUCCESS

At the presentation of the charter, Mr. Fentiman, District Governor, brought greetings from headquarters and wished for the new club every success. He stated that in the next decade people will be living at an accelerated pace and there will be new patterns of human relationships. He further stated that the Cold War had not lessened and that all should live closer to national ideals; discard the apathy that sometimes exists and be sure that the proper use of the ballot is made. It was a most inspiring address for the Kiwanians present and the speaker was heartily congratulated at the conclusion.

In accepting the charter Mr. Brown stated "this is my most memorable moment and I am sure that this club will play a useful purpose in the community."

The president introduced the charter members and also the directors. It announced that the club would be interested in establishing a bird and wildlife sanctuary in the district and another project would be to assist elderly people in making life a little more enjoyable in the latter years of life.

Kiwanians were present from the Downtown Club of Kingston, West Kingston Club, Tweed, Madoc, Trenton, Marmora and Belleville. It was a happy gathering and much enjoyed. A delicious roast beef dinner with all the trimmings was served.

Doctors

sored plans were conceived originally for low and perhaps moderately priced groups. But eventually, citizens from all income levels availed themselves of it.

SEES LIMITED SERVICE

"Should the process continue the doctors will not be able to provide adequate service to patients."

He said patient participation would be similar to a deductible insurance plan under which the owner would pay for part of the cost of the damage.

The group on which this "new philosophy" would be applied would be the group that could afford to pay. However, other groups may find that "this is more economical and more to their taste."

The question of patient participation was high in the objections to the Hall commercial insurance recommendation voiced by members of the executive committee at another press conference. They said the recommendations in the report would stop patients from making unnecessary demands on doctors.

"Requests from patients for a shot of penicillin for a cold are going to increase and it is going to be more difficult to tell the patients that a shot of penicillin is not good for a cold," said Dr. J. A. McMillan of Christietown.

President W. W. Wigle of Toronto in an interview gave four objections to the Hall plan: Compulsory for all Canadians; monopolistic in that it would be controlled by provincial governments; no deductible clause; possible patient demands because the government would foot the bill; and no guarantee that doctors could practice outside the plan.

CONCEPT FOR CARE

The doctors said repeatedly that their main concern is for proper patient care.

"The public interest is paramount and demands measures that will result in the best quality of medical care," the statement said. "The CMA believes that the consultation has an identical concern but we have found, on the basis of experience, that the methods of providing medical services recommended by the commission will in the long run impair the quality of medical care."

The Growing Work Force

During the course of a review of Canada's economic accomplishments so far this decade and of her prospects for the remainder of the 1960's, the Bank of Montreal's "Business Review" recently sounded a warning which deserves close attention.

"Even after three years of relatively vigorous growth," the publication suggests, "unemployment in many parts of the country is still a matter of concern and there is continuing evidence of under-utilized capacity."

As the Business Review points out, the age groups in the Canadian population that are expected to grow the fastest this decade are the teenagers and the young adults between the ages of 15 and 24. These groups make up the bulk of job seekers who enter the labor market for the first time in search of permanent employment.

The Business Review predicts Canadian labor force will reach 7.9 million by 1970. This means that the number of people working, or looking for work, will increase by an average of 170,000 annually, compared with an average increase of only 120,000 in the years since 1957.

Employment, without doubt, is going to be one of the most pressing domestic problems confronting any Canadian government for the foreseeable future. As such, securing the job-giving expansion of the country's economic base should receive priority over such other government policies as pensions and expanded social welfare benefits.

Uncomfortable Precedent

Britain's Vauxhall Motor Co., a subsidiary of General Motors of the U.S., will sell a thousand truck and bus chassis to Indonesia. Britain is in a virtual state of undeclared war with Indonesia because of that country's guerrilla warfare against the newly-established state of Malaysia. Thus, it is understandable that some people around Whitehall are not over-pleased about the Vauxhall order. However, a foreign office spokesman has said that the embargo on military supplies to Indonesia will not apply to these vehicles.

"The deal nonetheless is likely to cause some political head-scratching here (in London)," reports The Associated Press, "partly because of its parallel with the recent sale of British buses to Cuba."

Oh, come now, wait a moment. The British, be it admitted, are taking a bruising at the hands of the precedent set by the Cuban bus sale, since at that time they stubbornly maintained that buses could not be considered military supplies. But there the similarity ends.

To be parallel, those buses for Cuba would have had to be built by a British-owned firm in the U.S.—and shipped to Havana from Miami.

Imagine the shrieks that would have raised.

So Much for Sentiment

Regardless of the Sino-Soviet schism, Communist China is not letting ideological sentiment stand in the way of practical business arrangements.

This is shown quite clearly by a recent Moscow announcement that Peking has purchased five Ilyushin-18 aircraft from the Soviet Union in preference to French-built Caravelles. What makes the plane deal the more unusual is the fact that the aircraft involved are destined for service on the only recently agreed upon France-China service. As such, they represent quite a substantial blow to French prestige.

If China is prepared to adopt a "business-as-usual" attitude toward the Soviet Union, even at the expense of slighting her new-found French friends, the rift between the Kremlin and Peking hierarchies is obviously not yet so deep as to be irreconcilable.

People Serve the Flag

"The Red Ensign has served Canada honorably and well," Prime Minister L. B. Pearson told the House of Commons. Applause came from both Liberal and Conservative benches.

Mr. Pearson was wrong. Flags do not serve people; people serve flags. Canadians have served the Red Ensign honorably and well, and for that reason it will always remain a part of our history.

And, becau.. the people will remain the same, no matter what the flag may be, we may reasonably expect any new flag to be served honorably and well—providing we understand that ..ple serve the flag and not the flag the people.

To Your Good Health

VSDM May Live to Regret Televised Name Calling

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

OTTAWA — When you see "Dr. Pearson" — as sooner or later see you will, the controversial television epic "A Day With the Prime Minister" — watch for the appearance in the picture of a certain very sore member of Parliament.

The Prime Minister has spoken of Opposition Leader Diefenbaker.

And if you are a lip reader, you can't help but get it — a matter of fact, you don't even have to read lips to be clued — when the VSDM is caught by the ever-candid TV camera clearly exploding.

"That b ——— ——— bloc[k]-headed ———!"

Now, since before they are anything else, shy and all Deputy Ministers are supposed to be strict political neutrals, this particular VSDM is well out of bounds in calling the Opposition leader a b ——— ——— ———.

And that was the word. Take it on the authority of top TV hands of both CBC and CTV television networks who spotted it at the preview even after it had diplomatically been blurred on the sound track.

Not by chance, you can bet.

That a prime minister may slang an Opposition Leader and an Opposition Leader slang a prime minister is all in the political day's work. But a part of the act. Part of the fun and frolic of partisan politics.

But when a deputy minister does it ... well, that is a crime politically for which we'll have to account if and when the man he publicly branded a b ——— ——— reclaims power.

Deputy ministers do not die under the political guillotine. Liberal Trade Minister Mitchell Sharp calls Deputy Minister early in the Diefenbaker regime before the Conservatives had time to behead him.

And now, in something suspiciously like an eye for an eye, the Liberals, just the other day by the time honored custom of kicking him upstairs, in effect dismissed James Roberts, the one deputy minister the conservatives, in their six years of office, managed to keep in office.

Roberts, not to oddly, was the deputy who replaced Sharp.

Although they didn't get to see the preview of "Mr. Pearson," the Conservatives have heard about the VSDM's epithet for the Opposition Leader.

"He should be fired — rather more than ordinarily exciting when the Chief returns to power," grinned one Tory, frigidly, swingingly partisan Conservative MP from Edmonton East, "and the Chief will be fired — a deputy won't have Granny Green around to plead for his life."

Some Conservatives, still bitter, blame former External Affairs Minister Howard Green for ruling out political patronage, in contracts, and jobs alike, when they were in power.

JUST ANOTHER CASE

That a top deputy should be so badly unafraid as to slang the Opposition Leader with a TV camera as witness is taken by many Conservatives as further confirmation of their suspicions that the Liberal return to power April 8 1963 amounted to nothing more than a Civil Service coup d'etat.

They view the present complexion of the Bureaucracy, especially the deputies, and regarded the senior civil servants as a sort of Liberal underground.

As evidence, they cite the Civil Service Commissioner of six of the top men in the Pearson Cabinet.

The Prime Minister himself was a deputy. So were Trade Minister Sharp, Transport Minister Pickersgill, Justice Minister Favreau and Industries Minister Drury. And Deputy Secretary Lamontagne was a member of the Pearson Civil Service staff while the Prime Minister was in Opposition.

Then there was the day last April, soon after the election, when the Prime Minister spoke in private to a meeting of deputies. He gave them a pep talk. They gave him a cheer. And at once they were suspect — and only charged as such — of being Liberal partisans.

Of course, they're not, and that can be taken on a statement based on 24 years of continuous "Deputy Watching."

There may be a couple who might "lean" a bit, one way or the other — usually to the Liberals.

But it is just such an outrageous instance as one of them mouthing "that b ——— ——— Diefenbaker" into the camera's keen eye that keeps alive Opposition suspicions that the deputies are the officer corps of the Liberal underground in the Civil Service.

There Are Two Kinds of Sports Fans

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

I have always despised rabid sports fans, who seem to me the lowest form of animal life. And I have always had a sneaking admiration for those professional sports figures who dared to express their contempt for such fans.

The recent tragedy at the soccer stadium in Peru, in which 300 persons lost their lives because one idiot ran onto the field to protest a decision, is only the most shocking and dramatic example of the moronic level of most spectator sports.

For the truly ironic thing about this incident was the fact that the team itself only protested mildly against the decision, and continued to play; but the crowd was like some suddenly uncaged beast; all the atavistic fury of this subhuman mass erupted into a catastrophe that brought martial law to the whole country in its wake.

There are, basically, two kinds of sports fans: those attend because they enjoy the game, appreciate its finer points, and really want to see the better team win; and those who attend as a vicarious outlet for their own frustrations, inadequacies and unfulfilled blood-lust. They are the impresarios who throw bottles at umpires and precipitate disasters.

It is axiomatic that the more one knows about a game, and the better one plays and respects it, the less fervor does one waste on mistakes, bad breaks, or bum decisions. The expert, the professional, the true lover of sport, knows how to take such matters in stride, fully aware that these things all balance themselves out in the end.

It is the ignoramus, the weakling, the psychic cripple who substitutes a fanatical loyalty to a civilized understanding, who becomes incensed when "his team" seems to be the victim of an injustice. He takes it as a personal affront because his own ego is so weak, his own sense of personal identity so insecure, that it becomes a mortal insult from the universe that he is called upon to endure.

Nor are such thwarted personalities by any means in the minority as you might think. The one who has ever attended a hockey game, for example, cannot help but be impressed at the bestial and barbarous behavior of most of the spectators. And fight fans, of course, are notorious for being infinitely more bloodthirsty than the men who are fighting in the ring. It is often like and respect one another and are joined by a mutual detestation of their "followers."

I do not believe these rabid sports fans when they say that they "love" the game. They are filled with hate, not with love; with the passion for death, not the instinct for life and victory.

The RCMP wooden motor schooner St. Roch, set out 24 years ago today—in 1940 —from Vancouver to Halifax to become the first Canadian vessel to sail through the Northwest Passage. Because of bad ice conditions, she spent two winters in the Arctic, arriving in Halifax in Oct. 1942. It took her only 86 days to make the return voyage in 1944. Her commander on both voyages was Sgt. Henry Larsen.

On the local market on Saturday transplanting stocks and potted flowers were featured with bulbs for cutting of all kinds being offered freely. Raspberry canes sold at two cents each. Potatoes held at their level of $2 per bag with one or two farmers asking a little price per bushel. Asparagus sold at 15 cents per half-pound bunch or two for 25 cents. Onions sold at 10 cents and rhubarb at five cents per bunch. Last year's Spanish onions brought 10 cents each. Egg prices held firm in the inside market, the general price being 38 cents. Dairy butter brought 40 cents, and chicken from 27 to 60 cents.

The proof of long weeks of work and hours of preparation and training was offered in the auditorium of Queen Victoria school on Friday afternoon when the students of the school presented their musical festival to their parents, friends, and guests. A capacity house was in attendance and was in loud praise of the students who took part in the concert and for their teachers who gave their unstinted time and effort towards the training of them. Special mention is made of Miss Phyllis May, music teacher of the school, and Miss Burley who directed the two plays enacted during the program.

The tax rate for this city has been set by city council at 47 mills. The rate is higher than last year by four-tenths of a mill owing chiefly to relief expense.

The killing or injuring of sheep by dogs in Tyendinaga township is a cause of considerable expense to the farmers. During the year 1933 the township paid to farmers damages amounting to $1,200. For the year up to the end of May, have been paid $430 in damage claims. The present number of police dogs in the township is said to be responsible for the damage done.

Certainly we had an electric street railway here some years ago, with closed cars for the winter and open cars for the summer. Here is an interesting item from our file copy at the time in 1894: "Last evening there was a joint meeting of the industrial and electric light committees of the city council in order to meet Messrs. S. A. Lazier and Sons and Mr. Henry Pringle, all of this city, with regards to the requisition of the above named persons for a franchise to build, equip and run an electric railway in Belleville, and also the right to erect poles upon which to string wires to carry light, heat and power. The basis of the agreement was drawn up in brief and received the sanction of both committees and the promotors. There is no doubt the project will be carried out. The promoters agree to have a line on Front Street in operation by August 1st, next year.

Lotteries Would Not Meet Hospital Needs

The Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer:

Swedenborg said: "It is no proof of a man's understanding to be able to confirm whatever he pleases; but to be able to discern that what is true is true, and that what is false is false; this is the mark and character of intelligence."

Below are some items of interest for those intelligent Canadians in our midst to consider, and to help them decide whether lotteries would be a blessing or a curse.

"In Canada: Hospitals for acute disease alone require over 100 million annually."

Hospital maintenance runs over $800 million annually.

Construction and renovation costs another $100 million annually."

"The painful fact is that Canadian sweepstakes equal to that created by Ireland for 33 years would keep Canadian hospitals going only for four days, and not a cent towards new construction." (Financial Post, October 12, 1963).

"A Royal Commission in Britain has rightly ruled out this other mode of raising public money has proved "so burdensome, so permicious and so unproductive."

Readers' Digest, July, 1964, carries an article entitled "Britain Goes on a Gambling Spree," which sets forth the startling and often pathetic, picture of legalized gambling in Great Britain.

Surely it is not too much to hope that our nation can learn from the mistakes of other nations, and so prove itself to be a mature and responsible country.

Wants Grassed Area In Front of Stores

The Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer:

Before the entrance to our city from Highway 401 on North Front Street becomes a laneway between car lots, I would suggest that the city pass a by-law, requiring a grassed area of land, at least 15 feet wide, be maintained by owners, separating the highway from the commercial land. The entrances and exits to these areas should be of adequate width, this by-law should not be confined to North Front Street, but should include all commercial areas within the city limits.

The shopping centre on Bridge St. E., situated in the midst of a very fine residential area, is a good example of what might have been, had there been a by-law at that time. The grassed area with trees, would have provided a pleasing beauty, as well as separating the commercial from the residential area. This would be of no cost to the city.

I wish to extend my highest compliments to the person who set the parking lot at the C.N.R. station. This is the most beautiful improvement I have seen in Belleville in many years. I think I should ask all my out of town visitors to come by train.

After all, Belleville means "Beautiful City." Why can't we live up to our name?

Wife Was a Nice Person Now She's a Whining Nag

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

Dear Dr. Misner: My obsessed stepdaughter introduced her mother to amphetamine-based "good balls." From a nice person, my wife has become an irritable, whining nag. The supply is from under the counter, not medically supervised.

She suffers severe headaches and has at all times a travelling pain from hair to soles. These things hurt her, not me, but how she has acquired the habit of chomping amphetamine, from early to late. This will take me to the looney bin with her.

Is this insane desire to chomp ice a side effect of good balls?
— Mr. X.X.X.

You're of a somewhat different profession, but a necessary one, so I reply to you as man to man as well as from profession to profession. You have a problem. Your wife has one. Your stepdaughter does, too. (Besides the problem of her hips.)

There's nothing about the amphetamine (pep pills, bennies, goof balls) that intrinsically leads to ice-chomping. I've had quite a few inquiries from people who've got into the habit of chewing ice cubes or chips, and there's nothing basically harmful about it.

There's nothing necessarily wrong, either, with saying "hrrumph," or scratching your ear, or indulging any other odd nervous habits.

But in your case, I would find out why your wife adopted the amphetamine habit, and how your daughter happened to know so much about good balls, and maybe even why she is so addicted.

There's some sort of emotional problem involved here, and I won't try to guess what it is, or how long ago it really had its roots.

The amphetamine drugs, so casually overused by too many people, cause irritability, nervousness, sleeplessness. The chewing of cracked ice, in this case, could be nothing more than a handy outlet for the excess nervous tensions that build up — and there are other, not really harmful outlets that might have developed instead. The more you are, to that extent, lucky.

But consult your physician and tell him exactly what you have written to me.

"The problem here isn't chomping ice. It is why your wife (and her daughter) started taking goof balls. The causes may be events that happened before you ever knew either of them, but you have in your family a number of females who are in trouble, and maybe you can open some doors and let some professional do a superior field find a way to help them.

Dear Dr. Misner: Can a woman of 59 hope to recover from osteoporosis of the lower spine? I'm in much pain. — Mrs. X.

Complete recovery cannot be promised, but relief from pain is possible. Osteoporosis is a weakening of the bones from loss of calcium.

Physical activity is necessary. With it, there is no way a doctor can retard or reverse this loss of calcium. Bones need exercise to stay strong.

Hormones are usually given to help the deficiency. They also help to retain bone strength. Another essential is a diet high in protein, calcium, and Vitamin C.

Note to Mrs. J. W. W.: Yes, by all means go to your physician to find out why you do not become pregnant. Better yet, have your husband go first. Either the husband or the wife can be corrected, and as it is much simpler to test the man, it is more economical to examine him first.

Pat! my friend, "The Low Secret of Reducing" tells how to get rid of it the easy way. Send your copy now to Dr. Molner in care of the Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P. O. Box 158, Dunell, Ill., enclosing a self-addressed, unstamped envelope and 10 cents in coin to cover cost of printing and handling.

Soft Work Now Dangerous

Stratford Beacon-Herald

It isn't necessarily good for people to have their work made easier. Lord Taylor, a British medical doctor who, as well as being a peer of the realm is also an expert on industrial medicine, has been doing a survey of industrial health problems in Sweden. One of his discoveries is that steel workers in Sweden are having more back troubles than they ever have. There is a rising incidence of cases of crippling back strain.

The cases are occuring in fully automated steel mills, the Swedish steel industry being as efficient and as advanced in technology as any in the world.

Lord Taylor's explanation is that the men are not straining their backs because they have such heavy work to do. On the contrary, they have so little heavy work that when they do lift anything heavy, they tear their back muscles. Automation has made them soft, and more prone to injury. He believes the same thing is happening in British industry.

Shorter Work Week Considered

Fredericton Gleaner

Some labor leaders believe the 35-hour work week will be uniform in ten years' time. Others believe it is even closer. They argue that the shorter work week is the only answer to the continuing high level of unemployment.

The shorter work week will mean more jobs in the service industries to the point where it is offset by the loss of jobs in the goods-producing industries.

Whether or not the higher wage costs of the shorter week, goods-producing industries will limit the increase in jobs in the service industries. It is a new application to the old law of diminishing returns: the higher the cost of labor, the more dependence upon machines which do the job quicker and cheaper.

Judy LaMarsh Not Candidate For Leadership

OTTAWA (CP) — Health Minister Judy LaMarsh said in a statement Monday she is not seeking the leadership of the Ontario Liberal party.

She issued the two-paragraph statement in response to persistent reports that she was preparing to enter the provincial field to contest the province's Liberal leadership convention.

"It is a distinct honor to be mentioned as a possible candidate for the leadership of the Liberal party in Ontario," it read.

"This would certainly be a great challenge, but I wish to state clearly that I am not in the running for any other office."

Miss LaMarsh, a Niagara Falls, Ont., lawyer, has held the federal health portfolio since the formation of the first Pearson cabinet 14 months ago.

Should Not Be Wasteful Of Land Resources CN Head Tells Real Estate Board

Canada's vast land resources are not economically inexhaustible, J. A. McDonald, vice-president of the Canadian Railways' St. Lawrence region warned last night.

The fact Canadians are not forced to utilize their land resources as intensively as other nations does not mean they should be wasteful.

Mr. McDonald made his charges to the Belleville and District Real Estate Board civic night at the Club Canara.

An attendance of more than 150 appointed as mayor Jack Ellis presented Mr. McDonald with a golden key, emblematic of the freedom of the city.

This also marked a highlight to the first day's observance of Railway Week—which in turn marks the removal of the CNR right - of - way from the city's Pinnacle Street.

In his address Mr. McDonald linked the occasion — real estate and railroads.

Municipal planning he stressed as one of the keys to intelligent land development.

"There is no doubt that one of the most useful tools in achieving an intelligent allocation of land resources is the ability of municipalities to zone lands for industrial, commercial or residential uses."

CAN'T BE WASTEFUL

But, he warned against taking too much for accepted in Canada — because of its vast land potential.

"In a country like Canada — there is very real danger that the economic principals of land use will be ignored.

"But the fact we are not forced to use our land areas as intensively as the people of Great Britain or Europe does not mean that we can afford to be wasteful of what is — one of the few economic resources that has an absolute limit.

"The lack of zoning regulations and a town planning approach to urban government has led time and again to conflict between the social, commercial and industrial interests of the community," he charged.

Yet railroads have never been the best neighbors for town planners, he admitted.

"I suppose it might as well be said bluntly that from the standpoint of residential areas the railway is a very bad neighbor, particularly where freight services are involved," said Mr. McDonald.

For one thing—the economics of scrap operations seem to attract this type of enterprise to the immediate vicinity of railway lines.

While his address was delivered from a prepared text there was still an air of old-fashioned informality about the entire conversation. At one point his address was interrupted by the blazons of a passing freight train on the nearby CN line.

"The simple fact is (the read) melodiously from his - address),

The blare continued, so he improvised:

"The simple fact is that I don't mind being interrupted by one of our gay cheques going by the door."

Among the guests receiving the most applause last night was A. McLean Hagg, hailed at the event as the mayor responsible for removing the Pinnacle Street right-of-way. It was an event that brought on the current Railway Week celebrations.

In turn, the ex-mayor also paid tribute to former CNR district superintendent, Alec Williamson, who said, during his term of office, that such a thing "just might succeed "if taken under certain conditions."

Parties

in Nipissing and the other had increased the Liberal vote in Saskatoon.

PC Leader John Diefenbaker was said by a spokesman to be pleased with Mr. Nowlan's election and with the "good fight" put up by Mr. Donnally in Nipissing, where the PCs increased their vote.

NDP sources pointed with pride to gains in party strength in both constituencies.

CAMPAIGN SPIRITED

The campaign in Saskatoon was spirited. Mrs. Jones, a psychiatrist making her first bid for election, campaigned for greater incentive in industry and claimed the Liberal government had introduced restrictive measures which reversed the economic development of the country.

Mr. Butkewid had been promised a post in the Pearson cabinet if elected and this was termed a "bribe" by the Conservatives.

Mr. Jones, who had held the Assiniboia seat, received 8,000 votes in the 1963 election. Mr. Butkewid got 13,499, Ed Mabood of the NDP 8,282 and John Vall, Social Credit, 1,256.

Social Credit did not enter a candidate in Monday's byelection.

Born in Avonmore, Ont., Mrs. Jones graduated in medicine from the University of Toronto and served during the Second World War in the Canadian Army Medical Corps. After the war, she obtained a diploma in public health from the University of Toronto and did mental health work in Weyburn, Sask., and Moose Jaw. She met Mr. Jones, an RCAF veteran and student lawyer, in Saskatoon and they were married in 1951. Their children range in age from six to 11.

FATHER WAS TEACHER

Mr. Butkewid's father, C. A. Shavar of Kingston, Ont., was a Latin and Greek teacher and former principal for more than 40 years. After retiring at 72 he was ordained as minister of the United Church in Canada.

Nipissing constituency was left vacant by the sudden death in March of Mr. Garland, then revenue minister. He had represented the riding since 1949 and in the 1963 election polled 16,547 votes. The PC candidate got 7,282, the NDP 2,351 and Social Credit, 1,987.

Mr. Legault was the only French-speaking candidate in a field which had a large French-Canadian population. He won the Liberal nomination from Mr. Garland's widow. He served as a trustee in Sturgeon Falls for two years but this was his first try for elected office.

The constituency shares a border with Quebec and many voters are of West European origin.

SAYS IT'S 'NONSENSE'

REGINA (CP)—Herb Pinder, Saskatchewan industry and information minister, said Monday in Regina that reports appearing in Toronto newspapers to suggest that he had asked senior civil servants in his department to "go slow" on federal-provincial leanings of department employees. Mr. Pinder was replying to charges by Hazen Argue, Woolard, 49, who resigned a post as a public relations official in the department effective June 30 to become executive assistant to the C. C. Douglas, federal NDP leader.

Ernst Kneisel Named Acting Industrial Commissioner

Ernst Kneisel, vice-president and director of sales for Hotel Quinte, has been named acting industrial commissioner for the City of Belleville. The announcement was made yesterday by Mayor Jack Ellis who said the Industrial Commission has now received its charter and letters patent as an incorporated body.

Mr. Kneisel has wide experience in economic and business affairs—having been associated with the Chase Manhattan Bank, New York as an economic specialist and in a similar capacity with the Prudential Insurance Company of America—at their head office, Newark, New Jersey.

He has also been with the Allis Chalmers Manufacturing Co., Milwaukee, and the Scovill Chemical Company, New York. He is a graduate of three famous universities, Harvard, Cambridge and the University of Wisconsin.

Mr. Kneisel said that he was delighted to have this opportunity to—work for the city of Belleville, and—gain confidence in the growth and development of the city. He said that during the past few months the Industrial Commission has been doing a great deal of research and preparation for the intensive selling period that is now about to get underway. This preparatory work has involved meetings with government, banking, railway and other officials in Ontario; the collection of statistical detail of the city of Belleville and surrounding lands; a breakdown of wage rates and other employment statistics and the beginning of a direct mail promotion, which to date has sent over seventy-five manufacturers and selling special presentations.

Mr. Kneisel is leaving this week on a trip to Montreal, New York and Chicago for important meetings with industrial prospects.

Mayor Ellis will assume the presidency of the Industrial Commission until the end of this year. The other directors and officers of the commission are Neil Davidson, Pat Houston, J. Trudeau, W. Laporte, Frank C. Murray.

Lawyer

Greeks and one Spaniard were being detained in Toronto.

And even after the inquiry was announced, more Communist material was being made available for the hearings.

David Orlikow (NDP — Winnipeg North) said some persons charged with illegal entry after they have been told that if they tell the department the names of other illegal entrants, they will not have to face a sentence before being deported.

"I can only describe it as blackmail and I think that blackmail, whether carried on by government or an individual is completely wrong and ought to be stopped."

Andrew Brewin (NDP — Toronto Greenwood) said the Immigration Act is obviously discriminatory and it fostered a "rotten system." It was wrong that the department should deport persons without stating a reason, or without giving the deportees a chance to retain a lawyer to fight the charge.

Mr. Brewin, a lawyer, said the case-in-point hardly falls far short of the public inquiry he had demanded. He said that records should be kept of all hearings so the public would know that all matters are being dealt with adequately.

COULD BE SLOW

Mr. Tremblay said the deportation procedures could be slow even when all phases were carried out at maximum speed. The department, for instance, had no record over fourth sittings, and there were other occasions when delays were due to the spirited efforts to make sure the individual was getting a fair hearing.

"Is it desirable to make for this kind of delay," he said. It was an issue that should be kept in perspective, said the immigration minister. Illegal entry was a very serious" matter, and deportation orders could not be taken lightly. There was an average of about 30 a week.

With him, the rights of the individual were given top priority, said Mr. Tremblay. He had "reflected many hours" on the rights of individuals and "as long as I am minister neither I nor my officials will act in a bureaucratic manner to remove anyone with undue haste."

The immigration issue was the first item raised as the House began debating an interim money supply bill involving July expenditures of $650,000,000. That debate continues today.

And although some opposition members did earlier ask for a more formal investigation, the appointment of a one-man study was generally welcomed.

Mr. Tremblay said a committee would deal with Mr. Sedgwick's findings.

Fall Outfits Cry Out For Women of Blithe Spirit, Assured Poise

By MARGARET NESS

TORONTO (CP) — A preview of fall fashions on show here Monday included outfits that cry out for women of blithe spirit or outrageous naiveté.

The Fashion Group of Toronto—an association of designers, buyers, writers and advertisers in the local fashions field —saw nothing demanding the stark courage of the topless evening dress. But the luncheon show of colored slides from New York fashion houses and live models of local designs featured a few ideas that would cause even the unconventional dresser to flinch.

Designer Sam Sherkin of Toronto topped a slim, long-sleeved daytime dress in green wool with a hat made of a complete red fox pelt, tail forward, head and legs as under-the-chin ties, head and forepaws hanging down the back.

Two New York designers sent pictures of startling pants-suits: one in gigantic houndstooth check with a tunic top, the other a belted safari jacket with knee pants in the great white hunter tradition.

The hunter could become the prey by changing into Lutz Estever's ankle-length lace pants with revealing top in black organza.

TWEEDS PROMINENT

But few women who indulge less outlandish tastes among the dress racks, the words for autumn are tweeds combining thick and thin yarns, smooth fabrics with contrastingly vivid accessories, changing a skirt and "skinny" coats in reds and blacks.

Perhaps the biggest news is the return of the little black dress dress worn with lacey black stockings.

Sherkin revives the hat sleeve in a black wool crepe blouson with plunging neckline. And the standup collar is featured in several designs, along with setin sleeves.

One group emphasized pleated skirts and textured stockings. A New York model combined a green brown wool suit with lush orange knee-length stockings.

The lively pleated suit by Allenby was in gold tweed combining thick and thin yarns in the weave. A chunky-tweed suit in green had a long jacket and wrist-length sleeves.

Fur will play an important role this fall, lining suits and coats including such luxuries as a camel-wool coat lined with lynx and a chinchilla lined jacket with a wool faille dress of grey.

Successful Living

'Lover-Boy' Thinks Love Should Be Proved by Actions

DEAR DORIS — I am a man of 39 twice divorced. I have been going with a girl of 34 for almost a year. She tells me she loves me but never gives any proof. I am very affectionate, but she never returns my love for her. She also is divorced twice.

I think if she loves me her actions should tell more than words, or am I wrong? — LOVER BOY.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR LOVER BOY — You mean not even one little teensie-weensie kiss? Or a single hand-hold? If this is the frozen state of affairs, I agree with you.

But if she is fending off a too enthusiastic lover — you — give her credit for some self-control. There are other deeds of love by which you can measure her regard for you.

DEAR DORIS — I would like to know if you have any suggestions for our young people's club at the church to raise money. We have dances regularly. We have had a bake sale and an unsuccessful paper drive where even the truck driver didn't turn up! — PRESIDENT.

DEAR PRESIDENT — First of all, the project must involve the whole club, right from the start. Don't be the kind of a president who tries to carry off a one-man show.

At a general meeting, after members have been made aware of the need for funds, have them choose from a list of ideas. Leave time for discussion, and listen to everybody. You don't want an accusation that anything was railroaded through.

Here are ideas for the list:

1. A car washing.
2. A book fair.
3. A rummage sale.
4. A dessert bridge party.
5. A slave auction. (Each member is put up on the block for sale. Bidders offer an amount which will buy two or three hours' work, babysitting, or painting, housecleaning or what-have-you. Essential is a loud-voiced, entertaining auctioneer.)
6. A fashion show.
7. Beam guessing contest.

If you need more details, write in again.

Confidential to AUNTIE — The official child care agency for the province has to recommend to the court the completion of all adoptions, even where a baby has been placed on adoption privately by his mother or a doctor—which I do not recommend.

It is a criminal offence in Canada for anyone to receive money for the placing of a child for adoption. A fee may be paid in to the court ... the processing of documents, or to a lawyer if he has been involved in preparing legal papers, but that's all.

Perle Mesta, LBJ Booster, Ready to Throw Big Party

By FRANCES LEWINE

WASHINGTON (AP) — Party-giver Perle Mesta' pooh-poohs the idea that she was in "the deep freeze" during the John F. Kennedy administration. She says she gave just as many big parties as ever.

But she has to admit she was never invited to a White House party by President and Mrs. Kennedy, despite the fact presidents from Calvin Coolidge to Dwight E. Eisenhower had had her on their party invitation lists.

Perle is a longtime booster of Lyndon B. Johnson. When he failed to get the Democratic presidential nomination in 1960, she voted Republican for the first time.

When Johnson did get to the White House, however, he invited Mrs. Mesta to the first formal state dinner he gave.

"The Johnsons have good memories," she says.

With LBJ the obvious choice for the Democrats this year, Perle is getting ready to throw a big party for the Atlantic City nominating convention in August. She had some early thoughts of having the party on the boardwalk but changed her mind and hasn't decided what type it will be.

GIN AND EGGS

In 1960 she threw a long-to-be-remembered gin - and - eggs brunch that drew 7,500 Democratic convention - goers. The four - hour crush in Los Angeles' Cocoanut Grove reached a climax with the arrival of Lyndon and Lady Bird Johnson.

Guests gobbled up 1,100 dozen eggs, 600 pounds of bacon and sausage, emptied 22 cases of gin in Screwdrivers, Silver Fizzes and Bloody Marys, and drank 700 gallons of coffee. The Cocoanut Grove staff it cost Mrs. Mesta more than $10,000.

Mrs. Mesta doesn't claim to influence delegates to conventions. She views her role as "just a worker for the cause."

One thing that makes Washington interesting for her is the social life which changes from administration to administration.

While the Kennedys appealed to cultural and literary types, she says, the Johnsons want "gay people and people who are doers, rather than the ivory tower types."

Long known for her parties, Perle moved into international high gear when President Harry Truman sent her to Luxembourg as U.S. ambassador. That was a peak of her career. She became the subject of the hit musical show Call Me Madam and eventually wrote a book entitled simply, Perle.

MILLIONAIRE'S WIDOW

Widow of George Mesta, millionaire owner of the Mesta Machinery Company of Pittsburgh, who died in 1925, Mrs. Mesta now is 78 and has somewhat changed her mode of life and entertaining. A 20-minute afternoon nap helps her get through late parties.

She used to own a mansion in Washington but sold it to Lyndon Johnson when he was vice-president. It was recently bought by the Algerian government for use as an embassy.

She also has a summer home at Newport, R.I., but sold that, too, and now shuttles between an apartment and one - bedroom apartment here and one in Newport, fabled playground of the very rich. She has a three-in staff of butler, cook, maid and chauffeur.

Garnet Kemper, the butler, has been with her 18 years and is charged with the responsibility of executing the many parties Mrs. Mesta plans.

She gives or attends an average of four or five a week and says "participation" parties are her favorite.

"I love anything where you participate. Every time I have a party, I have hootenanny singers."

Worried an entire household stayed home with an old-fashion frame with plywood, paint or varnish it, and frame!

Sweet Potato Pecan Syrup Pie

by Mary Moore

If you are anything like I am you get all enthused over maple syrup and buy a gallon and make waffles and pancakes and serve it over them. Then you look at that big gallon bottle and wonder "What next?"

The "What next?" turned out out to be a rich Sweet Potato Pie that will remind you of Southern Pecan Pie. Helen served this with a mountain of unsweetened whipped cream on top and we licked our lips and enjoyed every luscious mouthful.

TUESDAY

Dinner Menu

Corned Beef au Gratin (see Monday); Glazed Carrots; New Spinach and Leaf Lettuce Salad with French Dressing; Hunch Puffs (see Monday) with Pouring Cream; Tea.

SWEET POTATO - PECAN - SYRUP PIE

Pastry: (These amounts make a little too much pastry for a one-crust pie but you may have a little too much filling. Make up 2 or 3 tart shells to use up the excess filling.)

1¼ cups all-purpose flour
¾ teaspoon salt
⅓ cup shortening
1½ tablespoons butter
about 2 to 3 tablespoons ice cold water.

Cut shortening and butter into flour and salt until size of peas. Drizzle in water, mixing with fork until all flour is dampened. Press into ball and roll out to fit 9" deep pie plate with high fluted edge, and 2 or 3 tart tins.

Filling:

½ cup chopped pecans
2 tablespoons butter
¾ cup firmly packed brown sugar
2 cups cooked and perfectly smooth mashed sweet potatoes
½ cup firmly packed brown sugar
1 teaspoon ginger
½ teaspoon ground cloves
1½ teaspoons ground cinnamon
½ teaspoon salt
2 eggs, beaten
½ cups milk
½ cup maple syrup

Combine pecans, butter and ¾ cup brown sugar; spread even on bottom pastry shell and bake 10 minutes at 450 deg. Fahr. Cool. Reduce heat to 350 deg. Fahr. To smoothly mashed sweet potatoes add milk and maple syrup and beaten eggs and beat. Add ½ cup brown sugar, ginger, cloves, cinnamon, and salt and continue beating until mixture is smooth. Pour into cooled prepared (above) pie shell, scooping any excess into pastry-lined tart tins. Bake 45 minutes longer at 350 deg. Fahr. Cool and serve with whipped cream.

Note: Bake the tarts at the same time as you bake the filled pie, but they do not require the full 45 minutes.

3 International Beauty Queens Live in Montreal

MONTREAL (CP)—Three international beauty queens—Miss India 1961, Miss Italy 1960 and Miss Philippines 1958—have set up housekeeping in Montreal, a coincidence resulting from their husbands' jobs.

Mrs. Luigi Allegra, who placed third in the Miss World pageant in 1960 as Miss Italy, came here four months ago when her doctor-husband registered for a post - graduate course at the University of Montreal.

They plan to return to Sicily in a year where Dr. Allegra will assume his work as an assistant professor of pulmonary diseases at the University of Palermo.

Mrs. John Medhurst, despite her newly acquired name, still thinks frankishally of Miss India since no one has been chosen to succeed her. She moved here in December after marrying an English businessman transferred to Montreal from India.

Miss Philippines, now Mrs. Luciano Laguardia, married an Italian banker who was sent here 2½ years ago. They have a young son born in Rome just before they left.

Latla Allegra and Carmen Laguardia have been friends for some time but Latla didn't know Carmen had been Miss Philippines.

"I knew Latla was Miss Italy but we never talked about it," says Carmen.

Among them the girls speak a flock of languages. Carmen, who says she is a mixture of Malayan, Chinese, Spanish, English and French, speaks Italian, Spanish, English and Tagalog, "our national language," as well as some French.

Latla, who lived in Egypt as a child, speaks Arabic, English, French and Italian.

Veronica Medhurst, whose parents came from Goa, the former Portuguese enclave in India, speaks English, Hindi, Marathi (which is spoken in Bombay), Konkani, (spoken in Goa), Swahili and "a little French."

The former Miss Philippines recalls that she had a much easier time winning her title than either Miss India or Miss Italy, both of whom had to work their way through various elimination stages.

"I was chosen as a candidate along with about 30 others and became Miss Philippines after one judging. We wore cocktail dresses and the country's prize was representing the Philippines at the Brussels world's fair.

"We do not participate in the Miss World pageant, but usually in the Miss Universe. I was approached to compete but my father said no. He is very strict. He was afraid I might have to parade in a bathing suit. Now it is compulsory for Miss Philippines to go."

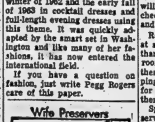
WHAT'S NEW

A fashion classic is usually the result of a happy mating of style and fabric. This year's fashion classic is Guy LaRoche's famous after-five trench coat in puffed satin with jeweled buttons. It is almost guaranteed to stay in style for at least five years.

The return of fallic to the collection of fashion classics will be welcomed by every woman who has ever owned a faille suit or dress. This ribbed crepe has a sheen and depth which made it popular in the late 1940s. It is back again now, but of course with a difference. In 1966 the weave is broken to produce an uneven, ribbed and textured effect. Bengaline and ottomans have received the same treatment with pleasing results.

Stretch fabrics are only beginning to make an impression in Canada. Several suits are tailored to take full advantage of these versatile weaves. Apparently jackets of stretch fabrics are most comfortable to wear and matching skirts retain their crisp appearance longer than plain fabrics. I predict that stretch fabrics will join the fashion classics, as the material become more plentiful.



Although carnation red seems to be the choice for fashion themes and window displays this fall, there are so many really beautiful colors on the market that perhaps carnation red will be drowned in all the golds, orange garnets, forest greens, blues and rose reds that will appear. It would be pleasant, if carnation red does not become as common as lilac of a few springs ago and magenta in a later fall season. Teak brown looks like a winner in leathers. It is so dark that it is almost black, but it takes on extra red or from the colors with which it is worn.

EVENING WEAR

For evening wear, a pale jade green is being heralded as the most becoming color to wear under electric lights. In choosing evening wear, the usual rules for color selection do not hold true. The color must be tested under artificial light. Jade green is a pale almost apple green with a blue base and little yellow undertone. Yellow tends to fade out under artificial lights. A bright clear navy is the next runner-up for evening wear and is a pleasant change for the devotes of black. It is a softened hue with a definite purple blue base, which in dull-surfaced satin should produce a glow that black always lacks.

White is wonderful for evening, provided the wearer has the complexion tone to carry it. It can drain every vestige of color from a paled face. White, combined with red, is new in two-piece formal gowns — red tops, either scantily shoe-string strapped, or sleeveless Tom Jones shirts, worn with white satin skirts. This trent to the white skirt and the colored top for evening wear was started by Mrs. John Kennedy in happier days and has appeared in the winter of 1962 and the early fall of 1963 in cocktail dresses and floor-length evening dresses using this theme. It was quickly adopted by the smart set in Washington and like many of her fashions, it has now entered the international field.

HOSTESS PLANS TO ABANDON THE BARBECUE

When it comes to barbecuing, everyone's an expert. Men especially.

We've just about decided to give up this type of entertaining. When we have guests this summer, we'll sit them down in the dining room, and my husband and I will confine all our cooking to the secrecy of the kitchen. Our culinary skill — or lack of it — will be forever screened from prying eyes. If the sauce is a wee bit thick, or the chops too pale, I can water one down and turn the heat on the other without coaching from the sidelines.

During the winter, it is possible to turn out a five-course dinner without burning a finger or mis-measuring the herbs. It's only when one barbecues outdoors, in full view of guests, that one finally discovers he doesn't know beans about steak and is afraid to dance in case I even judge when the rolls are ready.

Everyone on the sidelines is an expert at a barbecue, and each man has his own special formula for cooking. One favors the white coal method, another the flaming torch to char the outside to a crunchy goodness. No matter which method you favor, at least half of the cooking section is solidly against you.

Part of the group recommends basting every few minutes while the meat is cooking. Another part says baste only for the last ten minutes. There's always a small, but equally vocal, minority that never meat neat and is horrified by basting at all. Any wonder the poor host, in the midst of the kibitzing, is all thumbs and winds up dropping the steak on the grass as he tries to execute a turn.

SECRET INGREDIENT

Actually, it's the grass that's the secret ingredient. The last time this happened to us, the steak turned out just fine, so it must have been the slightly grassy taste that gave the gourmet touch. Next time I'm fed up, even though my long-suffering husband didn't follow the midnight of the lengthy advice that dogged his every move during the cooking.

So blow with the grill and away with the spit. We're now all set to the safety of the indoor range, which doesn't hold as much interest for visiting fire fails.

This doesn't mean that we're completely anti-barbecue. We like to them when we're invited, but we stay far out of the range of fire and let the host make all the mistakes. It's safer that way.

But, of course, we know that meat should only be cooked over white coals and that chicken should be basted at fifteen-minute intervals. You'd think anyone would know that, but at least we're polite enough to ignore his lack of finesse and to considerately resist offering him some of our expert advice.

lacks.

White is wonderful for evening, provided the wearer has the complexion tone to carry it. It can drain every vestige of color from a paled face. White, combined with red, is new in two-piece formal gowns — red tops, either scantily shoe-string strapped, or sleeveless Tom Jones shirts, worn with white satin skirts. This trent to the white skirt and the colored top for evening wear was started by Mrs. John Kennedy in happier days and has appeared in the winter of 1962 and the early fall of 1963 in cocktail dresses and floor-length evening dresses using this theme. It was quickly adopted by the smart set in Washington and like many of her fashions, it has now entered the international field.

The Experts Say Watch Out for Snobbery When It Comes to Wine

By JEAN SHARP

TORONTO (CP) — If you're afraid of wine, chances are you have been frightened by a snob.

In Canada, wine drinking suffers because it is thought mysterious, costly, or just the reverse—the resort of a lush who hasn't the price of hard liquor.

Lawrence Minsdhaw, wine expert with William Mara Company, agents for wine and spirits, says these are irregrettable fallacies, especially the snobbery.

"Every individual is his own wine expert. No person in the world has the right to intrude his opinion. I think if people understood that, then they wouldn't be afraid to order in a restaurant or serve the wrong wine at home. There is no wrong wine.

"Your own palate will educate you. An expert may be right as far as the book is concerned, but no matter what the so-called expert will tell you, a person should drink the wine he likes and enjoys."

He suggests a beginner should start with sweet wines. First try ports and cream or sherry wines, ries—aperitifs or dessert wines.

"Red wines are, by and large, dry, meaning they have less sugar."

If you're uncertain which category a wine fits into, ask the waiter or the man in the wine or liquor store.

Mr. Mindham suggests that if you're interested in learning about wines, one way is to buy a bottle of wine and serve it at 50.

"Make notes. Keep your own cellar book. Six months or a year later try the same wines again and notice how your palate has changed because it is becoming trained to your own satisfaction. You may still not like a wine you didn't like the first time, but you may also find things in it you didn't see the first time.

"Experimentation is fun. Have a little patience with it. The art of marrying wine and food becomes a hobby. There are rules, but only if you want to follow them."

Mr. Mindham says he doesn't disapprove of "little flamboyances."

"Most of them are founded on reason. All you've got to do really is open your wine and pour it out, but it does improve with certain treatments."

SWIRL IT AROUND

It should be served in clear, tulip-shaped six - ounce glasses which should be filled only one-third full. This gives room up to the light. Red wines have a ruby tone, whites are almost colorless or have a greenish or amber cast, depending on their origin.

The wine-drinker swirls the wine in his glass to watch tear drops form on the side. Then he smells the wine. Both are reasons why the glass should be only half-filled. To enjoy bouquet you should be able to get your nose into the glass.

Then comes the first sip. Mr. Mindham says the proper method may not sound attractive but it is effective. You loosen shirts, wave it around with the wine and swirling it in your mouth. The after-taste gives you the first impression.

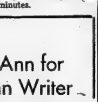
When you become accustomed to sniffing bouquets you will discover the aromas of cedar, blackberries, flowers and fruits in wines.

Red wines are ideally served at room temperature, cooler than the average Canadian room temperature. Putting them in a window sill or overwrapping them in cold, wet towels for a short time should make them about right.

Sparkling wines should be served thoroughly chilled.

White wines should be chilled in the least cold part of the refrigerator for an hour before serving. Generally, the sweeter they are the longer they should be cooled.

A small "collar" of table wines might have two each of reds, whites and pinks.



Once a wine is opened, it should be finished within a few days, before it loses its bouquet and flavor.

Ann Landers

Reader Berates Ann for Advice to Woman Writer

DEAR ANN LANDERS — As a general rule, your "solutions" to problems are fairly harmless, but recently you invaded the field of medical diagnosis and here is where I draw the line.

You told a woman to be patient with her hyper thyroid" husband and to help him direct his enormous energy into useful and productive channels.

ANN LANDERS

Did you receive a reading of his metabolism, Ann Landers? How do you know whether or not the woman's husband is hyper thyroid?

Do you practice psychiatry, too? If so, did it occur to you that the man might be a maniac depressive? This disease is characterized by hyperactivity in some cases.

I suggest you stick to lovelorn problems and leave the clinical diagnosis to the physicians. — PORTLAND.

DEAR PORTLAND — I do not practice medicine or psychiatry. I send thousands of people to physicians and psychiatrists every month.

My use of the word "hyper thyroid" was not a diagnosis, rather a word employed to describe the man's personality. When I see a person has ice water in his veins I am not suggesting that I have seen a blood test.

Recently I told a woman she had a cash register instead of a heart. I heard from no cardiac specialists who took this as a literal translation.

I appreciate your letter, however, and hope that your nose is back in joint. (And I hope the last sentence does not produce any complaints from nose specialists.)

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am a 19-year-old boy who has been going steady with a fine girl for almost three years.

I would like to break up with this girl but I don't know how to go about it. She is as nice as can be, which is a big part of the problem. If we had a big fight or something, it would be easy. But her disposition is wonderful and she agrees with me on everything.

The thing that makes it difficult is I don't know what has happened between us. I just lost interest, you might say.

Our families are very close friends and I'm afraid everyone will be sore at me. Do you think I am a rat? — UTICA.

— DEAR UTICA — No. If you have lost interest in the girl, that's reason enough to break up with her.

Tell the girl you believe it would be best if each of you were free to go with others. Make it clean — and quick. This is the decent and humane way to end a romance.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — That column of yours which appeared a few days ago included one of the dumbest pieces of advice I've read in a long time. You told a wife she should move into the guest room until her husband decided to put his hunting dog out of the bedroom and into the basement or on the back porch.

A man can get himself a wife by just letting it be known he is interested. A good hunting dog costs at least $200.

If that husband is smart he'll let his wife sleep in the basement or on the back porch. The dog might catch a cold out there. FREE AND HAPPY.

DEAR FREE (and worth every penny of it) — I have a message for you from the wives of America. Please stay single and make some nice girl very happy.

• • •

To solve some of the frustrations, disappointments and disillusionments of married life, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "What To Expect From Marriage," enclosing with your request 20c in coin and a long, self-addressed and stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

CENTENARY of Actinolite United Church was observed over weekend in dual ceremony. Church, built in 1864, is believed only one in Canada constructed of white marble.

EARLY RESIDENTS of Actinolite village were honored yesterday by unveiling of plaque. Two of village's senior citizens, David Lockwood and Mrs. Alice Parks with Lloyd Price at left are seen looking at plaque.

ties," the superintendent said.

Magnusson described a report by a Stockholm newspaper that the plotters were armed with sub - machine - guns as a "dreamed up story." He said more arrests were "not likely under present circumstances."

ORDERS ARREST

Magnusson, who also is the public prosecutor, later issued a statement saying:

"For a certain time police have had their eyes on a foreigner and resident of Stockholm. Our suspicions became such on Sunday that I gave the order for his arrest."

Magnusson said that at the present stage of questioning he could give no further details.

Aftonbladet said the arrested man "made a hardboiled impression" and refused to identify his companions in the alleged plot.

In the wake of the arrest, the 5,000 policemen in Stockholm for Khrushchev's visit were reinforced by two special commando units.

Concrete tubes filled with sand were taken to Haga Castle to strengthen the gates through the iron fence. Only one gate was kept open and it was protected by scores of uniformed police and plainclothes detectives.

H'S HEAVY GUARD

Haga Castle, a 19th century 18-room palace, is in the centre of a beautiful 30-acre park with a small lake. A total of 350 police guarded the area around the castle Monday night.

Because of previous threats, police operations and restrictions were more severe in Sweden than in Khrushchev's visit to Denmark. Even accredited newspaper men and photographers who were given rigid security check, were restricted, in their movement near the Soviet leader.

Police were told to shoot anyone making a threatening move toward Khrushchev. They were told to fire "even if you are in a crowd."

Swedish police normally are permitted to shoot only after being fired on.

The Soviet chief got an "arctic freeze" from the public when he arrived in Stockholm Monday from Denmark on the seventh day of an 18-day Scandinavian tour.

FEW CLAP

Only half a dozen persons in a crowd of about 4,000 clapped as Khrushchev stepped ashore from a Swedish PT boat that ferried him in from the Russian liner Sashkiriya.

Khrushchev attended a government dinner Monday night and dangled a juicy trade plum. He said the Soviet Union wants to buy more Swedish large-diameter pipe for its oil and gas pipelines.

"If they wish to buy, we will almost certainly sell it to them," said a Swedish official.

The United States has tried to get its allies not to sell such pipe to the Russians on the ground that it is a strategic material.

Unveil Actinolite Plaque In Memory of Those Who Founded It 100 Years Ago

The founders of the village of Actinolite north of Tweed were fittingly honored yesterday as a plaque to their memory was unveiled outside the century old Actinolite United Church.

Representatives of the Historical Sites Board of Ontario, local municipal officials and government representatives took part in the unveiling.

It was a dual celebration for residents of the Actinolite area, Sunday the 100th anniversary of what is possibly the only marble church in Ontario was observed with special services.

OUTLINES HISTORY

Last evening the church was filled to capacity to hear Gerald Boyce, curator of the Hastings County Museum, outline the early history of the village which briefly was called Troy, then Bridgewater and finally Actinolite.

Also speaking briefly at the ceremony was Professor C. F. G. Stanley, representing the Historical Sites Board, and Clarke T. Rollins, MLA for Hastings East.

Elzevir township Reeve C. A. McMurray acted as chairman, while church minister Rev. J. A. Payton dedicated the plaque.

Two of Actinolite's senior citizens, both descendants of early area settler Mrs. Alice Parks and Mr. David Lockwood, unveiled the plaque.

The inscription on the plaque notes that in 1853 Billa Flint (1805-94) built sawmills on the Skootamatta River with a village being laid out the same year.

Extensive marble deposits were subsequently discovered and the Actinolite church was erected of this material in 1864-66.

Two of Actinolite's residents, Mr. Flint and later Dr. Thomas S. Cullen, went on to important posts.

Mr. Flint became a member of the Legislative Assembly and later of the Senate, while Dr. Cullen, son of the first permanent minister at the Actinolite church, later became a noted surgeon at the Johns Hopkins Hospital at Baltimore.

The 100-year-old Actinolite church survived the disastrous fire which almost completely wiped out Actinolite (then Bridgewater) in 1880, with only the walls remaining standing.

The church lost its 101-foot steeple in the blaze, but the building was restored and today is believed to be the only marble church in Canada. Marble for the church walls was excavated from the church site.

Yesterday old-times were recalled both in song and in costume. Children of the Actinolite public school chorus sang old-time songs, while a group of young and old modelled old-time costumes, dating back nearly 100 years.

TO STUDY MERGER

NASSAU, Bahamas (CP) — The possibility of merging the administrations of The Bahamas and the Crown colony of Turks and Caicos islands will be studied "without commitment" by representatives of both territories Wednesday. The study session was suggested by the British colonial office, which has governed Turks and Caicos Islands since 1962 when Jamaica became independent. The area had been a Jamaican dependency.

Railway

CN officials said special trips behind steamer 6167 would be taken on Wednesday and Friday to accommodate the general public.

On Saturday a "photo stop" trip to Peterborough has been scheduled while Sunday afternoon old times will be re-enacted when a special leaves the city for Cobourg Beach.

While aboard the train members of the press were taken on a guided tour of its facilities. One point of interest was the exclusive carpeting of the coach floors.

Covering the floor in the cafe-sleeper car was a rich red carpet patterned with the CN symbol. A similar carpeting in black covered the floor in the lounge coach.

COMPLETE COACH

The cafe-sleeper car as mentioned above is a complete coach, one half dining area and the other half sleeping area, thus deriving its name — cafe-sleeper with its posh carpeting and modern conveniences.

Members were then taken through an older type sleeping car and through to the lounge car.

The lounge coach is divided by a partition with the lounge on one side and a passageway on the other. This is to allow other passenger to pass through the coach without entering the lounge.

Yes sir, the new CN look is different. The train ride is not like it used to be.

The Day It All Ended for a World 'Grown Old and Cold and Weary'

By DOUG MARSHALL

Canadian Press Staff Writer

Two shots by a teen-age student in the Bosnian capital of Sarajevo 50 years ago were signals that set mainspring the greatest avalanche of armies the world has ever seen.

The deaths by teen-ager was Gavrilo Princip, one of six Serbian assassins abroad in Sarajevo that day—June 28, 1914—and one of 16 citizens of what is now part of Yugoslavia eventually convicted for plotting the act.

Princip's victims were the tall, reticent and corseted Archduke Franz Ferdinand, heir to the throne of the Austro-Hungarian Empire, and his wife.

The aim of the Serbian nationalists was to protest Austria's annexation of Bosnia and Herzegovina in 1908 and to strike a blow for the freedom of all Slavs caught in the cold embrace of the ramshackle empire.

The shots were fired as the doomed car was reversing out of a narrow side street after taking a wrong turn. Several previous attempts on the archduke's life had been frustrated.

PREPARE FOR WAR

Within minutes both the archduke and his wife were dead and Princip was a frightened prisoner.

Soon afterwards, the cannons of a long-expected war that eventually would involve tens of millions of men from almost every part of the globe were drawing up along the tense frontiers of Europe.

The assassination was the signal, not the cause, of the First World War.

The seeds of conflict were sown, some say, as far back as the battle of Waterloo a century before and fertilized at intervals throughout the 19th century as the country that saw the British Empire spread to encompass a quarter of the globe while other European powers gambled their greatness on covering small pockets was left.

War—a decisive war that would settle once and for all the supremacy of Western Europe—had been in the cards of continental diplomacy since Bismarck's iron-willed nation of German states inflicted unforgettable humiliation on France in the Franco-Prussian War of 1870.

War—a decisive war about empires and a rightful "place in the sun"—had been simmering with almost scientific inevitability from the moment a united and industrialized Germany began to challenge the vital naval supremacy of Britain on the seven seas.

THOUGHT DIVIDED

Between 1870 and 1914 the mind of Europe was split. Optimists in 1910 quoted Norman Angell's The Great Illusion to show that complex economic alliances were a deterrent to major war. A year later, the pessimists cited General Friedrich von Bernhardi's Germany and the Next War, which said war was a "biological necessity" and France must be completely crushed.

On the royal level the "uncle of Europe" was Britain's pleasure-loving, deceptively sly Edward VII. His visits to Paris and Moscow cemented the Triple Entente, the hastily constructed alliance that linked the destinies of Britain, France and Russia after Russia's defeat at the hands of the Japanese in 1906 upset the balance of power.

Facing the allies were the Central Powers — Germany, Austria, and somewhat hesitantly, Italy. Their champion was Edward's erratic and power-jealous nephew, Kaiser Wilhelm II—a bewhiskered autocrat who basked in his Hun heritage, saw himself as the personification of Teutonic "Kultur" and believed himself ordained by God to don shining armor and lead Germany to greatness.

Although the chief actors were only dimly aware of it, their Europe was crumbling. From the Liverpool docks to the steppes of Russia, workers and peasants were rallying to the slogans of socialism.

EMPIRES ROT

The Russia of Czar Nicholas II was in social chaos. Austria-Hungary was crumbling under the feeble rule of its 84-year-old emperor, Franz Josef. Republican ideas and the poor of England were becoming a problem.

Deaf to the dem rattle of the old order, the generals in France was agitated by the planned war for the coming gene an plan was ready b unt Alfred von Sch drawing on the hallowed precepts of Karl von Clausewitz, produced a plan that would violate Belgium's neutrality and the north end of which would envelop Paris. Geared to a series of rigid timetables, it changed little between 1906 and 1914 and in the execution, nearly worked.

France's strategy, Plan 17, was also based on the concept of swift victory—a thrust across the lamented Alsace and Lorraine, lost to Germany after the Franco-Prussian war. But this Napoleonic army had little besides "elan et cran"—spirit and guts—plus the famed 75 field gun, best in the world, to carry out the plan.

The funeral of Edward of England in 1910 provided the last big show of Europe's interrelated royalty in power. Nine kings and countless lesser royals followed the bier.

Almost unnoticed among them was an awkward figure of fate—Archduke Franz Ferdinand.

AWAIT SIGNAL

With Edward in his grave, the captains and the kings departed to await the signal from Sarajevo.

In Germany, Kaiser Wilhelm's statesmen rallied against "encirclement" of Germany. In England, even the pacific Lord Haldane admitted the need to brace against Germany's swaggering down the main street of the world."

Austria, with ambition undeterred by senility, stirred on ule. German soldiers entered a neutral Luxembourg at a town called Trois Vierges and both Austria and Germany declared war on Russia.

Russia, protective mother of the Slav race, stood by Serbia and on July 30 Austria and Russia both ordered general mobilization.

By the end of July, the complex network of alliances had precipitated a flurry of ultimatums. As deadlines expired, the war machines began to move despite the desperate efforts of diplomats to find the brake.

MOVED TO TEARS

In a moment of panic the Kaiser, haunted by the Germanic horror of a war on two fronts, grasped at a chance to neutralize France and Britain. General Helmuth von Moltke, German commander in chief, was moved to tears by this attempt to sweep aside a decade of rigid planning for war on France.

The 1,800,000 men reeling towards France in 1,000 trains could not suddenly be stopped and turned around, the general insisted.

On Aug. 1, 1914, a world "grown old and cold and weary," in the words of Rupert Brooke, was hauled gloriously to war by the relentless logic of railway trains running along predestined tracks.

At 7 p.m., precisely as scheduled, Richard, was taken to Kinzston General Hospital for treatment of bruises. Medical treatment had been unnecessary, a doctor testified.

Natives Raising Fund to Buy President LBJ

PORT MORESBY, New Guinea, (AP)—A group of anti-Australian Papuans of New Hanover Island is raising a fund to buy President Johnson.

They want the American president to take over their little island 300 miles northeast of Australian New Guinea. They expect him to bring vast riches.

To avoid taxation collectors they are refusing to pay the head tax of 12 s. year. The movement is reported to have 2,500 members.

The Australian administration has sent District Commissioner Mick Healey and more than 40 armed police to New Hanover from neighboring New Ireland Island. New Hanover has a population of 8,000 Papuans and about 50 Asians, whites.

The leader of the so-called Johnson Cult is a 30-year-old Papuan "prophet" named Bosmislek who worked for a U.S. Air Force survey team on New Hanover earlier this year.

Bosmislek told his followers that 600 U.S. troops will arrive on the liner Queen Mary with several helicopters to help throw out the Australian administration. The cultists have prepared three landing sites for the helicopters.

During the recent House of Assembly election, the cultists of New Hanover refused to vote when told they could not vote for President Johnson.

New Hanover and neighboring islands have been the centre of pro-American cults since American troops were stationed in them during the Second World War.

Drug Addiction on Rise, Menace for West Africans

By KENNETH L. WHITING

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP) — An unhappy by-product of modern civilization, drug addiction has sharply increased in once-primitive West Africa.

Ghana's ministry of health is producing movies to warn the public against narcotics dangers. Production of drugs in Nigeria is growing rapidly. The police seized 7,132 kilograms (4,444 pounds) of illicit drugs in 1962 against 833 kilograms (517 pounds) in 1961.

A Nigerian senator startled his Parliament by proposing that the government encourage production of Indian hemp because it was so profitable. When the laughter of his colleagues subsided, the senator explained he thought Indian hemp was used, as indeed it is, solely for making rope.

Cannabis, a part of the hemp plant, is the main problem.

The World Health Organization opposes the medical use of cannabis preparations. The production and consumption is illegal in most nations.

But—in various places under various names—"diff" in Morocco, "bhang" in India and Pakistan, "dagga" in South Africa, "marijuana" in North and South America—cannabis preparations are widely known narcotics which affect mind and body.

IGNORE GUNFIRE

Use of cannabis by Baluba tribesmen in The Congo is reported to explain their extraordinary indifference in the face of gunfire.

The casual acceptance by some West African truck drivers of extreme danger apparent to most other motorists is often explained by their smoking of "reefs," cigarettes made with cannabis.

Consumption is new in West Africa. But in North Africa it was long considered no different from smoking tobacco. It likely was introduced on the west coast by soldiers after the Second World War. In other parts of the continent—notably Ethiopia and Somalia—that, a narcotic which is only mildly dangerous, is chewed by people on all levels of society.

Cannabis can be grown easily in the fertile land. Farmers often conceal it in other crops.

The growing narcotic traffic, says one authority, is based on newly acquired knowledge of high prices paid overseas "for a commodity which requires little effort to produce." A pound of cannabis sold in Nigeria for £20 ($180) may bring £1,000 ($9,000).

Since it need not lead to real addiction, medical authorities say cannabis is not as dangerous as opium or its derivatives or other drugs. But it still creates a craving which in time may lead users to crime in order to get money to satisfy it.

Orson Welles Once Worked As a Palmist in Circus

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

Familiarity doesn't necessarily breed contempt. . . According to psychologists, marriages in which husband and wife share many mutual interests have less tension than those in which each partner is more independent.

Did you know that Orson Welles once worked briefly as a palmist in a circus?

Small consolation: At least there's one commodity which doesn't seem to have gone up too much in price in recent years—buggy whips. . . .

Diamonds were worn exclusively by men until a French lady named Agnes Sorel startled the court in Versailles in 1444 by showing up wearing a necklace of sparklers. . . . And down went another male tradition.

Quotable notables: "A germ thinks of a man only as the swamp in which he has to live."—Don Marquis.

Imagine anything in Boston being wild. . . . Well, there's a radio station there—WILD.

Medical oddity: Some 85 per cent of people who suffer chronic headaches have one eye located higher in their head than the other.

Folklore: A girl who mops the floor crossways of the boards will have a drunkard for a husband. . . . Anybody who tips a chair over backward won't marry that year. . . A girl who marries a man whose last name begins with the same letter as her last name will be worse off than when she was single.

Crime fact: Bank Robbers usually are lone operators. . . . About 75 per cent of all bank robberies are committed by one person. (one person per bank, that is.)

Worth remembering: "It's called the mother tongue because father seldom gets to use it."—Arnold H. Glasgow.

Famous last words: Voltaire remarked, "Do let me die in peace."

Daniel Webster muttered, "Life, Life! Death! Death! How curious it is!".

The Emperor Vespasian commented, "I suppose I am now becoming a god."

Invasion of Mississippi By Civil Rights Workers Underway Despite Warnings

NEW YORK (AP)—A summer invasion of Mississippi by nearly 1,000 civil rights workers is under way, despite warnings from that southern state that it won't tolerate outside interference in its affairs.

Unpaid white and Negro volunteers are aiming an intricate, well-organized campaign at the Negro community as well as at white, and at the Negro's mind as well as at his emotions.

The volunteers, most of them from colleges, have been told to prepare for a summer of hard work — and possibly time in southern jails.

"We've asked each one to have someone in his home town ready to post $500 to $1,000 bail," said one spokesman for the movement.

The four civil rights groups behind this Mississippi Summer Project, are pushing three major drives centering around education, hygiene and home economics, and voter registration.

PLANNING FOR MONTHS

The project has been in the planning stage for months. Leaders say it will go ahead despite what they term "constant harrassment" and regardless of a number of Mississippi laws newly passed to stop the drive.

Conceived by the council of federated organizations, known as COFO in Jackson, Miss., the project is being directed on the scene by 29 - year - old Robert Moses, a Negro and a former New York City public school teacher from Harvard.

Money comes from the student Non-Violent Co-ordinating Committee, the Congress of Racial Equality, the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, and Dr. Martin Luther King's Southern Christian Leadership Conference.

Mississippi has been picked as a target because many civil rights leaders say progress in this field has been "agonizingly slow" in the state.

ATTEND COURSES

Participants attend week-long orientation courses at Western College for Women, Oxford, Ohio. Many will be teachers in the "freedom schools," aimed at high school age youngsters and run for about six weeks.

Students will get remedial instruction in basic educational skills, and "exposed to cultural influences not normally available to them."

The object, COFO says, is to "supplant habits of thinking and ideas of how a free society works."

There's such a closed, stifling atmosphere that these people haven't had a chance to think creatively," said Carol Rogoff, of SNCC. Miss Rogoff is white.

"It's probably true in their white schools too . . . they haven't been able to think reflectively about the society in which they find themselves. . ."

COFO hopes to set up more than 20 such schools.

AIM AT REGISTRATION

Increasing Negro voter registration in this election year is a prime aim. SNCC says only 6.3 per cent of the 440,000 voting-age Negroes are registered. Some estimates run higher but there is no official way of knowing.

COFO will pour volunteers into counties speeding up the continuing voter registration drive begun three years ago.

Other methods, COFO said, will be community education — explaining to Negroes their rights and duties — and massing Negroes at the state's 32 country courthouses to take voting qualification tests.

It's this area that is expected to produce public demonstrations.

The third major drive, hygiene and home economics, include plans for community centres to supply public health information, pre - natal care; classes for younger children in creative arts, adult education workshops and classes for illiterates.

LIST OTHER PLANS

COFO also intends to expand the use of federal food and welfare programs, replace what it considers inadequate or nonexistent libraries with donated books, and bring in outside entertainers.

Opposition is expected from the white community, but how will Mississippi Negroes react?

"We don't know . . ." said Miss Rogoff. "We cannot go in and involve the community and leave it open to face the repercussions themselves."

COFO says its summer plan is not mapped out to accomplish a change this summer, but should be a firm step in a larger plan that could take years to finish.

NO. 6167 STEAMER — Only operational steam locomotive owned by CN, pulls to stop in downtown Belleville yesterday as it hauled local crippled kiddies and Rotarians to noon luncheon at Hotel Quinte. Railway Week celebrations mark lifting of tracks from Pinnacle Street.

British Store Sells Chestless Dresses Quickly

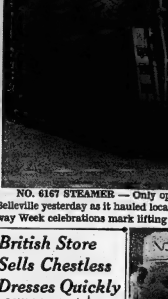
LONDON (AP) — A store selling "instant" new shock frock—the chestless dress—sold its scanty stock within 30 minutes of opening today.

"We've already sold the only ones we had," said Wilcox Peters, the manager, "and we've asked for some more."

He refused to say how many of the bare-the-bosom dresses he'd sold but said: "We had enough of them to prove that some women want them. . . ."

One of the first sales was to a 19-year-old wife and mother, Mrs. Margaret Pawley, who was accompanied by her architect husband.

Said the husband:



"After hundreds of years of frustration, this is a release for women. It's going to be like a waterfall. You won't be able to hold it back."

"I like it," said Mrs. Pawley, "and I shall wear it at a party — accompanied by my husband."

In the London models, the bosom is completely bare, without even a transparent-net covering. They expose the wearer to a few inches above the waist.

A spokesman for Britain's home office—which has jurisdiction over the police—said the fashion had not shocked the home office.

"It's a question for the courts, he said. "If somebody objects and calls a policeman, the policeman may arrest the wearer of the dress, but it'll be up to the courts to say what happens. This is not be settled in advance.

ALL ABOARD — Crippled children are seen boarding special steam train in front of Hotel Quinte, which they rode to and from the hotel. Getting ready to board are (from left) Mrs. Ruth Hall, Mrs. Ivy Alley Pigden, centre, with Lee Grills, left, and O. Pinkston, right. W. McCormick may be seen in background. Three Per Cent of Canada's Taxpayers Had Incomes of $10,000 in 1962 Report

OTTAWA (CP) — Only three per cent of Canada's taxpayers had incomes over $10,000 in 1962, but they reaped paid about 31 per cent of all the federal income tax.

The heavy tax burden carried by this thin upper crust of the income classes was shown Monday in the annual publication of annual Greek Book of tax statistics.

In 1962 there were 180,846 taxpayers in the $10,000-and-over bracket. They had about 15 per cent of the country's total personal income, which reached $20,764,200,000.

At the peak were 71 persons with $200,000 or more in income.

At the bottom of the scale were 623,871 persons—roughly 12 per cent of all taxpayers—with incomes below $2,000. They paid 1.76 per cent of the income tax.

In the $2,000-$3,000 bracket were 874,307 persons — about 19 per cent of the total. They paid 6.34 per cent of all the tax.

These figures include all income before deductions—wages, salaries, commissions, dividends, interest, rents, annuities, pensions and so on.

Biggest average income $18,450—was listed for the owners of financial businesses, that is, stock brokers, bond dealers, money lenders and those in a similar line. However, the three persons in that category compared with 1961 in 1962, when the average income was listed at only $779.

Next in line were doctors and surgeons with average incomes of $18,146, lawyers and notaries at $15,396, engineers and architects $14,545, dentists $13,707, accountants $11,183, investors $6,162 and salesmen $5,985.

Fishermen averaged $3,258 in 1962, while farmers—usually a notch above the fisherman—were at $4,466. One explanation may be that in 1962 the farmers were getting paid for drought-stricken crops of 1961.

Employees—that one big classification that takes in 83 per cent of all the taxpayers—had average incomes of $4,227. Pensioners averaged $3,217.

Of cities with more than 7,000 taxpayers, Sarnia had the biggest average income of $5,125. The only other cities to go as high as $5,000 was Sault Ste. Marie at $5,000, Oshawa was third at $4,945 and Windsor 10th at $4,780.

Child's Body Recovered From Water Cistern

NEWBURY, Ont. (CP)—Three days of fine-comb searching by hundreds of volunteers for four-year-old Terry Joyce ended Monday night when his body was recovered from a water cistern near the back door of his home.

The boy's father suggested firmware set out the four feet of water in the metal cistern, by the top of which is some three feet from the ground.

There was no indication how long the body had been in the tank. But the search ended as made as weary volunteers and policemen called off their third day of fruitless searching of this pond and swamp, quicksand and marshbriers area some 30 miles southwest of London, Ont.

Terry was one of eight children of Mr. and Mrs. William Joyce. Mrs. Joyce is expecting another.

Research Centre May Be Opened In Scotland

LONDON (CP) — Top-level argument appears to be going on behind the scenes of official Whitehall over the question of where goes W.H.O.

Science correspondents say that the World Health Organization is considering establishing a $100,000,000 international research centre in Scotland, probably in Edinburgh.

Despite the prestige and research benefits that such a centre would bring, certain government officials are reported to be opposing the suggestion on the grounds that research is best advanced by individuals pursuing their own ideas rather than by organized teams of scientists.

The opponents also argue that research centres of this sort would be more effective if established in underdeveloped countries where they would be closer to the diseases under study.

Plans for the centre were first made public at the W.H.O. congress last March. The British delegation was opposed in principle at the time but government policy was then being reviewed.

Crippled Children, Guests Of Rotary Club, Ride Last Train Down Pinnacle Street

Some children have never had a train ride.

For those who have it was a thrilling experience — even for crippled children.

Up until Monday some crippled children had never been on a train before.

Therefore, Monday's train ride from the CN station to the Hotel Quinte on Pinnacle Street will be a memorable occasion. Even for those who have ridden before on a train.

It will be a memorable occasion for them because they were fortunate in that they were able, through the assistance of the Rotary Club of Belleville, to be among those who rode a passenger train behind a steam engine for the last time down Pinnacle Street.

And to remember this special occasion, each child and adult guest was given a souvenir ticket — to keep — to cherish — and to help them remember that on Monday, June 22, 1964, they were among the 25 children who rode that last train.

The special train left the station at 11.45 and proceeded down to the Pinnacle Street tracks. The train was met at the intersection of Victoria Avenue by two highland pipers, Bill McDonald and Percy Rickardson, who piped the train to the hotel. The pipers are members of the Quinte Highland Pipe Band from Trenton.

The train came to a halt in front of the hotel as the cheers of members of the Rotary Club descended from the train with helpers.

They then entered the hotel where they met for their regular weekly luncheon meeting in the Pinnacle Room.

Head table guests were piped in to the meeting by pipers McDonald and Richardson to the tune of "Scotland The Brave."

During the meeting greetings were extended by His Worship the Mayor, Jack R. Ellis, K. Hunt, Area manager of the Rideau Area for the CNR, and ex-mayor A. M. Haig.

A special program was arranged for the crippled children who attended the meeting. A story about "A Train" was told them by Mrs. Ralph Morton and two solos were rendered by 12 - year - old Gay McFarland.

At 1.30 p.m. members of the club along with the children, boarded the train which returned them to the station.

Unarmed Police Used to Remove Demonstrators

LA MACAZA, Que. (CP) — A 24-hour sit-down by 16 peace demonstrators at the Bomarc missile base here ended Monday, a few hours after unarmed air force police removed them from the highway at the base entrance.

La Macaza is 136 miles north of Montreal.

The action and the nine-day silent vigil that preceded it, called by its organizers, Operation St. Jean Baptiste, was planned to co-incide with Quebec's week-long celebrations in honor of French Canada's patron saint.

About 100 silent, placard-carrying demonstrators, protesting against the staging of nuclear weapons in Canada, flanked the highway leading to the base while 17 others attempted to enter the base Sunday.

CARRIED OFF

When the road was opened to traffic Monday, those participating in the sit-down were carried off by 22 RCAF security police.

By 11 a.m. police had hauled the group off the highway 31 times.

Then they formed a cordon around the demonstrators, who ended their sit-down with a prayer meeting.

The sit-down group included a United Church minister, an actor, a taxi driver, two students and several students.

About 30 members of La Masdana and nearby L'Annonciation joined the vigil Sunday.

The demonstrators came from various parts of eastern Canada and the United States.

Tuesday provincial police officers kept about 15 counter-demonstrators from La Macaza separated from the peace group. There were no incidents.

Siberia Ideal for Sybarites?

MOSCOW (AP) — Russian labor camps have become country clubs, where drunkards, prostitutes and other "parasites" enjoy sunbathing, good food and vodka, Izvestia complains.

The social misfits sent to detention centres for rehabilitation are carrying on their old life in a new place, the government newspaper said.

They are just warming themselves in the sun when they are fed. They should be made to work from dawn to dusk and they should be punished more."

The article told of Konstantin Nadukin, drunkard and debauchee, who had a white shirt and television set, who as an artist sold his paintings to buy vodka.

Medical Educationists Propose Conference for Implementing Health Report

OTTAWA (CP) — A federal-provincial health conference next month should lay the groundwork for implementing the recommendations of the royal commission on health services, a group of medical educationists said Monday.

And they made it plain at a press conference they expect to be called in once the government discussions get beyond the preliminary stages, especially for talks about expanding facilities and financial help for medical colleges.

Enthusiastic support for the royal commission's recommendations was given in a statement by the Association of Canadian Medical Colleges, representing the deans and faculties of all Canadian medical schools.

The statement expressed unqualified approval of almost every educational recommendation made by the royal commission. It said it was "convinced that the educational aspects of the commission report will provide a charter for good health education in Canada for many years to come."

Noting that the commission report, issued Friday, recommends a number of steps to expand medical training and facilities, the association said immediate action is needed to deal with a major space shortage in medical schools.

Dr. J. F. McCreary, association president and dean of medicine at the University of British Columbia, said the association has been in touch already with the federal health authorities who will confer with the association on medical education.

"I think it's safe to say they already have called a conference with the provinces for July 20," he said. "This probably means it will be the first of several."

The association sounded one note of caution about a royal commission recommendation for a $5,000 grant to doctors training to become specialists.

That recommendation needs further investigation as it might aggravate the increasing shortage of family doctors which has been a constant worry to medical education," the association said.

U.S. Serves Notice It Will Pursue War in Viet Nam

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The United States has served notice on its Western allies it intends to pursue the war in South Viet Nam even if this should lead to a general confrontation in the Pacific. There is no thought of throwing in the sponge or of yielding to Southeast Asia to the Communists.

But beneath this display of determination, conveyed in every conceivable way to get the message across to Europe and Canada, there is an undercurrent of doubt in Washington that does not completely dismiss neutrality both for Laos and South Viet Nam.

The view emanating from the highest strata of government is that the U.S. considers Saigon a snakepit of personal rivalry and political intrigue that does not itself to stable administration.

SIMILAR IN LAOS

Conditions are considered somewhat similar in neighboring Laos where at one time the U.S. had agreed in neutrality only to see this neutrality collapse. The reasoning goes that while neutrality existed, Laotians could do harm to themselves but could not harm other parts of the world.

The impression left in official quarters is that the U.S. does not completely dismiss the idea of neutrality for Laos and South Viet Nam, especially since the government publicly maintains neutrality in South Viet Nam would open the door to a Communist takeover.

It is known that State Secretary Dean Rusk is already to discuss a variety of forms of political action for South Viet Nam, once the Communist-led forces fall back and ways are found to preserve the integrity of that domain, even if it makes the country only a glorified buffer.

For this reason there is some speculation the meeting between Undersecretary of State George Ball with French President Charles de Gaulle last June 5 involved more than a general review of east-west relations.

It is understood Ball tried to explore what de Gaulle had in mind in his suggestion of neutrality for Southeast Asia. Ball found de Gaulle's proposal is still in the embryo stage.

But de Gaulle is in a position to pursue the idea further with a Communist Chinese ambassador in Paris. With the least hint of encouragement from Washington, the French leader could plunge deeper into an investigation of all the possibilities.

There is speculation President Johnson would be ready to pursue the idea further once the elections are over and his return to the White House is assured.

While this idea is still in the state of wishful thinking elsewhere, neutrality no longer is a bad word in Washington.

Air of Discouragement About Cyprus and Laos

OTTAWA (CP) — There was an air of discouragement in the capital Monday about two small civil-warring areas, Cyprus and Laos.

Canada has a diplomatic stake in both: It is a member of the United Nations force in Cyprus and of the international truce supervisory commission in Laos.

Concerning Cyprus, officials said they don't see much hope for improvement in the poisonous dispute between Greek and Turkish-Cypriots during the next three months the UN will be on the island.

There has already been discussion here of the necessity of renewing the force's term of duty beyond the present Sept. 27 deadline because the UN General Assembly won't meet until Nov. 10.

DECREASES GLOOM

Talk in other Western capitals of partition or similar means of settling the dispute have also increased the gloom here. The record of post-war partitions—Germany, Korea, Viet Nam—is not a brilliant one.

Asked for a report to the Commons on his Cyprus visit, Defence Minister Hellyer spoke of the high morale of Canadian troops but declined any mention of the political situation there.

External Affairs Minister Martin's statement on Cyprus and Laos situations Thursday will be in substantially the same vein as in Washington during a meeting of the Canada-U.S. cabinet defence committee.

Proposals on Laos now are in a state of suspension pending a new Polish suggestion for an international conference.

However, Canada would not refuse to attend any meeting in Laos if other interested countries are agreeable to one, authorities said.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARTER, Sports Editor

There was tension, pressure, pride and heartbreak at the Olympics weightlifting trials down Ottawa way on Saturday.

And the Apollo Barbell Club of this city narrowly missed an all-time sports record for the Old Lady of the Metro.

And I hope the city appreciates the fact that for the first time in this city's history, it will be represented at the Olympics in Tokyo this fall by a native son.

JOHN LEWIS

It could have been two and a third missed out by the proverbial cat's whisker.

Twenty-one year-old John Lewis, named Canada's outstanding Indian athlete a short time ago, who holds several weightlifting records, both Empire and national, will carry the colors of his native city to the Olympics.

Price Morris, heavyweight champion, missed a Canadian championship only by a rules technicality, that of body weight.

And their proud mentor, Ken Carr-Braint, named Ontario's top lifting coach this year, missed "made" the team's coach-manager position. This went to Mr. Maurice Allen of Montreal, an Olympics committee official who missed Carr-Braint out by a single vote.

Lewis was not pushed to win his spot on the Olympics team. Carefully handled by Carr-Braint, he gave a polished performance with a total of 950 pounds, twenty-five pounds below his national record mark.

Soft-spoken John, who is modest almost to a point of shyness, gave vent to suppressed emotion when he learned he had "made" the team. He let out a war-whoop and nearly somersaulted across the hall in sheer joy.

But a few pounds of overdripsic spelled heartbreak for young Mr. Morris. Tied on the points basis, the selection narrowed down to amount of bodyweight. This swung the decision to Price's competitor.

The 165-pound Lewis trained hard and faithfully for the trials. He spent hours daily improving his technique until Coach Carr-Braint announced he was ready. A clean-living youngster who does not drink or smoke, he has achieved part of an early goal by being named to Canada's Olympics team.

Now comes the bigger one—that of winning a medal preferably gold—for his country. To do this he must pounds increase his ability to the 1,000 pounds total class. He has set his mind on this and after two weeks rest will go into intensive training with this in mind.

Lewis and his Olympics team-mates will get a taste of international competition in August. The squad has been invited to the United States Olympics trials at weightlifting which are being held at the World's Fair in New York City.

If memory is correct the world record in Lewis middleheavy class is 1,026 pounds held by an American who set the mark at the North American Weightlifting Tournament held at the Trenton RCAF Station last year.

"We'll have to shoot for the 1,000 pounds mark," Carr-Braint said me this morning, "and if John can make it I'm sure he can go on to best the current world record."

I hope the city fathers and those immediately associated with Lewis realize the honor he has brought to Belleville.

Financial assistance is out of the question, since this is the Olympics and as such is strictly "amateur." John toward keeping him in that shape.

It is not every hamlet of the size of this city that will be represented at Tokyo. We should be proud of the fact that we are sending a fine, upstanding, young athlete, who, I am sure, will do his best to uphold the honor of not only his city but of his country as well.

He did it at Sao Paulo, Brazil, when he won a bronze medal for Canada in the Pan-American Games. Let's hope these immediately associated with Lewis help make the way easier for the young fellow.

Almost Unanimous All-Star Vote ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Players Select Willie Mays As Tops

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK (AP)—Wonderful Willie Mays attracted the most votes as San Francisco Giants and St. Louis Cardinals each placed two men on the National League All-Star team's starting line-up for the July 7 dream game with the American League at Shea Stadium in New York.

Mays, the Giants' brilliant centre fielder, along with third baseman Ken Boyer and shortstop Dick Groat, were the only repeaters from 1957 in the voting of 270 players, coaches and managers. First baseman Orlando Cepeda was the other Giant selection on this year's starting team.

Commissioner Ford Frick, whose office conducted the balloting, said the complete squads, exclusive of pitchers, will be announced next week.

The pitchers, who are selected by the All Star managers, Al Lopez of the Chicago White Sox and Walt Alston of Los Angeles Dodgers, will be announced Thursday, July 3.

Surprisingly, the National League starting lineup will not contain a single player from the league - leading Philadelphia Phillies, who did not even place a man on the runner-up list.

FROM FOUR TEAMS

In addition to the four Giants and Cards, there were single representatives from Chicago Cubs, Pittsburgh Pirates, Milwaukee Braves and New York Mets.

The NL's powerpacked lineup included Don Hunt of the Mets at second base, Roberto Clemente of the Pirates in right field, the league-leading hitter, Billy Williams of the Cubs in left, and Joe Torre of the Braves behind the plate.

Maury Wills of the Dodgers, who leads the league in stolen bases and whose .326 batting average through last Sunday is the highest among the shortstops, finished third in the voting.

Mays, who boasts a .417 batting average in 14 All - Star games, received 240 of a possible 341 votes. Curt Flood of the Cards was runner-up with 97.

Williams, batting .373 after flirting with the magic .400 mark nearly all season, was the second highest vote-getter. He drew 337 votes to 17 for runner-up Will Stargell of the Pirates.

RACE IS TIGHT

The closest race was for the shortstop berth. Groat squeaked by Don Zimmer of Cincinnati Reds by five votes, 32 to 27. Boyer won by a surprisingly large margin over Ron Santo of the Cubs for third-base honors, 172 votes to 94.

Torre easily gained the catcher's berth with 203 votes to 34 for John Edwards of Cincinnati. Aaron, a veteran of 13 All-Star games, was one of the five 1957 starters who did not repeat. Others, in addition to Bill White and Julian Javier of St. Louis, were catcher Ed Bailey of the Braves, and left fielder Tommy Davis of the Dodgers.

All starters, except pitchers, must play at least three innings, unless injured. The National League won last year, but the American holds a 17-12 edge with one game ending in a tie.

Bolero Leads Ocean Race

HAMILTON, Bermuda (AP)—Bolero, the 72-foot yawl which holds the course record, held the lead Monday over 163 other yachts in the 635-mile Newport-to-Bermuda ocean race, reports reaching here said.

A spotter plane of the U.S. Coast Guard reported that the Bolero, under charter to Tim Moseley of San Carlos, Calif., was about 173 miles from Bermuda.

Worth $25,000 To Bunning

'Perfect Game' Said Golden One

By JOE REICHLER

CHERRY HILL, N.J. (AP)—The full significance of his historic Father's Day feat hasn't dawned on Jim Bunning yet and the tall Philadelphia Phillies' pitcher prefers it that way.

"I think it's good I don't realize it," said the bony, freckle-faced righthander. "Getting up too high can hurt a fellow. It's a long way down."

Bunning achieved a pitcher's utmost dream Sunday, turning in a perfect game against New York Mets in Philadelphia's 6-0 triumph.

It was the first such regular-season performance in the National League in 84 years and the first in the majors since Charley Robertson of Chicago White Sox retired all 27 Detroit batters he faced in 1922.

"It's hard for me to believe that," said Bunning Monday at his home in Cherry Hill. "I'm thrilled, of course, but it's not going to change my way of living. You can bet on that.

"I've been in this game too long to allow a thing like this to go to my head," added the 23-year-old Kentuckian, an even-tempered man who has been playing professional baseball since 1950, the last 10 years in the major leagues.

HAD NO-HITTER IN 1958

This was the second no-hitter of Bunning's big league career. He hurled his first as a member of Detroit Tigers against Boston Red Sox in 1958. Two bases on balls and a hit batter marred his bid for a perfect game.

"My first no-hitter caused a bit of excitement," Bunning recalled. "but not anything like this."

"The telephone has not stopped ringing since early this morning. And I've talked to more reporters and posed for more photographers than I have in all the other days combined."

Bunning, a father of seven, had the added pleasure of having his wife, Mary, and oldest child, Barbara, 12, watch his masterpiece in person at Shea Stadium. The rest of the brood saw it on television.

"I arrived home at 12:15 Monday morning and went right to bed," said Jim "I was tired.

"Then some idiot of a newspaper man—pardon the expression—called at seven in the morning wanting to come out with a photographer for a story and pictures. I didn't mind his waking me so much, but he woke up all the kids."

"The phone hasn't stopped ringing since."

Bunning's achievement has already paid off financially. He received $1,000 for appearing on Ed Sullivan's television show Sunday night.

Frank Scott, major league players' agent, estimated Bunning might earn as much as $25,000 by the end of the year, aside from his salary, estimated at around $30,000.

MRS. BENTLEY DIES

SASKATOON (CP) — Mrs. Matilda Bentley, 66, mother of the famed Bentley hockey family, died Sunday after a lengthy illness. Two of her sons, Doug and Max, played in the National Hockey League. Doug, Max, Jack, Roy and Scoop at one time formed a family hockey team.

The Trots

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Stormy Knight C, a five-year-old gelding, captured the featured pace for a purse of $500 at the Western Fair Raceway Monday night pacing the fastest mile of the evening at 2:07 2-5. He returned $6.80 for the win.

The trotting feature of the 10-race card, also for a purse of $500, went to Lady Ezra, a nine-year-old mare. Odds-on choice of the crowd of 2,408 persons, Lady Ezra returned $3.80 and trotted the mile in a good 2:08 3-5 in the ninth race.

Braves Sign Bragan To .65 Contract

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Manager Bobby Bragan of Milwaukee's slumping Braves was given a vote of confidence Monday night in the form of a new contract extending through the 1965 season.

President John McHale, in announcing the contract, said: "It is important that during this slump period we recognize that Bobby Bragan has put great effort into the building of this club and we are confident that his work will pay off this year and in future years."

Bill Bartholomay, Milwaukee board chairman, told a press conference Bragan had done "a tremendous job in rebuilding baseball interest" in Wisconsin, although the Braves had plunged to ninth place.

Braves Drop Seven

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

"The show of confidence will reflect on the play of our ball club—no doubt about it," said manager Bobby Bragan after he received a new contract from Milwaukee Braves.

Two hours after Bragan accepted the written vote of confidence from the Braves, they dropped their seventh straight game, 10-9, to Los Angeles Dodgers.

The Braves exploded for 15 hits, included five home runs, but they still couldn't extricate from the slump that has dumped them into ninth place in the National League, their worst position in the standings since they moved from Boston to Milwaukee 13 years ago.

They also are only one game away from equalling the season's longest streak, a record held by New York Mets, the only team between Milwaukee and the cellar.

In extending Bragan's term through 1965, president John McHale said:

"It is important that during this slump period we recognize that Bobby Bragan has put great effort into the building of this club, and we are confident that his work will pay off this year and in future years."

In celebration of the event, Bragan went out and used the same lineup (excepting the pitcher) he had used the day before. That was rare for the scrappy Alabaman, whose juggling of the line-ups could earn him a spot on the Ed Sullivan show.

There was nothing rare, however, about the ensuing defeat. There was nothing rare either about New York Yankees' 6-5 victory over Chicago White Sox in an American League game. The Yankees had beaten the White Sox nine previous times without a defeat this season, in the only other AL contests. Los Angeles Angels downed Washington Senators 5-3 and Cleveland Indians and Minnesota Twins battled to an 8-6 tie in a game ended by rain in the 11th inning.

San Francisco Giants whipped Cincinnati Reds 6-2 in the other National League game.

Milwaukee led 5-3 until the Dodgers rallied for six runs in the seventh inning. Wally Moon ignited the burst with a pinch double and Dick Tracewski followed with a two-run single. Tracewski singled in two other runs, the one in the ninth proving to be the winning tally.

Lee Maye, Joe Torre and Gene Oliver clouted two runs homers for the Braves while Hank Aaron and Denis Menke hit solo blasts.

SURVIVES FOX RALLY

The Yankees survived Chicago's three-run surge in the ninth for their fifth consecutive triumph. Steve Hamilton scattered six hits through eight innings. Hal Reniff entered the ninth and the White Sox quickly loaded the bases and scored one run.

Bill Stafford replaced Reniff and retired the side, although two more runs scored on force plays.

Pinch hitter Willie Smith, a pitcher-outfielder, slashed a single to left field with the bases full to broke a 2-2 tie and sent the angels to their sixth straight victory. The hit was the seventh for Smith in 13 pinch hitting appearances. Mike Brumley collected three hits and an RBI for the Senators.

Larry Brown homered in the eighth for the Indians, sending their game with the Twins into a 10-inning deadlock. Brown came to bat in the 11th when rain struck. After a delay of an hour and 20 minutes, it called.

Harmon Killebrew and Bob Allison each drove in three runs for the Twins with Allison belting his 17th homer with one aboard.

Willie McCovey smashed a grand-slam homer for the Giants in the sixth after dropping a fly ball for a two-run error in the fifth. Cincinnati starter John Tsitouris had a no-hitter until the sixth, when pinch hitter Chuck Hiller singled.

Nip Ajax In Twelve
Joyces Win Marathon 5-4

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

Long-ball clouting by Larry Soule and Pete Weston plus a left fielder who seemed to have trouble following the ball provided Belleville Joyce Realty with a 13-inning 5-4 win over Ajax here last night in an Eastern Ontario Senior baseball marathon.

Down 3-2 going into the top of the ninth, Ajax pushed across one run and finally moved into the lead in the top of the 12th, 4-3, on a walk and Chomy's booming triple.

Ajax had inserted Finnigan in the lineup in the 11th as a pinch hitter and he set his own pace by striking out — but the worst was yet to come. Larry Soule blasted a homer which Finnigan never saw until it hit the turf landing off the bottom of the 12th.

After one was out, Pete Weston also walked another blast to left and landed up with a triple when the outfielder again failed to locate the ball. Finnigan was replaced at this point but the damage had been done and Weston raced home with the deciding run when the next pitch, in the dirt, got away from the catcher.

The game, fan-fights and near-player brawls included, took three hours and 30 minutes to play, ending at 12:23 this morning.

A small but enthusiastic crowd attended and got plenty of action in one form or the other. Police were called but arrived too late to grab a couple of fans who slugged it out near the Ajax dugout in the 11th inning. A couple of Ajax players joined in the battle until ordered back to the field by umpire Jim Tebworth. Belleville's Larry Mavety and Mac Rowland, of Ajax, also had to be separated after a slam-bang play at the plate in the ninth. Earlier a couple of spectators had traded blows and drew fans' and players' attention, also—near the Ajax dugout. It was a long lively evening to say the least.

Moe Hunter collected four Belleville hits, including a homer that tied it 1-1 back in the second, and a triple. Larry Soule homered and singled. Pete Weston tripled twice and Cliff McGrimmon, Larry Mavety, Stu Muirhead and Bill Barnestock upped the winners' hit total to 12.

McGrimmon ignited a two-run ninth with a hard-hit single that was booted into a round-tripper. Weston tripled and Mavety obtained a sacrifice fly for a 3-2 lead. Hunter also tripled to chase Godfrey.

Alert plays at the plate cut down two Ajax runners while another was hung up at third when Mavety nailed for a pitchout while Ajax was threatening often in the 7th, 8th and frames.

Ajax had 13 hits in all, including two doubles and a single by Jim Breckenridge, a triple and single each by Bob Tripp, Mac Rowland and Jim Chomy, one triple by Marshall and other hits by Tetlock, Peterson and Godfrey.

Bill Barnestock got the win, taking over from a tiring Ber McLean in the sixth. They whiffed eight and walked six, five by McLean. Bob Hooper lost after relieving Godfrey in the sixth. They struck out 15 and walked a pair.

Bad lighting, especially in the outfield, appeared to hamper both clubs with a number of misjudged hits resulting.

The victory gives Belleville a record of five wins and one loss. The club meets Little Britain in a home-and-home set next, there Saturday and back here next Monday.

Boyle Shades Healey
Juniors Nip Lombanks 3-2

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

TWEED — Ellis Juniors, finding Elaine Healey's offerings to their liking once again, slipped the Tweed Lombanks in a 3-2 thriller here last evening to create a three-way tie for second place in the B. and D. softball loop standings.

Trenton, now points up on the pack, meets Trudeau Motors in a 6:45 game at Belleville CNRA Park tonight.

The Juniors plated single runs in the first, fifth and eighth frames; Lombanks bagged singletons in the sixth and eighth and both clubs were robbed of probable home runs by tremendous plays in the tension-packed sixth.

Stu Muirhead ended the contest when he raced into the hole in left-centre and made a diving, rolling catch of Gord's bid for a hit after a walk, fielder's choice and a passed ball had got Tweed's tying run to second. In the top of the inning, Terry LeSage stole a four bagger from Bob Ethier, spearing the line shot over his head while running away from the plate in deep centre.

Ellis' combed Healey for 10 hits and gave Bobby Boyle receivers support while he let Tweed down with six safeties. Healey fanned only six and walked one. Boyle, getting his second straight win, whiffed five and passed three.

Moon's hit to centre took a bad hop and became a triple in the opening frame and he scored on Chatland's sacrifice bunt. They made it 2-0 in the fifth when Muirhead singled, advanced on a throwing error and Chatland's base hit and scored on Ethier's single to deep short.

Lombanks put together half of their hits in the sixth to make it 3-1. T. LeSage slogged, Sherry rapped a hard one off Boyle's glove and Gray lashed a double to centre, scoring one, but the tying runner was cut down when he overran third.

A bit batter, MacFarlane's infield hit and Gardiner's single upped the Junior lead to 3-1 but Carleton got that back quickly when he clamored a long lead-off homer to left in the eighth. Then came the climactic catches to wrap it up.

Stu Muirhead leaped three feet to make his, Bob Ethier getting two and Bob Moon his triple. Don Gardiner, Mike Chatland, Ethier, Muirhead and Carl MacFarlane added the others.

Eldon Gray continued his torrid pace for Tweed with a double and single. Terry LeSage singled twice, Lorne Carleton homered and Bert Sherry had the other hit.

Race Tightens
City Hotel, Lightfoots Win

The battle for top rung on the Commercial Softball League ladder continued at a hot pace last night with two of the three clubs in the hunt chalking up victories.

City Hotel downed the Point Anne Cementmen 6-1 while Lightfoot Construction buried Belvedere Hotel in a 19-0 landslide.

Meanwhile it was announced that a protest had been launched against Ter-Haar, of a game played June 18, was upheld, reversing the decision and giving the win to the Cheesemen.

City Hotel scored trice in the first and four frames against the Ox-Fosters while Moe Hawkins was toasting a two-hitter for the winners. Hawkins struck out 10 but walked seven. Whalen had only six hits, fanned one and walked one in a loding effort.

Errors in the first, plus D. Hall's double and Bem's homer moving while another bobble, two scratch hits and Hawkins' two-bagger sewed it up here.

Doug Hull and Moe Hawkins paced the winners with doubles while F. Donovan, R. Simmering, J. Martin and J. Mullins added singles. Powell and Whalen gained the only Point Anne safeties.

Lightfoots, the game already in the bag 9-0, exploded for 10 runs in the sixth frame against Belvedere.

George Young pitched a three-hitter for Lightfoots, striking out six and walking one. Casson was the loser, giving up 12 of the winners' 16 hits while Bryant faced four men in the sixth. They had one strikeout and nine walks.

Don Smith had a big night with the stick for Lightfoots, clouting two-run and three-run homers and adding a double and single. Dick Hurst also had a three-run circuit blow, Bill Dickey a double and single, Don Dolan and Jack Gavrin two hits each, Rusty Garvin, Jack Whiting, John Hazard and George Young also hit safely.

Bryant had two Belvedere hits and McFee got the other.

DODGERS' PLANE HIT

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Lightning struck Los Angeles Dodgers' private plane en route here from Cincinnati Sunday night, splitting protective nose cone but causing no serious damage. While the four-engine Electra II was flying over Lake Michigan in a thunderstorm, a blinding white flash lighted up the plane. The landing was made without incident.

MONTREAL (CP) — Tom O'Riordan, a slim, shallow-cheeked Irish speedster, said Monday he has set his sights on beating Canada's Bruce Kidd in either the Montreal St. Jean Baptiste Games Wednesday, or the July 1 Dominion Day track meet in Toronto.

"I think I'm in the fittest condition of my life," he said, "if I'm ever going to beat him it will be now."

O'Riordan, a 26-year-old Dublin bachelor, and several other international track stars, who will appear at the Montreal games arrived Monday. O'Riordan and Kidd will face each other in the 3,000-metre run Wednesday. This event is Kidd's specialty and he has run it in 13:43.8.

O'Riordan has run against Kidd on six different occasions, but never at 5,000 metres. He beat Kidd twice in the two-mile in a Dublin meet although O'Riordan says Kidd "wasn't up to his form then." Kidd has defeated O'Riordan three times in indoor two-mile events in the U.S. and once in England.

Arriving with O'Riordan were France's Maurice Lurot and Francois Chatelot and Jamaica's George Kerr. They will be competing in the 800 metres against Kidd's Toronto team mate, Bill Crothers.

The only other track event to be staged is the 20 - kilometre walk which will feature Alex Oakley of Oshawa, a gold medal winner for Canada at the Pan American Games.

Brydson Leads Golf Seniors

TORONTO (CP) — Defending champion Gordie Brydson of Toronto took a one-stroke lead in the first round of the Ontario senior professional tournament Monday with a one-over-par 71. The second round of the 36-hole tournament will be played here in September.

The tournament is actually a two-in-one affair. The pros, all 50 years of age or older, play with three senior members from their own clubs. The score of the pro goes toward his total for the senior professional title and the amateurs combine their best scores with the pro in a best-ball competition.

At Wimbledon

No Topless Dresses-Yet

By JOHN GALE

WIMBLEDON (AP) — Ted Tinling, arbiter of Wimbledon fashion, decreed today that the world's greatest tennis tournament is not quite ready for the topless dress.

"But you can't discount it as a long range prospect," said the gangling designer.

"It's not so long since my grandmother thought unclothed table legs were indecorous and look how times have changed."

On the first day of the Wimbledon championships, the topless dress was nowhere to be seen among the female spectators or competitors.

"I think there are future possibilities in the field of the transparent top," said Tinling, a Second World War British intelligence officer who has been stirring up fashion controversy at Wimbledon ever since he launched Gussie Moran's lace panties 25 years ago.

His most daring departures this year have been reserved for Hale's lovely Lea Pericoli —once the subject of official wrath at the championships for wearing shocking pink panties beneath her tennis dress.

TITTED WITH FEATHERS

Tinling has fitted her out with a rain suit—trousers and long shirt—and a dress with a skirt of ostrich feathers.

Miss Pericoli is expected to be seen in the plumage Wednesday, traditionally ladies day of the two-week championships. Seventy-five groups of four ostrich feathers have gone into the garment.

Tinling doesn't think it will catch on, but said: The novelty is the thing. If you had 130 women running around these courts dressed identically, the place would be dead in five years' time."

Tinling is dressing nearly 50 per cent of the women players here and five of the eight women seeds.

"This year, there are more lace trimmings and more fancy cut-out necklines," he said. "Since Wimbledon now bans color, I must find something for people to look at."

Motorbike Races Here Friday

A total of 32 Canadian Motorcycle Association competition riders have entered 38 motorcycles in the races to be held this coming Friday night at the Belleville Fairgrounds. The organizers of the meet, the Pilot Pakette Motorcycle Club of Belleville and District, have arranged the entry into five classes, Expert 500cc, Senior 500cc, Junior 500cc, 250cc all comers, and 200cc all-comers. With this classification it is possible for one rider to ride in his own 500cc class and also compete in either one of the 250cc or 200cc classes, this is the reason for the number of motorcycles exceeding the riders on the entry up to Monday night.

More entries are expected on Friday night at the Fairgrounds before 8.30 p.m. the starting time of the first heat. Already registered are two Expert 500cc riders from the U.S.A., Herb Eckersley from Mystic, Conn., and Cliff Varkade from Plymouth, Mass. Both have entered American made Harley-Davidson 750cc side valve racers, which are allowed to compete in the 500cc overhead valve class, under CMA rules. Also entered and riding a similar machine is Sandy Freeman of Hamilton, last year's winner of the Ontario Expert 500cc Championship at the Belleville Fair. Don McHugh of Brampton, Ontario, riding a B.S.A. 500cc OHV racer will be here to head the Junior 500cc competitors from Peterborough, Oshawa, Toronto, Oakville and Montreal, Quebec. Of the nine Senior 500cc riders entered, Carl Ferland of Quebec City, Quebec, will be travelling the farthest to compete with Seniors from Ontario and Montreal.

Minor Baseball Results

Fountain Park plated two runs in the seventh inning to grab a 6-4 triumph over the Bad Boys in a Peewee baseball game at Park Dale last night.

Bad Boys had held Fountain Park to a 4-4 stalemate until this point, despite a fine pitching chore by the winners' Jim Woods. Woods allowed just two hits and struck out 16 batters. Ed Christopher was his catcher.

Wayne Farrell hurled the loss, tagged for 12 hits. He struck out 11. Ron Jury was his battery mate.

Christopher led the Fountain Park hit parade with three hits, one of them a double. S. Buck, B. Loveless and D. Tomase had two hits apiece, M. Goegan, J. Woods and B. Loe one each.

Bad Boy safeties went to Bishop and Thompson.

Keeps Advertising Job, No Security in Writing

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Henry Slesar, who has written more shows for Alfred Hitchcock's television series than any writer of detective fiction scripts and screen plays.

"I keep my advertising job," said Slesar, "because there is no security in writing."

He wrote—and promptly sold —his first short story about eight years ago when he was at sea, ill, and had nothing to do. A short time later Joan Harrison, producer of the Hitchcock show, bought one of his published stories. Since then he has sold close to 40 stories and scripts to the show. Now he has two ideas for series under consideration by a network and a film studio.

Where does he find his ideas?

"If you write, you are always on the lookout for something—maybe only a line that is overheard—that will give you an idea.

"One thing that really helps is that people, when they know you are a fiction writer, like to tell you stories. And you always listen."

CBS Monday signed Barbra Streisand to a 10-year $2,000,000 contract. The 22-year-old singer-actress will appear in a series of specials next season.

Leafs Jump From Fifth To Second

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Jim McKnight probably never got better mileage out of one home run.

The Toronto outfielder belted one out of the park with two mates aboard in the seventh inning Monday night to give the Maple Leafs a 5-2 verdict over Richmond Virginians and advanced his club three places in the International League standings.

McKnight needed a bit of help and got some of it from unexpected sources.

The Leafs, jumping from fifth to second place, stayed 1½ games behind Jacksonville Suns, who knocked over Syracuse Chiefs 7-6. The seventh - place Columbus Jets surprised Buffalo Bisons 4-3 and the tail-end Atlanta Crackers pulled the biggest upset of all, sweeping a twin bill at the expense of Rochester Red Wings, 3-1 and 5-2.

Doing into Monday's games, Syracuse, Buffalo and Rochester had been deadlocked with Leafs 1½ games behind Jacksonville with the Leafs trailing their rivals on percentage.

Eli Grba blanked the Virginians over the last eight innings yielding a two-run homer red Hopke and picked up rd victory in five decisions for the Leafs. Both teams had nine hits.

Ron Cook's three - run homer was the highlight of a five-run fifth inning that barely got Jacksonville home against Syracuse. took's two-run error in the seventh helped Frank Bork's complete game of the season as the Jets overcame the ns.

The Crackers enhanced the managerial debut of Pete Appleton as Orlando Martinez doubled home the winning run in the eighth inning of the opener and Ed Olivares decided the nightcap with a three - run homer.

Greatest Flanker?

Wants Wilt In Football!

NEW YORK (AP) — Let's say you're a defensive halfback. So how do you defend against a pass-receiver who is 7-foot-1, weighs 290 pounds and can outrun you?

"I think it's a very interesting problem," said Hank Stram, coach of the American Football League's Kansas City Chiefs. And that's why he wants to sign Wilt Chamberlain.

"I'm certain he would be the greatest flanker back in football," Stram said after Chamberlain took part in a recent workout at Monticello, N.Y., an upstate resort area. And Stram has some plans on doing something about it.

"Wilt and I had quite a talk," Stram said. "Hes interested in football, genuinely interested.

"Now I want to talk to some officials of San Francisco Warriors and see what we can work out about Wilt playing football with the Chiefs."

San Francisco officials, however, are expected to be less than completely enthusiastic. Big Wilt makes in excess of $50,000 a year playing pro basketball and the idea of such property being doubleteamed by pro football linemen wouldn't induce sweet dreams.

Singles At Wimbledon

Emerson, McKinley Win

WIMBLEDON, England (CP) — Australia's Roy Emerson and Chuck McKinley of the United States, the two top favorites, swept to victories in the opening round of the men's single championships at Wimbledon Monday.

McKinley, 23-year-old Wimbledon champion, took only 58 minutes to down South African Terry Ryan 6-3, 6-4, 6-4, in the opening match of the tournament.

But fellow American Dennis Ralston, his country's No. 2 player, was victim of a stunning upset by Tony Pickard of Britain.

Pickard, 29, a former British Davis Cup player, won 3-6, 3-6, 6-4, 7-5, 8-7 after a battle which lasted more than 3½ hours.

Official favorite Emerson beat Donald Dell of Bethesda, Md., 6-3, 6-1, 6-0. It took him 69 minutes.

In other first-day matches, Canadian Davis Cup player Francois Godbout of Waterloo, Que., defeated Wimbledon's youngest competitor, Gerald Battrick, a Welsh schoolboy just turned 17, by 6-3, 6-2, 8-6. Keith Carpenter of Montreal downed George Bluett of Britain 6-2, 6-4, 6-2.

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Vivien Leigh, looking fit after her recent illness, is back in Hollywood to play yet another southern lady.

The English actress has come aboard Stanley Kramer's Ship of Fools for one of its few American roles. This time she's a Virginian, and if she does as well as her last two southerners, she'll be doing well indeed—Both won the Oscars.

"The accent is quite difficult, but I'm working hard on it, she said. "Virginian is a bit difficult to capture; its somewhere midway between southern and British. It was easier when I was speaking Georgian in Gone With The Wind and Mississippian in A Streetcar Named Desire.

Miss Leigh is feeling very chipper after months of rest required by her collapse in New York last year. She had been appearing in her first musical, Tovarich.

"Everyone told me I was crazy to do a play in New York during the summer, she said. "I thought that over. Hadn't I played next four shows a day in North Africa during the war in temperatures of 126 degrees? I was sure I could cope with a New York summer.

SUMMER UNBEARABLE

"But I couldn't. It was simply unbearable. I spent all day in the country, but I had to come to the theatre at night, and the nights were terrible. I could get no rest at all."

Now she is pleased to be back at her profession and back in Hollywood. The town holds many memories for her; some pleasant, some not so. She recalled Streetcar with pleasure. "It was a terribly stimulating experience," she said. "All of us had done the play, so we were familiar with the story. And Marlon Brando was marvellous to work with."

Her feelings about Gone With The Wind are mixed.

"While we were shooting it, I was convinced that it was going to be a disaster," she remarked. "Perhaps it was because it was the first time I had been involved in such a big film and I was terribly confused by the constant changes.

"I finally got to sitting around the set with the book between my knees. That was the only way I could keep track of what was going on in the story."

NEW FLEMING THRILLER

United Artists soon will have a fourth Ian Fleming best-seller before the cameras, On Her Majesty's Secret Service, again to star Sean Connery.

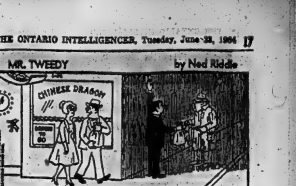
Vanier Said Not Wanted By Separatists

MONTREAL (CP) — The Quebec separatist group Le Ralliement pour L'Independance Nationale says it is proud to see that Quebec intends to do justice to its "national flag day" Wednesday, but it wishes that Governor-General Georges Vanier weren't around.

"Governor - General Vanier who will preside over the St. Jean Baptiste day parade is for the personal representative of the Queen of England," President Pierre Bourgault said Monday night in a prepared statement.



"The fact that he is a French-Canadian does not change the picture. He is still the representative of a foreign power."

The separatist group also attacked "Anglo-Saxon capitalist" Canadian employers who have not given their employees a holiday since 1964.

It singled out the CNR, which has given employees the right to take the day off without pay, as the target for a non-violent demonstration at 3 p.m. Wednesday.

Mr. Bourgault referred to the Governor-General as "this old general who spends his time in front of those who want to silence him."

"Let it be known that respectable old men do not impress us any more," he said. "Let Mr. Vanier return as quickly as possible to Ottawa whence he came and continue to look after his dear Canadians who use him to win us over."

TRUDY

THE Arnold Palmer METHOD

WIDE ARC ON TAKEAWAY

A common fault on the backswing occurs when the player keeps his hands too close to his body, as I am demonstrating in #1. With the hands in flight, a normal result can be the tendency to hook shots. A short could also result.

On the takeaway the clubhead should move for the first few inches along an extension of the target line. This will ensure that the hands will move away from the body (#2) and the swing will take on the wide arc that is necessary for maximum distance.

To know yourself is to take the club back on this runway. Insert a tee into the ground six to eight inches behind the ball and along the extended target line. Then try to brush over the tee with your clubhead on the takeaway.

One note of caution: Though it is desirable to start the clubhead moving back along the target line, eventually it must move inside this line and around the player's body. Overdoing the movement along the target line could cause you to incorrectly sway laterally to the right.

Latta Beats Deseronto 15-6

Latta exploded for 17 hits on the way to a 15-6 South Hastings Baseball League victory over Deseronto on the weekend.

The winners also made the most of careless play by the losers, piling ten walks and four costly errors, to pile up the decisive victory. Latta scored nine runs in the first two innings to wrap up the win early.

Deseronto collected seven hits in all, while the spirited Latta crew gave up only one and made a single bobble.

Errors Help Read Win

Errors played a key role in ruining a tight pitching duel last night as Read outscored Latta 6-1 in a postponed South Hastings Baseball League game.

Frank Farrell, for Read, and Bob Smith, of Latta, both hurled well. Farrell gave up only two hits, fanning seven and passing five. Smith allowed four hits, struck out six and walked four.

The losers were charged with seven errors, the winners with three.

Read hits, all singles, were scored by P. Milligan, G. Brennan, F. Steele and K. Brennan.

Howard Meeks rapped a double for Latta and Doug Rollins singled.

The winners built up a 6-0 lead with one in the third, two in the fourth and three in the fifth. Farrell lost his shutout in the sixth.

Announce New Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids ... and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved ... actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

Among these case histories were a variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. Relief even occurred in cases of long standing, and most important of all, results were so thorough that this improvement was maintained over a period of many months.

This was accomplished with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a principal cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment with a special applicator).

Some Transfer of Greek Territory to Turkey Looked For in Cyprus Settlement

By ARTHUR L. GAVSHON

LONDON (AP)—The British government is moving to the view that some transfer of Greek territory to Turkey is going to form part of any final settlement of the Cyprus dispute.

Neither the nature nor the wherewhals of any such territory was defined by well-qualified diplomatic authorities who insisted on remaining anonymous.

But they said the essential purpose would be to provide some form of practical, physical compensation for Turkish-Cypriots who would stand to lose by the assertion of absolute Greek-Cypriot power in the east Mediterranean island.

An eventual Greek - Cypriot victory in the current power struggle is foreseen in London, Washington and other capitals, these informants say. In time, this might lead to Enosis—union of Cyprus with Greece.

And the disappearance of President Makarios from leadership of the island is foresees because it is becoming more and more evident to Western authorities that the bearded archbishop is losing control of his administration to extreme elements.

OUTLINE EXPLAINED

An outline of the evolving British attitude was given by informants in advance of journeys to Washington by the premiers of Turkey and Greece, Ismet Inonu and George Papandreou. Both have been invited to stop over in London on their way home; the Greek premier has accepted.

In describing the British approach to a settlement of the prolonged Cyprus dispute the informants advanced two things:

1. The situation seems to be so charged with danger and uncertainty that some unexpected turn of events could force a total reappraisal.

2. British policy and thinking on the over-all Cyprus affair in large measure coincides with the views of the U.S.

The first hint of Britain's latest assessment was given to the house of Commons Wednesday by Foreign Secretary Richard Butler, in a statement worded with deliberate obscurity. Butler said in part:

"What the British government wants is to make sure that, arising out of these (Washington) discussions, some extra force or power may be able to be given to the (United Nations) mediator (Sakari Tuomioja), and that the mediator may then be able to perform his usual function and coming forward at the United Nations with a solution which is both lasting and fair.

MUST SATISFY CYPRIOTS

"It is also important to find a solution that satisfies the aspirations of the island.

"In the government's view, it is essential, therefore, that the minority's advice should be respected, but something practical, and if necessary physical, should be found to find satisfaction for them, and at the same time the mediator should come forward with a solution which is lasting."

Butler's reference to need for "something practical and if necessary physical" to satisfy the Turkish-Cypriots was first taken by the British press as a pointer toward partition of the island.

But authorities subsequently stressed this was an incorrect interpretation. The foreign secretary was alluding, they said, to the possibility of some kind of territorial adjustment that would provide physical compensation for those islanders who might suffer in a settlement. Such a possibility, the informants said, is one of the things that have been under close examination in London, Washington and other capitals.

Your Car

Don't Lose Bearings By Neglect

By EUGENE B. MILMOE

Because they may bring on similar symptoms — brakes, tires, shock absorbers and the steering mechanism are often blamed for conditions which are caused by faulty front wheel bearings. For instance — too much steering play, excessive road shock or wheel shimmy can be due to loose or worn bearings. Other possible faults, rarely blamed on bearings, are cupped tire treads.

Suppose front wheel bearings are binding, fitted too tightly or running dry of grease. . .what they're up to. You'll notice that the car steers hard, or it will tend to pull toward one side if the trouble is more or less confined to just one front wheel. Noise from the front wheels can be another symptom of bearing trouble. This can develop no matter what is wrong — e.g., whether they're too tight, worn or grease-starved.

How do you avoid bearing troubles? Well, you're not likely to experience serious difficulty if you follow proper grease change schedules — 10,000 mile intervals are usually recommended.

C. W. WRITES: "If the speedometer goes haywire in reverse, but not in low, less than it should, what is generally wrong?"

A faulty gearing — or dirty or dry mechanism.

From T. G.: "When my '57 often acted as if it were going to cut out completely, especially during acceleration, I had the plugs, points and condenser replaced and the carburetor and choke checked out. Yesterday, it did cut out and although engine temperature was the normal 175-180 degrees I couldn't restart until the engine got cooled to approximately 200 degrees."

A failing fuel pump will act like this.

R. E. asks: "My distributor points had to be replaced because they were contaminated by oil and burned out. How does oil get on the points, anyhow?"

This is often asked. Overlubricating the distributor is a common cause. So is anything which causes excessive crankcase pressure to force oil up into the distributor.

F. I. writes: "When my engine is running, whether the car is moving or not, there's a rattle under the hood. Is this a valve noise? I can't seem to track it down."

It could be valves — or looseness at the carburetor, generator, fan, air cleaner, battery carrier or manifold heat valve.

No Indication House Wants Film Shown

OTTAWA (CP) — The CBC says in a letter to State Secretary Lamontagne that it doesn't appear Parliament has clearly indicated a wish that the rejected film Mr. Pearson be broadcast.

The letter says "the corporation will give the matter immediate attention at the annual meeting of its board of directors this week and will advise you of its conclusions not later than Thursday, June 25."

The letter, arising from requests that the publicly-owned corporation broadcast the film, was tabled in the Commons by Mr. Lamontagne.

The letter was signed by CBC President Alphonse Ouimet and said it had been advised of Prime Minister Pearson's "personal view" that the $35,000 television film should be given public showing.

The film was originally rejected by the CBC on the ground it failed to meet CBC technical standards.

NOTES OPINIONS

"The corporation has also noted opinions expressed in the House by the leader of the Opposition and other speakers," letter said.

"With respect to the present situation it does not appear to the corporation that Parliament has clearly indicated its wish that the rejected film be broadcast. . . .

"The corporation has already taken a broadcast decision with respect to this film. That decision was based upon the professional broadcasting standards of the corporation which are used in such matters. The film has not changed and these standards have not changed.

"Consequently, the corporation must determine whether new compelling factors are present in the realm of public interest."

Mr. Lamontagne's reading of the letter was punctuated with hoots of derision from the Opposition benches.

Produce Farm Workers Want Higher Pay

BRADFORD, Ont. (CP) — Picket lines were set up at three produce farms here Monday after 300 employees went on strike to back up demands for pay increases and better working conditions.

The strikers, mostly homeless employees of Federal Farms, Holland River Gardens and United Farms, are members of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters (Ind.)

Union leaders said the minimum rate in the fruit and vegetable processing plants is 85 cents an hour for men and women.

L. M. (Casey) Dodds, Canadian director of the Teamsters, said the union is prepared to back the strikers until a decent settlement is reached. He said Teamster members employed by food wholesalers and chain stores will refuse to handle any produce from the strikebound farms.

ASK WELFARE PLAN

Apart from wages, the union is asking for a welfare plan, nine paid statutory holidays, two weeks vacation with pay and time-and-a-half for overtime.

In earlier negotiations, the Ontario Labor Relations Board rejected an argument by the firms that the employees were agricultural workers as such were excluded from the scope of minimum-wage labor legislation.

Harry Bodkin, union business agent, said the firms have offered the workers an additional half-hour for lunch and 10-minute coffee breaks, but no increase in pay.

"Mr. Bodkin said the workers "just can't do the low wages they get now."

A company official said a proposal for increases of the produce workers could considerably increase the price of vegetables.

ORDERED TO CHURCH

OTTAWA (CP) — Four teenagers who broke into the United Church manse on the Sarna Indian reserve were ordered Monday to report to the minister, Rev. Arthur Brechin, every Sunday for a year. The three girls and a boy were convicted at Brechin last week of breaking, entering and theft.

Charred Hulk Of Missing Men's Car Discovered

FBI Takes Over Case Of Civil Rights Trio

By MICHAEL SMITH

PHILADELPHIA, Miss. (AP) Former CIA chief Allen W. Dulles flies to Mississippi today on a White House mission to look into the mystery shrouded disappearance of three young civil rights workers.

The charred hulk of the station wagon used by the trio was found by agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation Tuesday at the edge of a swamp off a lonely road northeast of this central Mississippi town.

Philadelphia is the seat of justice for Neshoba County, called "bloody Neshoba" by Mississippians for its past history of settling feuds by gunfire.

A Mississippi highway patrolman at the scene said "the FBI has taken over entirely."

Missing are Andy Goodman, 20, and Michael Schwerner, 24, both of New York, and James Cheney, a 22 - year - old Negro from nearby Meridian.

They were last seen Sunday night in Philadelphia after Cheney paid a $20 fine for speeding.

FOUND NEAR SLOUGH

The station wagon was found about 100 feet from State Road 21—25 miles northeast of Philadelphia, where Owl Creek backs away from its aforementioned bed to form a backwater slough that is black and cold, even in the hot month of June.

There was speculation that the bodies of the three civil rights workers were somewhere under the dark, cold waters.

Schwerner, who had been working in the Meridian area for several months, Cheney and Goodman for the last seven about 10:30 p.m. Sunday, leaving Philadelphia in a southerly direction. The station wagon was found in an entirely different direction.

The FBI agent said it apparently was burned Sunday night or before dawn Monday.

Goodman was one of 175 out-of-state volunteers who arrived in Mississippi during the weekend to take part in Negro voter registration and education projects after training at Oxford, Ohio.

VOLUNTEERS ON WAY

Another group of volunteers, mostly students, stopped in Washington Tuesday en route to Mississippi from Oxford. Steve Miller, a Yale graduate, said the 25-member group

CPA Won't Merge With Air Canada

By ROBERT RICE

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian Pacific Airlines has rejected amalgamation or partnership with its publicly-owned rival, Air Canada, to achieve a single integrated plan for Canada's international air services, President Gordon R. McGregor of Air Canada said Tuesday.

He told reporters after completing his testimony before the Commons railway committee that privately-owned CPA wants to divide up the world into two fields of operation—one for Air Canada, one for CPA.

The head of the government airline indicated that this is the course of action now being pursued by teams of experts from the two airlines at meetings in Vancouver.

Mr. McGregor told the committee that he strongly favors amalgamation of the two airlines. It would eliminate duplication, improve the quality of service and reduce costs.

He said a merger of the two carriers would be "a great step forward."

COMMENTS ON PLANS

Mr. McGregor was commenting on guidelines put forward by Transport Minister Pickersgill as objectives in establishing a civil aviation policy. The minister summoned both airline presidents as well as the presidents of the two big railroads—government bodies of the airlines—to Ottawa eight weeks ago to set down his guidelines.

Mr. McGregor said the one policy objective of Mr. Pickersgill, dealing with transcontinental domestic services, contained contradictory elements.

Mr. Pickersgill's principle was that Air Canada's main domestic routes should not be impaired by competition that would put the airline in the red. At the same time, the Air Transport Board should ensure that CPA shared in any future traffic growth above this basic minimum.

Mr. McGregor suggested the two elements were not compatible—that future growth as cur-

Total Eclipse of Moon Could Be Seen Around Nine Tonight

OTTAWA (CP) — The total eclipse of the moon tonight could be spectacular or a complete failure.

It all depends on what has happened to huge quantities of fine dust that were spewed into the earth's atmosphere by the great eruption of the Indonesian volcano Agung on Bali in March, 1963.

This volcanic dust resulted in the virtual blacking out of the moon during the December 30, 1963, eclipse. Last December's disappearance of the moon in eclipse was a rare event, the first since 1913 under similar conditions.

Scientists believe that much of the dust created by the Indonesian volcano has fallen back to earth. It's expected that enough is left to-mar tonight's heavenly display for moon gazers.

If the dust has settled and the sky is clear, the eclipsed full moon will be a rich copper red color. However, if the dust still is in the earth's atmosphere the moon will appear black.

Tonight's eclipse begins at 7.10 p.m. When the moon rises in the southeast at 8.45 p.m. it will be totally eclipsed by the earth's shadow. The sky will be bright at this time and it will be difficult to find the moon.

Totality starts at 8.15 p.m. and ends at 9.52. About an hour after the moon rises around 9 p.m.—it should be possible to see it in full eclipse.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis — Arctic air is expected to advance southward, across the entire province today. This will probably cause scattered showers and thunderstorms during the afternoon but they will not be as severe as those which occurred on Tuesday afternoon... It is very cold along the south shore of Hudson Bay where the early morning temperature at Winisk was 37 and snow was falling.

TICKETS PLEASE . . . and how! This is the kind of scene that's greeting conductors this Railway Week at CNR Belleville station as district school students are taken by steam locomotive on special excursion to Anson Junction. There are two trips daily until Friday. Mothers have volunteered to help teachers supervise the outings.

Pearson Accused Of Lying

By RONALD LEBEL

OTTAWA (CP) — The Opposition unleashed one of its fiercest attacks on Prime Minister Pearson in the Commons Tuesday, accusing him of lying and of misleading the House to cover up government censorship of CBC programming.

Mr. Pearson was not in the chamber when five Conservatives and one New Democratic MP hurled bitter personal charges at him for more than three hours. The furore was expected to continue today.

The Opposition spokesmen repeated accusations that the gov-

Believes Client 'Kidnapped' By Immigration Department

LONDON, Ont (CP)—London lawyer W. R. Poole suggested Tuesday that the immigration department had kidnapped his client, Carol Ann Supkowski, 20, after she had been acquitted of a morals charge earlier in the day.

"I am not sure, but if they (the immigration department) have seen fit to kidnap her to prevent her from having legal counsel, then I think the freedom of this country is in great jeopardy", he told Magistrate G. C. Marshman.

Miss Supkowski, from Dunkirk, N.Y., was acquitted of a charge of keeping a common bawdy house. Her re-arrest was ordered by Crown Attorney H. H. Bick as she attempted to leave the court.

Tuesday night Miss Supkowski was in Middlesex County Jail. Officials said she was being held for the immigration department. They said there was no specific warrant or commital against her.

As Mr. Bick ordered her rearrest, Mr. Poole demanded to know the charge.

"For being an inmate of a bawdy house", Mr. Bick replied. Mr. Poole said he wanted to see the official charge by the afternoon.

Miss Supkowski, who has been in custody since May 20, was then taken back to jail in tears.

Mr. Poole, who had defended Miss Supkowski without fee at the request of the Salvation Army, returned to the court in the afternoon and told Magis-

Mayors Want Medicare

SUDBURY (CP) — Immediate inauguration by the province of a comprehensive medical care plan was urged Tuesday by Ontario mayors and reeves at their annual conference.

A resolution from the town of Thorold requested the medical care program to ensure persons living on low incomes, especially large families, would receive proper medical treatment. It was passed without debate.

Mayor Philip Givens of Toronto asked the Association of Mayors and Reeves for support to have senior levels of government, not municipalities pay

Viet Nam Not Election Issue -- Lodge

SAIGON (AP)—Henry Cabot Lodge said today he doesn't see how the war in South Viet Nam can be an issue in the U.S. presidential campaign—"it involves the Eisenhower administration and the Kennedy and Johnson administrations, and the Truman administration."

"In history when you've had a disaster," Lodge told reporters, "then that becomes a political issue, even if the politicians do not do anything about it. But of course there's no outlook of that kind for the time."

Lodge announced his resignation as U.S. ambassador to South Viet Nam Tuesday and said he was returning to the United States to help Governor William W. Scranton's campaign for the Republican presidential nomination.

The leading candidate for the nomination, Senator Barry Goldwater of Arizona, said in Washington that "the Johnson-McNamara program of indecision and vacillation has made it impossible for (Lodge) to carry out his ambassadorial functions properly and undoubtedly motivated his resignation."

But Lodge said he had been on excellent terms with President Johnson.

"Viet Nam is on the right track and, with persistence, its freedom and independence will surely be achieved," Lodge added.

The ambassador plans to leave Saigon Sunday, a year and a day after he was appointed by the late president Kennedy as the United States' fifth ambassador to South Viet Nam since it gained independence from France in 1954.

A U.S. military source said this military command in Saigon expects intensification of the war against the Communist Viet Cong to result from the appointment of Gen. William C. Taylor, chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, to succeed Lodge.

South Viet Nam's premier, Maj.-Gen. Nguyen Khanh, who was on a field trip in the Mekong Delta, expressed pleasure at Taylor's appointment.

"I approved it myself quickly because Gen. Taylor, as chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, is the most outstanding U.S. general. I strongly believe that the nomination of him under the present circumstances shows the determined watching of the U.S. government in helping the Vietnamese people.

"Lodge has done a wonderful work for the Vietnamese people, and we will always remember him for what he has done for them. Gen. Taylor is a wonderful soldier. I have known him for a long time. Many of our military leaders also know him very well. . . .

"I am sure we will have a good relationship. Gen. Taylor knows the problem very particularly well and there will not be any interruption."

Gen. Duong Van Minh, South Viet Nam's defence minister, said in Manila that he expects "very hot measures" against the Communists to result from Taylor's appointment.

Minh said his government believes that to protect South Viet Nam it is necessary to harass Communist North Viet Nam.

DISCUSSES NEW ASSIGNMENT—Gen. Maxwell Taylor talks with newsmen after President Johnson announced his selection as the new U. S. Ambassador to South Viet Nam. Gen. Taylor said the United States' policy "is to assure the freedom and independence of South Viet Nam. I am going out to carry this policy out." (AP Wirephoto)

Property Damage Heavy In London, Torrential Rains

100-Mile an Hour Winds Strike Hamilton Bay

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Hurricane-force winds, torrential rain and lightning lashed southern Ontario Tuesday, causing at least one traffic death, scores of injuries and widespread property damage.

Roofs were ripped from buildings, trees were toppled, hydro and telephone lines were broken, hundreds of basements were flooded in several cities and boats were smashed along the shores of Lakes Erie and Ontario.

A Toronto man was struck by lightning and another was seriously burned repairing hydro lines. A man and woman were injured by falling debris when a roof was lifted from a London department store as 300 persons were evacuated.

Winds of 85 miles an hour were recorded in Hamilton while gusts reached 100 miles an hour in Hamilton Bay. A transport truck was blown over, locking the Burlington Skyway across the mouth of the bay but no one was injured.

The sudden storm eased as it headed over Lake Ontario and into New York State early today. Light thundershower activity was reported in eastern Ontario.

TO TURN COOLER

Slightly cooler with some cloudy periods and moderate winds were forecast for the area hit by Tuesday's storm.

Here's what resulted from the storm:

Isabella Till, 34, of Toronto was killed when her car went out of control on slippery highway west of Oshawa. Passenger Teresa Kapuscinski, 30, also of Toronto, was in hospital for observation.

Winds up to 70 miles an hour ripped the top from a 7,000-square-foot section of a London shopping centre and a department store.

Andre Lacombe, 23, was hit by lightning in Toronto and was released from hospital after being treated for shock.

Hailstones in the warehouse area in southwest London was blown down minutes after workers had been driven out by heavy rain.

At the Centralia RCAF base near London the roofs were blown off a hangar and communication building.

In Hanover, 30 miles south of Owen Sound, Toronto construction worker John S. Szczepinki, 56, suffered a broken shoulder

New Drive For Enosis Is Possible

CP from AP-Reuters

NICOSIA—The return of Lt.-Gen. George Grivas, former Greek underground leader whose guerrillas battled British forces on Cyprus for four years, could mean a renewal of the Greek-Cypriot drive for union with Greece.

The 66 - year - old hero also could help bring under control the thousands of Greek-Cypriot irregulars roaming the island.

Grivas will broadcast to the people of Cyprus today, a government spokesman said.

President Makarios announced Tuesday night that the 66-year-old general had been back in Cyprus from Greece "for about a week."

U.S. officials appeared to welcome the arrival of Grivas since he is an extreme anti-Communist who they felt would oppose Communist influence in the Greek-backed government.

Makarios announced Grivas came to Cyprus on his own initiative to "contribute to the preservation of normality and peace."

WAS HE INVITED?

There was speculation, however, that he was invited by Makarios. Who was co-leader of the independence fight but quarrelled with Grivas over the independence settlement.

There have been reports ever since Makarios conferred with Grivas in Athens last April that the president had asked his old comrade to take over the Greek-Cypriot military organization.

If he is installed as commander, Grivas might be able to control the irregulars who spark most of the gun battles that continue on the island.

The announcement that Grivas had returned to Cyprus for the first time since he went to Athens five years ago caused mixed reactions.

A spokesman for the UN peace force said the general's presence was not regarded by the United Nations "with any particular alarm." But UN of-

Police Hide in Bushes to Guard Mr. K on Visit to Swedish Port

CP from Reuters-AP

GOTEBORG—Under massive police guard, Russian Premier Khrushchev arrived in this southwest Swedish port today to face a small crowd of silent demonstrators watching the dockyards on the third day of his five-day visit to Sweden.

Intensive security precautions were taken in the form of reports Tuesday of a plot to kidnap the Soviet leader in Stockholm, 300 miles away.

Soldiers and police hid in clumps of bushes along the road from Goteborg's airport to the arendal shipyard, where the Russian had his first visit.

Only 100 persons watched silently as Khrushchev was welcomed at the shipyards. Steel-helmeted workers went about their tasks, displaying little interest in the Russian visitor.

The Russian leader, who arrived in Sweden Monday after a five-day visit in Denmark, was scheduled to visit two shipyards here.

His wife, Nina, will christen a refrigerator ship being built for Russia.

Premier Khrushchev drove by a roundabout suburban route to Stockholm's Bromma Airport early today for the flight to Goteborg.

Even reporters and photographers were kept 1,000 yards away as Khrushchev took off in a Scandinavian Airlines System jetliner.

The tightening of the security precautions followed the announcement Tuesday of the arrest of a 30-year-old foreigner on suspicion of plotting to kidnap Khrushchev and hold him hostage for the release of political prisoners behind the Iron Curtain.

Swedish Premier Tage Erlander said a Hungarian refugee —one of 5,000 who came to Sweden after the abortive 1956 Hungarian revolt—was detained on suspicion of preparing a "dangerous act" during Khrushchev's visit.

But the newspaper Goteborg Tidningen claimed the refugee is from one of the Baltic countries annexed by the Soviet Union during the Second World War.

Blue and White Markings Of U. N. Now Familiar Sight On Planes in Troubled Spots

By MILTON RESSER

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—In trouble spots around the world, aircraft displaying the blue and white markings of the United Nations are a familiar sight.

The UN has no air force of its own, but when it is given a peace-keeping assignment, arrangements are made for the necessary air support as well as for troops.

Britain is supplying 16 aircraft—10 helicopters and six Pioneer observation planes—for the UN force on Cyprus.

Canada has supplied the aircraft and crews used by the UN Emergency Force in Egypt's Gaza Strip and also by the UN observation mission in Yemen. Canada also transported its soldiers for the UN force in Cyprus.

Normally aircraft used by UN forces are sprayed with blue and white paint to stamp them with international status.

At present United Nations-marked aircraft are flying in the Congo, in Yemen and along the Israeli-Egyptian frontier as well as in Cyprus.

The closest the UN came—to having its own air force was in the Congo.

BOUGHT PLANES

Due to political considerations the UN was unable to obtain planes, pilots and mintenance crews from its normal source — the major Western powers. It went out and bought them.

At one point the UN owned about 30 planes, including 10 C-47s and five C-119s for internal transport purposes, and other lighter craft.

Pilots and maintenance men were obtained from Argentina, Brazil, Sweden, Denmark, Yugoslavia, Greece and Ethiopia. Despite a formidable language barrier, the operation went off well.

The military situation demanded use of fighter aircraft for the Congo. They were obtained from Ethiopia, Sweden and India along with pilots and maintenance crews.

Fighters were obtained also from Italy, but the pilots came from Iran and the Philippines.

The Italians also supplied some C-119s for transport use in the Congo. Thirteen Italian airmen were massacred by Katangese Congo troops in November, 1962, at Kindu, in Kivu province.

In addition the UN chartered aircraft from private companies for use in bringing in supplies and personnel for its big civilian operation.

Order Welding Shop Closed

Operation of a welding shop at 161 West Moira Street is contrary to the city zoning regulations and owners of the business will be so notified.

City council Monday made the above ruling and ordered that the business be discontinued.

Several weeks ago property owners in the area petitioned council objecting to the operation of the welding shop and requested the zoning regulations be enforced.

Minister Ready To Make Care Plan Succeed

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Health Minister Dymond says he is prepared to help make a national medical care plan succeed despite the fact he is personally opposed to compulsory government - operated medicare.

Dr. Dymond said in interview Tuesday his first reaction to the report of the royal commission on health was "breath-taking" and something that "requires much and careful study."

The seven - member commission headed by Mr. Justice Emmett Hall of The Supreme Court of Canada, in a report issued last Friday, urged a comprehensive, government - sponsored, prepaid health insurance plan that would be available to all Canadians, regardless of place, conditions of residence or ability to pay.

Dr. Dymond said if such a plan "is the trend of our times, we must determine to make it succeed."

He said although Ontario's proposed medical health plan is philosophically different from the one proposed by the royal commission, "we're thinking, not completely incompatible."

He said any proposed national plan must be operated by the provinces which would set up their own priorities in implementing such a plan.

He said he thought private companies should be given the chance to do the job "if it's proved beyond the shadow of a doubt they can run it as well, as efficiently and as economically as the state."

Ontario's plan was rejected by the royal commission, it contended that the Ontario plan could neither provide medical care as cheaply nor as universally as the state.

Elmer Street Residents Want Name Restored

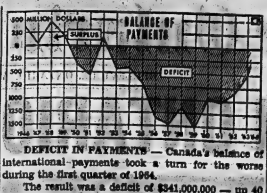
Officially the name has been changed to Wallbridge Crescent, but residents of what was formerly known as Elmer St. want the former street name back.

The local planning board has no objection and has recommended to the city public works committee that the Elmer street name be re-instated.

The street name change was suggested several months ago when it was realized that Wallbridge Road in the city was being confused with the road in Wallbridge in Sidney township.

As Elmer Street is in effect an extension of Wallbridge Road, the planning board deemed it feasible to re-name both streets Wallbridge Crescent.

The proposed name change was advertised and duly passed by council, but now many residents of former Elmer Street want the old name back.



They claim they never were approached regarding the name change.

It was pointed out this council, however, that there was no objection voiced when notice of the name change was advertised.

Elmer Street residents say that their street name has a definite connection with Belleville's past. It seems the street was named after one of three sons in the Vermette family which at one time owned much of what is now West Belleville. "I see no objection to having the street being again called Elmer Street," says P. J. Bezzia, city planning director.

Suspect Held After Stolen Car Stopped

A motorcycle policeman — acting on a hunch—stopped an automobile on East Dundas St. today and unwittingly apprehended a suspect for a break-in in Western Ontario, detective claims.

Police say the car turned out to be stolen.

In possession of the driver, 33-year-old Rene Frank LaPlante, police say they found a loaded revolver, spare ammunition and cheques taken from a service station at Norwich earlier in the night.

The car, say officers, also was stolen from the service station.

News of the burglary or car theft had not been broadcast as far as Belleville when the car was halted by Constable Doug Martin at 4 a.m.

Suspicious of the automobile the officer stopped it, found the revolver and ammunition and radioed his discovery to headquarters. Detectives took LaPlante in custody and are holding him for Norwich police.

Progress Being Made to End Paper Strike

MONTREAL (CP) — Mr. Justice Roger Ouimet said Tuesday "notable progress" is being made in talks aimed at settling the strike at La Presse.

Mr. Justice Ouimet, appointed by the Quebec government to mediate the talks, met during the day with representatives of the journalists' union, the Syndicat des Journalistes de Montreal (CNTU).

On Thursday, he is scheduled to meet with the joint negotiating committee of all the unions involved in the dispute at the Montreal French - language newspaper.

La Presse ceased publication June 4 when 300 members of the International Typographers Union (CLC) walked off their jobs.

Troops Quell Racial Violence In Guiana

GEORGETOWN (Reuters)—British troops moved in swiftly Tuesday after a new outburst of racial violence in the Mahaicony River area left victims maimed and mutilated and brought the total death toll in British Guiana disturbances to 55.

Reliable sources said the British Army has now taken over control from local police following a "deteriorating" situation between Tuesday's Negro and Indian communities.

Monday night, two men were killed and two other persons injured by machine-gun fire in L.e area and nine houses were reported burned.

Shotgun blasts earlier Monday had killed a 71-year-old East Indian woman and her two-year-old son.

ATTACK NEGROES

Three hours before dawn Tuesday, Indians attacked Negroes with machine-guns, rifles and fire bombs in No. 10 village of the Mahaicony River area, 32 miles away.

Eustache Waldron, 37, the district's Negro minister of the U.S.-based Pilgrim Holiness Church, was killed by a hail of machine-gun bullets.

Another Negro, a factory labourer, was shot through the abdomen. Eyewitnesses said his body was afterwards mutilated.

Waldron's brother, Mrs. Mathilda Waldron, 75, was shot in the back. Georgetown hospital said Tuesday her condition was critical.

Reports here said Indians attacked one settlement after another and Negroes returned the fire.

About 20 men were arrested.

Spectators Thought Blast Part of Show

NEW YORK (AP) — A fireworks - laden barge exploded Tuesday night in the Hudson River, killing two men. Thousands of spectators cheered. They thought it was part of the show.

Half a million persons lined the riverbanks in Manhattan and New Jersey for the fireworks spectacle, produced since 1957 by Macy's department store.

Two other barges, whose crews apparently were unaware of the fatal accident, continued firing rockets into the sky.

John Serpico, president of International Fireworks Company, said "a low burst that apparently ignited shells on the deck of the barge" caused the explosion.

Less than an hour earlier, an explosion destroyed an ammunition room in the sub-basement of a Manhattan armory where about 300 national guard reservists were attending a weekly drill.

Nineteen were injured. All but four were released after hospital treatment.

Car Headrests Are Important Says Director
VANCOUVER (CP) — A good headrest is just as important in preventing serious after effects from automobile accidents as seat belts, says an Ontario medical expert.
Dr. Norrie Swanson, Ontario medical director of the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society, says he has been urging headrests for years to prevent the "whiplash" which injures many necks in car accidents.
"It's just as necessary in a car as in a bus or a plane, but I have never been able to get a manufacturer interested enough to make them for cars," he said.
Dr. Swanson made these comments following an address to the Canadian Medical Association's convention here Tuesday.

Window Washing Can Be Fatal!

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—About 12 of the 3,000 men who clean the gleaming windows of Manhattan's skyline fall to their deaths each year.

And as John Coggin, a fine hand with a squeegee, ate his luncheon plate of corned beef and cabbage, he explained why:

"The most cases they are the result of carelessness. With some people familiarity breeds contempt.

"Height isn't a danger in itself. If you take care, you're as safe up there 800 feet above the street as anywhere. It's what's down below that can hurt you.

"It's much harder on the street cleaning windows from buildings. Turtles I fell 35 feet off ladders. But I've never fallen from a scrap. God be thanked. You get only one mistake with the belt."

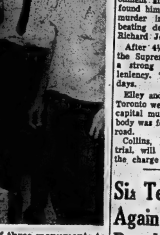
The belts are made of linen. Rope ends, leather rods, cotton and nylon fray. But linen lasts and its condition is easily checked.

"It is supposed to be Irish linen," said John, who cleaned his first window in 1918 and scarcely up—back in 1929, not long after he left a farm in County Cork.

PAINFUL LIFE

A cleaner handles around 80 windows a day. Coggin, who is 67, has five children (two in college and two grand-children), has been on the job 34½ years. He estimated that in that time he has cleaned about 800,000 windows.

His age is no handicap. He still is as agile as when he started, and he goes out the 67th-floor window of the RCA Building as unconcernedly as some young ex - paratroopers who've worked with him.



"Height doesn't bother an old-timer. Most people think leaning out up there on that belt is the hard part, but it isn't. The most difficult thing is learning to handle the squeegee. It takes two to three years to be a good all-around man.

"We've always being asked what we think about up there.

"Well, if you're up only a couple of floors, you hope you don't splash water on the people below. If you're up 50 stories, you don't have to worry. The water will evaporate or be blown away before it reaches the ground.

"You don't spend a lot of time looking down at people. But when you do, you notice that their feet stick out as they walk. They don't swivel much at ants. Ants are elongated. People look like little dots taking long steps."

Window cleaners get paid even on the 25 days a year weather prevents them from working. They can work in high winds, but not if it is too rainy, snowy, sleeting or the temperature falls below 10 degrees.

I AM TECUMSEH — One of three monuments to be erected to storied Indian leader is viewed by Bill Campbell and Bob Ricketts. Memorials are being prepared by Campbell Monuments in Belleville.

Monuments to Indian Patriot, Tecumseh, to Be Erected

He lies in an unknown grave somewhere along the Detroit River, but the voice of the Indian patriot, Tecumseh, after more than 150 years, is to speak of people from three different locations.

Three monuments to the storied Indian leader are to be erected by the Akwesasne Mohawk Counsellor Organization of Hogansburg, N.Y., one at Brantford, one at a site along the Detroit River and a third at Upper Canada Village.

First of the three monuments to Tecumseh has been completed by Campbell Monuments Company in Belleville with two other duplicates still to be prepared.

This is the fourth such monument to Indian leaders which has been worked by Campbell's for the Akwesasne Organization in New York State, which has as its aim the enlightenment of the public toward a better understanding of the Indian race, of its members' great heritage and contribution to world culture.

The organization erects memorials to noted Iroquois leaders to important Iroquois events.

All the memorials are of Canadian granite, peaked by seven steps with two Indian braves facing each other from either side of a peace symbol. A buried tomahawk lies beneath the peace tree symbol.

With their base the monuments weigh a ton and a half with the inscription on both sides of the stone running to more than 700 letters.

The Akwesasne organization of the New York States wants its memorial project to be 100 percent its own.

They are not a wealthy organization but they have turned down an offered contribution from the Six Nations Indians at Brantford to assist in the work.

As a gesture toward the Indians the Belleville monument company prepares the monuments at cost and just in the Indian tradition, the Akwesasne organization to pay when it has the money.

After 4½ hours' deliberation the Supreme Court jury made a strong recommendation for leniency. The trial lasted 15 days.

Elley and Neil Collins 20, of Toronto were charged with non-capital murder after Spence's body was found on an unopened road.

Collins, granted a separate trial, will appear in court on the charge this fall.

Six Terrorists Again Eating Regular Meals

MONTREAL (CP) — Six imprisoned terrorists are eating regular meals again after a brief intermittent hunger strike to support demands that they be treated as political prisoners.

The six are awaiting sentence in Montreal's Bordeaux Jail on 50 charges, including arms thefts from two armories They are members of the terrorist Free de Liberation du Quebec.

Jail governor Albert Fanguay said Tuesday the hunger strike lasted only a few days. The six refused solids but drank milk and coffee.

A similar hunger strike was also staged last week by four members of the terrorist Front de Liberation Quebecois imprisoned at St. Vincent de Paul Penitentiary. Jail governor was called off after a few days.

Swimming Pool Is Possibility For High School

TRENTON — The members of the Trenton Board of Education met Monday night to settle up business for the summer and will not meet again until September unless further business warrants it.

Dunclas Whitley reported to the board that his committee was preparing a report for the town council on the possibility of building a swimming pool in the high schools. Mr. Whitley said that Elmer Sandercock, MLA for Hastings West, was exploring every possibility of Ontario government grants for the pool, at Queen's Park.

Donald Sutherland reported his committee had gone over a list of suggested books for Trenton High School Grade 9 and 10 students, submitted by the principal, John Garrett, and had given approval of the choice. Mr. Sutherland said the committee also recommended the board buying sports sweaters for the public schools. Principals will be consulted and rules and regulations as to the care of the sweaters laid down.

Mr. D. Bowman will appear before the board might be interested in buying up a small piece of land between Queen Elizabeth School. If the owner can't sell to the school board, he means to use the land for housing. The grounds and building committee, headed by Jas. Bowman, will investigate and make rule on the board's need for additional land at this school.

Mr. Bowman will seek legal aid to help the board decide where his southwest boundary line is at North Trenton schoolyard.

In existing deeds, the line is given as more or less "high water mark" of Maple hew's Pond. Recently, the pond was desined. Now, where is the high water mark? The board may retain a surveyor to help the members decide this issue.

Local surveyor William Pattison will be employed to establish the site for a new public school in Burnside Heights, which the town means to build in 1963.

United Appeal Objective Set at $106,024 by Board

The largest objective in the seven-year history of the Belleville United Appeal was approved by the Appeal's board of directors at its regular monthly meeting on Tuesday night. An objective of $106,024.88 for the October campaign year set following the report of the budget committee given by Douglas G. Burr, budget chairman.

The 15 member agencies of the United Appeal have requested funds for next year as follows:

Belleville Minor Sports Association, $8,000.00.

Boy Scouts of Canada, $2,500.00.

Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society, $4,000.00.

Canadian Red Cross Society, $18,700.00.

Canadian National Institute for the Blind, $10,580.00.

Children's Aid Society, $6,000.00.

Civic Action Committee of C.W.L., $2,350.00.

Sea Cadets, $3,000.00.

St. John Ambulance Association, $4,000.00.

Multiple Sclerosis - Society, $364.50.

Victorian Order of Nurses, $9,500.00.

Y.M.C.A., $27,000.00.

Total of $83,710.50.

United Appeal expense, $8,740.00.

Allowance for uncollectable pledges, $3,583.38. Grand total of $106,024.88.

NEITHER HIGH NOR LAST YEAR

In settling the record objective, the United Appeal will seek almost $23,000 more than has been requested in any previous campaign in the city. Last year the campaign netted only $66,710. Belleville, which has failed to reach a campaign objective so far, fell far below the Canada - wide average for municipalities with a 30,000 or larger population. Last year less than 14 per cent of Belleville residents donated to the Appeal, while it is recognized, throughout Canada, that at least 25 per cent of the population must participate to make a community fund - raising campaign successful.

United Appeal officials have long been aware of the many excuses given by Belleville residents who refrain from fulfilling their obligations as citizens. Most generally, the Appeal is criticized for not limiting and controlling the number of fund-raising campaigns in the community, and criticized because of its member agencies. In reply, United Appeal members state that the majority of the community have little interest in Belleville's health, welfare and recreational needs and it is from this segment that most of the criticism comes.

The United Appeal was formed for the express purpose of reducing the number of community financial appeals, however, the United Appeal has no authority to restrict any agency. It has, each year, invited all organizations seeking money from the public, to join in the once-a-year campaign. Only 12 agencies have accepted this invitation and it is these organizations, anxious to reduce the number of appeals for funds, who should enthusiastically receive the public's support through the United way of giving. The Appeal cannot compel any organization to join its attempt to reduce the number of canvassings.

ALLOCATE DONATIONS

This year, as the result of a decision made at an emergency membership meeting, the United Appeal will offer all donors the opportunity to allocate their donations to the agency of their choice. A survey of Canadian charities by the United Appeal indicates that allocation of donations in other cities has not proven to be successful. The allocation of funds to a specific agency, while it may please the donor, defeats the object of a United way of giving.

Mr. Burr, in presenting the recommendations of the budget committee to the board of directors praised the committee and the representatives of the participating agencies for the considerable time and effort given in the preparation of the agency submissions and presentation of the budget report. Members of this year's budget committee are: C. R. Whittemore, chairman of last year's budget committee and chief metallurgist, Bell Telephone; Stanley H. Hutchinson, representing the Belleville and District Labor Council; V. L. Jones, executive vice-president, Stephens-Adamson Company; John Denton, president, Vanderbilt Limited; Paul E. Fleming, chartered accountant, and the chairman.

T. R. Fell, campaign chairman of the Belleville United Appeal reported to the meeting that the 1964 United Appeal will commence on October 1.

Saw Accused Shoot Father Says Young Son

KITCHENER (CP)—Beverly Dobson, 17, of Galt, charged with the April 18 capital murder of Gordon Bryden, 52, of Galt, was remanded Tuesday to July 28 for completion of his preliminary hearing.

Evidence disclosed Mr. Bryden had been shot twice by a 22-calibre rifle.

Magistrate A. D. Barron continued the hearing after seven of a listed 36 Crown witnesses had been called.

Mrs. Bryden said she returned home with her husband and sons, David, 11, and Peter, 9, to find a young man holding a "long gun" in her kitchen.

She told the court she had yelled: "There's a man with a gun, get out," and then ran from the house with her young est son following.

David said he remained in the house and saw the man shoot his father as the latter was attempting to get out the front door.

District School Teachers Honored at Annual Party

STIRLING — Mr. and Mrs. William McKeown were host and hostess for an outdoor supper attended by the teaching staff, wives, husbands and friends on Saturday night, June 6. It was a lovely summer's evening, and the McKeown cottage on Moira Lake provided an ideal setting. Barbeques had been set up and the expert cooks—Sidney - Alleyn and George Mac Donald had the meat course ready. Mr. Alleyn, Mr. Morgan and Mrs. Francis Moore were the committee in charge of all the arrangements.

Water-skiing was enjoyed before supper, and boat excursions were taken by those who were not familiar with Moira Lake's miles of lovely shoreline.

During the evening, Wendell Camm read an address of appreciation to Mr. Gould from the staff not returning to the local school in September.

These included John L. Gould, the retiring principal; John W. Bakker, the vice-principal who has become the head of the science department at the Winona District High School; Gerald Thomas who is returning to his home in Wales, and Douglas Harris whose work as capable Commercial and Boys' Physical Education teacher will be continued in Kincardine District High School next fall.

A special feature of the evening was the presentation to Mr. Good by William Farmer, on behalf of all the staff, of a desk set, the base of which he had made from wood from the stairway of King George High School. This base was an example of Mr. Farmer's skill with inlay, and will be treasured by Mr. Good and his association with the old high school in which he worked so long.

All the staff members who were leaving gave appropriate speeches of farewell, and Mr. Good expressed the group's thanks to Mr. and Mrs. McKeown for their hospitality.

Earle Rowe Park Extended To 742 Acres

ALLISTON, Ont. (CP) — The province is expanding Earle Rowe provincial park near this town, 18 miles southeast of Barrie, to 742 acres from its present 100 acres because of the growing popularity of existing parks.

The plans include building an 84-acre lake, a three-sluiceway dam, a ski tow and expanded camping, fishing and swimming facilities.

When the expansion is completed the park will be able to accommodate 8,000 campers during the day with parking space for 2,000 cars. Included will be overnight family camping facilities for 1,700 persons and another 25 acres set aside for group camping. The enlarged beach area will be able to accommodate 6,000 bathers.

Earl Rowe, now lieutenant-governor of Ontario, donated a portion of the original park, which has been in operation since 1959.

Egyptian Boat, Aground on Reef, Freed

PICTON (Staff) — "Star of Suez", the 10,000-ton Egyptian freighter which ran aground Saturday morning in shallow waters off Salmon Point, is free today. The ship was pulled off the sand bar late yesterday afternoon by the Kingston tug Graeme Stewart after about 150 tons of wood pulp had been unloaded from the forward hold to a barge standing alongside. It is possible the ship will leave at this end of the lake — caused by the westerly winds which range with regularity each evening's storm helped free the ship.

Reports from the scene indicate the ship rode at anchor off Salmon Point last night, and today began reloading the 150 tons of discharged cargo. The ship sustained little damage, according to reports and shipped no water during the nearly four days she was stuck. It is assumed she will continue to Montreal, her original destination when the cargo has been reloaded.

What Was It the Engines Said?

"What was it the engines said, pilot to pilot, head to head, facing on a single track, hail a world behind each back?"

Bret Harte asked that question many years ago, when the railroads were still young in the land and their mournful whistles pierced the empty night like a probe seeking to uncover the future, their own future and the land's.

Representatives of six eras in railroading lined up at Belleville station here as Railway Week opened, each with its own stretch of track clear before it. But if these locomotives had stood pilot to pilot, head to head, their conversation would have been varied.

There was a time when each of five of these locomotives was faced, in its turn, by a newcomer who was jauntily "Move over and let me get on with the job." In time, that experience will come to the sixth, railroading's most modern diesel. There will be some new design which will replace it.

If those earlier pairings were repeated today, the older engines might say to each other: "Well, we pulled our weight, didn't we, in those days?" And if the diesel of today met the old woodburner perhaps a moment would pass before there was any sign of recognition. Then—

"Fancy meeting you here!" or "Great, great, grand-pappy!"

But pair them up, pilot by pilot, head to head, and list their times and those six locomotives will tell us a story which applies to more than railroading. It is that the pace of change has quickened, that the questions the mournful whistle asked in Bret Harte's time must be answered much more rapidly when posed by the siren of the diesel. And the answers do not necessarily become easier because the night is no longer empty but crowded—with people and problems and causes and claims and old memories and new hopes.

Two Kinds of People

Let a man write about pre-historic mammals at great length and the chances are you will learn his opinion of porridge.

When we express ourselves, in speech or writing, we tell more than we know.

Take Sydney J. Harris. The other day he was writing about middle-age. "Waking up," he declared, "the middle-aged man feels he can still lick the world; by noon, he feels lucky if he can get through the day without aspirin."

Evidently he is one of those people who feel best in the morning.

But if he had not spelled it out, one could have guessed it. "Still young enough to stay up until the small hours and making money or a fool of myself than nature intended—and old enough to crawl into bed the next night at 8 p.m., creaking in every bone," he wrote.

Mr. Harris may think he is describing the middle-aged; actually his picture is true of only half of them.

For the other half, morning is time when one awakes to the belief that one has died, rapidly followed by the dismaying revelation that one has not and that the tortures of hell have yet tb be experienced. Noon is the time of day when hope peeps above the horison. By 8 p.m., on the night after the party, it is obvious to any sane-thinking man that the previous evening was just a rehearsal and that it would be a shame to waste any of the coming night hours in bed. Which may account for the confrontation with death's door the next morning, except that, with middle-age, the door is there anyway, even if one crawls between the sheets at sunset and avoids even the excitement of a dream.

Hic!

Nikita Khrushchev has visited Denmark.

As a result, Denmark has a new cocktail, a Nikita.

It consists of a champagne base, a dash of Russia's vodka and a spot of Denmark's cherry liqueur.

Russia and Denmark are, in effect, meeting on neutral grounds, French champagne.

Consider, though, what the effect of this precedent could be if, for instance, de Gaulle visited Canada.

Here a Charlie might consist of a Holland gin base, with the addition of French absinthe and Canadian rye.

Urges Taking Step at a Time

Montreal Gazette

The Government would be wise to proceed prudently in carrying out the recommendations of the Royal Commission on Health Services. The report of the Hall Commission advocates a vast system of health care provided by the state. Different in some ways (and in some important ways) from the British health services, it still would offer a coverage approximating that now in force in the United Kingdom.

The commission estimates that by 1971 an additional $608 million, over and above the present scale of health costs, would be needed. And the commission believes that this total, considering also probable expansion in the Canadian economy, would not be an unreasonable burden.

The difficulty in making estimates of this sort is that they do not (and they cannot) take into consideration all the burdens that may be added by governments. The real test is not a question whether Canada would be able to assume another $600 million a year. The real question is to what extent this could be borne together with all the other new costs that may have to be added. The estimate has to be made not only in relation to the present total of national revenue but also the probable total of national expenditure, the utmost imposible total to forecast.

Who shall say what the total of national expenditure will be! One of the biggest of existing health services, Hospital insurance, will soon be overtaken by natural progression on the basis of existing outlays: Hospital insurance costs will become far more costly if the present outlays are brought up closer to the standard.

The payments now being made under the Hospital Insurance are only a fraction of realistic costs of present services. The long lists of patients now waiting for admission to the hospitals indicate the amount of construction that will have to take place before even the present coverage can be adequately provided. There are also undischarged hospital debts accumulated over the years and still enlarging.

Then there is the problem of the aged. They certainly need greater health coverage, but this is only one of the many problems of aging. The aged need also help in finding proper housing, assistance in maintaining themselves in their own homes as long as possible, and the erection of institutions that are only partly related to health care.

In addition to the pension plan about to pass into legislation, there are other heavy commitments looming ahead, or already directly related to welfare. First among these is education. Education is already claiming about one-third of provincial budgets across the country. It is a growing thing of huge federal contributions. Yet it is repeatedly said that education is starved at the meeting only a percentage of even existing needs.

Then there are all the manifold costs of government, many of them brought about by growth itself, such as the matter of road building and a solution of the traffic problem.

Nor is defence to be present, even in the welfare field, any agreement on the priorities. This question was studied by the Canadian Welfare Council in its recent brief to a Senate committee.

As the Welfare Council said: "A federal Royal Commission should be set up to study all aspects of social security for which the federal Government has a direct or indirect responsibility. The phrases 'crazy quilt pattern' and 'just growed like Topsy' that have often been applied to Canada's social security system are none the less true because they are hackneyed. The time is more than ripe to take a searching look at ...what are the appropriate priorities and how they should be decided."

The valuable recommendations of the Royal Commission on Health Services might best be put into effect one at a time, according to relevant urgency among all welfare priorities, and in order to see what the actual cost will prove in practice to be. This might be done, for example, by implementing the recommendation to place psychiatric hospitals on the same basis as general hospitals.

Such a gradual procedure would also make it possible to learn what total costs, of all kinds, will have to be balanced against total revenues, from all sources, by the year 1971.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

June 34th, 1944

All school teachers in Belleville and immediate district, as well as employees of the Belleville Board of Education, will undergo a lung examination at King George School, it was announced at the monthly Board meeting. This examination, pursuant to an order-in-council of the provincial government, 1944, when the Department of Health, in conjunction with the Department of Education, moved to conduct the X-ray examinations in order to secure valuable reports on the health of all teachers and Board employees. The survey is compulsory for teachers, while the examination for other employees is left in the hands of the respective boards, the Chairman revealed. It is estimated that some 25,000 teachers in Ontario will undergo this survey before the next school term opens in September.

Cost of letters to servicemen overseas has been reduced several times since the beginning of the war, but now very few days there were but surface delivery letter and airmail. The airmail letter came in the blue envelope airmail letter at ten cents followed. The airgraph, which began at ten cents was lowered to six cents in 1942 and now it is down to five cents for servicemen overseas. The civilian rate of airgraph to civilians in the British Isles is cut from 15 cents to 10 cents under the new announcement.

In the Commons the other day, the Deputy of George J. Tustin, M.P., of Prince Edward-Lennox, for information on mail and parcel deliveries overseas brought the information from Postmaster General Mulock that transport of ordinary mail to the United Kingdom had been reduced from an average of thirty days to fifteen days and airmail from ten days to eight days.

Moodie Cottage,
Last week you published an articls on Moodie Cottage. A few days later I saw the ad in Street to your readers.

Originally the west wing was part of Moodie, my father added the second storey, and this part of the house is now an apartment.

This wing covers about one-fifth the area of the whole house, and when father purchased the old home, it was all in one room, used as a kitchen and hard to heat. On the west wall was the only fireplace in the house. Over large and four - foot logs could be used. All I remember is the eight foot square stone hearth.

There was a large barn just north of the house, this father had moved to the south side of the lumber was used to build a house directly opposite Holloway Street Church.

This 129 - year - old house has remained in the Geen family for almost one hundred years, five generations of Geen's having lived in it — my paternal grandmother, my father, my brother, his son John and John's children.

June 24, 1964 . . .

Prime Minister Diefenbaker announced an austerity program aimed at easing the country's financial problems two years ahead of today—in 1962. He also announced plans to arrange loans and credits totalling more than $1,000,000,000 to bolster the country's sagging dollar. Besides the austerity measures, the Bank of Canada announced an increase to six per cent in the rediscount rate on treasury bills, aimed at attracting foreign capital investment to Canada.

1859 — The training of nurses in Britain started at St. Thomas' Hospital in London.

1956 — Nasser was first elected president of Egypt.

Nurses Seek Higher Pay

Looked Free From

Registered nurses are working in a strong seller' market and Judge H. W. Walsh, immediate past president of the Canadian Hospital Association probably didn't disturb the Canadian Nurses Association a bit when he warned them not to price themselves out of the market.

For all practical purposes nurses are able to pick the spots where they choose to work.

It is not remarkable then that the nurses association would press demands upon the hospitals for improved working conditions and wage levels. Hospital administrators should not go into deep shock when it is suggested that they are going to do just that.

Miss Electra MacLennan, president of the Canadian Nurses Association at a meeting of the Canadian Hospital Association was proposing that H. W. Wigle representing the Canadian Medical Association should also address the latter, who called self effacing martyrdom preventing the nurses from fighting for their rights as employees. Dr. Wigle added that society no longer appreciates dedication to duty or to duty from people in the service professions.

The good doctor was perhaps not altogether right. There is appreciation of efficient, devoted and conscientious nurses by those who are sick, at least. What the nurses are seeking is better working conditions while this. Limitations are placed on nurses private lives by such things as a shift at the weekend work. Most others enjoy extra compensation for this. Nurses generally do not.

There is another viewpoint. Nurses who feel that they are entitled to the best and sympathy on their patients which is expected of them.

They can hardly be expected to be happy martyrs and watch workers in other fields given benefits denied them because of an oath of devotion to duty.

To Your Good Health

Health Information Column Not a Bartender's Guide

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I read that a 12-ounce bottle of beer is equivalent to one and a half ounces of whiskey, alcohol-wise. This hardly seems a possible when you consider the low alcohol content of beer. Would you explain? — E. J. T.

This column is dedicated to helping health, not to being a bartender's guide, but the question is worth answering because I get so many inquiries about "whether a person can become an alcoholic if he drinks only beer." (The answer is yes, he can.)

A strong brew (ale, porter etc.) can be as high in alcohol as one and a half ounces of any except the most potent whiskies. The average beers are somewhat less.

But for precise figuring—let's compare the average 12-ounce beer with one ounce of whiskey, since that is much closer to the average size "shot" beer dispensed.

Remember that absolute alcohol, that is, pure alcohol, is 200 proof. Thus "100 proof whiskey" is 50 percent alcohol.

So take a beer that is 4 per cent alcohol. That will be about half an ounce. (48 to be precise.)

Now take your ounce of 86 proof whiskey. The 86 proof means it is 43 percent by volume of alcohol. The bottle of beer has slightly more alcohol.

The brewer that goes up to 5 and 6 percentt or more can rob-sat literally top the gin and even the powerful 100 proof bonded whiskies.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am 19 and have an acne problem. A doctor put me on a diet, but my condition has improved very little in spite of it. I get lumps on my neck and sometimes on the back of my head. Sometimes they open, but some just seem to stay all the time. My biggest concern is cancer. Is that a possibility? — C. K.

Stop worrying about cancer. Most lumps are not cancer. It's the unexplained lumps that may be a danger sign, and you know what your lumps are. As for acne, you can pick up some added ways to help subdue it in my booklet, "Acne, the Teen-Age Problem." For a copy send 25 cents in coin and an unstamped, self - addressed envelope to Dr. Molner in care of the Chicago Tribune Syndicate, P. O. Box 188, Dundee, Ill.

Dear Dr. Molner: Will you explain what is meant by female "repair work"? What is a vaginal plastic operation? And is the condition a common one? Is used for it? — Mrs. A. B.

This evidently is a problem of damage from childbirth.

Tissues are torn or stretched. Much of this damage, if it is of significance, can be corrected by plastic surgery. I do not mean to imply that such damage always occurs in childbirth. It doesn't. But when it does, it can be repaired.

What's anesthetic? You don't choose anesthesia to fit a certain type of operation. You choose the one that suits the patient.

This insistence on knowing what anesthetic will be used is a headache to anesthesiologists. If the patient really understands the factors involved, he doesn't have to ask. If he does not, there is no way to explain to him why this or that was chosen.

Strictly Personal Mind Must Stretch Itself And Not Truth

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

The day after I wrote a reconfession on the way in which all people "select and reject," I received a letter from a man in San Francisco who said, "After reading you for a long time, I am convinced that you are a Buddhist." (Quite right, I am.)

. . . few weeks earlier, I lectured at a Lutheran college in Iowa, and the dean remarked, "It's obvious from your column that you are a Lutheran." (Quite right, I am.)

Finding part in a seminar for a San Francisco who said, "After reading you for a long time, I am convinced that you are a Buddhist." (Quite right, I am.)

. . . few weeks earlier, I lectured at a Lutheran college in Iowa, and the dean remarked, "It's obvious from your column that you are a Lutheran." (Quite right, I am.)

Finding part in a seminar for a San Francisco who said, "After reading you for a long time, I am convinced that you are a Buddhist." (Quite right, I am.)

Following approximately on mind-and-body, as which I thought I had presented a Freudian view, a psychiatrist in the Christian Scientist in the group said to me, "You may not know it, but at bottom you are a Christian Scientist." (Quite right, I am.)

The Jehovah's Witnesses will claim me for their own. So do the Seventh Day Adventists, and the Quakers, and the Disciples of Christ, and the Universal Humanists, and the two-and-seventy jarring sects that Omar wrote of.

What does this make me? Some kind of intellectual chameleon, all things to all men, a weak and vacillating creature? I think not, and hope not. What I prefer to think is, rather, that each doctrinal group, denomination, selects what is congenial to its views, and rejects whatever does not fit in.

As Nehru remarked in an interview in the India News a half-dozen years ago, "Everywhere ups have a strange way of putting themselves in compartments and pigeon-holes. There are 'isms. . . of religion, of caste, of color, of party, of nation, of province, of language, of profession and of wealth and poverty. Thus they live in prisons of their own making."

The truth, said Aristotle, is like a bird which, when it flies, throws at it can miss it entirely, but nobody can hit it all at once. The truth becomes fragmented: each group tries to stretch its portion to fit across the whole, and the whole does not be done; whereupon the group simply decrees that what it does not cover cannot be the truth.

This principle of selection and rejection is mankind's first and most perpetual enemy. The first "ecumenical movement" must start in the mind, which has to learn to stretch itself, and not the truth.

Voluntary Groups Come Under Review

By BRENDA LARGE

OTTAWA (CP) — What happens to the money collected in local communities for national voluntary agencies? Are these national agencies worthy of support?

These are questions a citizens' organization called the National Agency Review Committee is answering for Canadians.

The committee, now 10 years old, held its annual meeting in Toronto in April to scrutinize the programs, budgets and support plans for 10 national and two provincial agencies.

The 60 committee members from across Canada include businessmen, university professors, social workers, labor leaders and civil servants. All volunteer their services.

"The committee is growing steadily every year," says secretary Laton A. Smith of Ottawa, who is also executive secretary of the Community Funds and Councils Division of the Canadian Welfare Council.

"We started off with four agencies 10 years ago and now we review 12. We may add several more in 1965."

The committee issues invitations to welfare agencies and charitable organizations to present their fund-raising programs for examination. United Fund campaigns also suggest that some agencies present their programs for review.

NOT POLICEMEN

National agencies that regularly present their programs for review are the Boy Scouts of Canada, Boys' Clubs of Canada, Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society, Canadian Mental Health Association, Canadian National Institute for the Blind, Canadian Welfare Council, Health League of Canada, Multiple Sclerosis Society of Canada, St. John Ambulance Association, YMCA of Canada, Ontario Division of the March of Dimes, and the Ontario Welfare Council.

New chairman of the committee is Ronald S. Ritchie of Toronto, director of Imperial Oil Limited, who stresses that the role of the committee is not a policing one. He sees its function as that of a trustee, assuring contributors that money donated to the agencies is well spent.

For their annual two - day work sessions in Toronto, the committee members are divided into six study panels. Each panel reviews two agencies and is provided with detailed statements about them in advance.

Panel members are well acquainted with the statements before they come to the meeting. Some have even visited the agencies they are going to review.

After a short session in which the panel decides what questions it is going to ask, representatives of the agency—usually the president, treasurer and executive director—participate in the review.

HELP FUND-RAISERS

Businessmen accustomed to reading balance sheets are quick to spot inconsistencies and evidence of unrealistic budgeting. Agency representatives are sometimes called upon to justify unusual expenditures, as an out-dated program or an over-ambitious expansion plan. Often the panel comes up with helpful suggestions, and in past years many of these have been implemented.

Reports adopted by the committee are sent to 116 United Appeals across Canada and to some 600 corporations which find them useful for their donations committees. The reports are also available to any interested individuals on request.

United Appeals are interested in these reports because they are helpful during campaign time — and in pre - campaign budget sessions — in finalizing the allocation of funds to a national agency whose program and services are not well enough known, or whose services are not directly seen in the community.

The National Agency Review Committee has its headquarters at the Canadian Welfare Council in Ottawa. The council provides staff and technical assistance, though the committee is not an arm of the council. The budget of the Canadian Welfare Council itself is reviewed by the committee.

The Experts Say
Laying Out the Kitchen Not That Big a Headache

By JEAN SHARP

TORONTO (CP)—The thought of a new kitchen will put a glint in most women's eyes faster than the sight of a mink coat.

But many become discouraged when they begin to think of where to fit in the mass of appliances available, including such built-ins as ovens, stoves, barbecues, dishwashers and even laundry equipment.

Rosemary Ballagh, director of home service for the Consumers' Gas Company, says planning a kitchen for new equipment "is not as big an ogre as people think it is."

"You can draw your own scale plan and cut out bits of paper to represent cabinets and appliances and play with them until you work out a plan you like."

For example, a built-in oven can go into the space a conventional stove was in. Basically it just needs a cabinet to sit on. It can also be put into a wall over a stair well or into a closet. A store top, she says, will usually fit into an existing counter top.

Dishwashing and laundry units might need additional plumbing or changes in an old system.

Costs vary depending on where you live, the make and type and appliance and the amount of work to be done. You can consult your gas or electric company, an appliance retailer, a plumbing or lumber company or kitchen planning firm.

You can get a nearly exact idea of what you want with your own scale plan. Draw an outline of your kitchen, then measure exact distances between windows and doors and corners. Allow for chimneys, closets, radiators. A workable scale is one-half inch to equal a foot.

Make scale cut-outs of appliances and cabinets you want, furniture you will be using, then move these around to determine the arrangement that suits you best.

For the over-all layout you can use the points of a triangle to tell you whether your main work areas are in the most convenient spots. The sum of the sides of the ideal triangle would be about 22 feet. Its points will touch your cooking and serving area, food storage and preparation area and cleanup area.

If you have a big kitchen a U-shaped working area is best, with an island counter. An L-shape which keeps traffic to one side can also help you make the best use of corners for storage cabinets. A two-walled arrangement suits a smaller kitchen, especially if there is room for a 48-to-54-inch aisle.

A good work counter should have at least 30 to 36 inches of space, more if possible. The best sink is a divided one with 24 inches of counter on each side.

If you put in a dishwasher, it's most convenient for right-handed people when it's on the left of the sink.

If you're doing a complete job, plan your cabinets. Know what utensils and dishes you have and which ones you use most so they can be stored in the handiest places. Plan space for mixers, tray and platter.

Consider installing bins, movable shelves, pegboards, revolving shelves and perhaps a built-in chopping block.

When you're satisfied that you know what you want, then begin talking price.

Speaking Personally

By Gladys Ward

CROOKED LINE

A reader asks: What are you supposed to do when you buy yards of printed material and find it has been printed crooked? I bought material for kitchen curtains with a pretty antique design. I pulled a thread to get the straight of the goods and discovered the thread cut right through the design on the bias. The problem is, do I hem the curtains straight according to the pulled thread or do I put the hem in to keep the printed pattern straight, which would mean that after one washing they would hang crooked? But the other way the pattern would look as if it was running downhill.

This is not a column of advice because I am not qualified to give advice, and I do not know what the answer is.

But I sympathize with this seamstress because I had the same dilemma when I was making a man's sport shirt. Like her I pulled a thread as we had been taught to do to straighten the material. It too ran crooked across the pattern of the goods. Not only that but the bolt of cloth had been rolled crooked on the machine, so that it had to be stretched and pulled to even the hemline. This is quite a common thing with materials. The clerk in the store had carefully cut the cloth in what looked like a straight line with the design, but when a thread was pulled it turned out that one edge was at least three inches shorter than the other. This is the fault of the factory, and my only suggestion is to write to the Consumers' Association of Canada, 1245 Wellington Street, Ottawa 3, Ontario, and tell them your complaint. They do a wonderful job of testing and investigating all types of consumer goods that women use, and if they think there is cause for complaint they will look into it.

POPSICLES

Any time is popsicle time as far as small fry are concerned, but a smart mother can always be prepared . . . with a little help from the plastic industry, says C.I.L. News for women. There is now on the market a freeze-it-yourself pop tray made of polythene that looks like an ice-cube tray, and is just as easy to use. All you do is fill the cone-shaped molds with your favorite homemade or prepared juice, insert a stick and freeze. Each stick has a drip guard which keeps the eating operation tidy, and the molds and sticks can be used over and over again.

These plastic pop makers may be purchased at supermarkets or grocery stores, and are just the answer to the perennial question, "Mother, may I have a popsicle, and one for each of my chums too?"

Two further tips offered are to wash a zipper before using it with a fabric such as terylene thereby removing any shrinkage and ensuring a smooth, unpuckered seam when the garment is washed, because sometimes the tape on the zipper is not shrinkproof.

Another suggestion is to use a plastic shield when you are painting around windows enabling you to paint right up to the glass, which is a good practice. Especially if your hand is shaky this is a good idea.

ACHES AND PAINS

Speaking of the obstinacy of inanimate things as I was in my very first column, I am reminded of a washing machine I once owned. It was getting pretty old and was full of complaints. It had a real temper, usually. The wringer moaned and groaned all the time it was idle. But when I put it to work it stopped creaking, grabbed the clothes, wrung them out and spewed them out the other side with great enthusiasm and vigor. But as soon it it was idle again it started complaining about its age and its aches and pains. It was only happy when it was in use, and I think there is a moral here somewhere.

The hostess presented Margaret, her mother Mrs. Glen Morrow and her grandmother Mrs. Earl Morrow with corsages.

The group enjoyed a few games of bingo with suitable prizes and a "Mystery Bag" contest. Selections were read by Mrs. Ernest Carr and Miss Marie Hoseman.

Miss Jean Donohoe read an appreciation address and Margaret was the recipient of a large assortment of miscellaneous gifts which were unwrapped and displayed; after which she voiced appreciative thanks for party in her honor and for the gifts.

Dainty refreshments were served by the hostess and her daughters assisted by Mrs. J. L. Donohoe and Miss M. Hoseman.

Miss V. Turner Missionary In Bolivia

CAMPBELLFORD—Miss Victoria Turner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. Turner of Campbellford, is a missionary for Jehovah Witnesses in Bolivia, South America. She is a graduate of Bible School of Gilead, a school operated by the Watch Tower Bible and Tract Society in connection with world wide Bible educational work of Jehovah Witnesses.

Going to Bolivia in 1956 Miss Turner landed at the highest international airport in the world, at an altitude above what many planes fly — 13,300 feet.

In the past eight years, Miss Turner writes, she has had various assignments learning the language and customs, enduring the high altitude cold of the mountains, to the humid heat of the jungles, one of the most interesting being from 1957 to 1960 in the jungle town of Riberalta, Beni, where she ministered on three sides by jungle and on the fourth side by water. Miss Turner writes, life is certainly not vary, many have their own "chores" or small farms, others do fishing, some harvest rice, rubber, or Brazil nuts; one man had made a living for 15 years hunting alligators.

To a North American, Miss Turner says Bolivia is truly "foreign," colorful and wonderful; and the people are warm and friendly in their attitude, and receptive to religious teaching.

In 1962 Miss Turner visited her home in Campbellford, returning to Bolivia after three months furlough. She does not expect to be home again for two or three years.

Hydro Staff Ladies Honor Bride-Elect

FRANKFORD — The ladies on the staff of the local office of Ontario Hydro, entertained Miss Marie Hollinger, bride-elect, to dinner at the Glenhaven Restaurant on Flavelle on Monday evening, and following a delicious repast, returned to the home of Mrs. Richard Reid, where a miscellaneous shower was held in Marie's honor.

The home was tastefully decorated with pink and white streamers and bells.

A pleasant social evening was enjoyed by about 30 guests for holiday.

The guest of honor was presented with a bride's book and a large number of lovely and useful gifts for which she thanked all her friends.

A delicious lunch was served at the close of the evening with a beautifully decorated bride's cake centring the luncheon table.

Co-hostesses with Mrs. Reid were Mrs. Donna Morse, Mrs. Lois Boote and Mrs. Brenda McLeod.

REPORTS ARREST

VIENNA (AP)—The Hungarian provincial newspaper Csongrad Megyei, received here Tuesday, said a man named Christian Reuter has been arrested by Hungarian authorities "for aiding in illegal border crossings." The newspaper said Reuter holds both Canadian and West German citizenships. It did not add any details.

U.C.W. Meeting

MELROSE U.C.W.

An interesting event took place at Melrose United Church on June 11, when Melrose U.C.W. were hosts to several neighboring groups at an open meeting.

The highlight of the meeting was an address by Mrs. Karr, a native of India. Mrs. Karr came to Ballstone about six months ago with her husband who is an engineer at Northern Electric. Mrs. Karr dressed in her native sari delighted her large audience with her charm and gracious manner. In her talk Mrs. Karr, in a most vivid manner portrayed some of the customs of India comparing them with those of Canada, especially those concerned with the home and women's place.

Mrs. Karr, herself a Hindu, began by explaining the philosophy of the Hindu religion. All Hindus strive for material possessions but also for the upliftment of the soul which is the ultimate goal. She explained that the highest stage of worth is to work for others without hope of fame.

She continued by saying that when the British came, 300 years ago they made no principal changes as traders, but as the many princely states were constantly warring with one another, the British took over to try to orchestrate this into unity. The British contributed a great deal to India and in 1947 India became free. Her constitution is much like that of Canada, except that her President is to India what the Queen is to us.

LANGUAGE PROBLEMS

Mrs. Karr explained how they have a problem with 2 languages, but there, all of the 17 provinces have different dress, customs, and languages. The national language, however is Hindu and the official language Englishi.

Although India is 1/3 of Canada's size with 470 million people, it ranks second in the World in population. Although much is being done toward raising the standard of living, the population is growing so fast the whole structure is becoming unbalanced. Of the people, 85% are in villages, uneducated to a large degree and with a low standard of living. The 15% in the cities are the educated minority.

Touching briefly on some of the customs Mrs. Karr remarked that in India a bride wears bright colors, while being a widow is somewhat the bride-groom comes to the bride's house where the vows are exchanged in front of the fire. Modern women may be found in all spheres of life, their status being the same as in Canada.

Mrs. Karr concluded by showing handiwork beautifully done in silver, depicting the life in India.

The speaker was introduced by Mrs. Jack Milligan, the program convener, and capably thanked by Mrs. Charles Betts, Sr., who presented a small gift.

Miss Iris Saxmith, Ebenezer, delighted all present, with a vocal solo.

This most educational and enjoyable evening closed with a social hour in the basement where a dainty lunch was served by the committee in charge.

ELECTED PARLIAMENT

The people of Morocco were able to elect their parliamentary assembly for the first time in May, 1963.

Only Woman In Class of Engineering

MONTREAL (CP) — Miss Yin Hum Woo and her husband have a lot in common—they're both engineers and share an interest in soil mechanics.

They also have complementary skills, however. He's an "excellent cook" while she hates cooking and admits that "if I weren't for him I'm afraid we would have starved this winter."

Despite her hatred for the culinary arts, she plans to spend the summer learning to cook before returning to school for her master's degree in the fall.

Joan Funnell and Yin Hum Woo were married in January. He had graduated from McGill University in engineering seven years ago and returned for his master's degree last fall after working in Chicago for five years.

She was the only woman graduating graduate at McGill this spring, and she plans to take her master's in soil mechanics.

Then they'll move to Malaya where they hope to apply their specialty, dealing with the excavation and construction problems.

Looking back on five years at McGill, Joan says the difficulties supposedly facing women in engineering are exaggerated.

"The novelty of your being the only girl in the class soon wears off and the boys accept you as one of themselves. After several years together, you become very close friends."

Farewell Given By Neighbors

2nd THURLOW—Friends and neighbors of Mrs. Helen Kant gathered at the home of Mrs. Thomas Belnap on Tuesday afternoon.

Among the friends present were Mrs. Mrs. Douglas Steven, Shannonville, who are leaving to take up residence in Belmour, Ont; also Mrs. Donald Thompson, who will reside near Stirling.

An address was read to Mrs. Kant by the hostess called Life's Neighborly Neighbors, after which Mrs. Sam Elliott presented Helen with a card and money.

Tea was served by Mrs. Gerald Stratton and Mrs. Roland Belanger.

A social hour followed and all wished Helen much happiness in her new community.

Women's Institutes

WELLINGTON W.I.

The Wellington Women's Institute met in the Town Hall on Tuesday evening with 35 members and three visitors present and Mrs. Bruce Wilson presiding. Letters were read from the Institute Office, the Retarded Children, and $10 was voted to be sent to them. An invitation to the Stirling W.I. Birthday Anniversary was accepted and arrangements were made for the Institute Parade. Several thankyou cards were received.

Mrs. Wilson divided the members into groups for a "buzz" session, discussing five questions she had listed. Would you like a bus trip? This was voted yes by the majority and it was decided to go to the Canadian National Exhibition. Would you like an old fashioned ice cream social? This was voted yes and Mrs. Tripp and Mrs. Smith were made convenors. Do you prefer paying dinner from the fund or continue as we have previously done? This was voted that all passengers in cars pay 25c. Do you want a short course?. This was voted yes and it was decided to have "What's New In Home Furnishing" with "Food Preservation as an alternate. What improvements or events would you like to see take place this year? Kitchen Make-overs presented, which will be attended to.

It was left to the directors to get material for lining of quilt top and a quilting party as soon as possible.

PRESENT PROGRAM

Mrs. Denard and Mrs. Spencer, hostesses for the evening, presented the following program. For the month, Mrs. Spencer; current events, Mrs. Dick; accordian selection by Donald Ward; a singsong with Mrs. Deegan at the piano. Mrs. Denard gave her report on the annual, Miss Louise Pettingill gave a splendid paper on Citizenship, and Mrs. Dick gave an interesting report on the officers' conference she had attended in Gusiph. The meeting was closed and refreshments were served by the hostesses and their group.

GREE ON CONFERENCE

DALVAY, P.E.I. (CP)—Federal and provincial resources ministers agreed Tuesday to ...onsor an inter-governmental conference on pollution that would include water, air and soil pollution. Representatives of the federal and provincial governments expressed general concern over the growing pollution problems in Canada.

Strawberry Time Is Shortcake Time

by Mary Moore

At the risk of being redundant I used my old all-time favorite recipe for Tea Biscuits Supreme for my June Strawberry Shortcake.

I was starved when these came from the oven. Because there was one little one made from dough trimmings and hastily shaped and baked on the edge of the cookie sheet, I snatched it pipping hot from the pan, split it, put a gob of butter and a gob of strawberry jelly on it and sat down and ate it like a starved orphan. No flavor combination, absolutely nothing could taste better. Sooo . . . enjoy yourself too.

STRAWBERRY SHORTCAKE

(biscuit-type — makes seven 3" individual shortcakes or see below)

SHORTCAKE DOUGH

(Tea Biscuit Supreme recipe)

2 cups sifted but not sifted all-purpose flour
4 teaspoons single - acting baking powder
½ teaspoon cream of tartar
½ teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons sugar
½ cup hard butter
⅔ cup cold milk

Sift together into mixing bowl the flour, baking powder, cream of tartar, salt and sugar. Cut in the hard butter with pastry blender until size of small peas. Add milk all at once, mixing quickly with fork to form a barely moistened. Press dough into ball. Pat out on lightly floured board, gently pat to ¾" thickness. Cut out with floured 3" cutter. Bake on ungreased cookie sheet at 450 deg. Fahr. for 8 or 9 minutes. (Do not scorch.) These are perfect.

To make individual strawberry shortcakes, split each big biscuit and butter bottom half. Select 7 perfect big strawberries from a 1-qt. box and wash and hull each. Slice and set aside. Wash and hull and slice remaining berries from 1-qt. box and sweeten with ¾ to ⅞ cup sugar. (Note: Reducers could eliminate sugar calories by dissolving 4 saccaryl tablets in 1 tablespoon boiling water and stirred that liquid into the strawberries instead of sugar.) Put generous amount of sliced berries on bottom half of each split biscuit, cover with top, add more berries to top. Cover them with unsweetened or sweetened whipped cream. Decorate top of each shortcake with reserved perfect whole berries.

Note: If desired shape shortcake dough into one large round cake ¾" thick and bake on ungreased cookie sheet or pie plate at 450 deg. Fahr. for 12 to 15 minutes. Split, butter and cover with berries and whipped cream as above for individual shortcakes.

Have a honey Strawberry Social Dessert party and serve fragrant hot coffee with this favorite June dessert.

Keep Girls Interested In Church

VANCOUVER (CP)—An interdenominational organization is helping keep teen-aged girls interested in church after they have outgrown Sunday school.

The Pioneer Girls' Clubs of the United States and Canada provides programs for girls from the age of eight to their late teens. There are 3,200 clubs in North America.

Louise Troup, executive director of the organization's headquarters in Wheaton, Ill., says that "instead of walling until a girl has problems in adolescent years, the club's program gradually guides her into her own channels of interest."

The organization was formed in 1939 by a group of girls at Wheaton College. Canada's first club was set up in Hamilton in 1947.

"The Pioneers achievement program keeps girls connected with the church all through their growing-up years," says Mrs. Donald MacKay, first captain of the Vancouver area. "They are encouraged to find Christ in everything they do."

Sad Memories of Dad Will Be Eased by Small Note

DEAR DORIS — Last November my Dad died. This July would have been Mother and Dad's 25th anniversary. I have been trying to decide whether to remember it with something or try to forget. I hope you can help. — JOSIE.

P.S. — I am 15, my sister is nine.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR JOSIE — Bless you for worrying about it! Since there's no anniversary, a gift wouldn't be fitting. But I'd suggest you write your mother a little note remembering the date, and saying you wish with her that your dad was still here and that you could have helped them celebrate.

Don't mind if she sheds a few tears. The hurt is still new. She'll appreciate your caring and saying so.

DEAR DORIS — I would like an idea of what to say when presenting trophies. I am leader of our 4-H Homecraft club this year for the first time. Our past leader "did not bother." But we feel these simple little ceremonies are important to our Canadian youth. — AUNTIE MAME.

• • •

DEAR AUNTIE MAME — Such ceremonies are super. A real cause for celebration — and who doesn't love celebrating?

Your speech might go like this: Praise the group for work done, mention the kinds of projects submitted, pat contestants on the back. Say (if it's true) that making a choice for trophies was not easy, with so many good entries.

An amusing reference to some of the blood, sweat and tears that went into the work would be welcome; and you might conclude by promising the winning contestant a rosy future.

DEAR DORIS — I have often thought that if people would only take time to think of others their own troubles would seem quite trivial. When I am not feeling like myself I often sit down and write a poem.

A few days ago I was thinking about my friends so I wrote a poem entitled "What Are Friends?" My mother likes it and suggested sending it to you. — AN AMATEUR POET.

DEAR POET — I like it; especially the last verse, which I reproduce here:

"We treasure our friends; they are our wealth.
We'll keep them through happiness, sickness and health.
Yes, they are the people to whom we are bound;
Good friends, we all know, are hard to be found."

Seems to me your philosophy about "others" has a good deal to do with your own Successful Living. And your self-expression through poetry helps. Keep working at it. It's fun to develop a talent.

• • •

DEAR DORIS — Could you send me some information as to how to kiss a boy correctly? — AWKWARD.

DEAR AWKWARD — Is this your idea of having a good evening? Don't think that by developing a good kissing technique you won't have to bother about making conversation or developing your personality.

One boy said the only reason he necked with a certain girl was because "She can't dance, she can't talk, she won't play tennis. What else is there to do?"

My main advice is: Don't kiss on first dates; become good friends; when you do kiss, make it an affectionate gesture. Stop soon — no long drawn out sessions — if you want to be thought a lady.

DEAR DORIS — We were invited to our neighbor's 10th wedding anniversary. I wore heels and best dress. My husband a white shirt, tie and suit. We got there to find the other men dressed in sports clothes and the ladies in slippers.

Someone remarked "people in a small town don't dress up in a white shirt any more." Is this true? — CITY SLICKER.

DEAR SLICKER — Not universally. My old-fashioned (?) heart insists there is nothing more attractive on a man than a crisp white shirt and tie, and a well-pressed suit.

But — "When in Rome"—! Next time check with the others before dressing to the nines for an affair in this informal small town of yours.

DEAR DORIS — I am 13 and I would like to discontinue my piano lessons. I want to take guitar lessons. My mother says I should keep taking piano if I want to be a kindergarten teacher. Does a grade 1 or 2 teacher need grade 8 in piano and grade 2 in theory?

I said to her that you can take guitars to camp or on hikes, but a piano you cannot take. I want to stop piano because I do not like practising or even playing. — GUITAR CRAZY.

DEAR GUITAR CRAZY — I have yet to see a camp where there wasn't a much-used piano. And guitars are pretty heavy on a hike!

Naturally you're guitar crazy; so is every full-blooded Canadian girl! But has it occurred to you that learning guitar takes practise too?

Being skilled at piano playing can put you in the centre of every social group; as well as meaning a lot to that teacher you'll become. And it can give you a head start when it comes to learning any other instrument, including guitar. Listen to your mother.

• • •

DEAR HOMEMAKERS — How would you like to start tomorrow off on the right foot with this?

HOUSEWIFE'S HYMN

Lord of all pots and pans and things; since I've no time to be
A saint by doing lovely things or watching lals with Thee,
Or dreaming in the dawnlight, or storming Heaven's gates,
Make me a saint by getting meals and washing up the plates.
Although I must have Martha's hands, I have a Mary mind;
And when I black the boots and shoes, Thy sandals, Lord, I find;
I think of how they trod the earth, each time I scrub the floor;
Accept this meditation, Lord, I haven't time for more.
Warm all the kitchen with Thy love, and light it with Thy peace,
Forgive me all my worrying, and make all grumbling cease.
Thou who didst love to give men food, in room or by the sea,
Accept this service that I do — I do it unto Thee.

(Author Unknown)

Lovely, isn't it? We are indebted to Hamilton Children's Aid, Foster Home News for this bit of inspiration.—DORIS

50th Wedding Anniversary Is Celebrated

More than 60 guests, half of them relatives and close friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Hope, at their home at Loon Lake Lodge near Cloyne, Ontario, for the weekend — celebration of the couple's 50th wedding anniversary.

Among the out-of-town guests from Buffalo, Rochester, Detroit, Hamilton, Brantford, and Toronto, were Jake Setzer, best man; Mabel Timmons, bridesmaid, and Muriel Nichol, flower girl, when Mr. and Mrs. Hope were married June 26th, 1914, in Hamilton, where they resided after they were wed.

More than 30 residents of the Cloyne area, where the Hopes, their son, George, and their daughter Frances, son-in-law Paul J. Sowden, established Loon Lake Lodge in 1946, joined the out-of-town guests Saturday for an open house, featured by a presentation by the local folks of an elaborate sunburst electric clock.

Many other lovely and thoughtful gifts were received by the happy couple, including two pairs of hand-worked pillow cases, made and embroidered by the best man himself. The decorated wedding cake of three tiers, was purchased and presented by Mr. and Mrs. John Stenger of Brantford, a long-time friends of the honored couple. This cake which measured 24 inches was topped with a miniature bride and groom which when wound up played wedding music for some minutes. The tables were covered with gold and white 50th wedding anniversary table cloths, the centre of each table was fresh flowers, daintily arranged and frosted with gold as were the other ornaments, the bun baskets, baked potatoes, etc., all wrapped daintily in gold foil. Even the flats of delicious ice cream were embossed with the lettering in gold.

There was a huge photo-graph screen over the fire-place, with pictures of the bride and groom and their family from childhood up with captions, some serious and others hilarious, in regard to the family in scenes of bygone days as well as of the present. This was all done by their good friend from Roobester, Mr. James Angle. It was encircled in gold and had 50th anniversary in gold letters at the top of the screen.

The day was highlighted also by telephone calls from the grandson, Michael Sowden, who is in service in the U.S.A., and their son, George, who now resides in Nevada.

In the evening, the relatives and old friends of the Hope family, were entertained at a gala dinner in the lodge.

Reminiscences and readings were presented by John Heninger of Bradford, who has a summer camp on Loon Lake, and Mrs. Dorothy Hope, sister-in-law of the honored couple, the wife of Fred Hope, (brother). Many out-of-town visitors were guests of the Loon Lake Lodge Camp for the entire weekend.

Those from Tweed who were present were: Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Spencer and Dr. and Mrs. A. Gibson Allen.

Mr. and Mrs. Hope are in excellent health, both drive, and enjoy many trips of length when the season is not too busy.

Skin Reflects Condition of Your Body

VANCOUVER (CP) — Doctors reading your palm may be able to tell a far truer, and possibly more unhappy story than the gypsies of old.

The knowledgable doctor reading any part of your skin can tell much about what is going on inside, including the possibility of a heart attack.

The story of the skin, the "mirror" of the body, was told Tuesday by Dr. Ben Kanee of Vancouver at the annual meeting of the Canadian Medical Association.

Dr. Kanee, a dermatologist or skin doctor, said, like traffic signs on the highway, the skin can tell the doctor to "stop, look and listen to the patient." The skin "mirrors us in health and disease" and provides clues in diagnosis.

He said rashes, itches and other signs can tell of diabetes within a patient.

He mentioned a new field called dermatoglyphics, the study of the hand. The lines of the hand could tell of abnormalities of genes, he suggested.

Changes in the hand when it was exposed to cold were an indication of a disturbance of circulation. A purplish-red dish color on the finger tips was an indication of lupus erythenatosus, a disease that attacks many organs of the body, and once highly fatal.

Napanee Woman Reports To Canadian WI Meet

By JEAN SHARP

WOLFVILLE, N.S. (CP) — A woman must continue to play a leading role in the household, a panelist told delegates to the triennial Federated Women's Institutes of Canada meeting at Acadia University Tuesday.

MADE MANY TRAVELS

The retiring president, Mrs. James Haggerty of Napanee, Ont., in her president's report said she has travelled 80,000 miles across Canada and to other countries during her three-year term.

During panel discussion on women's roles in the home, community, nation and world, Mrs. John A. McLean of Eureka, N.S., said:

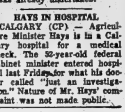
"We must, in our society, return to thinking that a woman's role in adulthood is that of mother and homemaker first, then she can pursue a career."

"It is too early as yet to evaluate what the true effect of so many working mothers will be on our children," she said, noting that mothers are unlikely to be replaced by aunties.

"Within the lifetime of most of us the whole pattern of rural life has changed," said Mrs. Elton Armstrong of Armitage, Ont. "As Women's Institute members we must develop our potential and help women in our community to do likewise."

Mrs. E. J. Rogers of Greenwood, B.C., national honorary president, said women have reached out to establish organizations through which they can work together. She urged the 530 delegates to work for their country and their organization.

Delegates were asked to support the work of International Co-operation Year by Dr. J. Roby Kidd of Ottawa, chairman of the Canadian ICY committee.



"ICY took root through the energy and pressure of Canadian women," he said. "In the months since, radio and Canada and representatives of 25 other countries have been planning International Co-operation Year 1965, to coincide with the 20th birthday of the United Nations.

"ICY should be used for a long sober look at what we have done and where we have failed. ICY should be the means of rallying more support for tasks already undertaken."

Chauffeur Ponders Problem Of a Proffered Check

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am a man in my 50's who has never married. My widowed sister asked me if I would drive her and her three friends (also widows) to the World's Fair next August. I have a 1963 Chevrolet and am a good driver. In exchange for the chauffeur service the women have agreed to pay all the car expenses plus 25 dollars each.

ANN LANDERS

At first it seemed like a fine idea but now something is bothering me. We will undoubtedly be having most of our meals together. Since I will be the only man present, I will always be handed the cheque. Please tell me how to handle the situation. These women are supposed to pay for their own meals but I would feel uncomfortable accepting their money right there in the restaurant.—THINKING AHEAD.

* * *

DEAR AHEAD — Have an understanding in advance that one of the ladies will insist on separate cheques when the waitress takes your orders. This is infinitely simpler than trying to figure out who ate what. It will also save you the embarrassment of collecting their money at the table.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — This is a difficult letter to write, but I need advice.

My wife is ill with an incurable blood disease. The doctors say she can't live more than another five or six weeks. Our son is 14 and our daughter 16. We are all trying to be brave and help each other.

My wife has a sister of whom she is very fond. This sister lives out of town and has been here off and on for months. I don't know what we would have done without her.

What I want to know is this: Would it be proper for me to tell my wife's sister (after the funeral of course) that she is welcome to go through my wife's belongings and take whatever she wishes?

It has occurred to me that it may sadden her and that she might prefer not to have constant reminders. Then again she may want her sister's things. What do you say? — H.K.

DEAR H.K. — Before you make such an offer may I suggest you ask your daughter if she would like to have any of her mother's belongings — particularly jewelry.

You could then invite your wife's sister to go through what is left. If she would prefer not to have these reminders she will tell you.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am driving 25 miles to a neighboring town because I don't want anyone (not even you) to know where this letter came from. I hope you will print your advice because I can't possibly send a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Our daughter (I will call her Norma) is 15. She is a normal teen-ager, which is to say a little sloppy, somewhat headstrong and she wants to look exactly like every girl in her crowd. The real problem, however, is her father.

Norma always "her daddy's girl" but this year it has become worse than ever. When he leaves the house in the morning he never fails to kiss Norma good-bye. Yesterday he was running late and dashed upstairs to give her a good-bye kiss. I was right at the door but he forgot to kiss me.

The minute he comes home his first words are, "Where's Norma?" I half suspect she enjoys putting me in the shade. I am hurt and embarrassed that others might notice it. Should I talk to him — or to her? — SECOND.

DEAR SECOND — Don't talk to either of them. Be pleased that your daughter and her father have a warm relationship.

Every girl's first sweetheart is her dad, and there is bound to be some sense of competition between a girl and her mother.

As Norma becomes seriously interested in boys the daddy's girl bit will be less intense. So relax and live through this stage as you have lived through the others.

If excessive drinking is wrecking your health or destroying someone you love, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Help For The Alcoholic," enclosing with your request 20c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

SPEAKING OF MANNERS — BY PATRICIA LEWIS

WHO SAID POOL-OWNERS HAVE PRIVACY?

At this time of year, we all envy homeowners who are lucky enough — and well-heeled enough — to have a swimming pool in the back yard.

We always looked wistfully at families frolicking in the water as we drove past on the way home from a steamy trip to the beach to avoid the heat.

"Utopia" we thought — as we shoveled kids, toys, sand and water from the back seat of the car. How wonderful to be able to be no more than a few steps from the water, and not have to ferry a cranky mob through bumper-to-bumper traffic just to cool off for a couple of hours.

Those who have taken the plunge and installed a pool have other thoughts on the subject. We have since learned that the water isn't any greener in one's own back yard.

"Since we had the pool built, we've discovered friends we never knew we had," lamented one neighbor. We met her in the supermarket, busily digging down to pay for a load of hamburger and soft drinks to take care of the routine Saturday invasion.

"I've become the neighborhood baby-sitter," one mother wailed. "All the youngsters in the area flock to our pool every day. I only wish their mothers would ask permission first, so I could invite them to come along and share the responsibility."

"I don't mind visitors," said another pool-owner, "but I wish they'd bring their own towels with them."

"As soon as I mention we have a pool," one woman moaned, "people immediately say we'll be right over. And they mean it. Some people I hardly know make our pool a daily stop. We thought we'd avoid crowds at the beach by having a 'private' place to swim, but we've ended up with another crowd in our own back yard."

RULES TO REMEMBER

Among pool-owners we've talked with, the general consensus is that friends and neighbors are welcome as long as they show some sense of taste from the water, and not have to ferry a cranky mob through bumper-to-bumper traffic just to cool off for a couple of hours. and good manners. The occasions may ask are quite simple. All they want is a fair share and for visitors to:

1. Call first to ask permission to swim instead of just showing up. Often invited pools are crowded out by droppers-in who do not have the good grace to drop out when they see the owners are entertaining.

2. Bring their own towels, but leave their appetites home. Neighbors can go home for lunch and shouldn't expect food and drink whenever they happen by.

3. Never send young children over alone to use the swimming facilities. Mothers should accompany them and shouldn't expect the busy housewife to spend her whole day acting as life-guard. Naturally, permission to swim should be asked before mother and child even start out.

The considerations the average pool owner asks are actually simple and very few, but they do help hosts and visitors to get along swimmingly during the long hot summer.

Winds of Change Affect Churches in Africa

LONDON (AP)—The wind of change sweeping Africa is affecting churches as well as politics and social customs.

Most of today's African political leaders are necessarily the educational products of Christian mission schools. When they were young there was no one else to teach them. Whether still practising Christians or not, they remain personally linked with the white man's religion.

Most of the churches started Africanisation of their own ranks long before there was any question of independence for the territories in which they were operating.

The Church of England, for example, consecrated its first African bishop—Samuel Adjai Crowther, a freed slave — in Nigeria as long ago as 1864. To day five of the eight dioceses in the Anglican Church of Nigeria have local-born bishops.

AFRICAN CARDINAL

The Roman Catholic Church has an African cardinal in Tanganyika.

Although the Anglican Archbishop of West Africa (Rt. Rev. Cecil John Patteson) is English-born, he stays discreetly in the background and it is almost sure his successor as the ranking church leader in Nigeria will be a local-born bishop.

Meanwhile, two of the eight dioceses in East Africa and one assistant bishop are Africans. In Central Africa there are four dioceses with one African assistant bishop.

The only exception to this pattern is the Anglican Church in South Africa, where its latter-racial character often sets the 14 local dioceses in conflict with the government's apartheid policy.

Conflict of another kind arose in Ghana in 1962 when Rt. Rev. Richard Roseveare, Bishop of Accra, was expelled after he had charged President Nkrumah's Young Pioneer movement with godlessness for adopting the political slogan "Nkrumah will never die." He returned later as Nkrumah's own request after the slogan had been modified to the more acceptable "Nkrumah-ism will never die."

COMMUNION UNION

The first step in setting up a distinctive national church has already been taken in Nigeria, where negotiations are well advanced for the coming union of the Anglican with local Methodists and Presbyterians. The native African church, which broke away from the Church of England, intends to join this unified church when it is formed.

Similar work is being started in Ghana and Sierra Leone. The Anglicans, Presbyterians and Methodists—all established in Ghana as separate churches by missionaries from England, Scotland and Switzerland respectively — have formed a church union committee to work for "the true and visible unity of the church in Ghana."

Meanwhile, mission work in Africa is changing too. The old paternalistic attitude of the societies, which took all decisions in London and sent Bible-armed missionaries where they wished, has gone for ever. Now the African churches decide what they need and ask for it. The mission societies try to fill the need.

DAY CAMP

FRANKFORD — 1st Frankford Brownie and Guide day camp was held at Presqu'ile Point on Saturday morning. After lunch the Guides and Brownies enjoyed a couple of games under the direction of Donna Chase. The nature trail proved to be an interesting hike after which the girls toured the grounds. Hot dogs, chocolate milk and watermelon were provided as treats.

Mrs. Theriault played the accordion and led the Guides and Brownies in a sing song.

Mrs. E. Standish, Mrs. Theriault, Mrs. G. Gilmour and Mrs. A. Harris, all leaders, expressed their gratitude to Mrs. P. Chase, Mrs. W. Branch and Mrs. L. Reid, Mrs. F. Moran, Mrs. J. Scobie, Mrs. H. Pitcher, and Mrs. J. Schiraze who helped throughout the day.

Heart Patients Are Told to Keep Active

VANCOUVER (CP) — Lumberjacks, coal miners, factory workers and stevedores can recover from heart attacks and go back to work, a Canadian-told Canadian doctors Tuesday.

In fact, heart patients have a better chance of long life if they remain physically active.

Dr. Herman K. Hellerstein, assistant professor of medicine at Western Reserve University in Cleveland, told the annual convention of the Canadian Medical Association that the heart patient who gives up and lies around home tends to get dissatisfied and fat with a good chance of having another attack.

He said the average housewife works as hard, or harder, than her husband, "but the growth of labor-saving devices and appliances is lessening the value of housework in preserving health."

Bitter Cypriots Charge Turkey Abandoned Them

NICOSIA (CP)—After more than five months of intermittent hostilities between the Greek and Turkish communities in Cyprus, the Turkish Cypriots have begun to lose hope of getting any help from Turkey.

Some of them hope for partition of the island republic. They feel a good deal of bitterness.

"If the island isn't divided when this conflict ends," said one young Turkish Cypriot, an army lieutenant, "I am not staying here."

He didn't know where he would go, but one thing was sure. "I am certainly not going to Turkey. I don't want to go and live with people who have abandoned us."

This attitude seems common among Turkish Cypriots who have been taking part in the fighting. They say they are angry because they have had no armed help from Turkey, even during the 650 soldiers stationed on the island by Turkey as a result of the 1960 independence agreement.

Among the Greek Cypriots, who outnumber the island's Turkish minority four to one, you often hear it said: "We aren't at war against the Turks. It's a few terrorists on their side who are causing all the trouble."

BLAME FANATICS

"I'll tell you one thing for certain," a Greek Cypriot waiter said one day in a hotel bar. "Most of those Turks up there in the mountains (the Turkish Cypriot guerrillas) just want to go back to their villages and to their families. They don't want to fight."

The standard view in the Greek community seems to be that a few fanatical Turkish Cypriots are holding guns at the necks of their compatriots and forcing them to be unfriendly toward the Greeks.

How to make summer more comfortable for your baby

Here are some little hints on caring for your baby in the summertime—collected for you by Heinz Baby Foods.

sun baths are fun

When your baby is 3 weeks old you can give him a bath in the sun. The air temperature should be quite warm—at least 75 degrees—and the first bath should take no longer than 2 minutes. During the bath, make sure that the direct rays of the sun are not in your baby's eyes. And in hot weather, sun baths should be given no later than 10 a.m.

summertime travelling

Summertime is fun time and you will be travelling more than usual. Travelling by car is probably the easiest on your baby. You can stop when necessary for feedings, diaper-changes, etc. On planes and trains, stewardesses and porters are usually very helpful. They will warm food for you and keep your formula bottles in a refrigerator. Heinz Strained Foods have been prepared with an eye to travelling. They come in unbreakable steel-seal tins. Unopened, they need no refrigeration. And because they are compact, you can take a good variety with you. If you have to replenish your supply, you can. Heinz is the only baby food available right across Canada.

care in the sun

Most authorities agree that it is a sound idea to put your baby outside to sleep whenever the weather permits. You can start at two weeks, but be sure that he is shaded and protected from winds. The sun will move, so ensure that he will remain shaded through his sleep. It is a good idea not to rely on the plastic top of a baby carriage for shade. Plastic absorbs heat and can make a carriage very hot.

really hot days

On really hot days your baby may perspire more heavily than usual. So your baby may appreciate a cool fruit juice. Heinz Baby Foods prepares many strained juices and fruit drinks. All of them are excellent sources of Vitamin C. Offer them to your baby between feedings—but not during the half hour before normal nursing or feeding times.

HEINZ BABY FOODS

The good they do your baby now—lasts a lifetime.

Canada-Australia Trade Promises 2-Way Increase

By ROBERT COLEMAN
Canadian Press Correspondent

MELBOURNE (CP)—Trade between Australia and Canada is growing steadily and conditions are favorable for a further increase in the flow of goods between the two countries, the Australian department of trade reports.

However, trade is still on a relatively small scale, with Canada importing from Australia only about one per cent of its total import requirements and Australia importing about four per cent of its requirements from Canada.

Both countries are heavily dependent on the maintenance of a high level of external trade, a department spokesman said.

Each is faced with the need to increase the volume and range of its exports if it is to continue to satisfy the appetite of developing industries.

In many ways the export requirements of the two countries are similar, with rely for the bulk of their foreign exchange earnings on export of primary products, and the vulnerability to fluctuations in demand and prices which have characterized trade in these products, especially since the war.

Both have had to weather intermittent crises in balance of payments and both are conscious of the benefits and problems arising from substantial investment of foreign capital in the industries.

VIGOROUS PROGRAMS

Both countries are pursuing vigorous programs of export promotion, particularly of their manufacturing industries, and are working closely together to achieve improved conditions for international trade in primary products.

Australia, with a population of just over 11,000,000, ranks 11th as a world trader on a per capita basis. Canada, with its population of 19,000,000, ranks seventh.

Canada's exports to Australia represent two per cent of her exports to all sources, and Australia's exports to Canada are the same percentage of her total.

Formal trade relations between the two countries are governed by a bilateral trade agreement which came into force in June, 1960, and replaced earlier agreements. The new agreement continues preferential tariff treatment and includes a number of new concessions to each country.

The 1960 agreement was concluded soon after the removal of Australian import and export controls which had applied in varying degrees of intensity since the beginning of the Second World War. These were based on Australia's need to conserve foreign exchange and protect her balance of payments.

REMOVED CONTROLS

Removal of the controls had obvious implications for Canadian trade. In 1956-57, Canada sold $46,000,000 worth of goods to Australia and bought $36,900,000 from Australia, leaving a trade balance in Canada's favor of $25,700,000. By 1962-63 the trade balance in Canada's favor had risen to $64,500,000 with imports of $43,800,00 from Australia and exports of $11,400,000 to Australia.

The substantial increase in Australian imports from Canada largely reflected the growing demand for Canadian timber, paper, machinery, vehicles and machinery parts.

On the other hand, Australian exports to Canada have increased at a much more modest rate.

The main items of Australian export to Canada have been meat, wool, sugar and dried and canned fruits.

While the bulk of Australia's trade with Canada still is made up of those traditional items there has been a growing trade in wines, metal manufactures and machinery.

There is also evidence to suggest Australian businessmen are looking increasingly towards Canada as a possible outlet for a variety of manufactured goods, particularly hardwood, textiles, fashion goods, engineering tools, building supplies, leather and wool tops.

the cost of building and maintaining hospitals.

The province must be told that hospital costs are a charge on all the people and not only the small home-owner because all people are potential hospital patients, he said.

Mr. Givens, said many municipalities had played their full part in building and maintaining local hospitals.

INCREASES GRANT

The province's government, he added, had increased its perbed grant to $5,500 from $2,700 and the federal government had rejected requests to raise its basic $2,000.

In other business, delegates asked the provincial government to equalize rural-urban assessment standards and for rapid completion of the four lanes of Highway 401 between Tilbury and London.

They also urged the province to bring grants for school construction in line with construction costs, and that payment of the grants be made in the year the construction is undertaken.

Delegates also heard Mines Minister George Wardrope foresee a need for more mining enterprises since the discovery of a major copper-zinc-silver deposit into Manitoba.

GIVES IMPETUS

He said the significance of Flin Flon is the impetus it should give to exploration and mining activity in the province. And this would create a need for diversification of industry in northern mining towns, many of which depend solely on mining or related industries.

Mayor Gordon Stronach of Dunnville, first vice - president of the association, claimed the provincial government is not facing up to its responsibilities in education grants.

He warned that municipalities are going into debt at a much greater rate and called for more equitable distribution of provincial funds at all levels.

The island was quiet Tuesday night except for one incident in which Greek - Cypriots shot about 10 shots at two Danish armored cars of the United Nations peacekeeping force at Exomeloshki, a Greek-Cypriot village some 10 miles northeast of Nicosia, a UN spokesman said today.

Two shots hit one of the armored cars but there were no casualties and the Danish troops did not return the fire, the spokesman said.

"The Greek-Cypriots have expressed their regrets at having fired at the armored cars in error because they thought they were being attacked," the spokesman said.

WANTS LONGER SEASON

DETROIT (CP-AP) — The Council of Lake Erie Ports adopted a resolution Tuesday urging that the shipping season be extended on the St. Lawrence Seaway to permit foreign ships to get in an extra round trip. The resolution insisted that the Canadian and U.S. governments maintain sufficient icebreaking equipment to keep the seaway open to permit the extra trips.

The effort often produces political balluchitous embellished by a combined Hollywood extravaganza and Roman circus.

Republicans begin their show July 15 in San Francisco's Cow Palace, a sprawling, 16,000-seat coliseum. Democrat produce their stunts Aug. 24 in Atlantic City's 15-storey high Municipal Arena, said to be the biggest of its kind in the world.

Out of the sizzling heat; the glare of hundreds of klieg lights, the tumultuous applause and the make-dancing demonstrations will emerge the two men who will vie for control of the White House in the country's Nov. 3 presidential election.

Republicans will have 1,308 votes at their convention. A majority of 655 votes is required to win; Democrats will have 2,316 votes cast, with 1,584½ required for victory.

ALLOW HALF-VOTES

Unlike the Republicans who allocate a single vote to a single delegate, the Democrats allow half-votes. This increases the number of delegates seated. Together with alternate, the Democrats will have 5,200; the Republicans, 2,616.

But the voters form only one part of the mass of humanity that will swarm over the convention halls. They will include publicity seekers and publicity makers, the idle and the curious; the entertainers and those who seek entertainment and those who want platforms for their grievances.

Conventions are as much a part of the U.S. as apple pie, Coca-Cola and southern fried chicken.

But historians have questioned whether they really form the essence of democracy. The late Eleanor Roosevelt, wife of the wartime president, candidly remarked in 1960 that the conventions were rigged—that the successful candidate is picked by the hierarchy in advance with the convention floor fight staged as pabk of intensified publicity.

Yet so vast is the American political canvas that almost anything can happen. The art of suspense often reaches its peak during delegate balloting. In 1924, the Democratic convention had to vote 103 times before it could break a deadlock.

Nowadays the television eye tends to limit the visible frictions. With the country's coast to coast television audience watching, a convention that attends beyond the midnight hour could become a TV bore with the viewer seeking revenge on the knob.

CAREFULLY GUIDED

So, the convention, in which millions of dollars are invested, is carefully guided to avoid political backrooms where a great deal of horse-trading goes on as one candidate or another seeks to wrap up the delegates' votes.

This year San Francisco is the focus of attention, for on the Democratic side there appears to be no formidable challenger to the leadership of President Lyndon B. Johnson who may turn out to be the beatable in the Nov. 3 election.

Confronted by the occasional skill of this veteran campaigner, the Republicans are trying hard to come up with an acceptable alternative.

The outspoken Barry Goldwater, the Arizona senator who would consider using atomic bombs over the Vietnamese jungles to beat the Viet Cong, is the leading contender with the more moderate Governor William Scranton of Pennsylvania just joining the race and lagging far behind.

Goldwater harvested his support the hard way—through the jungles of the state primaries. Some of them, delegates he won through these state popularity contests will stick to Goldwater to the end or release their pledges of support.

In other cases, the pledges he has won can be released early in the convention fight.

Some signs of how the battle is going will emerge in preconvention platform planning. With the arch-conservatism of Goldwater threatening to "recover-Russia" policy, a platform bnik in that direction may show the power of the Goldwater forces.

Pearson

ernment and Mr. Pearson's office applied political pressure on the CBC to prevent the showing of a $35,000 candid TV documentary, about a day in Mr. Pearson's life, filmed last October.

External Affairs Minister Martin rose just before the 10 p.m. EDT adjournment to defend that Ellis Woollams (PC —Bow River) and Erik Nielsen (PC — Yukon) withdraw their statements that the prime minister misled the Commons about the TV production.

The chair did not have time to make a ruling and Mr. Martin was expected to press his demand at the opening of today's sitting.

WAS EXPELLED

Alvin Hamilton (PC — Qu'Appelle) made similar accusations last Friday and was expelled for the day after he refused to withdraw his remarks.

The prime minister's office said Mr. Pearson likely would reply to his critics today when he debate on a money supply bill enters its third day.

An aide said the government leader missed Tuesday's lively, wall-standing debates because he was at work in his office and had a dinner engagement.

Byron Mackasey (Montreal-Verdun), the only Liberal who spoke at any length, called it "a rather vicious, unwarranted and fully premeditated attack, both on the prime minister as a person and on the high office that he represents."

The CBC board of directors today opens a three-day meeting in which the documentary Mr. Pearson will be discussed. The board will consider a public request Mr. Pearson made Friday that the film be telecast to end weeks of controversy.

Mr. Woollams began the Opposition onslaught Tuesday with a flat demand for Mr. Pearson's resignation.

He said the prime minister clearly contradicted himself on the Commons record and has a responsibility to resign under parliamentary tradition, natural law and divine law.

The Alberta MP said the prime minister first said he had seen the film twice at private showings, then a few days later denied ever seeing it.

"I suggest that the prime minister did not tell the truth because one statement must be wrong. They cannot both be correct."

Mr. Woollams accused Mr. Pearson of deliberately concealing part of the truth on two other occasions in the House this year in statements about criticism of the proposed maple leaf flag and Ramsay Cook's unsuccessful bid for the 1968 Winter Olympics.

Mr. Mackasey argued that the prime minister had not tried to conceal facts, but had made off-the-cuff replies that were contradictory only in appearance.

"The basic fact is that the prime minister has not seen the Pearson film as it has now been shown to the press and as it now exists in the hands of the producer" he said amid Opposition jeers.

The Liberal backbencher said his leader saw only the first draft of the film and a "slightly revised" version; he had not seen the final version.

"You are splitting hairs." a Conservative MP shouted.

Mr. Nielsen referred to a recent statement by Mr. Pearson that the Liberal government does not practise censorship of CBC programs and called it "lies".

Mr. Martin jumped to his feet to demand a retraction and the two men spoke simultaneously for a few minutes, vying for the floor.

Douglas Fisher, NDP house leader, said he is convinced the Liberals exerted political influence to kill the Pearson film. The result was that the brilliant career of the independent Toronto producer of the program, Richard Ballentine, was in jeopardy.

Several cabinet ministers and a "contingent" of Pearson advisers had disapproved of the film after a private showing and this had influenced the CBC's decision to cancel it, he contended.

The CBC's statement that the Ballentine program was technically inferior was a transparent excuse. Some CBC programs were "real lousy stinkers."

Mr. Fisher pointed up the government's "conceit and ignorance" and its preoccupation with managing the news and manipulating public relations images.

Mr. Fisher called on the prime minister to give a full statement explaining the handling of the film and proposing a solution.

Jack Horner (PC — Acadia) accused the government of censoring the Pearson film before finally pressuring the CBC to drop it. It was a shame that no cabinet minister was rising to defend Mr. Pearson.

Many Married Couples Sexually Active After 50

VANCOUVER (CP) — A panelist at the convention of the Canadian Medical Association said Tuesday that more than 70 per cent of healthy married couples are sexually active "long after" the age of 50.

The so-called loss of powers by men around 50 is a myth, said Dr. David Swartz of Winnipeg.

Few statistics are available, but there are enough to quash misconceptions dating from the Victorian era when people of 50 or 60 were said to be "old" and "finished," said Dr. Swartz.

and shock when a rain-soaked ditch collapsed around him.

Winds torn up about 30 boathouses and damaged several boats at St. Williams, a village on Long Point south of Simcoe.

At Burlington, near Hamilton, the occupants of a house narrowly escaped being crushed when a 250-foot-high construction crane toppled and demolished a corner bedroom. A 700-pound demolition ball on the boom buried itself in the front lawn. Mrs. Bertha Roberts, 72, and her grandson Gary, 18, were in the living room.

A barn was destroyed by a lightning-started fire at Mitchell, 15 miles southwest of Stratford.

Basements were flooded in Guelph and Kitchener, where 1 1-3 inches of rain fell in less than an hour.

Hydro service was cut off for up to seven hours in parts of suburban Toronto. Houses in Toronto and Oshawa were struck by lightning but damage was slight.

CAUSES FIRES

The storm caused at least two fires in the Hamilton area and streets were littered by tree branches and fallen wires.

Several small boats rode out the storm at anchor in Lake Erie off Port Colborne.

Three women were taken to hospital in Toronto following a two-car collision at the height of the downpour and a Hamilton youngster suffered a fractured leg when he was knocked off his bicycle by a car.

There were pockets of calm along the path of the storm.

At Port Rowan, four miles west of St. William, and Port Dover, 15 miles west, residents reported only balmy breezes. Sarnia and Simcoe received only light rainfall. St. Thomas also missed the full blast of the storm.

Schwerner's wife was flying to Mississippi from Ohio to await word of her husband.

There were these other developments:

—The parents of two of the missing men called on President Johnson Tuesday and were assured the government is doing everything in its power to locate them.

FLAYS FLIGHT

—Attorney-General Robert F. Kennedy delayed for a few hours his scheduled flight to Germany to keep an eye on the Mississippi situation from the justice department.

—The 2,000 delegates to the Washington convention of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People voted to demonstrate at the justice department today as a protest against the disappearance of the three integration leaders.

—The commission on religion and race of the Unitarian-Universalist association announced in Washington a reward of $1,000 to help find or solve the mysterious disappearance.

—James Farmer, national director of the Congress of Racial Equality, flew to Meridian to join the search because Schwerner and Chaney are members of his organization. Meridian police gave Farmer a protective guard.

—At Jackson, John Lewis, national chairman of the Student Non - violent Co - ordinating Committee, said civil rights leaders would try to get President Johnson not just to "investigate incidents after they have happened, but to provide protection for the workers all over the state."

CPA

rently forecast could not be shared with CPA without injury to Air Canada's financial picture. He said traffic is expected to increase about six per cent this year and about five per cent in 1963.

If the predicted growth was 10 to 15 per cent, then possibly there was room for more CPA services on the transcontinental route, he said.

Mr. McGregor also rejected any suggestion that Air Canada should move out of its regional routes, which represent about 40 per cent of its full operation even though most of them are unprofitable runs.

Any abandonment of regional routes to the smaller regional carriers would have a disruptive effect on the company and a disturbing impact on its employees and equipment utilization, he said.

Lodge Name Brings Hope To Stop Goldwater Campaign

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The magic of the Lodge name brought new hope today to the moderate and liberal Republicans maneuvering in the critical few weeks left before convention time to keep their party's presidential nomination from going to Senator Barry Goldwater.

Whether the resignation of Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts as U.S. ambassador to South Viet Nam to take up the political cudgels for Governor William Scranton of Pennsylvania comes too late to stop Goldwater remains to be seen.

Anything can happen by convention time—less than three weeks away—and it often has in the past. But this time civil rights is making it far more difficult for Republicans to unite behind a single candidate. The issue has helped divide the party.

Lodge, a long-time internationalist after renouncing his pre-war isolationism, announced in Saigon, capital of South Viet Nam, Tuesday that he is leaving his ambassadorial post and coming home because he felt it is his "duty to do everything I can to help Governor Scranton to win the presidency."

Later, he said "there are no hidden meanings" in his decision to return to the United States and he is "not a candidate at all." He added "I am not going back at all in order to connive at anything for myself. I cannot be drafted. . . ."

Lodge's decision to jump into presidential politics was widely heralded by backers of Scranton —already supported by Governor Nelson Rockefeller of New York—as a major development in his efforts to win delegates away from Goldwater.

Supporters of Goldwater, who has more than enough delegates on paper at least to win the nomination on the first ballot, generally discounted Lodge's move.

While nobody questioned the sincerity of Lodge's commitment to back Scranton, some party strategists noted there were elements present that could lead to unpredictable developments.

Lodge, the vice - presidential candidate in the 1960 election when Richard Nixon was defeated by the late president Kennedy, could provide the Republicans with another presidential candidate.

This would be true particularly, they said, if there was a resurgence of Lodge's popularity in the national polls. Some polls still give Lodge high ratings. Lodge has general recognition among the party workers whose votes count in the convention balloting.

U. S. Cattle To Canada May Be Cut Off

TORONTO (CP) — Keith Lockie, general manager of the West Packers Council of Canada, predicted Tuesday that rising cattle prices in the United States would eventually cut off a large flow of U.S. cattle into Canada.

He also predicted the normal flow of cattle from Canada to the U.S. would probably be resumed as soon as abnormally low U.S. prices had been increased.

IN THE DARKROOM at the Belleville Fair Grounds, photographer Stuart Meeks fits a negative into a special negative carrier for the enlarger. The negative carrier holds the negative between two sheets of glass, in a bath of fixing solution.

FINISH OF RACE as it appears in "photo-finish" photograph — but not quite as it is in real life. Tail of second horse in this picture was photographed nearly a second after nose of first horse. Time scales at top and bottom show interval between horses, information at the top includes place, date, time and number of race. "Finish line" was added during printing, for convenience of judges. Note ground is blurred — photo-finish camera cannot take clear picture of motionless objects.

For Race-Track Einsteins

You've seen photo-finish pictures of a horse race? The ones with all the horses dashing madly for the finish line. The pictures look realistic, but they're not.

Photo-finish pictures, in theory, show the horses separated in time, not in space. In practice, this generally makes little difference, but a few inches between the lead horse and the second horse in the picture has not fixed relationship with the distance between the horses as the lead horse crossed the finish line. If a horse one length behind the winner, for example, were to move quickly up the winner touched the finish line, the pictures might show the second horse several lengths back. Those inches of space in the picture represent seconds in time, and all the horses were photographed as they actually crossed the line.

USES SPECIAL CAMERA

Official photographer at the Saturday night trotting races held at the Belleville Fair Grounds by the Quinte Riding and Driving Club is Stuart Meeks, of Belleville. He works with a special camera mounted in a dark room above the grandstand, dead level with the finish line. The camera is something to wonder about.

First, the camera has no shutter. In the sense that a normal camera has. From the lens, pre-focused on the track, there is a clear path back to the film through a narrow vertical split. As the horses move from left to right in front of the lens, the film moves from right to left behind the slit. If the film is moving at the right speed, the horses appear to be stopped in the picture but anything stagging still will be blurred. Each horse, and each part of each horse, is photographed as it crossed the line.

But that isn't all the camera does. Two small lenses inside are focussed on a rotating drum which carries the time, place and number of the race, plus a numbered strip. Through the lenses this information is transferred to narrow strips on the film above and below the picture. The image of the numbered strip makes it easy to check the time lapse between the horses crossing the line, and the rest of the information is for filing purposes. The Department of Agriculture, which supplies the equipment, keeps all photo-finish photos on file.

PRINT IN A MINUTE

But the camera is only one of the wonders of the darkroom above the grandstand. More surprising, perhaps, is the fact that, using ordinary film, Meeks is able to hand the judges a finished print about one minute after he has taken the picture.

If you don't know anything about photographic processing, that time limit may mean nothing to you. Consider then the process — and the time — used to print a picture in The Ontario Intelligencer's darkroom.

The film is wound on a special reel and dunked in developer — at a temperature of 68 degrees Fahrenheit — for five minutes. After it has been through the developer, the film is rinsed for a few seconds and put in a fixing solution for two or three minutes. Then there's a five or ten minute wash, and it takes about ten minutes to dry the film. The dried negative is then put, in an enlarger, the photographic printing paper is put in place and exposed for a few seconds, then the paper is developed for about two minutes, fixed for about five minutes, washed and dried. The whole process takes between thirty and forty minutes.

At the race track Meeks cuts the two feet or so of exposed film from the 1,000 foot spool in the camera and dunks it, without a reel, for 14 seconds into a bucket of special developer at 117 degrees Fahrenheit. He then rinses the film for less than a second and drops it for about two seconds into a special fast fixer.

Meanwhile, he prepares a special negative carrier that holds the film — actually in a bath of fixer — between two sheets of flat glass. Using this carrier he can print the film before the negatives are properly fixed. With an extra-bright bulb in his enlarger, with a special easle to hold the paper, and with high-speed developer and fixer, Meeks can make a print in a few seconds.

The photo-finish equipment at the Belleville Fair Grounds was installed three weeks ago by the Department of Agriculture, and Meeks himself is employed by the Department of Agriculture. The pictures from which the judges decide close races are exciting examples of photography, but they show the finish of a race as no man has ever seen it, perhaps with several seconds in time separating the picture of the first horse from the picture of the last horse.

Byelection Results Seen To Have Taken Steam Out Of Opposition Election Yen

OTTAWA (CP) — Byelection results in Nipissing and Saskatoon seem to have taken some steam out of opposition hopes who hoped to manoeuvre the minority government into a fall election.

And, while the Liberals claimed comfort from the results, it wasn't great enough to set the thinking in terms of another general election in a bid for undisputed control of the Commons.

Both major parties appear to have turned their attention now to trying to assess the effects of the two votes on the two main parliamentary issues of the moment—the flag debate and the government's move to get taxing authority to pay for new bills.

With an interim supply bill now before the Commons political sources in all parties were conceding that the government now should get authority for July spending by the end of this week or possibly the early part o. next week.

WANTED VOTE

It had been generally conceded that had the Conservatives won or made substantial gains in Nipissing while retaining Saskatoon, the temptation would have been irresistible to restore the government July spending authority, and thus force another general election.

This could done simply by talking on the supply measure until past the date on which the government must have authority to pay the bills.

As it turned out, the Liberals easily retained Nipissing with a pl.rality of more than 5,000 votes.

The margin was some 4,000 smaller than the plurality rung up in the 1963 election by Jack Garland, the popular revenue minister whose death caused the byelection. Still, the Liberals regarded it as a substantial win for Carl Legault.

The Conservatives, while encouraged by polling almost 1,300 more votes than in 1963, felt a positive enough swing was not evident. There were about 1,100 more votes cast than in 1963.

MARGIN WAS CUT

In Saskatoon, the voting turnout was down about 9,000 and the Liberals had their vote not good enough and in Conservative Saskatoon the Liberals did better than was not as well as they'd hoped.

Political opinion about the effect on the flag debate differed widely between Liberals and Conservatives. The government's flag design, three red maple leaves on a white ground with vertical blue bars at the edges, was unveiled when the byelection campaigns were at their height.

LITTLE CONCERN

Liberals argued the byelection results indicated no great public concern with the flag issue or, at most, endorsation of the government's flag design. They figured this would tend to dampen opposition to the design in the Commons.

However, Conservatives were vowing to press on with plans for a full flag debate and their demands for a national plebiscite on the question.

It was indicated if that fails a move may be made to refer the issue to a joint parliamentary committee. And a few conceded that the compromise design proposed by the New Democrats, a single maple leaf, now has the best chance of getting all-party support in the Commons.

The New Democrats apparently found great encouragement in the byelection results. Their candidates polled about 1,200 more votes in each riding than in 1963. This represented a 50 - per - cent increase in both cases.

Questions Left Hanging in Air In Commons

OTTAWA (CP) — Was Governor-General Vanier's recent award from Italy approved by Canadian government? Should it have been cleared with the federal cabinet?

These two questions were left hanging in the air after a brief exchange between Prime Minister Pearson and Opposition Leader Diefenbaker in the Commons Tuesday.

Mr. Pearson said there has been no change in the policy followed for years—that awards and decorations by foreign states should not be accepted by Canadians unless approved of by the Canadian prime minister.

Mr. Diefenbaker asked whether any cabinet order affected the policy in any way, remarking his question was prompted by Gen. Vanier's award to a Canadian within the last few days."

"To my knowledge, there has been no change," Mr. Pearson replied.

VANIER NOT MENTIONED

Nobody mentioned Governor-General Vanier but informed sources indicated it may have been in Mr. Diefenbaker's mind in connection with the award to Gen. Vanier of the Golden Colombe.

A Government House spokesman said the Canadian government was not informed about the award, made annually to heads of state and previously received by Queen Elizabeth, President Kennedy, former West German chancellor Konrad Adenauer, King Gustav VI of Sweden and King Frederick IX of Denmark.

The award to Gen. Vanier was made by the Italian government in the form of a agency for one province. It was intended as a token of gratitude toward Canada and a reflection of the personal goodwill shown by Gen. Vanier to Rome and to Italy during his stay.

The presentation took place last Friday at Rome where the Canadian Ambassador G. G. Crean received it on the Governor-General's behalf.

FOR OLD TIMES SAKE — Young folk of the Actinolite district entered enthusiastically into village centennial celebrations last weekend as they staged a fashion parade. Carol Ann Crediett coyly shows high top boot and expanse of stocking as she poses with Gordon Price, Beth Price and Kenneth Campbell. "Too hot for this kind of weather" was the unanimous feeling of period costumes.

Full Prepayment of Bills Rejected by Resolutions Of Parliament of Medicine

VANCOUVER (CP) — Canada's Parliament of medicine had turned its back on complete prepayment of doctor and hospital bills through insurance.

The Parliament, 180 - member general council of the Canadian Medical Association, has approved policies that would require the patient to pay at least part of the bills from his own pocket.

The rest would come from insurance plans the patient had paid into.

At the same time, the council's policy committee feels that money paid by insurance companies should be sent to the patient, not the doctor. The patient thus would be reimbursed for the bill, or part of the bill, but it would be his responsibility to go through the mechanics of paying it.

The council adopted a resolution of its own Monday and approved another from the committee Tuesday, both designed to urge this procedure.

In one paragraph of a report to the council the committee said it is concerned over the tendency of insurance companies to include in their policies a provision that payment will be made directly to doctors.

SUPPRESS PATIENT

"Since this mechanism bypasses the patient and creates a direct insurer - physician relationship, it tends to remove the patient's awareness of his or her responsibilities," it said. The paragraph was "received for information" by the council.

The council has virtually rejected the recommendation by the Hall royal commission on health for a medical insurance program that would be supported by tax money.

Its reasons for seeking "patient participation" in both hospital and medical insurance programs are the same — prepayment encourages overuse which in turn causes overwork, which means that the quality of service suffers.

There are also subsidiary questions such as adequate reimbursement for doctors. In the words of Montreal's Dr. Victor Goldbloom: "Should a doctor of many years' experience specializing in a certain field be paid the same as a new general practitioner?"

Dr. Goldbloom said the committee did not work out the details of how much the patient should pay the hospital above what is received from the insurance company. Dr. L. O. Bradley of Winnipeg said the 1ia- ity co-insurance paid in British Columbia is not high enough.

But Dr. Goldbloom said hospitals are in difficulty because they are not receiving sufficient money. At the same time the committee was against the concept of giving a patient a blank cheque for hospital care through almost total prepayment.

The council adopted a recommendation that asked the CMA provincial divisions to request governments to accept and publicize a modified and evolved concept" of hospital insurance.

This concept would permit hospitals to charge for services not provided for under hospital insurance and to keep the bulk of these revenues.

The council also adopted a recommendation that the medical profession continue to oppose the inclusion of medical services in chronic hospitals under hospital insurance.

It said chronic hospitals should be affiliated with general hospitals and should acquire "suitable organized medical staffs" by virtue of this. Future chronic hospitals should be built next to general hospitals.

The general council concludes its deliberations today.

Responsibility Of Doctor Is Studied

VANCOUVER (CP) — What is the responsibility of a doctor when he comes upon what appears to be a case of child abuse by a parent?

The question has many doctors confused, says Dr. Harry Medovy of Winnipeg, chairman of the Canadian Medical Association's committee on child health.

He said Tuesday that many doctors are "afraid" to report to police for fear of unjustly accusing a parent. Yet the committee, he continued, was concerned about the increasing number of cases, ranging from starvation to physical beatings.

The committee was instructed by the CMA's general council to draw up guide lines for doctors to follow when faced with a case of apparent abuse, Dr. Medovy said.

The committee's feeling now was that the best procedure would be to report to the provincial commissioner of welfare. The commissioner could report the matter to the responsible authorities, if necessary.

Dr. Medovy said the public must realize the most important consideration is the protection of the child, not the punishment of the parent who abuses it.

Thinks Dress Perfect for Social Affair

LONDON (Reuters) — A pretty London housewife was shown on a newspaper front page today trying on a topless, bare-bosom dress—while her husband and three-year-old son look on.

The picture in The Daily Express was of Mrs. Margaret Griffith, 25, in the fitting room of a London store where she was one of the first customers for the black, slit dress.

"Why all the fuss?" she was quoted as saying. "I think it is perfect for a social occasion."

Mrs. Griffith—38-26-40— told a woman reporter:

"I think I have the right kind of figure to wear this kind of dress."

Her husband, John, said: "When I saw her first wearing it she looked wonderful. She is no model—just an ordinary housewife. But it really suited her. I don't think it's at all indecent."

When will she wear the dress?

Mrs. Griffith said: "I am going to give a social party soon. I think I'll do it. My husband approves."

More Selective Chemical Compounds, More Intelligent Application Said Needed

VANCOUVER (CP) — The hunt is on for better chemicals to kill unwanted forms of life, says an American expert.

Needed today are more "selective (chemical) compounds and more intelligent application" of them, Dr. Madeleine E. Fitzhugh said amount the heads of the American Association of Science's Pacific division.

Dr. Fitzhugh, chairman of Vassar College's zoology department, Tuesday told a group of zoologists-botanists who study the relationship of an organism to its environment—the problems of pollution and misuse of pesticides were brought into focus by Rachael Carson's Silent Spring.

The book had spurred research programs and better controlling legislation, she said.

One problem, on which Dr. Pierce has spent seven years, is that of controlling unwanted weeds without killing or harming other plant life that depend on the water.

TEST HERBICIDES

Much research has been devoted to testing new herbicides.

Scientists at the University of Wyoming used a diluted herbicide to clear irrigation ditches and canals of algae, she said. Older methods such as "chaining"—dragging a chain or object through the ditch — were only moderately effective.

New methods, involving a floating blanket of herbicide, showed promise, she added.

Programs are under way in New Jersey to find methods of combatting watermilfoil foil, a floating weed that is so thick that fishing boats are practically stuck and outboard motors are fouled.

The watermilfoil foil has spread rapidly in recent years and now is becoming a problem in the St. Lawrence River area of Canada, she said.

Ecologists have come up with one way to solve the problem of underwater weeds, she said. The right amount of fertiliser introduced at the proper time in the spring encourages plankton to grow on the bottom of a pond and form a layer, preventing root plants from growing. Underwater weeds, she said, hurt real estate values, curtail recreational activities and have a serious effect on the economy.

Masses of weeds clogging drainage ditches and irrigation canals also can have a serious implication for farmers, as well as robbing birds and fish of food.

Govt. to Aid In Building Of New Jails

SUDBURY (CP) — Reforms Minister Allan Grossman of Ontario said today the provincial government is prepared to help municipalities and counties get rid of antiquated jails.

Speaking to the Association of Ontario Mayors and Reeves, he said his department will establish a special grant to aid counties in construction of new, modern jails or enlarged regional jails.

Although the grant formula is not yet established, he said, the provincial government will participate in projects the city will pay more than was spent on existing dilapidated jails.

"I am prepared to make this pledge . . . the pledge that any authority which participates in a regional administrative venture will find it completely to its financial advantage," he said.

He said later this meant the province would guarantee not only that participating local governments benefitted on capital costs, but that it would contribute more to maintenance than the present 10 per cent.

MONEY HE SAID

He said in his speech most of the 35 county jails and two city jails in Ontario would be replaced by trying to make an integrated and racial discrimination against charter members, he said.

Mr. Barnes said he made his decision to quit following the recent convention of Optimist International over the issue when anti-discriminatory constitutional amendments, proposed by the Calgary club and endorsed by the southern Ontario district, were defeated.

The amendments would have to join after a club has been chartered, but are not allowed to be charter members.

NAMED DIRECTOR

OTTAWA (CP) — Appointment of Dr. Yves O. Fortier, 50, prominent geologist and arctic explorer, as the new director of the Geological Survey of Canada was announced Tuesday by Mines Minister Bendickson.

Optimist Ideas Could Be Hurt By Withdrawal

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto Optimist Club would do the right thing if it was a law, it said it were to pull out of the Optimist International over the question of civil rights, the club's president said Tuesday.

Richard Stainton made the statement about the resignation Monday of Herbert Barnes, a former governor of the southern Ontario district of the Optimist club, because of alleged discriminatory policies of Optimist International.

One goal of Optimist clubs was to promote international goodwill, Mr. Stainton said in a statement.

"This could be damaged by trying to make an integrated and racial discrimination against charter members, he said.

Mr. Barnes said he made his decision to quit following the recent convention of Optimist International over the issue when anti-discriminatory constitutional amendments, proposed by the Calgary club and endorsed by the southern Ontario district, were defeated.

The amendments would to join after a club has been chartered, but are not allowed to be charter members.

French Canadians Are Said To Fear Bilingualism Could Hurt Language Board Told

BANFF, Alta. (CP)—French-Canadians, looking to historical examples, fear bilingualism could mean slow disintegration of the French language, Professor Jean Ethelr-Blais of McGill University said today.

"The dynamics of history are such that for a people, bilingualism can be but a transitory phase. The original language is bound to disappear. It may take a long time, but the eventual disappearance is in sight nevertheless."

He told a closed conference on problems of Canadian unity the French-speaking person is forced by circumstance either to remain unilingual and useless outside Quebec or become bilingual and a deviated man with an inferiority complex.

In a paper presented in English, Professor Ethelr-Blais said the dilemma for French - Canadians is not whether bilingualism should continue to flourish in Quebec but whether it still is possible to retain French as a national language.

SHOWS DECLINE

"The history of our language in Canada is one of slow decline."

Professor Ethelr-Blais said he feels Quebec eventually will be forced to adopt status of a unilingual, French-speaking province.

"By this I mean that the province of Quebec will inevitably come to consider it as an imperative matter of linguistic and cultural survival to conform itself in these matters to the pattern which has been set by the rest of Canada."

G. R. Lamb, professor of political science at the University of Alberta, suggested in a paper that some media in Canada should have more Canadian content, even if massive government subsidies and restrictions were necessary.

"For if we are to survive as a nation, it is vital that residents of Alberta should know a great deal more about Quebec and the Maritimes, for example, than they do about Cyprus, Laos or even Washington, D.C.," he said.

RAISE HACKLES

Dr. Eugene Forsey, research director of the Canadian Labor Congress, said French - Canadians often raised the hackles of their English-speaking counterparts by unfounded statements about their rights under the Canadian constitution.

He said the British North America Act, basis of the constitution, envisioned a centralized union and provided only limited bilingualism and biculturalism.

"We English Canadians may have misleading notions about bilingualism and biculturalism. I think we are certainly often foolish and narrow-minded about it. But accusing us of breaches of an agreement, with no evidence to back it up, is another such breaches, is not likely to make us more sensible or broad-minded."

Sukarno's Intention To Crush Malaysia May Be Delayed

By DOUG WARMESLEY

Canadian Press Staff Writer

Although the avowed intention of Indonesia's President Sukarno is to crush Malaysia he is unlikely to risk anything more dangerous than the tantalizing jabs he is already delivering.

The long-term view in London is that the crisis will continue to smoulder in its present state for at least a year or two. A swift and complete solution is considered impossible after the collapse of the Tokyo summit meeting.

But at the same time Sukarno, aware that Britain, Australia and New Zealand are explicitly committed to Malaysia's defence, will probably avoid turning the "confrontation" policy begun 15 months ago, into an all-out war.

Military attacks across the North Borneo border by Indonesian guerrillas, in which five Malaysians were killed during the weekend, predictably rang alarm bells throughout the Commonwealth.

If the attacks continue on such a scale Malaysia's prime minister, Tunku Abdul Rahman may be forced to make bilateral approaches to particular Commonwealth countries for immediate help in training and equipment.

CONFERENCE TALKS

But British officials stress that such help could only come after discussions at the defence committee. Such consultation is unlikely to come until after the Commonwealth ministers have discussed the problem at the London conference next month.

The further move, that of arraigning Indonesia before the United Nations, is also likely to be delayed until the Commonwealth position has been coordinated.

In the meantime the 10,000 British and Malaysian troops strung out along the 1,000-mile border in Borneo, although hard pressed, seem capable of containing the guerrilla invasions—especially since the chances of Sukarno getting help from the Russian dictators are fading fast.

Some British commentators think the Indonesian crisis wasonly familiar. Sukarno is in much the same position as Egypt's Nasser was in 1956—trapped by a deteriorating economic situation, a powerful anti-British and pro - Communist party at his door and a large standing army that he has to keep employed.

But Britain has learned her lesson. There won't be another Suez in the Indian Ocean to get Sukarno off the hook.

Premier Inonu Ends Talks With Johnson

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson and Premier Ismet Inonu of Turkey ended two days of talks Tuesday in agreement that a lasting solution to the Cyprus problem is an "urgent necessity" and must be found.

Today the president opens two days discussing the Cyprus issue, this time with Premier George Papandreou of Greece.

Johnson is trying to head off a possible military showdown between Greece and Turkey over the Mediterranean Island.

State department sources said little progress was made in more than a diagnosis of the crisis, although Inonu demonstrated moderation and willingness to approach the issue with an open mind.

A joint communique issued at the White House after the last meeting between the two leaders said their discussions proceeded "from the present binding effects of existing treaties."

This was taken to mean the United States has accepted the Turkish position that neither Greece nor the Greek-Cypriots can unilaterally renounce the London and Zurich agreements which gave Cyprus its independence, and simultaneously guaranteed two rights for the island's Turkish minority.

Immigration Regulations Under Attack

OTTAWA (CP) — Demands for an overhaul of Canada's immigration regulations were tossed at Immigration Minister Rene Tremblay again Tuesday in the Commons and backbench MPs charged that the present rules are unfair and discriminatory.

One of the stiffest attacks came from Liberal Joe Macaluso (Hamilton West) who said he wasn't sure whether regulations are designed to bring in immigrants or keep them out. He called on Mr. Tremblay to make a sweeping study of the situation.

The present system is rotten, said Andrew Brewin (NDP—Toronto Greenwood), and the minister didn't need a committee of lawyer to tell him some of the basic faults.

Mr. Tremblay Monday announced the appointment of former Judge Joseph Sedgwick as a one-man inquiry into allegations concerning the detention of illegal entrants to Canada.

There are lawyers on both sides of the house perfectly capable of telling the minister some elementary rules on law," said Mr. Brewin. One of those basic rights involved the rights of individuals to be heard—a right that had been denied immigrants.

BADANAI REPLIES

Robert Badanai, parliamentary secretary do Mr. Tremblay, said Parliament had imposed heavy responsibilities on the immigration department to protect the country from "an invasion of undesirables."

Persons who enter Canada illegally do so to avoid normal safeguards and are not entitled to have priority treatment of their cases, ahead of those who enter legally, he said.

He said the Commons should be more patient while the government looked at the Immigration Act and regulations He admitted he was impatient during his first year as an opposition MP, but said he now knows how complex the problems are.

Mr. Badanai also said that perhaps his minister was too soft in his demands on the government for more support for the department. The department was short of staff and needed more support to ensure more qualified personnel.

Crisis-Crossing

Cold War No. 2 Is Emerging

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

The world's two greatest powers are bewildered. A cross hodgepodge of crisis crossing conflicts suggests that Cold War I has ended and Cold War II is well under way.

The great Soviet - Chinese schism, the U.S.-Soviet nuclear standoff, the emergence of new nations and blocs, developing cracks in alliances, all confront Moscow and Washington with a need to rethink their diplomacy.

Things were simpler during Cold War I. There was a monolithic Communist world opposed by an alliance of nations facing a common threat.

Today, the Communist world is fragmented. A second centre of Red power — Peking—challenges Moscow. This has loosened the Soviet hold on a world network of parties which once did Moscow's bidding unquestioningly. It has emboldened satellite countries to seek some independence, to weigh national interests against the needs of Soviet policy, to balk at Moscow's plans for a tightly controlled economic union, and to look Westward for development of trade.

The United States, however, is not without its alliance troubles. France talks at the dominant U.S. role in NATO and pursues an Asian policy contrary to Washington's. Britain is unresponsive to pleas to curtail trade with Cuba, Japanese and West German businessmen speculatively eye the potential market of mainland China. Pakistan co-operates with Peking.

Cold War II can be just as dangerous as Cold War I.

One big danger is that a major crisis—involving perhaps Cuba or Southeast Asia—could face Soviet policy with a harsh choice: To challenge U.S. power, or to avoid the risk and thus effectively lose the leadership of the world's Communists by proving to them that the Chinese were right.

On the other hand, fragmentation of the Communist world requires the United States to seek one set of policies for the Red Chinese bloc—China North Viet Nam and North Korea; another for dealing with Moscow, and yet other approaches for the various Communist - ruled countries.

Both the United States and Moscow will consider re-tailored policies for dealing with the underdeveloped world.

Probably Cold War II can be dated from the time the Russians decided not to help the Red Chinese get into the nuclear weapons club. That and many other Chinese-Soviet irritations produced today's many-faceted, bewildering world struggle.

Basically, the ultimate Red Chinese and Soviet goals are the same: World domination by what they call Marxism-Leninism.

But Mao Tse-tung says there is only one way to gain that goal: Continuous, unrelenting armed struggle based upon what the Communists call the "national liberation movement." This is essence means any revolutionary movement oriented against Western influence.

By use of such revoutions—mounting armed struggles like that in South Viet Nam—the Chinese say communism can "defeat U.S. imperialism step by step . . . piecemeal."

Premier Khrushchev, Peking says, scares people away from revolutions by contending that mankind would be wiped out in a general war which could be touched off by a small one. This, to the Chinese, is one of the sins of "modern revisionism," the epithet they apply to Khrushchev and his followers.

The Russians say they still believe that dictatorship of the proletariat is desirable, but they say that armed uprising is not the only way. They do not exclude armed struggle, but they hold that neutralism and non-alignment are useful instruments, since both can be channelled against the West.

As the Kremlin sees it, nationalist movements as such can lead to a national socialism, which, if sufficiently in debt to the U.S.S.R. can be pushed toward Soviet-type socialism without armed revolution.

The course of Cold War II piles up headaches for both the Soviet Union and the United States.

The guerrilla wars in Indochina—against the established governments in South Viet Nam and Laos—could bring Moscow perilously close to the day when it would have to choose between risking war or surrendering Communist loyalties.

More and more, Cold War II is requiring both the United States and the Soviet Union to deal individually with nations of both alliances, and to tailor policies to specific areas of world conflict — one policy for this area, another for that.

Four Nieces Only Relatives Of Millionaire

TORONTO (CP) — Four nieces, the only known relatives of a millionaire recluse who lived in abject poverty while he amassed his fortune, will have to wait until at least the end of July to learn the value of the estate left by their eccentric uncle.

Bernard McGraw, the lawyer handling the estate of John Michael O'Dea, 83, of Toronto, who died last April, said Monday he is unable to disclose the names of the four possible heiresses.

He said the estate is "nowhere near" the original estimate of $2,000,000. "However, we will have to wait until at least the end of July before we can come up with a final figure."

Mr. O'Dea's body was found in the kitchen—the only furnished room in the rambling, two-storey house in which he lived—after a fire ignited by a candle he used for light swept through accumulated newspapers.

The millionaire, who dressed in old, cast-off clothing, refused to install water or other amenities. The only heating came from an old gas stove.

Mr. O'Dea inherited a large sum of money about 1940 from a San Francisco cousin, a lawyer and oil-well owner. He increased his fortune by real-estate and mortgage deals.

Russia, China, E. Germany Pump Money Into Zanzibar, But Nyerere Is Active, Too

By DENNIS NEELD

ZANZIBAR (AP) — Russia, Communist China and East Germany are pumping men, money and machines into Zanzibar. If unchecked these things may turn the island into a virtual Communist satellite.

At the same time, President Julius Nyerere of the new republic of Tanganyika and Zanzibar is trying to assert his own authority in the island 25 miles off the east African mainland.

Zanzibar's own president Abeid Karume, 56, a Moslem, probably has no deep love of communism in his African nationalist heart. But the island leader, a seaman for 22 years, seems unversed in the ways of Communist infiltration.

Karume is the idol of the Zanzibar Negroes and the island's most powerful single personality.

Asked this month about Communists in positions of authority in Zanzibar, he replied: "What are one or two men? I have the power and I have my own eyes and ears."

WELCOMES AID

Karume cites generous Communist aid as an indication of the bloc's friendship and says anyone who helps Zanzibar is welcome.

Some 150 technicians and experts from the Communist bloc are believed to be working in Zanzibar.

British civil servants have been replaced. East Germans have taken over the finance ministry and are helping run the radio station, information ministry, schools and medical services. They are doing preliminary work on projects to rehouse thousands of Negroes huddled in squalid shanties outside Zanzibar Town.

The Red Chinese are firmly ensconced in the agriculture department and are planning rice growing and other farm schemes to reduce the island's dependence on cloves.

ARMY RUSSIAN TRAINED

Soviet instructors are training about 400 recruits in the People's Liberation Army in the use of their new Russian equipment.

Some of this was displayed at the big May Day parade where the public saw goose-stepping Zanzibari troops carrying Russian sub-machine-guns, big Russian trucks towing anti-aircraft and anti-tank guns, mortars, and heavy machine-guns.

As a result of Nyerere's influence, Zanzibari troops have discarded their Cuban - style caps and uniforms and now wear the standard green berets and uniforms of the Tanganyika forces.

Communist literature is everywhere.

The United States embassy, however, has also been permitted to reopen its reading room. It has not been to Zanzibar's twin island of Pemba since he became president after the January revolution overthrew an Arab-dominated government. Area commissioner Diria Hassan is ruling the island like a little Stalin.

REPORT MASS BEATINGS

Three reports from Pemba have mentioned mass beatings following a refusal by the people to take part in voluntary nation-building projects and or to attend meetings.

Deputations have seen Karume to complain of conditions on Pemba and he says he plans to remedy the situation.

There have been other rumblings of discontent. Seventeen persons arrested at Mkunduchi 40 miles south of Zanzibar Town, were jailed for four years for attending an anti-government meeting. Area commissioner Abdul Razak Musa Simai said it was a black magic meeting at which spells were being cast on Karume.

Under the provisional constitution, foreign affairs are the reserve of the united republic government but Zanzibar's own ministry of external affairs and trade still is in business

Abdul Rahman Mohamed Babu, Zanzibar's foreign minister before he was appointed one of three ministers in the united republic cabinet responsible for development and planning seems to be taking his new duties seriously, however.

There are other signs that the union is gaining strength. Nyerere has appointed two able young ministers who will have offices in Zanzibar.

Everyone Gets in the Act For P.E.I. Celebrations

By JACK PICKETTS

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — Prince Edward Island is an organized camp awaiting the arrival of tourists to push on with an entertainment program that involves almost every resident.

Each of the island's 25 incorporated towns and villages has a committee handling decorations and planning special events and memorials to the 100th anniversary of the 1864 Fathers of Confederation meeting here.

Each town has chosen a community day, on which everyone will take a holiday and concentrate on entertaining themselves, fellow islanders and tourists.

Included are lobster parties, harness racing, parades, carnivale, ice cream parties, sit roasts and family reunions.

One crown corporation, the Prince Edward Island Centennial Committee, has a $500,000 budget provided by the federal government to help. It's providing 30 cents for each citizen toward decorating the community and 50 cents a head for the memorial project.

PLAN JUBILEE

At Kensington (pop. 884) everyone in town will turn the calendar back 100 years during Kensington Rural Jubilee July 10-12. They'll wear clothes from the 1864 period, and goods common 100 years ago will be made and sold.

An 1864 village is being created and the island is being combed for furniture and implements of the time to equip it.

The heart of the celebrations, however, is the $3,600,000 Fathers of Confederation Memorial here. The Dominion Drama Festival opened its theatre May 18. The program continues all summer with plays, comedy and musical presentations that include pianist Glenn Gould, Wayne and Shuster and Don Messer and his Islanders.

Director of Centennial Year activities is Ken Birtwhistle, a retired navy commander, who spent most of the winter fanning mildly interested communities into a fever of excitement. There will be 40 days of community events and 110 conventions, most of them here, he says.

Last year the island had about 270,000 tourists and figures on an increase of about 25 per cent this summer.

SEEK OUT BEDS

The CNR has increased the number of car-ferry runs a day across Northumberland Strait, the nine - mile - wide strip of water separating P.E.I. from the mainland.

A joint tourist bureau and centennial committee has tracked down all the extra accommodation it could find.

A radio system will connect six island centres normally crowded with tourists, providing a free service that will find beds for those without accommodation. If one area is filled, the bureau will use the radio to try to locate space and then direct the tourist there.

OTTAWA (CP)—A bill to establish an international park on Campobello Island, N.B., as a memorial to Franklin Delano Roosevelt went through all legislative stages in the Commons within 30 minutes Monday. A parallel bill now is before the United States Congress to authorize American participation. The park will consist of the late U.S. president's summer residence and surrounding grounds.

Phillies' Culp Shadows Jim Bunning

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

Ray Culp has pitched his way back into Philadelphia Phillies' starting rotation. All it took was a near replica of teammate Jim Bunning's perfect game.

A first-inning base on balls and Len Gabrielsen's sixth-inning single came between Culp and perfection, attained two days earlier by Bunning, as the 22-year-old righthander blanked Chicago Cubs 9-0 in the second game of a doubleheader Tuesday night.

No other Cub reached base against Culp, whose early season trouble cost him a front-line job on Gene Mauch's pitching staff.

Mauch, thoroughly impressed after Culp's effort, announced that the National League-leading Phils will go with five starters henceforth.

"With Bunning, Dennis Bennett, Art Mahaffey and Chris Short working so well," the manager said, "We just haven't been able to give Ray enough work. The doubleheaders enabled us to use him more. Now he's pitching like he did last year."

WON 16 LAST YEAR

Culp won 16 games in 1963, his rookie season, and led Philadelphia pitchers with 176 strikeouts. He reported with a sore arm this spring, dropped five of six decisions and found himself in the bullpen.

But three victories—including the one-hitter — and two cameo relief jobs in the last three appearances have vaulted the young Texas back into the Phils' permanent plans.

The victory gave the Phils a split of the two-nighter, Chicago took the opener 2-0 on Dick Ellsworth's five-hitter.

Second-place San Francisco Giants divided with Cincinnati Reds winning 4-0 before bowing 5-4 in 11 innings. Pittsburgh Pirates defeated New York Mets 5-1; Milwaukee Braves beat Los Angeles Dodgers 9-2, and St. Louis Cardinals nipped Houston Colts 5-4 in the other NL action.

Culp said after the game he relied mainly on his fastball.

"I had arm trouble late last year and early this season because I threw too much breaking stuff," he recalled.

HAD IT BITTER

Phillie hitters were beaming after their 17-hit supporting role. Wes Covington homered, Richie Allen cracked three doubles and John Bernatsian had four hits, including a pair of doubles.

The opener was another story. Ellsworth breezed to his ninth victory in 10 decisions. Ernie Banks singled home one run and rookie Billy Ott doubled in the other.

Marty Keough's homer in the 11th inning earned Cincinnati a split with San Francisco and kept the Giants 1½ games behind Philadelphia. Jim Hart's eighth-inning homer, his second of the game, had pulled the Giants even.

Juan Marichal scattered seven singles in the opener and ran his record to 8-3. The Giants scored all their runs in the third inning, Duke Snider and Jose Pagan singling home two each.

DRIVES IN FOUR

Dick Schofield drove in four runs, three on a homer, and Vern Law pitched his fourth straight victory as the Pirates handed the Mets their 11th loss in 12 games.

Milwaukee snapped a seven-game losing streak as Joe Torre drove in three runs in the seventh on doubles by Hank Aaron and Felipe Alou and added a two-run Mays and Joe Torre to overtake the Dodgers. Frank Howard hit his 16th homer for Los Angeles and Ed Mathews his sixth for the Braves.

Ruby Raub's second error of the seventh inning allowed Tim McCarver to score the Mets' winning run after John Bateman's homer had lifted the Colts into a 4-4 tie in the top of the inning.

Amateurs Led Field Of 167

67 Qualify For Ontario Open

TORONTO (CP) — Jack Kenney, an amateur from London, Ont., and Doug Dalziel of South Bend, Bermuda shot one-under-par 71s to lead a field of 167 in the qualifying round of the Ontario Open golf championship Tuesday.

Art Mason, 19, of Toronto was third with a par 72. Vic Whibley of Guelph, Norm Mogll, 20, of Toronto, former Canadian junior champion, and Fred Kern of Toronto, tied for fourth with 73 over the Islington course.

Henri Chatelaine of St. Monique, Que., and John DeLorme of Toronto shot 74s.

A supper-hour thunderstorm caught 43 golfers still out on the course and curtailed play for nearly an hour. The field was competing for 67 places in the 54-hole tournament which opens Thursday.

Kenney is a former pro at London, Tillsonburg and Burlington as well as a member of the 1960 Willingdon Cup team. He turned in one of the most erratic rounds of the day, shooting five birdies and one two-under - par hole to offset six over-par holes.

Exactly 67 players qualified for the first time in the Open's history.

Hugh Beart of Toronto closed out the day's round and became the 67th qualifier with a five-foot putt for a score of 73. It eliminated the possibility of a playoff among several players with 73s.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

Next to actually tossing a no-hitter—or preferably a perfect game—the biggest thrill is watching the performance.

There is an unwritten law in baseball which calls for top secret hush-hush when a pitcher is on his way to a no-hit performance. News media, players, etc., are supposed to keep the fact inside their manly bosoms.

To dare mention the fact is supposed to be the next thing to treason. Only one newsman that I know of gives the superstition the brush-off and will mention it each and every time the opportunity comes along. He is "Red" Smith, one of the more talented New York sports scribes.

We were in New York covering the 1956 Gotham subway world series between the Yankees and Dodgers when Don Larsen came up with the first perfect game in world series history.

After the fourth and fifth innings you could feel the tension starting. Yogi Berra behind the plate for the Yankees, hunched his shoulders a little lower. There was a nervous zip in his toss-backs to Larsen.

Yankee fans were strangely silent when the Dodgers were batting. The faithful from Ebbets Field, sensing the situation, showed a little more mercy in their sneering-baiting.

Then the eighth inning—and the pressure was dripping. Larsen retired the Dodger side in order again and the Yankee fielders trotted in, heads a little low as if in prayer.

Came the ninth. My seat-mate in the temporary press box broke a long silence. He touched my arm. "This is it," he said. Nearby writers gave him a dour look.

Tension fairly prickled. Everybody felt it. I reached the point where I closed my eyes the second the ball left Larsen's pitching hand. I fully expected to hear a superb effort nipped in the last stage by the crack of ball on bat. But it never came.

The count, I think, was down to two-and-two on the last batter. Now you could slice the tension with a dull bayonet. I closed my eyes and heard the thud of ball in glove and opened them in time to see Berra make a flying leap at Larsen and encase him in a choking bear-hug. The Yankees mobbed their ace.

Now the Phillies' Jim Bunning has come up with the National League record, the first perfect game in the circuit's history.

And she fest has turned his "perfection" arm into a golden flipper. A news dispatch says the perfect-game achievement should result in some $25,000 lining the Bunning exchequer.

It should be worth something. After all, Bunning was the first National League pitcher to retire the minimum 27 batters in a row in 84 years and the first to do it under modern rules. Harvey Haddix pitched twelve perfect innings against Milwaukee in 1959 but lost in the 13th, 1-0.

There has not been a perfect game pitched in regular season American League play since Charley Robertson of Chicago White Sox defeated Detroit 2-0 on April 30, 1922.

Perfection has its rewards—as Bunning will discover. The Madison Avenue boys will be after him to sponsor everything from elephant's breath pills, detergents and whatnot. He could very well reap the golden $25,000 harvest the experts estimate his effort will be worth.

Youth Chairman

Wants Change In Soccer

TORONTO (CP) — John McMahon, chairman of the youth committee of the Canadian Soccer Football Association, suggested Tuesday that Canada should have one professional soccer league with divisions similar to other countries.

"Let's scrap this team (soccer leagues) and start as though the game was being introduced to Canada for the first time," McMahon, also director of the Protestant Youth Council and secretary of the Ontario Soccer League, said in an interview.

In Ontario he would have the Eastern Canada Professional Soccer League, the National Soccer League, Ontario League and International League merge into one circuit.

Other minor Ontario leagues would form a major league which could apply for membership in the super league at the end of each season.

SETS COURSE RECORD

TORONTO (CP) — Marlene Stewart Streit, of Toronto shot a six-under-par 66 Tuesday to set a women's course record at the Rosedale Golf and Country Club Women's Invitational. Gail Harvey of Toronto finished second with a one-under-par 74.

Set Trials For Davis Cup Team

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Canadian Lawn Tennis Association has strung a schedule of opportunity for Canada's young tennis players striving to reach Davis Cup competition.

The governing body of Canadian tennis has scheduled two sets of trials—in the East and West—to choose two more players to complete Canada's fourman Davis Cup team.

Five British Columbia players and one from Alberta will battle in the Western trials June 26-28.

The top three will face three Eastern winners in July at Montreal to select the two who will join Keith Carpenter of Montreal and Francois Godbout of Waterloo, Que.

The North American zone second match against Australia to be held in Montreal July 2.

Rain Shortens Game

Trenton Trims Trudeaus

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

The slump-ridden Trudeau Motors team suffered another B. and D. softball league setback at the hands of the front-running Trenton Commercial Printers here last night, 6-5, in a game shortened by rain.

Trenton plated four runs in the sixth inning to snap a 2-2 deadlock before the game was called. The game was held up for 14 minutes in the bottom of the sixth and was finally halted for good in the top of the eighth, wiping out two more Trenton runs and four more base hits. Games must go seven innings before they enter the league records.

Trudeaus, only a shadow of the club which started the season in pennant-winning fashion were short several key players again last night. It was learned that Harold Reid has resigned as coach, following a team mixup which resulted in only eight players being ready for a game in Tweed last Sunday. John "Shaker" Baker, a part-time player with the team, has accepted the coaching chore.

Trenton, four points ahead of the other three clubs, meets Tweed Lumbasks in an 8.15 game at Bay Shore Park today. Thursday's Trudeau — Ellis Junior game has been rescheduled for next Wednesday.

July 1, since the CNRA Park is not available the rest of this week.

Printers scored two in the first last night on hits by Simmons, who played a great game at short for the winners, and Drake, a throwing error and Wanamaker's long fly.

Trudeaus tied it in the second with a walk, White's bunt single, a throwing error and a passed ball doing the damage.

In the sixth, Trenton clouted six hits to plate four runs. Hits by Simmons and Wannamaker had singles, D. Cole and Beaugrand doubles and Kennedy a triple to see the ball kept falling between the infield and outfield.

Bowie Cole pitched three-hit ball to earn his first victory, despite walking eight batters. He fanned a pair. Bob Green gave up nine hits in defeat whiffing a pair and walking only one.

Don Cole had a double and single and Gord Simmons two singles for Trenton. Will Kennedy tripled, Al Beaugrand doubled and singles went to Ron Taylor, Roger Drake and LeRoy Wannamaker.

Paul Zakos, Pug Kellar and Wally White had the Trudeau safeties.

South Hastings Little League

Carmel continued along the unbeaten path in South Hastings Little League Baseball last night, downing the Canniton Copnets by a 5-3 score.

Dalmond Richardson starred for Carmel, pitching the victory and also pacing his club at the plate. He clouted a home run and a double. Croston belted a triple to help the cause.

Bob Luffman was the losing mouldsman. Top hitters for the Comets were Mitchell and Rite.

Olympics Games Live On TV!

WASHINGTON (AP) — Representative Joseph E. Karth (Dem., Minn.) said Tuesday he now appears likely that this year's Olympic Games in Japan will be carried world-wide on live television through use of Syncom, the high - altitude communications satellite.

The U.S. state department and private enterprise, Karth said, have worked out all but a few details to permit the carrying of the games live to Europe.

Karth is chairman of a House of Representatives science and astronautics subcommittee dealing with space science and advanced research and technology.

Karth said "The Japanese, the Canadians, the British and the National Broadcasting Company (in the U.S.) have agreed to share the financial burden."

Newest Angel Proves Devil At Bat

Another Willie

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

When Hollywood made the movie Angels in the Outfield, they weren't talking about Willie Smith. All the Angels, however, are talking about him now.

The movie was a story of the heavenly kind of angels in the outfield of the Pittsburgh Pirates. But Smith, a Los Angeles Angel, has been a devil at bat.

The pitcher - turned - outfielder lashed two singles and a two-run homer Tuesday night, sparking Los Angeles to a 2-0 American League triumph over Washington Senators. The victory was the seventh straight for the Angels.

It was the second consecutive night Smith won games with his bat. His pinch-hit single the night before drove in the tie-breaking run in a 5-2 victory over the Senators.

The 25-year-old lefty was a pitcher until manager Bill Rigney decided Smith deserved a trial as a hitter. Rigney now believes there's been any one more deserving.

STARTED WITH TIGERS

Smith reached the majors last year with Detroit Tigers. He pitched in 11 games, gaining a 1-0 record and 4.50 earned run average. The Angels acquired him April 29 in a trade for Julio Navarro.

As a hurler this season, Smith has a 1-4 record in 14 relief appearances and one start but has a respectable 2.81 average.

When Smith was inserted after the lineup for his hitting, Rigney placed him in right field and made him the No. 4 hitter. Smith's performance Tuesday night rocketed his average 40 points to .310. He has two home runs and 10 runs batted in for 67 times at bat.

Elsewhere in the AL Tuesday night, Baltimore Orioles nipped New York Yankees 9-8, Chicago White Sox blanked Boston Red Sox 3-0, Minnesota Twins whipped Cleveland Indians 6-3 and Detroit trampled Kansas City Athletics 9-3 after losing 2-1.

Smith's homer in the eighth broke up a scoreless pitching duel between the Angels' Dean Chance and Bennie Daniels. Chance wound up tossing a four-hitter for his fifth victory against three defeats.

STRIKE FOR SEVEN

The Yankees appeared well on their way to an easy victory when the Orioles struck for seven runs after two were out in the eighth. Charley Lau ignited the comeback with a single and climaxed it with a run-scoring double.

Brooks Robinson and Willie Kirkland each singled home two runs in the inning. When it was all over, Baltimore was in first place, one-half game ahead of New York. Lau and Elston Howard, Mickey Mantle and Roger Maris homered for the losers.

Fred Talbot, reviewed eight hits for the White Sox. Pete Ward homered, and J. C. Martin drove in three runs with a run with a double in the sixth inning.

Harmon Killebrew smashed his 23rd homer in the Twins' triumph. Jim Kaat burled a five-hitter, losing a shutout in the ninth on Bob Chance's two-run single.

The Tigers salvaged a split of their d'ibleheader with the Athletics behind Mickey Lolich. McAuliffe and Al Kaline. McAuliffe connected for a grand slam in the eighth while Kaline batted in three run.

Rocky Colavito's two-run single in the fifth inning won the first game for Kansas City. His hit was only the second off Joe Sparma, making his first major league appearance.

Youthful Miler Has Paper Route

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Jim Ryun, youngest miler ever to crack the four-minute mile, has many problems similar to other 17-year-old boys.

One of them is money for movies, hamburgers and other things a teen-ager needs cash for. He solves his problem like thousands of other youngsters across the country.

He has a paper route.

He says it's about the only job he's found that fits in with his strenuous running schedule.

After delivering morning editions of the Wichita Eagle, Ryun heads for his high school track to run a few miles. After his afternoon delivery of the Wichita Beacon, he's back on the track for more running.

When young Ryun has to run in meets out of town—such as the recent Compton Calif., Relays where he posted a 3:59.0 mile—his father takes over the newspaper route.

Pitching—Ray Culp, Philadelphia, pitched a one-hitter and allowed only two base runners as the Phillies clobbered Chicago Cubs 9-0 in the second game of a twi-night doubleheader.

Batting — Willie Smith, Los Angeles, a pitcher converted into an outfielder, hit a two-run homer and added two singles in the Eagles' seventh straight victory 2-0 over Washington Senators.

Rain Halts Play At Wimbledon

WIMBLEDON (Reuters). — Officials of the Wimbledon tennis championships today hoped for some bright weather to help clear the backlog of matches caused by Tuesday's rain.

In all 56 matches in the first round of the women's singles were affected when rain began an hour after play started.

Last year rain forced the two week tournament into a third week.

Today officials hoped to play off the 36 matches and also to finish the second round of the men's singles play. The first round of the men's singles was played on opening day, Monday.

One of the highlights of the day could be a second round match between top seeded Australian Roy Emerson and lanky Nikola Pilic of Yugoslavia who was unseeded.

Pilic a left-hander, has beaten Emerson in the past and could trouble the Australian with his booming serve.

AUSSIES MATCHED

Another match of interest today will be between two Australians, Fred Stolle, ranked No. 3 in the tournament this year and his fellow countryman Ken Fletcher.

Stolle was runner-up last year to Chuck McKinley in Wimbledon championships.

McKinley himself, seeded second this year, was scheduled to meet an up-and-coming Brazilian left-hander, Thomas Koch.

Before the rain Tuesday the two top seeds in the women's singles played and won their matches.

Australian champion Margaret Smith, the top seed, took 38 minutes to beat Annette Van Zyl, South Africa's No. 1 player, 6-2, 6-1.

Maria Bueno of Brazil, ranked after Miss Smith, also had an easy match. She beat Carol Prosen of the United States 6-0, 6-3.

Squirt Champs Honored

Presented With Jackets

Members of Lionel Bolly's all-star squirt hockey champions were the proudest kids in town last night.

And well they might be.

They won the "knife-and-fork" championship at a delicious turkey banquet served at the Recreation Commission Centre.

Then they were presented with handsome white-trimmed crested red jackets and in turn presented Coach Bolly and Manager Ed. Adamson with beautiful gifts.

At the head table with the Bollys, the Adamsons and Minor Hockey Association President Russ Soules and Mrs. Soules were the proud trophies emblematic of their seasonal triumphs.

These represented the grand "A" tournament championships won in Napanee and the "B" championships won at Peterborough.

It was a doubly proud evening for the youngsters.

They reaped the harvest of their own efforts in more ways than one.

They "teamed" together off the ice in a funds-raising effort selling 224 dozen chocolate bars which financed their travel to Brampton for tournament play, bought their jackets and helped pay the banquet bill.

Equally proud were the youngsters' parents who picked up their own jab for the banquet.

Coach Bolly doubled in splendid fashion as a master of ceremonies; also as a narrator for the handsome colored slides of the Belleville McFarlands' trip to Europe and the world hockey championship.

In a pre-presentation address Coach Bolly reviewed the achievements of the club, its biggest team effort, he said, came at Napanee when they won two tournament titles.

And in gentle admonishment he chided them slightly for being a trifle too confident at the Brampton tournament.

"But we are extremely proud of you," he told the youngsters. "There are not many squirt teams in Ontario, or Canada who brought home three tournament trophies."

He urged the youngsters in future as they did before to give their best individually and in team effort.

"Not too many youngsters make the National Hockey League," he said, "but if you do go part way never forget what education means to you. If you have your choice between hockey and schools, take education."

"You won't be good hockey players if you wait until it happens," Lionel said. "It takes lots of practice for you to help yourself to become a good hockey player.

Manager Ed Adamson added his tribute to the youngsters.

Captain Ricky Meagher in a neat well-delivered address paid tribute to the club's officials expressing his team-mates appreciation of their efforts.

Assistant captain John Muirhill then presented Messrs. Bolly and Adamson with handsome wall barometers.

Receiving jackets from officials were, besides Ricky and John, Grez Duffy also an assistant captain who thanked the ladies of Holy Rosary Catholic Women's League for the delicious repast and Dennis Cone, Paul Reid, Dave Taylor, Peter Ackerman, John Peasby, Cliff Janitsch, Brian Cousins, Peter Fralick, Don Lapiestra, Doug James, Herb Polnter and Bobby Foster.

Parents enjoyed a post-banquet reception at the well-appointed home of Mr. and Mrs. John Peasby at 37 Meadowvale.

Highlights were the twistings of a Duffy and the melting antics of an "Ice Cream Cone."

Minor Softball Results

Bobcats went on a scoring spree to whip the Bears 42-7 while Rangers clipped the Wings 18-10 in Tyke (West Hill Division) Minor softball league play this week.

In Peewee play last night, Rediegs downed the Phillies 16-13, Tigers took the Whitesox 22-2 and Giants and Braves played to a 12-12 deadlock.

The Colts were forced to default to the Pirates, 9-0, while the Mets and Athletics game was postponed.

Commercial Softball

Barriage, Pointers Win

Barriage Landscapers clubbed Black Diamond Cheese 14-2 and Pelrix Anne Cementmen topped Tweedsmuir Danbers 7-0 in a pair of Commercial Softball League tilts last night.

The Landscaper win lifted them back into a three-way tie for first place with City Hotel and Lightfoot.

Barriages put together a 4-hit pitching performance by Gerry Gemeraux plus a ten-hit attack of their own to top the Cheesemen. They had a big third inning, scoring nine runs.

Generaux struck out five and walked but one in shaping his victory. M. Hass, and Douglas in the third, tolled for the losers, fanning two and passing four.

Gary Wood spearheaded the Barriage attack, crashing a 3-run circuit blast and a single. Generaux hit two doubles and Jim Sopha one. Gordie Duffy, Rod Turner, Joe Harvey, Don Wood and Tom Coolen also hit safely.

Black Diamond hits went to B. Cruikshank, Doug Archer, Douglas and Clapp.

Point Anne built an early 7-2 lead and held on in the late innings to get the victory over Ter-Hass.

Jim Hunter pitched the victory, only relief help from Vern Whalen in the seventh. Hunter gave up six hits, fanning one and walking one.

Ron Pointer gave up 11 hits in a losing cause, striking out none and issuing just one walk.

Tom MacDonald, Eric Maher and Vern Whalen collected two hits apiece for the Cementmen. Others went to Rick Rosebush, Bob Lloyd, Denny Mosher, Jim Hunter and Harry Powell.

Bob Duggan slammed a home run and a single for the Danbers. Westfall tripled and single went to A. Ruttan, R. Pointer and Wrickett.

Whalen came in with two out and two on in the bottom of the seventh. He walked one to fill the bases before getting the last out on a fly ball.

4-5 Betting Choice
Santa Claus Favorite

LONDON (AP) — Santa Claus, the hot favorite to win Saturday's Irish Derby at the Curragh Track, was made a 4-to-5 betting choice Tuesday at a call-over by London bookmakers.

Meanwhile, two American-owned horses were withdrawn. They were Transpose and Baldric II, winner of the one-mile Two Thousand Guineas.

Baldric II ran poorly in the 1½-mile Epsom Derby, won by Santa Claus, and it was decided he would have little chance in the Irish classic, over the same distance.

Several other owners of colts still officially entered were reported ready to throw in the sponge and it seemed likely the starting field would number around 15.

Odds quoted at the call-over included 8-to-1 against Dilettante II, 10-to-1 Lionhearted; 18-to-1 Anselmo and King Paddy; 18-to-1 Neptunus; 20-to-1 Crele; 25-to-1 All Saved; 40-to-1 Devastation; and 66-to-1 Master Buck and Red Vagabond.

The bookmakers didn't bother to quote prices on 13 other horses still entered but in most cases unlikely to face the starting tape.

JOINS COMMISSION

OTTAWA (CP)—Thomas B. Ward, 57, an official of the Canadian Labor Congress, has been named to the Unemployment Insurance Commission for a five-year term, Labor Minister MacEachen announced Tuesday. Mr. Ward will be the labor representative on the three-man commission and his appointment follows a government consultation with labor organizations, the minister said in a statement.

Tiger-Cats Said Team To Beat!

OTTAWA (CP) — Officials of all four clubs in the Eastern Football Conference agreed Tuesday that Hamilton Tiger-Cats are the team to beat in 1964.

Jim Trimble of Montreal Alouettes was the only coach who said he thought his club could edge the defending Grey Cup champions.

Managing director Jake Gaudaur of Ti-Cats said he expected his club to repeat its first-place finish of last season, but predicted a tighter race.

The coaches formed a special panel to discuss pro football at a benefit dinner for a boys' camp here.

UBC Gets British Coach

SOUTHAMPTON, England (CP) — Athletic coach Lionel Pugh sails today for a job at the University of British Columbia. Pugh, 42, is the third top British sports figure to seek his fortune coaching in Canada.

Geoff Dyson left here last year to become director of Canada's national coaching course at Guelph, and Herb Elliott, Olympic pole-vaulter, took over a physical education course at the University of Alberta.

The Trots

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — It seems Galle's Jet likes Western Fair Raceway. Tuesday he registered his third win in as many trips to the starting gate. Previous to coming here, the four-year-old went without a win in four outings at Greenwood and Mohawk.

Second choice in the setting, Galle's Jet captured the first race, a pace in 2:12 3-5, paying $4.90. A daily-double of $13.70 was posted when Little Johnny Gan captured the second and paid $3.20.

The featured ninth race pace for a purse of $1,000 went to Brother Bob who paid $9.80 for his win in 2:07 4-5.

An exacta of $53.70 was established in the fourth race when Mischief G won at $4.10 and Chuck Grattan came second at $7.40.

Jax Suns Split With Syracuse

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Jacksonville Suns maintained their 1½-game lead over Toronto Maple Leafs in the International League Tuesday by splitting a doubleheader with Syracuse Chiefs while the Leafs were rained out in a home game against Richmond Virginians.

In the only other action Rochester Red Wings climbed into a third place tie with Syracuse and Buffalo Bisons with a 4-3 win over Atlanta Crackers. Columbus Jets and the Bisons were rained out in Buffalo.

Jacksonville came out on the short end of a 3-2 verdict in the opener, but wasted no time in the nightcap as they scored four times in the second inning and took an 8-1 decision. Harry Fanok won his second game of the season after relieving Dick Lemay in the second inning.

Southpaw Doug Gallager got credit for the Syracuse victory although he was replaced in the fifth inning of the seven-inning opener.

Mike McCormick won his fourth game in seven decisions for Rochester in a game that was halted by rain in the seventh inning. Steve Demeter and Lou Jackson belted home runs for the Red Wings.

Toronto lot relief star Chi Chi Olivo to Milwaukee Braves of the National League earlier in the day.

The Braves purchased the contract of the veteran right-hander with a 9-0 record for the season, and assigned pitcher Jack Smith to the Leafs' Smith has a 3-3 record for the Braves in 22 games this year with a 3.77 earned run average.

THE Arnold Palmer METHOD
Four-Time Winner of The Masters

SAND TEXTURE AFFECTS TECHNIQUE

All too often, golfers hit shots from wet or hard sand in the same way they escape from those soft and filled with powder. The results are often disastrous.

First, it should be obvious that your clubhead will not cut as deeply into wet, hard or shallow sand — with mud just below the surface — as it will into soft, silty sand.

You must make the texture of the sand and lies your shot accordingly.

When the sand is soft, try to penetrate it with your clubhead about two inches behind the ball. When the sand is firm, wet, or shallow, you should enter it closer to the ball, say about one to 1-1/2 inches behind the ball.

Since the firm sand will slow your club considerably, it is also very important not to quit on the shot. Give it a firm, full follow-through.

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) Students at Sir Winston Churchill Secondary School have upheld Sir Winston to ask his support in their campaign to keep his name when the school moves into new premises in 1965. The school was named after him with his permission given in 1955. The school board says no other building can bear the authorized name under the circumstances.

Ex-Champ Prisoner In Cuba!

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Former world welterweight boxing champion Kid Gavilan is reported a prisoner in Cuba.

Exiles said Tuesday Gavilan was arrested three months ago while preacing in Marianao, a Havana suburb. They said that after refusing from the ring he became active in the Jehovah's Witnesses.

Francisco Valle, head of the Teachers Anti-Communist Front, an anti-Castro organization, quoted Cuban underground sources as saying Gavilan is serving a five-year term in Havana's La Cabana Prison on charges of conspiring against the regime.

Rev. Germinal Rivas, of the Anti-Communist Christian Movement, also said he was informed Gavilan is in prison.

While runner up Arnold Palmer, $49,651, and fourth place Tony Lema, $40,981, passed up practice rounds Tuesday over the 6,831-yard, par 71 municipal layout Nicklaus measured every inch of it.

'Just a Second'

Tyke Pitcher Has No-Hitter

R. Guest pitched a five-inning no-hitter as DeMille Construction whitewashed the Yankees 22-0 in a Tyke division minor baseball game at the Alemite Field last night.

Rain halted that game after five innings and also washed out a Feewes encounter being played at Park Dale. In that tilt, IBEW 115 was leading Gary Sine's Shell Service 8-4 after three and one half innings. Sine's Shell was formerly Rollins Construction. The game will be replayed.

Guest struck out 12 in his five-inning no-hit gem. R. Bell was his battery-mate.

D. Lang pitched for Yankees and allowed only seven hits despite the 22 runs scored against him. L. Burnette was his receiver.

R. Bell and M. Bell rapped two hits each to spark the DeMille hitters. Wright, Forster and O'Neill got the other safeties.

The Tracks

TORONTO (CP) — Court Royal, the unofficial queen of the fillies and mares in Canada, came back Tuesday at Woodbine with a vengeance, after losing her first race of the season five days ago, winning the featured seventh race in Handy Fashion.

Racing six and one-half furlongs, and with Jim Fitzsimmons up, Court Royal, owned by J. E. Fryvels Seagram, zipped right to the front and was there to stay. She returned $5.00, $2.40 and $2.20 as the odds-on choice and completed the distance in 1:16 1-5.

Last race was Court Royal started 15 times and was out of the money on just two occasions.

The daily-double of Acanthus, winner of the first and New Flight, a longshot winner of the second, paid $138.20.

The quinella of Lyphard Tit and Bay Phantom in the fifth produced a $47.30 return.

Plays 126 Holes In 613 Strokes

DAYTON, Ohio (AP)—Bill Blankenship played golf Monday at the Walnut Grove course and took 613 strokes. He played 126 holes—seven rounds—a feat he made a good boast he made to friends.

Blankenship, 51, a two-time resident of the Mayo Clinic at Rochester, Minn., for a nervous condition, arrived at Walnut Grove at 4:35 a.m. after four hours' sleep. He left the course 15 hours, 32 minutes later after the seven 18-hole rounds without stopping.

His scores were 97, 94, 94, 84, 93, 95 and 96 for a total of 613. He had 37 pars and two birdies.

Before darkness set in, Blankenship had walked 30½ miles. He used just three balls, losing two of them.

"I knew golf so much that one day I said 'I would like to take the longest day of the year and play without stopping,'" Blankenship explained after his effort. "I had to keep that boast to show 'em I could do it."

Cross-Canada Survey

Most Lucrative Revenue Source Liquor Prices Are up All Over

By CARL MOLLINS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The price of spirituous beverages is up this year in most parts of Canada.

A Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press shows distillery prices have nudged upward in a majority of provinces, involving mostly rye whisky and gin.

Some provinces have seized the opportunity to enrich the public coffers at the same time.

Ontario has taken the biggest bite, jumping prices across the board by 20 to 30 cents, of which distillers of some brands of rye and gin account for five cents.

British Columbia alone among the provinces has not adjusted its price list significantly in the last year.

Even the prices of imported liquor, boosted by a federal austerity surcharge in June, 1962, have failed in most cases to drop back to pre-austerity levels although the surcharge was withdrawn more than a year ago.

The price of one brand of Scotch whisky (Black and White) averaged $5.78 a bottle across the country before the 1962 surcharge, $6.16 while the special import tax was on, and $6.01 after its removal in 1963. Only in Quebec and Prince Edward Island has the government resumed its pre-austerity prices.

As a result of distillery increases this year, rounded off in some cases with a further markup by government liquor commissions, the cross-country average for a bottle of one brand of Canadian whisky (Seagram's V.O.) is $4.67 compared with $5.51 at the beginning of 1963.

The present price of this rye whisky in the provinces, with prices 18 months ago in brackets: Newfoundland $5.75 ($5.50), Prince Edward Island $5.75 ($5.50), Nova Scotia $5 ($5.75), New Brunswick $6 ($5.95), Quebec $5.50 ($5.40), Ontario 5.20 ($4.90), Manitoba $5.50 ($5.31), Saskatchewan $5.90 ($5.85), Alberta $5.85 ($5.75), British Columbia $5.20 ($5.20).

The Ontario government liquor commission raised prices effective July 30 cents on Canadian whiskies and gins, 20 cents for most brands of rum and other spirits, and increased imported

Artists Angry: 'Raw Deal' Charge Hurled Against Radio-TV Industry

By DAVE PIKE

TORONTO (CP)—The Association of Canadian Television and Radio Artists feels English-language performers in the creative arts are getting a raw deal from both public and private broadcasting, especially in television.

Accordingly, ACTRA has launched a drive aimed at having the networks and private stations provide more jobs through increased Canadian productions.

The drive follows a shakeup earlier this year of ACTRA's executive in favor of a reform-minded administration. The ne w s ta was elected following internal strife touched off by TV interviewer Percy Saltzman's charges of mismanagement.

Saltzman, now ACTRA vice-president, directed his charges at Marcel Francq and Dennis Sweeting. Actor-director Sweeting president for six years, failed to win re-election to the board of directors. Francq, $15,000- a - year general secretary, was suspended with full pay pending the outcome of a committee inquiry headed by Professor Bora Laskin of the University of Toronto law school.

The committee's report is expected by the end of June and indications are that it won't sweep anything under the carpet.

FORMED OF LOCALS

ACTRA was formed a year and a half ago from a loose federation of autonomous locals.

ACTRA president Henry Comor, a Toronto actor - writer who says he held a neutral position during the strife, pulls no punches in taking the broadcasters to task.

"The CBC isn't interested in improving the standards and quality of performances," he says.

There is a philosophy around the CBC among the higher echelon that Canadians are only second-rate performers and is do anything decent in entertainment it must go elsewhere. And this philosophy is accepted by the general public."

He says not only ACTRA members, but all those involved in the creative arts in Canada "face a wall of indifference to things Canadian."

As for the private stations, and this includes CTV, the independent television network, "they are rooking the Canadian public left, right and centre and they're selling the Canadian performers down the river."

MONEY NOT ENOUGH

What ACTRA wants, he says, is not just more money for its 2,800 members, but a climate fostering English-language culture, and this means variety as well as heavy drama.

In a recent speech, Comor said the best English-language writers, directors, technicians and performers leave Canada because of lack of appreciation and support at home.

The cry that Canadian writers and performers are no good was rarely or never heard in French Canada because the French-Canadians had a pride in their culture and their creative artists.

To achieve its aims, ACTRA plans to:

1. Present a brief to the royal commission on biliqual-ism and bicultural-ism;
2. Present a brief to the Board of Broadcast Governors and to the recently appointed Fowler committee on broadcasting;
3. Attempt to "acquire for ourselves a lobby in Ottawa."

ACTRA also is joining with the Association of Motion Picture Producers and Laboratory Directors Guild of Canada and other interested groups in seeking government assistance to enable to develop a feature-length and television film industry in Canada.

WANTS PARITY

Among other things, such as the controversial conversion of radio station CJBC in Toronto to French - language programming, the brief to the royal commission will deal with the union's claim that the 1,000 members of the Quebec Union des Artistes receive two-thirds of the money the CBC spends on performing talent.

Comor claims that about $10,-000 000 of the nearly $15,000,000 spent by the CBC on talent last year went to performers and writers. ACTRA members, he says, got $1,500,000 and members of the Quebec union $7,-000,000. The division of the remaining $5,000,000, which went to the musicians' union, was proportionately the same.

ACTRA don't want to take anything away from the French-Canadians, Comor says, adding that he realizes the CBC "has to do a great deal more local production in Quebec than here because it has no good source, or so it claims, of filmed shows."

"We just feel that we should have parity with them." In other words, ACTRA wants another $4,000,000 from the CBC without the corporation reducing the French-Canadian share.

The CBC, which is loath to release figures, found it necessary to issue a statement which said in part: "Of the over-all CBC talent expenditure last year, 60.13 per cent, or three-fifths, was spent by the corporation's English service and 39.88 per cent, or two-fifths, was spent by the CBC French service." TBM followed a breakdown of payments to performers, writers and musicians, which averaged about 55 per cent in favor of the English service.

"I contend these (CBC) figures are just as cooked up as the CBC's Canadian content figures, patiently hooked up to give the misleading impression that my figures are wrong," says Comor.

The CBC statement said its payments do not distinguish between members and non-members of unions.

ROCKING THE BOAT

Some people, such as TV interviewer Warner Troyer, a regular on CBC-TV's loquity series, feel ACTRA shouldn't be stirring up a controversy over the figures because of the touchy French - Canadian involvement. But, says Comor, "that's like telling the American Negro not to press for civil rights reform because to do so might upset the harmony of the country."

In its brief to the BBG and the Fowler committee, ACTRA will press for stricter interpretation of the Canadian content regulations, which it claims have been progressively watered down, particularly in favor of private broadcasters.

Comor claims the CBC's Canadian content, especially in prime evening viewing hours averages no more than 35 or 40 per cent. But "compared to CTV, it's like St. George slaying the dragon."

The brief will list on one side the promises made by private TV stations in obtaining their licences and their programming and on the other side just what they have done and how it has measured up to Canadian content.

Speaking of the union itself, Comor says: "There was a feeling all across the country (among members) that we went wrong, and now it's time to put it right. ACTRA is not as flourishing financially as it might be (inquiry and legal costs are consuming goodly sums), but there is mounting interest among the members to become involved in what we're doing."

Three Major TV Networks Go All Out on Politics

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — There'll be a hot time in the United States as the three major television networks buckle down to covering politics during the next five months.

All three regard a presidential election year as a time for furious competition in getting on camera first with a news item and in nailing bigwigs for interviews.

It is a time, too, when television experiments with electoral developments. This year's little marvel is expected to be a lightweight TV camera which doesn't need a cord to an electrical outlet. It can go anywhere a cameraman can walk.

Each network is sending huge staffs and tons of equipment to the Republican convention in July and to the Democratic convention in August. Each plans to devote many hours of prime evening time to special programs, including politically-oriented programs for children and for women.

The broadcasters' special headache will be keeping a careful balance in time and TV exposure among the candidates and between the major parties.

Under the Federal Communications Act the networks, which are usually exceedingly careful about what is said on the air, are prohibited from censoring the statements of any candidate. Networks or stations may, however, refuse to permit non-candidates from making statements believed to be libellous or defamatory.

WARDROBE INEXPENSIVE

For her role in the upcoming film, The 7th Dawn, actress Capucine's wardrobe cost a total of $40 for simple, native costumes.

Topless Suits Get Variety Of Opinions

LONDON (Reuters) — The current fashion fad — topless dresses — Monday provided a study of international attitudes.

The British were divided over the matter, the Russians saw it as an example of American decadence and the Lebanese sternly threatened arrest for bare-bosomed bellas.

A London store chain which introduced the topless "shock frocks" here had to order more to meet the demands of customers.

But a British group of entertainment establishments and restaurants announced Monday women wearing topless dresses would not be allowed into their ballrooms.

A Russian magazine, in an article entitled Back to Barbarism, Monday labelled the American topless bikinis as another example of decadent capitalism.

"The dissolution of the society of money-bags goes on," the Russian weekly Nedelya said.

RAPS WAY OF LIFE

It added that the American way of life "favors everything which enables one to flout morality and the interests of society for the sake of one's own ego."

In Lebanon Monday, the commissioner of the Beirut vice-squad said any bare-bosomed woman seen at a beach or swimming pool would be promptly arrested and held in custody until charged.

A spokesman for the Savoy, one of London's top hotels, said anyone wearing a topless dress would be asked very politely to leave."

Miss Taylor, editor of the men's fashion magazine Tailor and Cutter, said he thought the topless dress was a good idea "up to the age of 21."

"It depends entirely on the woman's," he said. "Most of course it depends on how wild the dances are. . . . It could cause a chap's carnation to be crushed."

Pisces (Feb. 19 - Mar. 20): Examine various possibilities. Fine for speculation. Get off beaten track. Take a chance on your own talents. Strength on your side. But faith is required.

If today is your birthday . . . there is serious side of your makeup which only those closest to you can perceive.

General Tendencies: Day when people seek "short cuts." Plan is announced--which appears utopian. But closer examination could reveal "holes".

SEEK HOSPITAL HELP

TORONTO (CP) — Participation by hospitals in community anti - smoking campaigns is urged by the Ontario Hospital Association in the current issue of its quarterly magazine. An editorial in Hospital Highlights says smoking is detrimental to health and many hospitals have discouraged smoking by refusing to sell cigarettes on the premises and by enforcing no smoking rules for visitors.

Dearie, Do You Remember When?

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Forget how.

There's always time to worry about it later.

Let's take another walk down memory lane, a sentimental stroll back through the time that was—years of glory and dream that passed our way but once.

Remember when—

A girl who wore mascara at a dance usually was planning to leave town anyway.

Anybody who claimed he had tasted both champagne and caviar was regarded as a sophisticate—or suspected of being a braggart.

Small girls carried their coins knotted in the end of a handkerchief.

Every ambitious man's goal was to found a small business of his own—and then make it grow bigger.

WAS REALLY INFORMAL

An informal dinner was one at which you could remove your false teeth and gum a juicy steak bone without losing social standing.

Men worked so hard they worried more about their feet than women do now. They took off their shoes at every opportunity.

A big spender was a guy who bought 10 - cent cigars on paydays instead of the usual six-for-a-quarter brand.

a sport was a fellow who could light a kitchen match with his thumbnail instead of striking it on the seat of his pants.

A well-to-do family in a small town had one dog; a poor family had two; a skilless family might have up to half a dozen.

A banker would have thought you were out of your head if you asked for a personal loan in order to go on a vacation trip. People borrowed money only to finance a home mortgage or to keep a farm or business going.

The thing that most people feared most was winding up in the poorhouse in their old age.

ULCERS FOR THE RICH

Only the rich could afford ulcers. Common folk merely had a bad stomach, which they doctored usually with patent medicines prescribed by the local druggist.

The country had more barns than garages.

The best known form of automation was the penny gum machine.

No comedian was really funny unless he wore baggy pants, a comic hat, a big checked coat, and told dialect stories in an Irish or German accent.

Parents thought that a schoolteacher who spared the rod spoiled the child.

Instead of watching television, most wives spent their evenings quietly darning the socks of their menfolks.

Those were the days! Remember?

HEADS BRANCH

OTTAWA (CP)—Mrs. Peter L. Robinson of Toronto has been appointed superintendent - in - chief of the women's branch of the St. John Ambulance Brigade, St. John national headquarters announced Tuesday. She succeeds the late Margaret MacLaren who held the post from 1946 until her death last fall.

Cross-Canada Survey

Farmers Start Weather Watch

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The annual weather watch has started on farms across Canada. With most of their seeding done, farmers are scanning the skies, checking the forecasts and watching their land.

"About the only thing it needs now is some rain to keep it growing," said farmer Henry Abbott, surveying 600 acres of wheat in the Regina area.

"All it personally need now is a fair, warm June and July with some humidity," said a farmer near Quebec City.

A Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press shows farmers generally happy about prospects for their crops.

A late, heavy snowfall left Newfoundland "a hit on the wet side" as planting began.

But in Prince Edward Island, grain seeding was "a little bit ahead" of time.

"It looks pretty good," said Reid - Sangster, P.E.I. marketing director. "The weather has been cold but some, hot sun should really make things jump."

This hay crop looks excellent and pastures are real good," said Morris G. Casely, a Kensington, P.E.I. farmer.

Potato acreage is about the same as last year. Grass and clover appear to be coming along well and strawberry patches got a good start.

PROSPECTS BETTER

In western Nova Scotia most farmers had their crops in the ground before the end of June—peas, potatoes, grains.

"Hay and pastures look excellent," said a government farm official. "There is a tremendously heavy bloom on the pears. The apple bloom looks good and at this stage indicates a crop equal to last year."

Seeding in eastern Nova Scotia was a bit later. Cool weather delayed grass growth, keeping cattle in the barns. But in general the province has had a good spring and prospects are better than normal.

In New Brunswick seeding began early as farmers took advantage of dry weather.

Some grain was sown in April and garden crops have been put in since then," said Black River. "Grass is growing well and hay prospects are good at present."

An early estimate was that potato acreage would be down 11 per cent from last year's 53,000 but, with a favorable planting season and slightly higher potato prices, the reduction could be less.

DEMAND FOR SEEDS

By late May nearly all the cereal grain seeds in western Quebec had taken and two-thirds of the seeding was finished around Quebec City. To the northeast it was just beginning.

"We've had a rush for the seeds," said Nazaire Perron, farm management expert with the Quebec agriculture department. "We're hoping that with the first seeding done early, the result will be good and heavy crops and a volume higher than in 1963."

In Ontario seeding conditions were generally excellent and there was good moisture reserve in the soil but several good rainfalls will be needed. Early planting and frost may result in corn not as tall as usual but it will be better seed corn than normal.

In Manitoba's heavy-soil area in the Red River Valley, farmer David Dunn of Dugald, 12 miles east of Winnipeg, summed it up in two words: "It's marvellous." Last year some valley farms were seeded three times and drowned out. This year the Dunn farm is being worked "like a garden."

H. A. Craig, director of statistics for the Manitoba agriculture department, said seeding was good and the moisture level appeared adequate for early-season growing. Only one or two areas suggested they could use more rain, but things could go "haywire" if conditions turned bad.

Winds were worrying some farmers in Saskatchewan where prospects for a good crop appeared favorable. The wind was drying out the surface and rain would be needed to maintain good early - season conditions. The grasshopper forecast was for a population less than 50 per cent of what it was last year.

Farm officials in Alberta were optimistic, especially over the outlook in southern and eastern parts of the province. "Surface soil moisture is good to better," said R. E. English, agriculture department statistician. "We need a little above-average rainfall in June throughout the province to assure good crops."

Near Dawson Creek in northern British Columbia, farmer Hunter Martin said spring planting went well. "Some early wheat is rising through the ground and moisture conditions are excellent."

In much of B.C., cool, wet spring weather delayed seeding. In the Peace River grain-growing area planting was held up by snow.

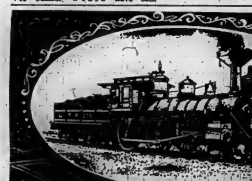
Early potatoes are breaking through the soil on southern Vancouver Island while rain-soaked Kootenay farms were late getting spuds into the ground.

Heavy tree fruit crops are forecast, especially apricots, cherries and peaches. Prune, pear and apple crops are also expected to be good although the Okanagan Valley apple crop may suffer from spring frosts, the "one in a lifetime" trip.

Freedom of the Press

How precisely is secured by that familiar phrase, "freedom of the press"?

Essentially it is not a special privilege reserved for newspaper publishers. It is rather a phase of a much larger freedom — the freedom of all to speak their minds openly and without fear. The press obtains its right which should not belong to every citizen by a democratic law. freedom of the press is an important part of this larger freedom because modern conditions, by press is the principal agency by which the ordinary man receives the information he needs to judge the actions of his rulers and make up his mind on public affairs. Without newspapers, or with only gagged and blindfolded ones, he is in the dark, and helpless. An intimidated press is therefore one of the essential bulwarks of a democratic nation.



In any great law needed, it is supplied by the record of the totalitarian dictatorships which have darkened the twentieth century. Rigid control of all sources of public information, and especially of newspapers, was the cornerstone on which all those regimes — Nazi, Fascist and Communist alike — were founded. Without it, they could hardly have lasted for more than a few months. With it they could keep their peoples in blindness and drive them on any course they chose. The calamities of our age, its fear and insecurity, stem in no small measure from the simple fact that at critical periods great sections of the earth's population have been prevented by their rulers from learning the real news of the world.

Nor have peoples should provide a warning against any attempt, by governments or by private interests, to restrict the essential freedom of the press. A free people must stand on guard not only against direct censorship but also against more insidious encroachments. Nominal freedom is not enough. The only truly free press is one which can record the news faithfully and comment on it frankly without fear of direct or indirect punishment. Neither the press nor the public is safe with anything less than this.

Liberty, of course, involves obligations. That of a free newspaper is to be truly free. It must be thorough, accurate and unbiased in its reporting, discrete and thoughtful in its editorials, and resistant to all outside pressure. It must be both cautious and bold—cautious until it knows all the facts, bold when it is sure of its ground. It must, above all, be inspired by devotion to the public welfare as its staff understand it.

Such a newspaper is worthy of the privileges which the free peoples of the world have traditionally granted to their press. Such a newspaper is also the best guardian of the liberties of the people.

REVIEW CANADA-U.S. DEFENCE PLANS

Van Doos Booed By Separatists During Parade

St. Jean Baptiste Day Is Marked at Montreal

By RUSSELL PEDEN

MONTREAL (CP)—Quebec's famed Royal 22e Regiment was the target of a placard-waving demonstration by Quebec separatists Wednesday night at the giant torchlight parade highlighting St. Jean Baptiste Day celebrations.

About 15 or 20 chanting demonstrators opposite the reviewing stand on downtown Sherbrooke Street booed and waved separatist placards as the detachment and Royal 22nd band marched by.

Montreal police moved in swiftly to break up the knot of demonstrators and seize the signs which carried such slogans as "Quebec Libre," "Pas de Windsor a Quebec" (no Windsor in Quebec, and "Canada Monarchie—Quebec Republic."

Two men and a girl were detained when they resisted police and refused to surrender their placards.

Governor General Vanier, seated in the reviewing stand beside Paul-Emile Cardinal Leger, Roman Catholic Archbishop of Montreal, stood as the Royal 22nd detachment passed.

START DELAYED

The torchlight parade in honor of French Canada's patron saint was not disrupted, although its start was delayed for about 30 minutes when about three dozen separatists insisted on taking part.

Organizers gave them permission to do so after they promised to be "peaceful" and carry nothing but Quebec flags.

When this group reached the reviewing stand, some of them lowered their fleur-de-lis banners to review position. But one separatist ran back and seized them, urging them to raise the flags. All the flags were carried past the official Anson-General.

Some of the flag carriers shouted "Quebec Libre" in cadence with the knot of separatists opposite the reviewing stand.

Leaders of the separatist movement include Marcel Chaput, former president of Le Parti Republicain du Quebec, former Montreal alderman and Richard Bixier, who served four months of a six-months'sentence for a part in terrorist bombings a year ago.

Candidates Have Night In Ottawa

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP) — The six candidates for the leadership of the Ontario Liberal party—five official and one undeclared—took their campaign into a steamy downtown auditorium Wednesday night and presented themselves to about 250 Ottawans, the biggest crowd since the contenders went on circuit.

"This is the best organized and largest rally we have had yet," declared Charles Templeton, a former evangelist and newspaper executive, as he and the five others presented their case in 12-minute speeches.

The temperature in the school auditorium soared to a stifling height, and perspiration beaded the heads of the 28 platform guests who bathed under floodlights. The audience, some with fans, sat for 2½ hours, listening quietly to each presentation and trying to keep their eyes off a big, mist-covered pitcher of water that sat on a stage table.

Into the steamy heat prances five bachelors, with the letters N-I-X-O-N on their thick brown sweaters. Candidate Robert Nixon, MPP for Bruce, smiled as the five shouted and jumped.

"Thunder, thunder, thunder-tion: we are Nixon's delegation," they said. And "when we fight, with determination, we create a great sensation." Five Nixon placards were hoisted in the audience, and a banner spanned across the balcony. Nine other placards were available at the door for Nixon fans.

"It's the first time this has happened," Mr. Nixon said. "Interesting."

The candidates, touring Ontario in their appeal for support, were each given two-minute introductions, and then made their cases. This followed a warm-up singsong that was mercifully stopped after two numbers.

In this hub of federalism,

Mayors Discuss Jobless

SUDBURY (CP) — The association of Ontario Mayors and Reeves Wednesday reaffirmed its belief that municipalities should find part-time work at prevailing rates of pay for unemployed persons to ease welfare costs.

In a statement to the Canadian Welfare Council, the association said unemployed persons should be found jobs in their own or allied fields to enable them to maintain themselves and their families until full-time employment is available.

Reeve True Davidson of East York, chairman of the association's welfare committee, told delegates at the final session of a two-day conference the easing of the burden of welfare costs and the encouragement of independence should be the aim of the association.

Also during the final session, Controller Allan Lamport of Toronto caused an uproar in an unsuccessful bid to gain support for a motion calling for the Red Ensign as the official flag of Ontario.

A statement to the welfare council said jobs for the unemployed "should not be of the punitive or make-work variety, but should increase community services or amenities."

OPPOSITION

"On the other hand, they should not be full-time jobs which would have to be done in any case, but they could be used as a pretext to replace full-time permanent employees."

It is time to talk the Canadian Welfare Council for objecting to an unemployed person's being put to take a job not of his choosing, even if it was within his physical and mental capacity, training or experience.

Reeve Davidson told some of the members of a municipal welfare program might be:

—Re - establishment of the principle that a man should earn his bread.

—Re - establishment of the principle that a man is responsible for his family.

—Re - establishment of the principle that a man should have a responsibility to their parents as well as parents to their children.

—Re - examination of sentimental myths such as: the family should be kept together even if the family is bad; children should be protected from public opinion which might be the best deterrent to misconduct, and that anyone has a "right" to a living, to an education, or anything else without earning it.

Welfare Minister Louis Cecile suggested the formation of a welfare administration and pro-

Fear Grows Civil Rights Workers In Mississippi Have Been Slain

PHILADELPHIA, Miss. (AP) — Fear mounted today among searchers that three civil rights workers—two white men and a Negro missing in this east-central Mississippi area may not be found alive.

"It is hard to believe that three people could be just swallowed up without somebody hearing or seeing something," said Grady Gilmore, public relations director of the Mississippi highway patrol.

The trio was last seen Sunday night.

The charred bulk of the station wagon they used was found by agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation in a swampy area near a lonely road late Tuesday.

FBI and highway patrol technicians combed the burned-out station wagon hoping to find a clue to their baffling disappearance.

Meanwhile, Allen Dulles, sent to Mississippi to gather information for the White House on the missing workers, conferred at Jackson with Governor Paul B. Johnson.

Dulles, former director of the Central Intelligence Agency, said he did not plan to come here. He told reporters that President Johnson asked him to "come down here and talk with Governor Johnson and get first hand his view of the problems here on law enforcement."

The governor praised Dulles, saying: "Men like him are here for the purpose of doing good. He has a carte blanche anywhere in Mississippi."

The civil rights workers—Michael Schwerner, 24, and Andy Goodman, 20, both of New York, and James Chaney, a 22-year-old Negro from nearby Meridean—were last seen Sunday night when Chaney paid a $20 fine for speeding.

They were in the Philadelphia area to check into the burning of a Negro church used for civil rights rallies.

FBI agents joined in the search for the trio Tuesday.

The highway patrol said more than 200 persons were questioned about the missing men

Promised Power Of Veto

By RONALD LEBEL

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson revealed in the Commons Wednesday that he and some aides repeatedly asked the CBC last winter to cut out some portions of a "can did camera" film about himself.

He said he had every right to see the film before it was to be telecast and to demand deletions and revisions.

CBC Producer Ross McLean had promised him a veto power over the film. This would protect his privacy and also ensure good taste.

The prime minister emphatically denied ever asking the publicly-owned broadcasting system either to produce the one-hour $35,000 documentary or to scrap it altogether. He also denied lying to the Commons about the film.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said the prime minister's own admissions showed clearly that the government and Liberal party officials had subjected the CBC to censorship and political interference over a period of several months.

He charged that CBC executive finally decided May 6 to ditch the film after realizing the government was displeased with it. The CBC blamed the cancellation on poor technical standards but this was a smoke screen to hide political pressure.

HAVE A RIGHT

"Every Canadian people have the right to see this film as it was originally produced, before so much of it found its way into the cutting room floor," Mr. Diefenbaker said.

"What has taken place here is a serious act of censorship."

The two party leaders, bitter rivals in the Commons since 1956, clashed head-on during Wednesday's two - hour debate on a money supply bill.

The prime minister became embroiled in a wild scene in

Hellyer States Tactical Fighter May Be Acquired

Likely to Keep Bomarcs For Several Years Yet

By HAROLD MORRISON

WASHINGTON (CP. — Defence Minister Paul Hellyer anticipates that Canada's two Bomarc missile squadrons will be kept in operation for the next several years and he says he may make a decision by next fall on the purchase of a United States tactical fighter which would be produced under contract in Canada.

The Canadian minister, whose plan to unify the Canadian military forces has drawn the close attention of the Pentagon, will be a key figure in the first sweeping review of Canada-U.S. defence arrangements in four years opening today. He told reporters the talks may have some bearing on the kind of tactical fighter finally selected for the RCAF.

The 51-year-old Canadian delegation to the joint ministerial defence talks, headed by External Affairs Minister Paul Martin, will delve into the possible future of continental nuclear weaponry, the impact on Canada's military unification on joint defence planning and the prospects and threats of spreading war in Southeast Asia and the Mediterranean.

The ministers also may explore ways of easing Canadian procurement and paper work required before permission is given for flying U.S. nuclear bombers over Canadian territory.

HOPES FOR MEETING

Arriving from New York where he held talks Wednesday with Prime Minister Ismet Inonu of Turkey on the Cyprus crisis, Martin said he hopes to confer with Prime Minister George Papandreou of Greece today on the same subject. And he plans to confer with State Secretary Dean Rusk head of the American delegation, on the Southeast Asian turmoil, particularly in connection with the possible future role of the international truce commission of Canada, India and Poland.

Mrs. Martin decided to go into details of his plans or his talks.

In this group of meetings, Finance Minister Gordon, who arrived with Hellyer, Industry Minister C. M. Drury, Associate Defence Minister Lucien Cardin and other officials met in Ottawa Wednesday night, said he may want to confer with Defence Secretary Robert Dillon about joint economic problems.

He noted that after months of Arrest Two Pickets In Wild Melee

BRADFORD, Ont. (CP) — Two persons were arrested and charged with causing wilful damage Wednesday after police broke up a wild melee at a strikebound vegetable processing plant.

Fanetta Guglieume, 36, and Mario Duscio, 25, both of this town about 30 miles south of Barrie, were charged and released on bail.

They were arrested in front of the United Farms Packing-house, one of three firms struck Monday by Local 419 of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters (Ind.).

Police arrested Miss Guglieume, an immigrant who speaks no English, after pulling her away from an elderly woman to whom she was clinging in terror.

Pickets said the police used judo chops to break apart the young woman from the older woman, whom they said was her mother.

Witnesses said the young woman's head and arms were bruised and showed large welts.

LA ROAD

The outburst came when about 20 pickets, most of them women, jammed the roadway in front of a truck trying to enter the building.

When the truck, loaded with produce, kept coming, they stepped to one side and hurled stones and sprinkled oil that was handy, breaking windows of the truck's cab. The driver was unhurt.

It was the third incident of violence since the strike began on Monday August. It will be of Bradford suffered a broken leg Monday when a car knocked him down at the Federal Farms plant.

On Tuesday, Maria Rocha, 33, of Bradford, suffered a dislocated foot when run over by a truck driven by one of the two-year-old child out of the way at the Holland River Gardens plant. Mario Rocha, 4, was bruised by the same car.

Charges have also been placed in the earlier incidents.

Better to Have Smoked and Quit Than Never to Have Smoked at All

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A survey in order of decreasing stress: general medical practitioners, anesthesiologists, pathologists, dermatologists, general dental practitioners, oral surgeons, orthodontists and periodontists, general law practitioners, trial lawyers, lawyers in various specialties and patent lawyers.

In addition, he said, security analysts and security traders on the New York Stock Exchange were compared.

Persons who said they never had smoked showed significantly higher coronary heart disease rates than those who stopped smoking before their attack or before the time of the questionnaire if there was an attack, Dr. Russek reported at the annual convention of the American Medical Association.

"These findings cast doubt upon the alleged low incidence, in the genesis of coronary heart disease," he said.

The physician suggested that ability of persons to stop smoking showed an unusual capacity for adaptation to stress and perhaps explained their resistance to emotional factors in the development of heart disease.

Ald. Ross Bailey Reported New County Sheriff

Official confirmation of the appointment of Ross Bailey, currently a Belleville alderman, as sheriff of Hastings County is expected shortly.

While both county and provincial government sources have been reluctant to corroborate news of Mr. Bailey's selection for the post, it is believed the Ontario Cabinet will formally endorse the appointment in the next few days.

Mr. Bailey has been a life insurance company supervisor in Belleville and resident in Madoc and Stirling.

The office of sheriff fell vacant April 1st with the sudden death of Rowena Robson, a former MLA for East Hastings.

Mr. Bailey was believed chosen from a lengthy list of applicants. He is completing his second two-year term on city council and last year was chairman of finance.

Doctors Ask Repeal of Ban On Birth Control Devices

VANCOUVER (CP — The leaders of Canadian medicine Wednesday approved birth control devices for those who want them, and discussed whether abortion is ethical and sterilization legal.

The general council of the Canadian Medical Association also instituted study by television performers and sought to have the treatment of mental illness made just another part of medicine.

With the apparent support of its Roman Catholic members, the ruling body of the 17,000-member CMA called for the amendment of the section of the Criminal Code that forbids the sale or advertisement of birth control devices and the dissemination of birth control information.

It marked the first time the association has taken this stand. The recommendation came from the committee on maternal welfare which has several Roman Catholic members. The Roman Catholic Church opposes birth control devices.

It was not opposed during brief discussion before the council which represents every province, said committee Chairman Dr. L. J. Harris of Toronto in a press conference.

"Winds of change," commented a Roman Catholic member of the committee.

The reports of two committees mentioned sterilization and one mentioned therapeutic abortions—termination of a pregnancy in order to save the life of the mother.

The maternal welfare committee said there is considerable variation between provinces on the assurances received from the attorney-generals' departments that doctors acting in good faith will not be prosecuted for performing abortions.

There was concern whether there was sufficient legal protection for the doctors.

However, the committee rejected the idea of issuing a guide for doctors on abortions and on sterilization. Patients would have to be treated on an individual basis.

The council rejected a recommendation from the committee on cancer that would have required television performers and their guests not to smoke

Will Likely Fight U. S. Rule Cigarettes Must Carry Warning

WASHINGTON (AP. — Congress and federal court suits are the two likely obstacles to implementation of a new Federal Trade Commission rule requiring the tobacco industry to label cigarettes as health hazards.

The extent of the delay may be detailed today when representatives of the tobacco industry testify before the House of Representatives commerce committee.

Paul Dixon, chairman of the FTC, told the committee he hopes the industry will comply voluntarily, but he added:

"They can take this rule 'or nothing' and we will ask for a review. I'm satisfied this will happen."

Meanwhile, Senator B. Everett Jordan, a Democrat from tobacco-producing North Carolina, said: "I have been in touch with leaders and representatives of growers, warehousemen and manufacturers and these groups have already agreed to take the matter to the courts immediately."

Albert G. Clay, president of the Burley Auction Warehouse Association, questioned the commission's authority to enforce the ruling. He said he think the manufacturers will take steps immediately to challenge it.

Dixon estimated that if the industry goes to court, it will take four years of litigation before the rule can go into effect.

His estimate means there is little likelihood the commission's rule deadlines will be met.

The FCT, in the rule announced by Dixon Wednesday, requires that all cigarette manufacturers must label their products by Jan. 1 with a warning "that cigarette smoking is dangerous to health and may cause death from cancer and other diseases."

The commission set a July 1, 1965, deadline for this warning label to be included in all ad's rising, although it said it would postpone this deadline if the industry could convince the commission that it had changed its advertising in such a way to make the requirement unnecessary.

Farmer-Labor Conference Held to Discuss Education

Representatives of the Teachers' Federation, Ontario School Trustees and Ratepayers Association, Ontario Federation of Labor, Farmers' Union, and Federation of Agriculture met at the United Automobile Workers Education Centre at Port Elgin for the 8th Farmer Labor conference on June 20 and 21.

Mr. and Mrs. Schawger of Thomasburg, Mr. and Mrs. Williams, Stirling, represented the Farmers' Union, Mr. and Mrs. Wilfrid Forestall, Madoc, represented the Hastings County Federation of Agriculture. Mr. Forestall is secretary of the County Federation, and also chairman of Madoc public school board.

The topic of discussion this year was equality of opportunity in education in Ontario. Everyone was encouraged to express his views and opinions after the various speeches and a panel discussion had been held. Topics under discussion were: "Streaming" Education: What Is It? How far has it gone? How effective? Financing education: where does the money come from, how are we spending it, and how effective. Adult Education guidance and technology, Education, recreation and leisure time. What are the "Adult Education" needs in Ontario?

Suggestions and resolutions were drafted to be sent to the Department of Education.

There was an atmosphere of friendship and good will among all the groups represented, new friendships established, and all delegates felt they had spent an enjoyable and profitable weekend.

Health Reasons Said Cause of Resignation

Mrs. E. Panter's resignation as president of the Senior Citizens' Club was read at Tuesday afternoon meeting of the local club. Mrs. Panter, who fell and broke her hips a few weeks ago, is still in the hospital and has resigned for health reasons.

Meanwhile, the first vice-president, Mrs. Celia Rosenplot and the secretary, Mrs. Lena Phillips, will carry on the club business until an election for president is held.

The 32 members at Tuesday's meeting observed a minute's silence in memory of a recently deceased member, Mrs. Grace Crookwright.

Mrs. Phillips read aloud a report of recent club visits to the Alzheimers Senior Citizens' Club and to Upper Canada Village.

A birthday bingo was played following the short business meeting and the door prize was won by Mrs. A. Ayers.

Tugs Finally Free Ocean Going Vessels

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Tugs Wednesday finally freed three ocean - going freighters aground in the St. Lawrence Seaway since last weekend. All three foreign vessels were bound for Montreal.

The last ship freed was the 10,000-ton Stella Nova, a Norwegian grain carrier that lodged on a reef shelf Sunday off Wellesley Island east of Kingston on the American side of the St. Lawrence River. Tugs began to how was estimated at almost $250,000. More than 300 tons of her 8000-ton cargo of flour was unloaded to barges before two Montreal-based tugs dislodged her. She will undergo repairs at Montreal.

The Egyptian freighter Star of Suez was freed after a reef ledge south of Kingston in Lake Ontario where it breasts Thursday afternoon.

The Swiss motor vessel Silvaplana was pulled off the mud bottom of the St. Clair River north of Sarnia where it ran aground last Friday.

The Star of Suez was carrying 150 tons of pulpwood. Most of the cargo was transferred to a barge to effect rescue. There was only minor damage to her hull.

Two hundred tons of alfalfa pellets were removed from the Silvaplana's forward hold before it was dislodged from its mud footing. The 497-foot vessel suffered no damage.

Tshombe Flies Back to Congo After Exile

By ROBBIN MANNOC K.

LEOPOLD VILLE (AP) — Exiled Congolese leaders may soon return to Leopoldville from Leopoldville as The Congo's major political factions look for help to end rebellions wracking the country.

Moise Tshombe, former president and secessionist leader of Katanga province, ended more than a year of self-imposed exile in Spain Wednesday and flew to Brussels, en route to Leopoldville.

Tshombe, who kept the United Nations Congo force at bay for two years, said he was returning "to help the government and liberate my country from the rebellion and anarchy it now suffers." He said he was responding to "the voice of the population and the political parties, as well as the invitations of the government."

With the departure of the UN force at the end of the month and Premier Cyrille Adoula's government apparently powerless to put down the various rebellions, Tshombe is being mentioned increasingly as a possible successor to Adoula. Several members of Adoula's cabinet urged Tshombe's return.

The three main political groups in the capital have been pressing for amnesties for the exiled mulopwe (god-emperor) of South Kasai province, Albert Kalonji, and for Antoine Gizenga, leader of the 1961 pro-Communist regime in Stanleyville and political heir of the late Patrice Lumumba.

Kalonji, who lived in London since he fled from a Congo jail, returned from his apartment two days ago to be met on his way back to The Congo, Gizenga has been imprisoned on an island in the mouth of the Congo River since February, 1962.

WANT NEGOTIATIONS

Much talk is heard in Leopoldville of reconciliation. Its advocates are in touch with the rebel leaders in Kivu, North Katanga and Kwilu provinces and the National Liberation Committee, a Peking-supported faction in exile across the Congo River in Brazzaville.

The Congolese army has been unable to put the rebels down. Usually the troops run away at the approach of the rebels or join them.

Former education minister Pierre Mulele, a Peking-trained leader, controls an area half as large as Belgium in Kwilu. Forces believed to be aligned with him have reported advancing on the North Katanga town of Kongolo, 200 miles north of Albertville. They reported Albertville last week and have reported to allow 70 Europeans to leave.

Gaston Soumialiot, the Kivu rebel leader, is master of most of the western shore of Lake Tanganyika.

Tshombe is believed to still have the allegiance of powerful forces in Katanga, which is south of Kivu and where he kept order with a native army officered by white mercenaries. Tshombe's supporters say orders from him will bring these fighters out of the bush or from neighboring Portuguese Angola.

Katanga is Tshombe's ace card as he deals with The Congo's political leaders. It is by far the richest province, and Tshombe's Belgian - controlled Union Miniere copper and cobalt combine there is the cash instrument's chief source of revenue.

Ike and Monty Not Likely To Be Friends

By CARL MOLLINS

TORONTO (CP) — A veteran British warrior confessed Wednesday that he has probably suffered defeat with a self - assigned postwar mission — persuading Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery to make up and be friends again.

Maj. - Gen. Francis de Guingand, Montgomery's chief of staff during the Second World War, told a press conference that he had believed he had the two wartime leaders primed to bury the hatchet when the second was destroyed by Monty's outburst June 8.

Montgomery, field commander in the 1944 Allied invasion of Europe, said in a television program on the eve of the 20th anniversary of the Normandy landings that Eisenhower, supreme Allied commander in Europe, "never understood the Normandy campaign at all—he got the whole thing muddled."

Sir Francis, author of a new volume of his wartime reminiscences titled Generals at War, said he was "quite upset and surprised" when he read what his wartime chief had said about Eisenhower.

WORDS UNOFFICIALLY

He said he had been working as unofficial peacemaker between the two commanders and "the last time we met by 2000 or three months ago . . . he said he would be delighted to see Ike and shake hands."

But Montgomery's latest comment stems "my effort at peacemaking now is right over the window."

Montgomery was annoyed by a suggestion in Eisenhower's war memoirs that Montgomery's forces were not up to scratch in achieving objectives on schedule. The British field marshal's memoirs, he said, show that the American leader did not properly understand the British point of view.

Sir Francis said he wonders whether some new development prompted Montgomery to "say

Colossal Security Wall Is Annoying to Nikita

CP from AP-Reuters

STOCKHOLM — Soviet Premier Khrushchev is getting restless and annoyed over the colossal security wall the Swedish police have put around him.

With thousands of patrolmen bristling with sabres and pistols, and hundreds of detectives every guise from cook to charwoman, Stockholm has been like an armed camp since the Soviet leader arrived three days ago.

A Soviet source said Khrushchev is beginning to resent the massive security curtain keeping him from contact with the Swedish people.

His impatience was demonstrated during a visit to shipbuilding centre of Goteborg Wednesday.

Khrushchev gave security forces a bad moment when he lunged through a crowd to talk to a group of Russians in Goteborg to take back to Russia a refrigerator ship built in the shipyards and launched by Khrushchev's wife, Nina.

The 70-year-old Khrushchev, who sang with the ship yard workers during the tour, suddenly pushed through the crowd, brushing aside an outstretched policeman's arm, to see his countrymen.

NOT ALLOWED NEAR

No unauthorized person is allowed anywhere near Khrushchev, and even officials are sometimes turned away. Five thousand policemen and two companies of army commandos are everywhere — holding up traffic, blocking sidewalks, peering into windows, inspecting passersby, fussing through kitchens.

Expressen, Scandinavia's biggest newspaper, complained on Khrushchev's behalf:

"We are astonished at all these police, and so most Khrushchev and the United States he travelled in an open car, as he did in Paris and also in Egypt.

"He wanted to see people—see at least something. All he sees now are the backs of police uniforms and he cannot speak to anybody outside the circle of people he is supposed to chat with."

But the Swedish government is taking no chances of any harm coming to Khrushchev. Thousands of embittered refugees from behind the Iron Curtain live in Sweden.

Local Rinks Win Top Tourney Honors

The District Chairman's men's doubles bowling tournament was staged at the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club, on Wednesday afternoon. For the great few years this tourney has not been well attended but a concerted effort was made this year to put the district finals in a sound position and Ralph Tuck, the chairman for the district did a good selling job with the result that fifteen doubles rinks were on hand from Brighton, Campbellford, Trenton, Kingston and Belleville.

At this tournament a new trophy, the Corby Cup, was competed for and Mr. William Johns, sales representative in this district, was on hand to greet the visiting bowlers and also present the handsome prizes that were donated by the firm. Also Harold England, representative of Players cigarettes, presented the club with gift packets which in turn were given to the bowlers attending the tourney. These donations were much appreciated and considerably helped to swell the district funds.

Gerald "Jerry" Hyde and his partner, Wally Lavergne were winners of the Corby trophy and the accompanying prizes but were given a close call by Ab Westcott and his partner, William VanTassel. Both of these rinks are from the Belleville Club and another local rink of Gordon Vince and Roy Hall won the two - game high count. The one-game high was captured by Bert Taylor and Angus Putman from Campbellford, while another Campbellford rink of Charles Wickens and Art Larkin got the no-game high win. The greens were in excellent condition but the weather was not suited for bowling.

The district chairman, Ralph Tuck, conducted the draw in a most capable manner, while the Women's Section of the club, provided delicious refreshments during the progress of the games.

Youth Fined For Drag Racing On York Road

A 22 - year - old Shannonville youth today was fined $75 for drag - racing his automobile.

In addition, Wilson Marsack, who also loses six points from his driver's licence, was cautioned about lying under oath by Magistrate T. Y. Wills.

The warning came after Marsack pleaded guilty to his charge then testified in defence of a second man — John William Marsack — charged as the other in the drag race.

The witness claimed John William Marsack was not the other driver involved in the race on the York Road, June 5th, and the magistrate dismissed the charge.

However, he told the witness: "I may warn you Marsack that perjury is a very serious matter."

First Topless Dresses Seen In Toronto

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto's first topless dresses appeared at a downtown dress shop shortly before noon Wednesday and at least 19 had been purchased by mid-afternoon.

But the exposed bosom of a shapely model who wore one was separated from the eyes of male shoppers by a cash register. Whenever a man moved near the door of Chandler's dress shop on Bloor Street East, the model shyly stepped behind a shoulder-high cash register.

The model, wearing a wig and heavy dark glasses, was a regular sales girl at the store. Professional models had refused to display the gowns.

The creations, basic black with long skirts, had a bodice of filmy chiffon with sleeves and high neckline.

Purchasers were all young women who mostly declined to comment on just where they intended to wear the dresses, although two said they were for entertaining at home.

FLOWN IN

The store manager, who asked that his name not be used, said the dresses were flown in from Los Angeles after current stories of the topless rage in England prompted local store inquiries from regular customers.

The open - front creations, priced from $35 to $40, were also on display in the shop's windows, worn by mannequins.

Although the mannequins failed to create a sidewalk stockade, most passersby inspected them thoroughly.

"I think they're absolutely disgusting," said a pretty blonde.

"Whoever designed them ought to be hanged," another stated.

A grimly - dressed lady with an Irish accent thought they were very pretty. "Not for me, of course. I'm too old."

LONDON (Reuters) — A grocer in the Welsh village of Resolven put up, as a joke, this notice in his store window:

"Free groceries for the first lady customer who comes in in a topless dress."

When the shop was crowded with customers Wednesday, in walked the local chemist's daughter, Miss Catherine Jones, bare from the waist up and carrying a shopping basket with a list of groceries.

The grocer kept his promise.

With her basket laden, Miss Jones went off to celebrate her third birthday.

Steam Special to Anson Jct. Jam-Packed for All Trips; CN Display Draws Crowds

There is still romance in the old fashioned train ride — especially if it is behind a steam locomotive.

Just this has been proven during Railway Week celebrations here this week with the 15-car steamer special to Anson Junction and return being jam-packed for all trips.

Some kind of a record was established Wednesday afternoon as 1003 school children, their teachers and parent helpers rode the special to Anson Junction west of Stirling.

And last night an almost equal number of adults and children made the same trip on the evening special.

For a vast majority of the children it was their first ride on a train and many of them had never before seen a steam locomotive.

OFFICIALS ENTHUSED

Local CN officials are enthused over the public response to the train rides.

"The response has been tremendous"; said passenger sales manager, Ken Fleming. "Close to a third more riders and visitors to the railway exhibit are turning up than we expected", he said.

The Anson Junction train rides for school children are continuing morning and afternoon Thursday and Friday with another special on Friday evening.

The display of railway equipment at the CN station will be open until Sunday evening, while possibly the highlight of the week for many will be the special train trips on Saturday and Sunday behind steamer 6167.

Saturday there will be a photo stop trip to Peterborough and return, while Sunday the steam locomotive will pull a picnic special to Cobourg beach.

HOLD BAND CONCERT

Last night at the CN station the Hastings and Prince Edward Regimental Band staged a band concert. The band with their red tunics and white helmets were a big attraction for the large crowd viewing the Railway Week display.

Reason for the Railway Week celebrations, of course, is the removal of tracks from Pinnacle street, and tonight civic and railway officials will join in a symbolic lifting ceremony at eight o'clock.

Also tonight will be a big street dance on the Municipal street parking lot.

Adding to the interest an old time steam locomotive will be spotted on the Pinnacle street tracks, while Doug Wright of "Nipper" cartoon strip fame will be on hand at the Kiwanis information booth to autograph engine drawings.

Deaf Association Is Holding Meet in City

Four hundred members of the Ontario Association of the Deaf, will be in the city this weekend for their biennial convention.

Opening session of the convention will be held in the OSD auditorium and by Saturday 400 association members and parents of deaf children from all parts of the province will be in attendance.

The convention was last held in Belleville in 1954.

Two Committed On Charge of Escaping Jail

Two teenage youths were committed for trial today on a charge of escaping custody from Hastings County Jail.

William Laverne Smith, 17, and Donald Campoll, 16, were sent for trial after a brief preliminary hearing before Magistrate T. Y. Wills.

They have requested trial by judge.

Immediately prior to the hearing Smith was sentenced to two years in Kingston penitentiary on a series of charges involving car thefts and burglary.

Campoll already has been sentenced to a year definite and six months indeterminate on the same counts.

Moon Eclipse Seen in City By Viewers

Heavy clouds in the eastern sky blotted out last evening's eclipse of the moon but later in the evening city residents got a clear view of a slim moon crescent when there should have been a full moon.

Had the skies been clear local viewers would have found the moon completely eclipsed by the shadow of the earth as it rose in the east shortly after eight o'clock.

Totality of the lunar eclipse lasted for over an hour and a half.

After ten o'clock local viewers were able to see a crescent moon gradually emerge from the earth's shadow.

A Useful Old Age

Senators are not qualified to study the problems of the aged.

Don't jeer us. We did not say that. We are just quoting a New Brunswick Government brief to the special Senate committee on aging.

New Brunswick argues that "an investigation of this kind properly belongs to the sphere of the sociologist and the economist."

Some might think that experience in what it feels like to be old might be helpful, too, and that Senators might qualify for this reason.

New Brunswick, however, makes an important point. Security is not the fundamental need of the old, it argues; it is usefulness. By that yardstick, Senators are divorced from the mainstream of the aged and aging; they have been provided with an opportunity to make "a daily $100 plus all expenses, of course."

The sociologist, we suppose, might serve a useful function in discovering ways to give others in the senators' age bracket a like feeling of usefulness. But it strikes us if the economists do their work well, if they really provide the aged with security, the rest of the problem may solve itself.

There are a hundred and one things which society needs done and which it now experiences difficulty in getting accomplished because of lack of manpower—and womanpower.

There is no reason, for example, why retired men and women could not staff all those community organizations which now have to beg a portion of the spare time of busy men and women. They could do all the routine work of associations designed to further heart disease research, discover a cancer cure, combat muscular dystrophy, fight tuberculosis—leaving the executive bodies of these organizations to be elected from the population as a whole.

The aged, given security, could direct horticultural societies, supervise historical museums, plan communities, circulate petitions, write tourist brochures, discourage suicide, counsel the married, campaign for changes in the divorce laws, organize ratepayers' associations, direct highway safety campaigns and generally undertake that multitudinous variety of worthwhile projects which today either wither from lack of effort, or wilt from the expense of paying salaries to hired help or drain the last drop of energy from young men and women who could be spending their leisure more enjoyably.

The young men, for example, could be chasing the young women—and the young women could be going through the ancient process of deciding whether they preferred being chased or chaste.

It may be objected that such an influx of the aged into positions of influence, if not of office, in all voluntary service organizations could produce a deadening conservatism of outlook.

We rather doubt this. The conservatism of age, if not a myth, is an exaggeration. The youth who is a socialist at twenty and is supposed, according to the story, to be a conservative at forty, is probably merely a socialist who has lost his courage. He may regain it at 65, with a secure pension, if given a whole new field of work.

There is, of course, a danger that the retrived rebel will persist in fighting yesterday's battles, hating Franco, for example, instead of Verwoerd. But, if this were put to the test, we might find there were a goodly number of old, white men yearning to cut a few white throats in South Africa, and a like number of black men aching to send Papa Doc to his eternal reward in Haiti.

And, of course, there is no doubt but that we should have a normal number of crank committees—age is no barrier to narrowness.

There are some wonderful commercial possibilities. What newspaperman, for example, would not like to work on a paper which had no need to make money to pay salaries—and no money to pay libel damages and, therefore, no fear of court proceedings? Similarly, some insurance salesmen might like to try selling in an atmosphere where commissions never influenced their advice, while there may even be some used car salesmen who would enjoy telling the truth in the knowledge that the sales manager really did not want to put those junk heaps on the road anyway.

Ottawa Offbeat
Soaring Costs Pursue B & B Boys to Taxpayers' Laments

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — You'd almost think that a businessman; of all people, would surely know the value of a dollar. Especially his own.

After all, he learns it the hard way, through the often difficult and always exacting pressures of meeting a payroll.

But no, it does not always work out that way.

Take the case of Halifax businessman Frank Penny.

He worked up enough head of steam about the over-controversial Royal Commission on Bilingualism and Biculturalism to make a personal appearance of protest when it held travelling Federal roadshow made a one-night stand in the Nova Scotia capital.

With a driving sense of urgency, he strode purposefully to the front of the hall, and stood arms akimbo, looking the "B 'n B Commissioners squarely in the eye.

Theirs was a wooden waste of public money, he told them.

(The B 'n B Commissioners, including the two co-chairmen, Andre Laurendeau and A. Davidson Dunton, are all from Quebec, and have had $100 plus all expenses, of course.)

Businessman Penny charged that any Royal Commission investigation into bilingualism, in a country of 13,000,000 of Irish-speaking Canadians and only 5,000,000 French-Quebecois, was a plain case of "tail wagging the dog."

THE HALF OF IT:

Then, rebuffed by the failure of his big pitch, he protested that the "B 'n B Boys" would cost the taxpayers "more than a million, maybe a million dollars" before they are through—and then, their report, like jam, like jam, will be filed and forgotten."

Businessman Frank Penny does not know the half of it.

Finance Minister Walter Gordon has news for him—and, every other taxpayer in the land.

Government's Estimates, which list the cost of every project, including even Royal Commissions, undertaken by the Administration.

And by Mr. Gordon's own above-reproach-question figure, the "B 'n B" cause is by no means "nothing—and this comes from the official estimates — a not inconsiderable total of $3,256,000.

A shade more than the "three quarters of a million" mentioned by Mr. Gordon's own figure, but nothing to be sneezed at, when it comes to bothered businessman Penny.

And how do the Finance Department's Estimates arrive at that total?

Simple! Here are the figures from the budgets allotted by Privy Council to the Bicultural-ists:

For 1963-'64, as provided in the Supplementary Estimates: $325,000.

For 1964-'65, as provided in the Main Estimates: $1,187,600.

For 1965-'66, as provided in the First Supplementary Estimates: $794,000.

But isn't that $794,000 just part of the $1,187,600? Perhaps the first instalment?

FOR RESEARCH:

Indeed not.

"It's in addition," says the office of Clerk of the Privy Council, "that's why they call it Supplementary Estimates."

Why is it extra?

Well, that the "B 'n B" people would spend $325,000 in the first few weeks of their operation last year is understandable—especially if you see the way money is shovelled around here. Once they have their own Mint and two banks not printing plants turning out $5 bills, that's nothing.

That they then would put in for $1,187,600 in the Main Estimates, $862,600 only a few weeks ago, but budgeted last Fall, is more difficult, but not impossible to understand. Remember that Mint and those money presses.)

But that only weeks later they would calculate they required an additional $794,000, and have the Privy Council put in for it for them in the Supplementary Estimates takes considerably more understanding.

A power of understanding, if you happen to be a taxpayer footing the bill.

Well how come, after figuring they need only a mere million, they've upped the ante for two and a quarter million?

"Bigger programs," reports the Privy Council office. "Expanded research. Widened projects."

But don't tell Mr. Frank Penny. He was mad enough about the $750,000 he thought they were spending.

And he'll find out soon enough how modest was his estimate of the two and a quarter million dollar needs—and probably still going up—of the never-very-popular Bilingualists-et-Biculturalists.

Bankruptcy Is Praised

Oshawa Times

Bankruptcy is ordinarily regarded as calamity — evidence of bad judgment, bad management, or perhaps bad luck. However, suggests Professor George J. Stigler of the University of Chicago, bankruptcy at least has the virtue of curing waste and of failure. It is unfortunate, he suggests, that the discipline of bankruptcy does not apply in the realm of government.

Professor Stigler, who seems to be somewhat of a modern heretic, is concerned that there is no way of measuring the effectiveness of public economic policies and institutions. With an associate he has recently concluded a study of various government activities in the United States. He is not impressed.

One example is his finding concerning the effectiveness of state regulatory commissions in the electric power industry. The industry where government supervision has been accepted as essential to the public interest for half a century. "It is very doubtful," he says in a recent letter, "whether consumers have been saved as much by public regulation of the electrical utilities as they have had to pay directly and directly, for regulation."

Another example is the Securities and Exchange Commission long regarded as the protector of the interests of the private investigator. The SEC has issued millions of words about how it works and how the stock markets work, he comments, yet his examination showed that some ways the effects of SEC regulation on the fortunes of buyers of new stock issues has been quite insignificant.

To get back to bankruptcy: "In a great many cases of private enterprise," Professor Stigler submits, "its bankruptcy, an institution for punishing failure, is a vital step to costly failure. No. 1 bankruptcy law has ever been conceived of in the political process, and an unsuccessful policy has its life any way indefinitely. Indeed, political rewards are more closely proportioned to failure than to success. So the failure demonstrates the need for larger appropriations and more power. Another great waste of this tenacity in failure are the belief that government must be able to solve any social problem, and the absence of objective measures of failure and success."

A point he does not mention is that not all bankruptcies are honest failures. In Canada, at least, the bankruptcy law has often been misused.

Tough Words For Spellers

Watertown Times

A twelve-year-old Ohio boy is the 1964 world's spelling champion.

William Kerek of Cuyahoga Falls battled it out with a fellow Ohioan to win the National Spelling Bee title. He did it with an aplomb typical of confident youth. For those who think they know how to spell or who are top-flight spellers, the words these two boys were tossed through could surely create some misgivings.

And how did William win? By matching ability with the other semifinalist through such words as "sequential" and "connotation." It took the words "geophagy" and "zycephant" to clinch the victory.

Did the boys know the meaning of these tongue-twisters? Probably they did and one can be sure the meanings did not apply to them. They may have needed a drink, but they took no potion (nepenthe); they may have had butterflies in their stomachs but they had no intestinal contractions (peristalsis); they may have been hungry but not for dirt (geophagy); and they may be apple polishers but certainly no disfavors (zycephant).

The official majority of Dr. J. Albert Faulkner as Liberal candidate in West Hastings in the recent Provincial elections, over Mr. W. H. Ireland of Trenton, the Conservative candidate and the former member of the Legislature for fifteen years has been announced officially. It was in a total vote of 18,075 from 90 polls in the riding. The official figures were released by the Returning Officer, Mr. D. W. Rollins. Three persons voted in the election on Monday last in the riding of West Hastings than on any previous election, owing to the available area in it being much increased by the addition of votes from the north of the former riding of North Hastings, now a part of West Hastings, and also owing to the greatly increased interest. In Belleville the total vote was 7,047 as against 6,358 in 1929, and as there being 3,334. Frankford and other municipalities showed increases over the former interest. Belleville's huge vote of 7,047 was given from an available vote of about 9,423. The following polls gave Dr. Faulkner majorities as follows: Belleville 1, 102; Trenton 432; Sidney 155; Frankford 7; Marmora and Lake 29; Madoc 65; Herschel 31. The following polls gave Mr. Ireland the majorities as follows: Stirling 125; Rawdon 283; Marmora Village 83; Deloro Village 51; Wollaston 17; Tudor Village 70; McClure 46.

Marriages Compared

By J. D. McGUER
In The Quinte Citizen

There is an inconsistency in the divorce laws of this province which is not widely noticed. Consider two men, Mr. X and Mr. Y., both married.

Mr. X. usually gets along well with his wife, he loves his children and, while hardly an ideal husband, he is nevertheless an indispensable member of a reasonably happy household. His weakness is that on Sundays, days which, with him, occur frequently, he likes to more than just play with the ladies. Once in a while he gets at the act, and his sin is duly reported to Mrs. X. complete with the necessary array of witnesses and evidence to substantiate a divorce suit.

Mr. Y. lives in Mr. V. He has not lived with her for years. He drinks. He uses bad language and he is a thoroughly bad example to his children. Mr. Y's weakness is that he lacks the courage and the good sense to get anywhere with women. . . .

According to the divorce laws of Ontario, which permit adultery as the grounds for divorce, the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. X is not worth saving while that of Mr. and Mrs. Y. must, at all costs, be preserved.

I wonder how many readers agree that this is a sensible law.

Skin Cancer Is Curable More Than 90 Per Cent

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: What does skin cancer look like? What are the symptoms? — M. M.

I'll explain what to look out for — although I can't tell you how to decide whether a lesion is or isn't skin cancer. Incidentally more than 90 per cent of skin cancers can be cured if they are treated reasonably early.

Skin cancers aren't all alike in appearance. A warty type of growth is one. And likewise a sort of horny growth.

Still another is a "sore" that isn't sore, and it keeps expanding very slowly, and seems to "heal" or carry over in the centre, while the edge, as the spot expands, looks raw but is not sore.

A mole that changes in any way, whether gets larger, or is constantly irritated (such as at the edge of a collar, under a belt or the edge of a shoe or anything like that,) or bleeds easily — that can be a sign of cancer.

Now the fact is that just about everything I have described can be from causes other cause. All warts aren't cancer. Nor are all horny growths. Nor all moles that happen to bleed, when bumped hard. Nor all painless skin growths, scaly areas for example, scales over, but it isn't cancer.

When one get right down to cases, there isn't any way you can look at a spot on the skin and say emphatically it isn't cancer. A biopsy will give the answer.

Any doctor can make a very shrewd guess just from looking. The specialists can be even shrewder. But only a biopsy and advanced cases can they give a snap judgment and feel sure they are right. In the advanced, I mean a skin cancer which a patient has had for months, or a year, or several years, and ignored.

With skin cancer, you don't expect any symptoms except what you can see. If you wait for pain or other symptoms, you have waited too long. (Keep in such cases, however, cure may be possible, but who wants to take that risk?)

There are, among these conditions that are less serious and which will turn out not to be cancerous but will be pre-cancerous. I had one thing myself once. It was a little pimple on my back. I didn't even know it. I was going to have it cut off it and it bled about half a drop. When, three or four weeks later this happened again, I had it removed, which took my skin specialist about 30 minutes, because he wanted to be sure he got it and it bled about half a drop. When, three or four weeks later this happened again, I had it removed, which took my skin specialist about 30 minutes, because he wanted to be sure he got not to nick any of the many muscles which are close to the surface.

It was not cancer, but it was pre-cancerous. A biopsy (examination under the microscope by some cells) showed the suspicious signs that often precede a real cancer.

Dear Dr. Molner: What exercises will aid in strengthening my son's shoulders. He is 10 and inclined to be round-shouldered. — Mrs. L. G.

Push ups. Chinning. Swimming. Most arm exercises help any type. Dumbbells. Holding the head erect and shoulders back. Bowling, now. Pulling on a lawn Raking leaves. Or any exercises from scrubbing the kitchen floor to wrestling with other boys, so long as the arm and chest muscles have to work hard. . . .

Much heart trouble is preventable Write to Dr. Molner in care of The Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P. O. Box 198, Dunlee, Ill., for your copy of his booklet, "How to Take Care of Your Heart," enclosing a long self - addressed stamped envelope and 25 cents in coin to cover cost of printing and handling.

Strictly Personal
Only Parent Understands
Babbling Child

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Purely Personal Prejudices: We wouldn't so much mind people beating us at something if we didn't feel that they then assumed a superiority over us; it is not the victory we covet as much as the subsequent air of superiority we dislike in others, that makes us compete so tenaciously.

Freud used to say that three arts were impossible to fulfill satisfactorily: the arts of healing, educating, and governing — for no person is ever completely healthy, no child is ever totally educated, and no community is ever governed as well as it might be.

Speaking of healing, the only ill man who absolutely cannot be cured is the one who believes himself to be in fine health; and this is even truer in the realm of emotional disease than in physical illness.

Any doctor or wife is one who is able to live within her husband's anticipated income of five years hence.

Only a parent can understand what a 20-month-old child is saying when it says nothing, but only knowledge and love between persons can enable one to tell when a silence is golden, even though he seems to be saying something else.

That like breeds nationalist is in the same boat with the totalitarian who must admirable illustrated by most Actors, when he observed: "The man who prefers his country before any other duty shows the same spirit as the man who surrenders every right to the state. They both deny that right is superior to authority."

"Liberty" and "equality" are not compossible concepts, and it is vain to wish for them together or in large goods; indeed, the task of a social order is to decide how much of each shall be sacrificed to the other and in what balance they shall exist; all other political questions are but variations on this one.

Much of the beauty of ancient languages lies in their gift of compression. Take Latin, where most modern languages lack: for example, the word "expedit," case deus, it at expedit, case putemus," was said in slight variation by Julius at least 19 words to render it in English: "It is expedient that there should be a god, and as it is expedient, let us believe that they exist." Attic Greek was even more highly compressed.

My recent pieces on "Projection" brought an amusing story from a reader in North Carolina; Psychiatrist to Patient: "You have a persecution complex." Patient replies, after saying that because you hate me.

Toronto Stocks

TORONTO (CP) — The stock market was a mixed affair in moderate morning trading today.

In industrials, which made a gain of .03 to 136.68, Algoma Steel and Bell Telephone were ahead ¼ each to 69 and 50¾ respectively.

Specialties were mainly quiet. Silver Standard climbed eight cents to $1.00.

On index, golds were down .05 to 132.33, western oils .09 to 96.26 and base metals .15 to 93.85.

On Wednesday stocks were mostly lower as trading slowed to its slowest pace in more than two months.

Volume for the day was 3,705,000 shares compared with 4,008,000 shares traded Tuesday. This was the lowest volume since March 11 when 3,887,000 shares changed hands.

On the 669 issues traded, 241 declined while only 189 advanced.

Industrials were lower although advances and declines were even at 86, 86 were unchanged. Canada Packers B dipped 2½ to 72, Chrysler 1⅛ to 53½, and CPR—trading ex-dividend $1—1¼ to 46¾.

There were a handful of bright spots in the main list. Massey - Ferguson tacked on ¼ to 30 while Interprovincial Pipe Line gained to 88.

Lack of volume was attributed to a lack of wide interest in speculative mining issues and the fact that the Montreal and Canadian stock exchanges were closed in observance of St. Jean Baptiste Day.

GENEX RISES

In speculative mining issues, late buying pushed Genex ahead two cents to 49 cents while Tormont climbed steadily throughout the session for a four cent gain to 50 cents. Profit taking hit Marchant for a 15 cent loss to $1.90.

Consolidated Hallwell dipped three cents to 35 cents and Bunker Hill continued its slow erosion with a one-cent loss to 52.

Golds were weaker across a broad front. Hollinger dipped ¾ to 27⅛ and Dome Mines ¼ to 29⅝.

Senior base metals were dull. Hudson Bay and Noranda advanced ¼ each to 65¼ and 45⅝ respectively. Inco was off ¼ to 84⅛ and Cominco ¼ to 35⅝.

On index, industrials were down .41 to 156.30, golds 1.43 to 132.28 and the exchange index .34 to 145.97. Base metals were up .21 to 63.50 and western oils .32 to 90.35.

Teachers Favor School Boards Having Say

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Teachers Federation said Wednesday continual dissension would develop between municipal councils and school boards if the councils were given the final say over local education budgets.

The Ontario legislature's select committee on the Municipal Act has proposed that councils be given the authority to alter education budgets presented by school boards. The executive of the teachers federation appeared before the committee to express its opposition to this.

"It is our feeling this would . . . result in unnecessary and harmful delays in the implementation of the boards' business," the federation said, lending its weight to opposition already expressed by the Ontario School Trustees Council.

"We are convinced also that the type of person who would offer to serve on an elected school board which had no real control over the education offered in the community would be less able and less committed to the interests of education than present board members."

The federation said if municipal authorities felt so strongly that school boards should not have the power to set their own spending levels, then perhaps two tax bills were necessary—one to raise education moneys, and the other to provide the remainder of municipal taxes.

TWO CN VETERANS — J. Wilfred "Wicky" Ross, yardmaster, and John "Scotty" Duncan are shown just after Mr. Duncan stepped down from his engine on the last run. Mr. Ross will retire on Saturday.

Wicky Ross, Scotty Duncan, 2 Veteran CN Employees, Now Retired From Service

Railway Week in Belleville is also retirement week for two veteran CN employees, one of whom arrived yesterday with the other stepping down on Saturday.

Engineer John 'Scotty' Duncan, 90-B, Moira Street, West, last night made his final run on No. 6 train from Toronto. General Yard Master James Wilfred "Wicky" Ross will go into retirement on Saturday. Between them they have 93 years of service.

Heralding the Railway Week crowd at the North Station, a large turnout of well - wishers was on hand to offer congratulations to the veteran railway employees as No. 6 train pulled in from Toronto.

Born in Scotland, Mr. Duncan entered railway service on Nov. 8, 1918. He worked as fireman out of Belleville, Lindsay, Hamilton, Sarnia and London being chased as locomotive engineer back in 1942.

He is a member of Moira Lodge, A.F. & A.M., No. 11, and Rameses Shrine in Toronto.

NATIVE OF THURLOW

"Wicky" Ross is a native of the Belleville area, having been born in Thurlow township and now lives at R.R. 1, Belleville.

He started working for the railway back in 1914, serving as clerk, caller, and car checker before becoming a switch tender in 1921. He worked up through the CN system to become yardman, yard foreman and since 1942 has been yardmaster at Belleville.

"Wicky" is well known for his role with the old Grand Trunk baseball team which won the provincial championship back in 1919, and with the Nationals in 1923. He also is a keen hunter and fisherman.

SAVED BOY'S LIFE

But a young Hillcrest area boy will have possibly more reason to remember Mr. Ross than many others in the Belleville district.

Two years ago Mr. Ross snatched the young Hillcrest lad from certain death from in front of a locomotive as it passed through the Belleville station. The lad had wandered onto the track as the train rolled in and was thrown clear by Mr. Ross with only a second to spare.

For his life saving effort, Mr. Ross received an award from the Royal Humane Society (Canada.)

Russian Gives No Reason For Withdrawal

LONDON (Reuters) — Alexander Metrevell of Russia withdrew today from his scheduled third round men's singles tennis match at Wimbledon with South African Abe Segal.

The Russians were protesting against the South African government's apartheid—racial separation—policy.

The referee at the Wimbledon lawn tennis championships said Metrevell gave no reason for withdrawing. However, the Russians have made it plain in recent weeks they would walk out of the championships if they drew a match against a South African.

U. S., Britain and France To Declare German Position

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The preoccupation of Germans with the reunification of their country is striking to a visitor.

West Germans, whether on the political or private levels, the are inclined to view all differences between East and West in the context of the German and Berlin problems.

Considering this background, it isn't surprising that they heard with keen interest that the United States, Britain and France would issue a joint declaration — scheduled for today —on the Western position regarding Germany.

This follows the surprise 20-year treaty of friendship signed by Soviet Premier Khrushchev and Walter Ulbricht. East German Communist premier, June 12—the day Chancellor Ludwig Erhard was due in Washington for talks with President Johnson.

West German officials generally dismissed the treaty as "a sort of revenge" by Khrushchev to Ulbricht, who has been considerably more faithful to the Kremlin than other East European Communist leaders.

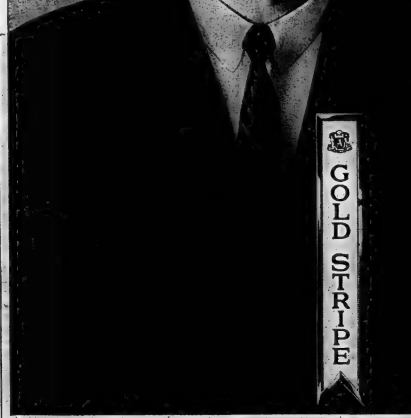
OWN AGREEMENT

"Khrushchev is simply making another agreement with himself," was a comment frequently heard from West Berliners, who express contempt for Ulbricht at every opportunity.

Khrushchev, in this view, wanted to "shore up" Ulbricht's regime at a time when such countries as Communist Rumania were kicking over the traces on trade matters in the Communist world.

Bonn government sources saw the Cuban crisis of 1962 and the test-ban treaty of 1963 as good omens for reunification.

The Cuban affair taught Khrushchev that he could not inflict his will by force, but had to negotiate. Thus if he wants a real detente with the West, he will have to negotiate the German problem.



The test - ban treaty arose partly from the 18-nation disarmament committee working in Geneva, in the Boon view, although it was negotiated by the U.S., Britain and the Soviet Union. Some German leaders believe a permanent big four commission on Berlin and West Germany could inch toward reunification.

In a nutshell, the Germans believe reunification will never come about in the natural course of history but must be brought about by working at it. A spokesman for the Free Democrats, one of the parties in Erhard's coalition, summed up this way: "No detente without reunification and no reunification without detente."

THE TROUSSEAU

Up until now, the bride has planned her wardrobe to suit herself, but with a wedding in the offing, she must consider, first of all, her new husband's taste in clothes, his income and her own new place in the social structure. If the new home is to be established in a small town and she has always lived in a city, she should try to learn how people live in the town that she will call, "home." Would the little black cocktail dress be out of place in her new surroundings? Quite possibly, yes. Are hats required except for church? Perhaps not. What about slacks and shorts? And suits?

However, if she is moving from a small town to a larger centre, she should consider these same questions and the possibility that the answers will be different.

Granted that the clothes she wore during her courtship were part of her appeal, she should not be too surprised to find that her new husband does not really care for red — not even if it is vastly becoming to her and is, therefore, one of her favorite colors. Most men have definite ideas about women's clothes, but it is difficult sometimes to pry this information from them. Usually it is an "air" about certain women, perhaps the way they wear their clothes that makes them remain in a man's memory, but the average man would have extreme difficulty defining what he likes about current fashions.

BASIC BLACK

The general ground rules go something like this. Most men like the basic black dress with a neat waistline and pretty neckline. They are partial to the belted trench coats and to the sweaters and skirts of the sportswear girl. They get romantic about evening dresses of chiffon and touches of white on a dark color — for instance, a navy suit with a crisp white collar. They feel comfortable with a gal who wears a really good looking tweed suit cut on classic lines.

Most men dislike and feel embarrassed by wild color combinations — purple and red, for instance. They dislike too short skirts because these lack the social graces — they ride up and up when their wearer sits down. Men are gauche when confronted by the extremely low necklines — yes, even in this season of the plunge! They hate to be seen with outlandish magical comedy hats, tight shorts and slacks, handbags that look like pieces of luggage. They feel hobbled when they must match their steps to those of a woman who is mincing along on too high, uncomfortable heels.

Men especially dislike hair styles that must be protected all the time and they hate clothes that cannot take it. While sportswear that cannot be laundered may fall into this category. They dislike coats that must be held closed and dresses that must be constantly arranged — for instance, evening dresses with built-in hoops and crinolines.

The old adage about heavy perfume still holds true, but now we must add hair spray that has an overpowering cheap perfume.

THANKS AMERICANS

COLCHESTER, England (CP) — East folk have received so much hospitality from American servicemen stationed at Colchester that they plan to thank their guests with a dance. Some of the guests will wear costumes of George Washington's period.

Mother Must Give Support Says Teacher

MONTREAL (CP) — "Behind every Cliburn you'll find a mother," says Mrs. Allan Morton, a piano teacher at the McGill Conservatory of Music.

She was referring, of course, to Van Cliburn, the brilliant young American pianist, whose mother has played an important part in his musical development.

"If you don't find a mother you'll find somebody else who has given encouragement and direction to the musician's talents as a youth. The early disciplins in the home is the single most important factor in his development."

Mrs. Morton, whose three children are receiving musical training, doesn't believe a mother should teach her own children. But she does believe in staying with them when they practise during their first few years.

Her 16 - year - old daughter Karen, who plays piano and violin, will perform with the National Youth Orchestra this summer. Jeffrey, 15, studied piano before taking up the cello and guitar. David, 8, is already launched on his piano training.

Mrs. Morton says students should have acquired good work habits by the time they reach high school, but before then it's up to the parents to see that they practise.

"If any of my students under the age of nine is not working, I don't scold him. I scold the parents. I don't think a mother should force her child but I do think she should encourage him. . . ."

Mrs. Morton says her most gifted students are usually gifted in school as well. "Perhaps it's partly the discipline they've learned as children at the piano . . . or maybe the two talents just belong together."

Successful Living

Complete Break Now Could Prevent Much Pain Later

DEAR DORIS — I am 30. My boss, 54, started coming to see me, and asked me to marry him. He is divorced. He said he still loves his former wife but would marry me.

We sort of broke up last winter with no reason. Then I saw him out with a married woman. I wondered if I should tell her husband, but didn't.

This week this man started talking to me about good times we had had. He just builds me up and then drops me again.

Do you think I should take him back?

—ANOTHER BROKEN HEART.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR ANOTHER — Your Joe-boy seems to be looking for comfort from any woman he can find — and is obviously still pining for his former wife. He is too self-centred (and too much older than you) to be a good risk.

Things could change — but your move now should be right out of his life, including into a new job. Also new practise during their first few years.

DEAR DORIS — Whenever we meet at a dance this special guy asks me out afterwards. The problem is I'm getting tired of just going home with him. I'd like to go there with him as my date. I know he thinks I'm cute, and I even heard he had a crush on me, so I can't understand why he doesn't ask me out.

I'm crazy about him? — JUDY K.

DEAR JUDY K. — Not on your life! He's got it all his own way now. If he's too shy to ask for a date, let him be. A boy pays you no compliment when he repeatedly lets you get yourself to a school party and pay your own way.

Better you should play hard to get!

No Way in at Public Places For Handicapped, Disabled

Most people do not realize when going up steps to a church or public institution, features any to some as bad as a placard saying "Keep Out", says Lady Hamilton, Chairman of Disabled Living Activities group of the Central Council for the Disabled, writing in CARSCOPE, the official publication of the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism society.

It is most important for the physically handicapped, both young and old, to get out and about and meet people. If they can get to public places, people see them, talk to them, get to know their needs. If they stay at home then social links are broken, and their needs are overlooked. This is so clearly true that it comes as quite a shock to learn that public buildings are, in the main, inaccessible to the disabled.

A recent exhibition in England—Housing for the Disabled was opened with the words: "Opportunity in life is the greatest reason for the physically handicapped by the unthinking design of the things they use, since everything, whether buildings, appliances, or furniture, is designed for the able-bodied and not with their needs in mind. Nothing in this world is true than the buildings which the disabled have to use, whether in homes or public buildings."

BAD LUCK

Only quite recently the disabled were accepted as part of the country scene. It was bad luck but little could be done for them. Now, with so many trained each year on the roads alone, the problem is receiving some of the attention it deserves.

In the case of a church the attention of the local councils ramp. Other items of importance are rails, handgrips, non-slip floor surfaces, and if possible a hearing aid system.

Ideally there should always be a special pew for the disabled with book boxes, room for stiff legs, manoeuvering space for wheel chairs, and sometimes lighting needs special attention.

Although it may cost a good deal to make an old building accessible for wheelchairs, to put a handrail on each side of a flight of steps is not difficult, and will be an enormous help to the ambulant and the old. Moreover the interesting thing is that when provided, these "aids" are invariably used by the ablebodied.

Ann Landers

Fed up Having to Play Second Fiddle to a Horse

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I have been engaged to Burt for so many years I'm ashamed to tell you the number. We were supposed to get married three months ago. I had my dress bought and my hair fixed. Then his horse got sick. I am still single.

Burt spends every spare minute at the barn. He has broken dozens of dates with me because his horse didn't look right. He'd rather sit around with the vet and worry about the horse than be with me.

I like horses, but I like people better. I am beginning to thing Burt is different. He eats, dreams and thinks horses. He even smells like a horse most of the time. Any advice for me? — DISGUSTED.

ANN LANDERS

DEAR DISGUSTED — It appears that you have been left at the post, Dearie. If you are running so poorly before marriage I'd say your chances for getting any attention whatever after marriage are about 100 to one — against.

As for Burt, I suggest he take a saliva test.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — My girl friend and I are both 16. We have been dating two boys from another high school. They are buddies.

The second time we went out with Phil and Bill (made up names) they discovered they had no money. After we had pulled into a gas station and ordered five gallons of gas. My girl friend and I gave them $1.50. We were supposed to get it back but nothing was ever said about it so we let it go.

The next week when we were in a pizza place the boys suddenly discovered they had 14¢ between them, so my girl friend and I paid for the treats.

Last night on the way to the bowling alley Bill and Phil asked if they could borrow $2 each until next week. We said O.K. and handed over the money. Since they had never paid back any of the other money we loaned them we really don't expect to see this money again either.

Please tell me if you think we are being too dollar-minded or are these boys taking advantage of us? — TWO HUMAN CASH REGISTERS.

DEAR REGISTERS — It is no disgrace to be tapped out, but it is darned disgraceful to continue to borrow money and make no effort to repay it.

Phil is a pill and so is Bill. The shortage of loot is the least of their deficiencies. They are also short of integrity. Tell them to get lost.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I've enjoyed your column for many years and now I want to tell you my story as partial repayment for the enjoyment you have given me.

Often widows and unmarried career girls write and ask where all the eligible men are hiding. Well, I'm one widow who wishes the eligible man she found had stayed in hiding.

Two years ago I was 52, lonely (my husband had died three years before) and I felt remarriage was the answer. I had a lovely home, a new car, some blue chip stocks and a nice little piece of real estate.

The town "catch" phoned me twice a day, took me to dinner four times a week and told me I was the angel of his dreams.

Now, less than 25 months later he has "borrowed" $7,000 from me and is about to lose a business which I financed. The cook I had for 21 years quit because she couldn't stand him. I am fed up on his corny jokes and his boring relatives.

How I wish I were alone again, watching seven-year-old movies on TV. — NO FOOL LIKE AN OLD FOOL.

DEAR NO — Many lonely widows who marry a second time find happiness and contentment.

You made a poor selection, Madame, but that has been known to happen the first time around, too.

Mixed Bridge Enjoyed at Golf Club

With rain showers adding to the cool, cool, cool of the evening, the annual mixed bridge at the Bay of Quinte Golf Club was greatly enjoyed Tuesday night, despite the drop in number of active tables from last year.

Twenty-six tables were in play and a club spokesman felt that the day's extreme heat helped reduce the number of tables from last season's total of forty.

Mrs. Vera Fairman, president of the ladies' section, welcomed the guests and thanked everyone for attending. She also paid tribute to social convener Mrs. Betty O'Brien, co-chairmen Mrs. Ann Acton, and their committee, for making the evening such a successful one.

A most delicious lunch, with more food than enough, was enjoyed.

Mrs. Phyll Dybie won the ladies' high and Mr. Jack Dybie captured the men's high prize.

The ladies' second was won by Mrs. Evelyn Coulter with men's second going to Mr. Jim Anton.

Ladies' low went to Mrs. Dorothy Bauck and men's low to Mr. Ted Saunders.

Other prize winners were: Mrs. Mary Wiggins, Mr. Bruce Bishop, Mrs. Mary McCreary and Mrs. Dorothy Walsh.

Dessert Party Ends Season For Volunteers of Opp. Shop

A perfect summer evening and a beautiful sunset were treats in store for the volunteer workers of the Opportunity Shop who attended the coffee and dessert party meeting held at the Redeserville Road residence of the convener, Mrs. Herbert Brown.

Under the auspices of the Belleville Hospital Women's Auxiliary, these ladies interested in the only project of its kind in the city (the Opportunity Shop) enjoyed an assortment of delicious desserts at this annual get together.

President Mrs. F. A. Beeby expressed her gratitude and thanks on behalf of the auxiliary for the financial success of the shop, which helps carry on many projects of the auxiliary.

PENNY SALE

Mrs. Brown thanked the staff for the wonderful co-operation shown and the many hours of volunteer service given at the shop. A penny sale organized by Mrs. W. C. Gault offered many little objects of interest to the members and proved both entertaining and financially profitable.

A beautiful covered rest for these willing workers will start next week as the Opportunity Shop will be closed during July and August, when it is hoped the doors will re-open with an array of merchandise including men's, women's and children's clothing, jewellery, household articles, a small furniture, kitchen utensils, china, toys, etc.

Citizens of Belleville are asked to gather all articles which they no longer require to send to the Opportunity Shop to help raise the rest of the $8,000 objective for 1966.

This money is used for hospital equipment and the betterment of the patients.

'Lines on Life'

By Dr. Stuart E. Rosenberg

Donald Robertson had flown 60 missions in a B-25 American Air Force plane and was returning home from the Pacific war theatre. Aboard his eastbound train from California, he bumped into a young widow of a soldier killed in action. When they collided in the vestibule of the railway car, he hadn't the vaguest notion that he had actually interrupted her attempt to commit suicide by jumping out of the speeding train's door. Then they sat down and talked.

Nine years later he received this letter:

"Dear Mr. Robertson: On February 1, 1945, I received a telegram from the War Department saying: 'We regret to inform you . . .'

"That night, I was on a train speeding on a journey that scarcely seemed endless. You were on that train, too, speeding to the wife you hadn't seen since the day you left for war. That remember me now — the girl in the black dress, sad and lonely, sitting across the aisle.

"If you hadn't come into the vestibule when you did, I'd have opened the door and stepped out. Did I thank you for that, and for all the kind things you said to me, too?

"Two years later I married again. I have a fine husband, two wonderful children and a lovely home. To think that I am so happy now and owe it all to a stranger who decided I'd be helped me through my darkest hours.

"Tonight, I think I'll look at the moon — I'll say — "Hi, Mr. Robertson. Thanks for saving my life, too."

The letter was signed with no name. All that was written at the close was — "Sincerely. . ."

Not all of the letters I receive such letters lauding our life-saving effort, but all of us can, knowingly and confidently, lift to the heart that is bent upon its destruction.

CONSTANT PARTNER

"If someone would only listen. . ." These are the tell-tale lines of communication which often lead to heartbreak. Everybody's busy speaking, but few are ready to give ear. Most of the lonely, the bewildered, the sorrows need nothing more from us than our ready attention, our warm willingness to hear them out. But when "there's nobody to talk to," then there is often "nothing to live for." That's a move important than what we say is how we listen.

There are times when the truest partner in life is the "silent friend" who finds silence is golden because he's busy listening to you, not evading you with his own self-centered prattle.

"Hi, Mr. Robertson! Thanks for saving my life. . ." And how did he do it? By listening — at the right moment.

Sometimes, that's all it takes.

Freezer Jams Are Delicious

by Mary Moore

Last year we gave here recipes for strawberry, raspberry and plum jams made to freezer. These were so delicious and popular we have been receiving requests for repeats all spring.

Please Clip This Column if you ever intend to make Freezer Jams.

Note: All three of these freezer jams may be stored in storage part of refrigerator if they are to be used up within 2 or 3 weeks.

FROZEN STRAWBERRY JAM

(uncooked — stored in freezer)

2 cups mashed strawberries
4 cups powdered fruit (berry) sugar
1 box (about 5 tablespoons) powdered pectin (certo crystals)
¾ cup water

Wash berries in a sieve, hull them and drain well. In a flatbottomed pan mash them, and measure 2 cups (you will need a little less than 1 qt. of berries.) Add the berry sugar, stir very well and let stand 15 minutes, stirring occasionally. Meanwhile mix together the water and powdered pectin and cook stirring until they come to a hard boil and boil 1 minute, stirring constantly. Remove from heat.

Immediately add to fruit-sugar mixture and stir for 3 minutes. Pour into clear jars or 8 oz. jars to within ¼" from top (to allow for possible expansion when frozen.) Cover with lids at once. Let stand at room temperature 24 hours. Store in freezer.

FROZEN STRAWBERRY AND RHUBARB JAM

(uncooked —stored in freezer)

1½ cups washed and crushed ripe strawberries
½ cup washed and ground rhubarb
4 cups sugar
¾ cup water
1 box (1¾ oz.) powdered pectin (certo crystals)

Measure sugar, add to fruits, mix well, and let stand. Mix water and powdered pectin in a small saucepan. Bring to a boil and boil 1 minute, stirring constantly. Remove from heat and stir into fruit mixture. Continue stirring about 3 minutes. (There will be a few remaining sugar crystals.) Ladle quickly into clean glasses, to within ¼" of top. Cover at once with tight lids. Let stand at room temperature, then store in freezer.

FROZEN RASPBERRY JAM

(uncooked — stored in freezer)

1½ qts. (approx.) choice red raspberries
5¼ cups granulated sugar
¾ cup cold water
1 box powdered pectin (certo crystals)

To wash raspberries, put them in a sieve or colander and lower them into large pan of cold water, lifting them up and down to gently wash. Drain well. Turn into large flat-bottomed pan and mash with potato masher. You should have exactly 3 cups mashed raspberries. Add the sugar and let stand. In a small saucepan add the water to the powdered pectin and bring to boil (not to simmer) stirring constantly. Remove from heat. Stir this into uncooked fruit mixture and stir 3 minutes. Ladle into 8 clean 8-oz. jam jars, filling to within ½" of top (to allow room for possible expansion when frozen.) Cover with lids that fit and are perfectly clean. Let stand at room temperature for 24 hours. Store in freezer.

Note: We are going to be experimenting with frozen cherry jam and frozen blueberry jam and if these tests are successful, we will give the method in this column in season.

Quintebelles Entertain Harmony Boys

The Belleville Barbershoppers, together with their wives and sweethearts, were royally entertained at a "wiener-roast" Tuesday evening, by the Quintebelles ladies' chorus and their husbands and guests. Although the rain moved the party from Zwicky's Island to the A.N.A.F. Hall, 187 Front street, the campfire enthusiasm was not dampened.

Quintebelles president, Kathy Mills, extended a hearty welcome to the 50 persons present.

Community singing of old favorites was led by banjo-playing Alf Evans.

Everyone had a good time playing the tag and relay games supervised by Nora Barber and Betty Dunlap. Prizes were won by Clare Twiddy and Bob Parks.

The Quintie Cavaliers, the Belleville Barbershoppers and the Quintebelles each entertained in fine style.

The evening was completed with hot dogs and coffee, served by Anne Warren and her committee.

Kathy Mills expressed sincere thanks to everyone for coming out, and Alf Evans expressed thanks to the Quintebelles on behalf of the guests.

Although this was the last meeting of the season for the Quintebelles, a most cordial invitation is extended to all ladies who like to sing to come out in September on Tuesday evenings. "You will be made most welcome."

100 Attend Presentation For Couple

SCHARIE — Over hall was the scene of a happy gathering recently when about 100 friends and neighbors gathered to honor Mr. and Mrs. Burton Norton on their recent marriage. On arrival Norma was presented with a corsage and Burton a boutonniere.

Mrs. Alan Baxter was chairlady and called the meeting to order and presented the following program: Mrs. Lyle Hagerman led a singsong, accompanied by Mrs. Arnold Greaves. Mrs. Bert Walters gave a humorous reading on what qualities a certain woman wanted in her daughter-in-law. Darlent Foster played the piano accordion and Jean Baxter favored with piano solos.

Mrs. John Matthie read an address to Norma and Burton and Messrs. Alan Baxter and John Matthie presented them with a lovely lazy boy chair, a glassed-in bookcase, a vase, a luncheon set, and pair of towels.

The Live Women's Club presented Norma with a cornflower wear pillowcase.

Norma and Burton each expressed their sincere appreciation of the kind gifts and their neighbors in remembering them with such beautiful gifts and invited all to visit them in their new home. The ladies served a bountiful lunch.

The remainder of the pleasant evening were: Mrs. Alan Baxter, Mrs. Ralph Stone, Mrs. Norman Leavitt, Mrs. John Matthie and Mrs. Norman Pierce.

S.S. PRESENTATION

At Sunday School on Sunday morning Mrs. Burton Norton was presented with a lovely walnut telephone table and chair by the officers of the Sunday school for her faithful services as teacher for some years.

Women's Institutes

WOOLER, W. I.

The June meeting of the Wooler Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. R. Read with Mrs. W. McKee, the first vice-president, presiding.

The business included discussion of the next meeting—"Family Night"—on July 8th, on the Wooler Park in the form of a picnic supper. Mrs. A. Bell, Mrs. H. Crosby, Mrs. F. Van Vaals and Mrs. A. Gooding are convenors to make the necessary arrangements.

It was decided to sponsor a bus trip to the CNE at Toronto, with names to be left with Mrs. N. Haggarty or Mrs. L. Leavitt.

Mrs. E. Scott, the curator, discussed and displayed the Tweedsmuir Book and suggested having a tea in the fall, where the ladies of the community could be invited and asked to contribute in some way some interesting information of the district either as an article, picture, etc., in such way the book would have a wider store of information and would prove more valuable.

PLAN CENTENNIAL TEAR

Mrs. C. Nelson gave a report of the district annual held in Picton recently. She mentioned the need and the purchase by the district of a new banner, which is already being in financing its purchase. Suggestions were offered from the members, such as "How to Make Canada More Beautiful" in keeping with Centennial Year. She also mentioned in which the institutes could play important roles.

Mrs. Lorne Turner, the convener of Canadian Industry, provided an excellent and instructive program. She described a recent buy trip to Niagara Falls where she had visited the huge power generating plant and had several memorable hours watching the process on the vastness of its electrical outlets.

Miss Ann Smith of Wooler, public school student, read and displayed a fine project she had completed on the Province of Alberta which was both well given and most educational.

Mrs. Lloyd Bell delighted the audience with two piano selections. A contest and lunch closed an enjoyable evening.

SPEAKING OF MANNERS

BY PATRICIA LEWIS

MAIL CALL

Question: Is it inconsiderate to bring cake or candy as a hostess gift when you're invited to dinner? That was the impression I got from a young bride, the wife of a neighbor, when we went to their home for the first time. Thinking a cake would solve the dessert problem, I bought an especially nice one from an expensive bakery.

When I gave it to her, she actually looked unhappy about it, and said I shouldn't have bothered, since she had always prepared dessert. The cake was served with coffee later in the evening, before we went home, and I'm sure she did this just to soothe my feelings. Is cake an inappropriate gift to bring when invited to dinner? — Mrs. H., Chicago, Ill.

Answer: A gift that's to be eaten or drunk more often gives the hostess a headache than a real pleasure. Correctly, it should be opened and served then and there, but often it does not exactly go with the rest of the menu. It is usually safer to bring something non-edible or something of that ilk, which the hostess can put aside for later use without having to make embarrassing apologies.

QUESTION: A junior executive who works in my husband's firm is to be married next month, and we've been asked to the wedding and reception. We don't know the bride-to-be personally, so I'm afraid if we send a gift to her home she would not know who it came from. Would it be permissable to send it to the groom, directly, and let him give it to her in-stead? — Mrs. J. S., Niagara Falls, Ont.

ANSWER: Whether or not you know the bride-to-be, the gift still should be sent to her home. A brief note of congratulation to enclosing your card, be sure to put a return address on the outside of the package so she'll know where to send a thank-you note.

Big Immigration Problem: Find 2,000 Ship Jumpers

VANCOUVER (CP)—An estimated 2,000 men live in Canada knowing their life as new Canadians is a gigantic masquerade.

Some live in back alleys, some in respectable suburbs. Some are criminals, some carriers of disease. Only a few with expert skills are contributing to the country they now call home.

These men have one common bond—they were absorbed into the Canadian life stream after walking off foreign ships in Canadian ports.

Last year 170 men deserted their ships in Vancouver and an estimated 900 deserters are living in British Columbia, most of them in Vancouver.

Immigration officials say the number of men entering Canada by this back-door route is increasing every year. Even with increased vigilance, there is little to stop a seaman from becoming an illegal resident.

Visiting ships draw their crew from all ports of the world. These men are granted shore leave at the discretion of the captain. If a crew member hasn't reported back to his ship when the vessel clears port he is listed as a deserter.

MUST POST BOND

Frequently a deserting seaman has Canadian contacts, funds and a knowledge of French or English. He is often willing to work for marginal wages. Immigration officers say there is usually no fingerprint or photograph available of a wanted man.

The Immigration Act doesn't define a deserter as such, although he can be prosecuted for remaining in Canada unlawfully or by stealth. Conviction can mean a substantial fine or up to six months in jail or both.

When a deserter skips the vessel's owner is required to post a $1,000 bond to defray cost of apprehension, detention and transportation back to the country of origin. However, the bond is covered by insurance and is returned if the deserter eludes authorities for three months.

Immigration files contain many individual stories. One young Greek jumped ship, got a job in a cafe at night while going to high school days. He was doing well but someone turned him in. He was sentenced to a day in jail and deported.

A second deserter was discovered involved in illicit drug trade, jailed and deported. Within a few months he returned aboard a freighter, jumped ship again and disappeared.

BIGGLESWADE, England (CP)—The National Coal Board has placed an order worth nearly £200,000 with a firm of coach builders in this Bedfordshire town. The firm has been asked to supply 130 trailers for miners being transferred to Somerset from the Durham coalfield.

FEARS FOR HEALTH

BERE REGIS, England (CP) Some inhabitants of this Dorset village complain their new fire siren is so loud it deafens them and might affect the health of people living near by. But the county fire brigade will not reduce the volume. "It has to be loud to be heard," an official said.

CMA May Raise Its Voice Against Birth Control Law

By CARL MOLLINS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The Canadian Medical Association is expected to be asked shortly to add its powerful voice to a swelling chorus of protest against Canada's restrictive law on birth control.

Demands for the repeal of the widely violated law have been voiced during recent weeks in Parliament and in the churches, by welfare organizations and women's groups.

The governing general council of the CMA at its annual meeting in Vancouver June 23-26 will consider "certain recommendations about changes in the birth control law," says the chairman of the CMA's maternal welfare committee, Dr. Louis J. Harris.

Dr. Harris, prominent Toronto obstetrician, would give no details of his committee's recommendations in advance of their presentation to the CMA council. However, his personal stand, he said, is for repeal of the law against dissemination of information about birth control.

Should organized medicine in Canada decide for the first time to advocate formally a change in the law, it would lend weight to demands for at least a relaxation of the Criminal Code's sanction against the sale or advertisement of birth control methods or instruction in them.

URGE CHANGE

Within a few weeks at the end of May and early in June the general assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, two Ontario conferences of the United Church, the Toronto diocese of the Anglican Church and the Baptist Convention of Ontario and Quebec called for a change in the law.

"Under present law, every minister who gives advice on family planning is breaking the law," Rev. A. J. Gowland told the Presbyterian assembly.

The Roman Catholic Church is breaking it with its talk about the rhythm method."

Catholic spokesmen, in fact, puncture a widespread belief that their church, which opposes artificial aids to birth control, is against changing the law.

"Any law on the books which is not observed is not a good thing," says Rev. Frank Stone, head of the Catholic Information Centre in Toronto.

"It is not a good law because it infringes on private morality," says Rev. James Roberts, a member of the matrimonial tribunal of Vancouver's Catholic archdiocese. "The Catholic Church by no means intends to foist on the general public its own methods to achieve responsible parenthood."

ABSTAIN ON VOTE

However, Quebec delegates abstained when the Voice of Women voted for repeal of the birth control law if its national meeting May 31 at Banff, Alta., on the ground the subject was "too delicate" in Quebec.

The National Council of Women of Canada voted the following day in Hamilton for repeal of the law, although the delegate for the Montreal council dissented on the ground that it might disturb French-English relations.

Confusion about the Catholic stand on the law—"certainly it doesn't do for laws to be on the books which are not respected," says Archbishop Anthony Jordan of the Edmonton Catholic archdiocese—is reflected in a Halifax scientist's statement to the Royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism. He said one source of resentment against Quebec is the federal government's failure to amend the birth control law in deference to that province.

DECADE BEHIND

Section 150 of the Criminal Code is the law that keeps Canada "10 years behind" its neighbors, in the words of Dr. Mary Calderone, medical director of the Planned Parenthood Federation of the United States, which operates more than 150 of some 600 birth control clinics in the U.S. The law says:

"Everyone commits an offence who knowingly, without lawful justification or excuse, offers to sell, advertises, publishes an advertisement of or has for sale or disposal any means, instructions, medicine, drug or article intended or represented as a method of preventing conception or causing abortion or miscarriage."

A subsection says there can be no conviction if the defendant establishes that the public good was served"—a tougher version of a clause that before 1954 permitted acquittal of the defendant to establish only that his action "might be to the public good."

Enforcement of the law is up to the provinces. The maximum penalty on conviction is two years imprisonment. But despite apparent widespread violation there have been only two notable prosecutions, one of them successful.

The most celebrated was the prosecution of social worker Dorothea Palmer in 1936 for distributing birth control information and contraceptives among married women in the predominantly Catholic Ottawa suburb of Eastview. The trial in magistrate's court dragged on and off from October until the following March, when Miss Palmer was acquitted and fined on one charge which might have been serving the public good. The Ontario Court of Appeals upheld the verdict.

CONVICTED IN 1962

Twenty - five years later in 1962 Quebec provincial constable Harold S. Fine was fined $50 on each of two charges of selling and giving away contraceptives for sale. The magistrate found Mr. Fine "sincere in his belief that he was doing a function which he thought would serve the public good" but under the 1954 change in the criminal Code heavy onus was on the accused to show that he had in fact served the public good.

Despite the 1962 conviction, private, public and commercial enterprises are lasting with impunity instructions and advice on birth control, contraceptive appliances, chemical preparations and drugs.

"That law is being violated hundreds of thousands of times every day," says Dr. Harris. "Practically all hospitals—with the possible exception of Roman Catholic hospitals—and practically all doctors discuss birth control with their patients."

An estimated 50,000,000 of one type of contraceptive device are sold in Canada annually and the two main distributors have never been prosecuted.

A. R. Kaufman of Kitchener, Ont., head of the Kaufman Rubber Company, opened his Parents Information Bureau in 1929 and it still operates. Dorothea Palmer was working for the PIB in Eastview when she was arrested.

CLINICS OPERATE

The Planned Parenthood Society of Hamilton operates a clinic for mothers and the Toronto counterpart has applied for a charter to open one. The newly formed Canadian Federation of Societies on Population Planning has affiliates in Ottawa, Vancouver and Winnipeg as well as Toronto, Hamilton and Kitchener.

A Roman Catholic group has been operating Serena clinics—Service de la Reglation des Naissances —in Quebec and French - speaking communities in Ontario, Alberta and Saskatchewan for more than eight years. They specialize in helping women plot periods of fertility and infertility through cyclic variations in temperature—a method also employed by planned parenthood groups to help barren women have babies by charting periods of ovulation.

Catholics see the temperature-taking routine as a refinement of the approved rhythm method—birth control by abstention during the female's fertile period—and there are repeated indications that birth control information may soon be viewed by the church as a more precise way to use the rhythm method.

The Toronto welfare department received approval of Toronto City Council June 9 to pay for birth control pills medically prescribed for needy women.

national unity was the keynote of the speakers, all of whom sported red carnations.

"Ontario, as the richest English-speaking province, has a responsibility to play in preserving our confederation," said Mr. Nixon. "It's up to us to realize that the British North America Act divides the powers between the federal government and the provinces. These rights are to be preserved."

"There is no room for any division between federal and provincial Liberal governments," said Mr. Templeton. "The greatest single problem in this country today is national unity. We need a vital provincial Liberal government to play its part."

"We have very nearly lost the dream of one land from sea to sea," said J. J. Greene, Liberal member of Parliament for Burnaby-Richmond, is the author of a bill to delete the sanction against "prevenling conception" from the Criminal Code. The bill was first introduced last May and got nowhere. He reintroduced it at the beginning of the present session of Parliament in February.

In the House of Commons June 12, NDP member Reid Scott of Toronto Danforth asked Prime Minister Pearson to consider a debate soon on Mr. Pritchard's bill. Toronto City Council members, by approving the dispensing of birth control pills, could be liable to jail terms, he said.

Mr. Pearson said he would examine the matter but added: "I'm not sure how far my jurisdiction goes."

Mayor Philip Givens argued that the action would not violate the Criminal Code because the medical prescription would constitute the "lawful justification" of Section 150.

Despite the rarity of prosecutions under the birth control law, proponents of family planning often feel uncomfortable flouting it and therefore want it repealed.

Another objection to Section 150 is its linking of birth control with criminal and clandestine abortion.

"I am one of those who believes the spread of birth control knowledge will reduce the number of deaths we have from criminal abortions," says Obstetrician Harris.

Robert W. Prittie, New Democratic Member of Parliament for Burnaby-Richmond, is the author of a bill to delete the sanction against "preventing conception" from the Criminal Code. The bill was first introduced last May and got nowhere. He reintroduced it at the beginning of the present session of Parliament in February.

In the House of Commons June 12, NDP member Reid Scott of Toronto Danforth asked Prime Minister Pearson to consider a debate soon on Mr. Pritchard's bill. Toronto City Council members, by approving the dispensing of birth control pills, could be liable to jail terms, he said.

Mr. Pearson said he would examine the matter but added: "I'm not sure how far my jurisdiction goes."

STATES NEED

"What's needed today," said Andrew Thompson, MPP Toronto Dovercourt, "are men who see themselves as part of a great nation that spreads from sea to sea—a Canada that provides a message to the whole world in these tense times."

Eddie Sargent, MPP for Grey North and mayor of Owen Sound, let fly at the provincial

THE LITTLE WOMAN

Conservative government for its alleged waste of money. The $20,000,000 grant to the Toronto subway was "scandalous." It was "a gift of our money to the city of Toronto to buy votes."

Most of the members said a few sentences in French, including Joseph Gould, MPP Toronto — Bracondale, who told a meeting in Toronto earlier this week that English should be Canada's only official language.

Mr. Gould came out strongly against any possible merger of the Liberal and New Democratic parties — "it would be indecent." He also said at another point "there is no need to be flirting with communism to be just a step to the left."

About Premier Robarts' present trip to Europe, he said this: "He is roaming in Europe, sipping African wine, wearing his Japanese suit, Italian shoes, French ties and in one hand carrying an English umbrella while hidden under arm is a briefcase with the faded Tory images. . ."

Many Liberal members or Parliament were scattered through the crowd, and shortly after the meeting started, Douglas Fisher, New Democratic member for Port Arthur, took a seat near the rear of the auditorium.

He didn't go unnoticed. A shirt sleeved member of the audience jumped up, pointed a finger at the NDP member, and shouted, "Here's Douglas Fisher, right here. Perhaps he wants to join us." Mr. Fisher smiled.

Tension Below Surface In Panama Canal Zone

By ROBERT BERRELLEZ

PANAMA CITY (AP)—The "gringos out" sign has disappeared from Roly Khan's cocktail lounge and the welcome mat is out for the Yankee visitor. But business is slack.

"It isn't the same and probably never will be again," says a rum-and-coke patron.

This about sums up the picture in this deceptively tranquil-looking capital six months after the January Canal Zone violence between Panamanians and Americans that claimed more than 20 lives.

A subtle but distinct change has united Panama's once sprightly, colorful moods. There is an undercurrent of tension. Although the wounds seem healed, tender scars remain.

Most heavy damage to buildings and homes on the United States side of the Canal Zone border has been repaired. The upper walls of the 12-story legislative palace on the Panamanian side remain bullet-splattered near windows from which snipers fired at U.S. soldiers. Buildings on the Panama side have bullet marks carefully circled in red paint to attract attention.

The Pan American Airways building, set afire by rioters in the mistaken belief it was U.S.-owned, remains a burned out shell. It once was one of the most attractive buildings in the city.

FLAGS SHARE HONORS

Under an agreement to symbolize Panama's titular sovereignty over the Canal Zone, Panamanian flags now fly along side the U.S. banner at 29 public sites in the U.S. sector.

Although U.S. tourists freely roam downtown Panama shops in increasing numbers and U.S. citizens living in the city say they are not molested, many U.S. residents of the Canal Zone refuse to come into Panama City. Because of poor business, some specialty shops are sending catalogues and salesmen into the zone to pick up orders.

A wave of small-scale terrorism and violence of vague origin is helping prolong the state of anxiety under which Panama has lived since January.

The purely national character of the current turbulence has Panamanians looking inward for the source and scope of their new troubles.

The recent wave of bombings started the day President-Elect Marco A. Robles received official recognition of his victory in the elections last month. Four bombings were aimed at the home of President Chiari's brother Rodolfo, president of the National Economy Council, an advisory body.

Opposing political camps blame each other for the bombings. Extreme left-wing factions among university students and labor have come under suspicion. The outbreak appears to lack an organized pattern.

SOME BOO

The cheers, boos and scattered applause when the vice-regal party was ushered to the reviewing stand under a spotlight after most other guests had been seated.

The Montreal police security force, about a dozen constables in front of the reviewing stand and another half-dozen across the street, was doubled just as the parade began. It was reinforced by its original strength after the separatist group marched by.

The two - mile - long parade route along Sherbrooke Street was thronged with spectators—police estimated 500,000 to 1,000,000—and it was well after 1 a.m. when the last marcher reached the dispersal point.

Thousands had lined up early Saturday morning to get seats, holding down choice spots for two days. Folding-chair seats in the sidewalk were sold at $2 each.

Before the parade started, a group of Quebec youths dropped separatist leaflets along the route. The pamphlets, in French, said:

"Independence is never given but must be taken. The time has come to end this discussion and start agitation."

SPAGE SITDOWN

Earlier Wednesday, about 11a persons staged a sitdown demonstration on the tracks of the publicly-owned railway should have given its employees a paid holiday on St. Jean Baptiste Day.

The railway said the holiday was not provided for in collection-wide contracts signed with railway unions. But employees of the railway called on the job off without pay.

The sitdown, on hot concrete platforms in the downtown Place Ville Marie skyscraper, was without incident. The demonstrators marched from Place Ville Marie into east-end Montreal.

The St. Jean Baptiste holiday celebration was one of the biggest in the province's history as virtually all business came to a standstill.

delay, the Senate finance committee will finally hear hearings Monday on U.S. legislation to impose a tax on foreign securities sold in the U.S. Canadian issues are exempt but the foreign trade aspect of the legislation has discouraged U.S. purchases of Canadian and other foreign issues.

"We have been hoping for a year for a final decision on this legislation," Sharp said as he stepped from the plane that brought the delegation to Ottawa.

DEFICIT ROSE

Asked whether he is satisfied with the current status of Canada - U.S. defence production sharing, Gordon noted that Canada's current account deficit increased to about $360,000,000 in the first quarter of 1964, a rise of some $76,000,000 from the similar 1963 period.

"We've got to get on the right side," he said, meaning that Canada must strive for a surplus in foreign trade. He also implied by his words that Canada wants an increased amount of U.S. defence production contracts.

Hellyer observed that when a decision is made on a new tactical aircraft, he would want the entire Canadian order produced in Canada. Within the next three weeks a decision would be made on whether a cost-effectiveness study is required before the aircraft is selected. If not, the aircraft study would be completed by mid-September, Hellyer said. Selection of the aircraft then would follow.

Participating in the talks—the first of this kind since 1960—will be Defence Secretary Robert McNamara and Treasury Undersecretary Robert Roosa and a long list of American military and diplomatic officials.

the Commons as he and Mr. Diefenbaker waged each other down.

Mr. Pearson said he asked member of his staff last January to "bring to the attention of the CBC" certain portions of the film that he wanted deleted.

These portions contained controversial statements he did not want to make public, others were "inappropriate, too personal," "bad sequence included a very personal jocular remark" by Mrs. Pearson who was not aware she was being filmed and recorded by a "candid camera."

ASKED DELETION

Another portion the prime minister wanted deleted included a comment about Mr. Diefenbaker by Gerald Pearson, clerk of the Privy Council and Canada's top civil servant. The prime minister said flatly there had been no filming of either a meeting of the cabinet, or a meeting of a cabinet committee. Recording such meetings for public use would be against ministers' oaths of secrecy, and if it were permitted they should resign, Mr. Pearson said.

All that was done was a sequence of ministers gathering in the cabinet meeting's office for informal discussion prior to the meeting that takes place almost daily.

There was no impropriety of any kind in having such pictures taken, Mr. Pearson said. He was sure that when Mr. Diefenbaker was prime minister, similar films were taken.

Mr. Pearson said the CBC made some of the requested deletions, but refused to make others. On Jan. 28 a CBC official had written to the prime minister's office to ask to set aside his agreement with Mr. Ballentine for a veto power over the film.

SET UP PREVIEW

The CBC then set up a preview of the film on April 30 for three cabinet ministers — Trade minister Sharp, External Affairs Minister Martin and Justice Minister MacEachen—and members of the prime minister's staff.

Mr. Person said the government figures made comments about the film to the CBC themselves, but did not communicate them to the CBC. On May 20, the CBC announced that the film was being cancelled because of poor technical standards.

It was Mr. Pearson's first denial of censorship in the film. A censorship issue that has been growing in intensity for the past month. The issue first arose last fall when the Opposition called for his resignation and accused him of censorship.

The prime minister reiterated his hope that the CBC will release the film in its entirety as a film. It had brought him much undeserved publicity and would protect the CBC against charges of any "Canadian television personnel" has had.

He did not say whether he would ask the CBC to telecast the original or the edited version.

The CBC board of directors has been reviewing the matter and is expected to announce a decision today.

The Commons public galleries were packed with spectators for debate and most of Mr. Pearson's office staff watched from the official galleries.

HOPES FOR END

"If this film is shown, I hope that will be the end of the whole matter and we can get on with the business of legislation in the House of Parliament," Mr. Pearson said in conclusion.

Mr. Diefenbaker called on the government to make public the full text of letters from the film producers. He also called for an inquiry by a parliamentary committee where independent producer Richard Ballentine could be called to testify.

He quoted Mr. Ballentine as saying in an interview that he actually filmed a cabinet meeting in progress. This was a violation of cabinet secrecy, Mr. Diefenbaker said.

The Conservative leader said various quotes in the documentary were shown to various government and Liberal party figures 12 times.

"No censorship! What were the ministers there for? It must have been a most enjoyable film because there were 12 reviews.

"In this case the CBC has allowed itself to become the government's cat's paw because the prime minister did not like what he saw."

CHARGES SAID FALSE

Prime Minister Pearson said all charges of government censorship and interference are false."

"The government respected the CBC's editorial independence and had no desire to manipulate the CBC to create a favorable public image for itself.

Mr. Pearson said he would trace the history of the production of the film last fall and winter to dispel the "tainted imagination or calculated malevolence" of the Opposition.

As the sitting began, Deputy Speaker Lucien Lamour ruled against Miss Nielsen PC—Yukon to withdraw his charge that some of Mr. Pearson's recent replies to Opposition questions about the TV film were "false."

Mr. Nielsen made a distinction between telling certain statements lies and saying Mr. Pearson of lying. The prime minister was not satisfied with this explanation and the matter was dropped.

Eldon Woollams PC — Bow River again accused Mr. Pearson of contradicting himself on several occasions and making "false statements."

"Well," the prime minister shot back, "I will leave the honorable member in his gutter where he wallows so readily."

The debate continues today.

in front of the cameras because it could influence others to start smoking. The CMA believes smoking is a cause of lung cancer.

UP TO DOCTORS

Officials said the council believes it is up to individual doctors to speak to television performers about setting an example. The council said the resolution would invade the "field of personal right" of the television performer.

Accepted was a report from the committee on mental health saying that psychiatric services should be integrated with the rest of the medical profession. Dr. C. F. Cahill, head of Montreal, committee chairman, said he hopes to see two things in the future: Centres dealing with mental illness altered to regulate only persons who refuse treatment, abolition of separate mental institutions.

The council also decided on a survey to attempt to reduce paper work at a hospital and to start accrediting mental hospitals.

The council was supposed to have finished its business Wednesday. But it bogged down in discussion and still had some work to clean up today.

Bud Bodkin, vice - president on the local, said Wednesday that police were to blame for most of the violence. He said they made no attempt to explain to pickets that they were only being taken to the police station to be charged and released. They took them away by force.

TWO CHARGED

Constable Chief John Dodgson of Bradford had no comment other than to say two persons had been charged and released on bail.

The workers are seeking a flat rate of $1.75 an hour for both men and women. Men now get $1.20 and women 90 cents.

They are also seeking a company-paid health and life insurance plan, two weeks of paid vacation and nine statutory holidays. They now get one week's vacation and five holidays.

Motorcyclists Fined, Jailed For Wild Party

TORONTO (CP) — Ten-day jail terms and stiff fines brought looks of consternation to the faces of 40 motorcycle club members after their pleas of guilty to being found-ins at a wild Saturday night party.

Fines Wednesday ranged from $50 of $75 or 30 days in jail to $35 or seven days.

Charles Caulfield, 26, of suburban Scarborough was fined $300 or 30 days in jail when he pleaded guilty to permitting drunkenness in his apartment April 4.

When police raided the Saturday night party they found 40 persons, many of them teenagers and most of them members of motorcycle clubs.

Twenty-two police officers arrested the motorcyclists and girls found in the raid shortly before midnight. There were 106 charges laid.

Magistrate Hartley Butler told Caulfield: "You are no asset as a father, as a citizen or as a householder."

Constable Arthur Machmer testified most of the found-ins were intoxicated.

"Some of them were trying to dance," he said.

SEIZE LIQUOR

Police seized 108 full bottles of beer and 224 empties.

Of the 52 arrested—37 males and 15 females—four were juveniles, 17 and 18 years old.

Nille other charges against Caulfield were withdrawn and $10 charges against his wife, Edith, 19, were withdrawn. Ten charges against William Mc-Kay, 21, were also withdrawn. Kay pleaded guilty to an 11th charge of being a found-in and was fined $50.

Magistrate Butler learned the Caulfields had moved since the party. He ordered that their residence a public place within the meaning of the Liquor Control Act for one year.

The council also decided on a survey to attempt to reduce paper work at a hospital and to start accrediting mental hospitals.

The council was supposed to have finished its business Wednesday. But it bogged down in discussion and still had some work to clean up today.

Indians Honor Nehru's Memory

BOMBAY (CP)—As Indians busily recover from the shock of Jawaharlal Nehru's death, there is a spontaneous movement all over the country to honor the prime minister's memory.

Though Nehru considered himself an "agnostic and humanitarian" (Jawahar "temples) have been set up in many Indian villages.

In one village in central India, villagers have made a clay idol of the former prime minister and installed it in the local Hindu temple besides the idol of Lord Krishna, the Hindu god.

At least 1,000 newborn Indian babies have been given the name Jawahar.

In a New Delhi maternity home, all seven women who became mothers the day Nehru died have named their children after him.

The village of Jaran in Gujarat state has been renamed Jawahar — Nagar, (Nagar of Jawahar). Its 1,600 residents have decided not to hold any festivities in the village as this meant the cancellation of two dozen weddings.

Fifty school and college boys in Poona, near Bombay, have shaved off their hair in accordance with an ancient Hindu mourning custom.

WOMAN SHAVES HEAD

Mrs. Shanta Ammal, the 22-year-old mother of the chairman of the ruling Congress party, has shaved off her hair as a mark of affection for Nehru, whom she described as "my uncle."

The former prime minister's residence in New Delhi is to be turned into a national monument. Besides relics of Nehru's personal life, the monument will have a science museum, a child welfare centre and a permanent exhibition on Indian economic progress.

The Indian education ministry has decided to institute a Jawaharlal Nehru Award (for international) understanding. Valued at 100,000 rupees ($21,000), the award will be given annually to a distinguished world citizen on a record of service to the cause of peaceful co-existence among nations.

An institute of social democracy is also to be set up in the Indian capital. It will train young leaders in the tenets of democratic socialism and Gandhian service which were the passions of Nehru's long political life.

Almost every sizable Indian town is to have a bust or statue of Nehru in its public square. Paradoxically enough, Nehru, who loved Indian trees, the idea of erecting statues, called it "a useless preoccupation."

RECOMMENDS SCHOOLS

WINNIPEG (CP) — Anglican bishop of Saskatchewan recommended Wednesday that the Anglican church establish a separate school system similar to that operated by the Roman Catholic Church. Bishop William H. Crump of Prince Albert said in a report tabled at the church's Prairie province synod that the change must be made "in view of the almost complete secularization of education in our whole school system."

Art Richardson, a patrol spokesman, said officers would start out on foot today from Philadelphia to comb the entire concession block.

Comedian Dick Gregory offered $25,000 as a reward for information that would lead to those responsible for the mysterious disappearance of Schwerner, Goodman and Chaney. Gregory said he borrowed the money from a Chicago magazine publisher.

In Washington, some 2,000 delegates to the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People convention marched around the justice department building in silent protest over the disappearance of the trio.

Many carried signs reading: "Stop Mississippi terror," "Justice department must protect American rights."

There were also protest demonstrations in Chicago, Baltimore and New York.

He said this would make highly - trained staff and the most modern equipment generally available at reasonable cost and increase the standard of welfare throughout the province.

The conference has been generally staid and stable until Chevrolier Hanipiel introduced his motion on the Red Ensign.

He was booed, shouted down, officially ruled out of order and finally ordered to take his seat before he gave up the floor.

Mr. Hampiel said the reaction was part of a plot to prevent him from being heard. He is also Albert Hampiel of Scarborough and Reeve Lorien Kuratis of Swansea, both the mother and mayor Vincent Barrie of St. Thomas and Mayor Gordon Bramach of London participated in the plot.

He said he would seek support in the Toronto council for a motion to withdraw the city from the association.

APPROVE ELM MOTION

The association also passed a resolution asking provincial legislation to enable municipalities to expropriate diseased elm trees owners fail to do so and charge them for the cost.

The association also decided to seek legislation to make municipal taxes deductible from federal and provincial taxes payable income; asked for legislation to allow municipalities to apply a uniform rate to all motels and similar accommodation and approved a resolution that would have liquor regulations in a municipality apply to any municipality it annexed.

Small Number of Canadians Stay in Florida Illegally

By JOE McGOWAN Jr.

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—When the snow in Canada is knee deep, the warm, white sand on a Florida beach becomes most attractive.

Thousands of Canadians head for Florida each winter. Some come for a two-week vacation and a hurried sun tan. Others stay several months.

And a small number try to extend their stay—illegally.

This group has become the No. 1 case load for the U.S. Border Patrol, far surpassing any work which resulted from the Cuban situation. It is so, despite Florida's nearness to Latin America and distance from Canada.

"Every winter we have an influx of this type of Canadian—we call them snowbirds," said Edward P. Ahrens, district immigration director. "They come down here to be with the wealthy.

"When it's below zero in Toronto, you can bet they're looking south. They get to Florida and then they forget their visitor status.

Ahrens emphasized that the offenders are few among the great number of Canadians who visit Florida each winter.

"As a class, Canadians present no problem—they are fine people," Ahrens said, adding that relations between the two countries has been as good that "no actual record of Canadian visitors is kept at the entry points."

NO VISA NEEDED

Canadians don't need a visa or a passport to enter the United States. They must be prepared to show proof of Canadian citizenship. A six-month stay is permitted without any paperwork.

"But it is a fact that looking for and catching Canadian violators is the Border Patrol's chief job in Florida," Ahrens said.

"We find that the sneaky ones usually have previous immigration records or criminal records. Some are deserters from the Canadian Army."

Ahrens said American authorities have close liaison with Canadian officials, including the Royal Canadian Mounted Police. Information on persons fleeing Canadian justice is quickly passed to law enforcement officials on this side of the border.

The Canadians who cause trouble were divided into three major categories:

1. Those who come down to fleece the wealthy winter Florida visitors.

2. Those who want to live in the United States and try to get jobs here.

3. Those wanted for crimes in Canada or elsewhere.

"We haven't a record of a single Cuban who has sneaked into the country during the present Castro situation," Ahrens said.

By contrast, he reported that 231 Canadians were sought out and arrested for deportation in 1963.

Arrests of Canadians taper off in the summer, build up in the fall and reach a peak in January.

'One Giant Farm' of a Province

By ED WALTERS

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — The Micmac Indians called it Abegweit, meaning Cradled on the Wave. Present-day Prince Edward Islanders share the Indians' liking for poetically descriptive names, calling their island home the Garden of the Gulf and the Cradle of Confederation.

All three metaphors suit the island, 140 miles long and four to 40 miles wide lying in the Gulf of St. Lawrence.

It is separated from eastern New Brunswick and northern Nova Scotia by the Northumberland Strait, a channel rived through solid land by glaciers at the last ice age 30,000 years ago.

The rich, red soil of Prince Edward Island is ideal for growing things. The island is poetically one giant farm. Agriculture is the largest industry, valued at about $30,000,000 annually.

Potatoes are the main crop, giving the smallest of Canadian provinces its only unpoetic nickname, Spud Island.

First and usually lasting impression of the 2,184-square-mile island on visitors is the gentleness of its topography. Highest point above sea level is 500 feet. The face of the land rolls with easy undulations.

MILD CLIMATE

Its coastline, though irregular and indented by numerous tidal streams, is not rugged. Pink, red and white beaches abound, many being 500 to 1,000 feet wide at low tide.

The temperate climate and what islanders claim is the warmest water north of Florida attract tourists. Average temperature of the sea water in summer around northern beaches is 70 degrees.

Daytime temperatures on land are normal summer weather average 70 degrees and at night 55 degrees.

The island's claim to being the Cradle of Confederation stems from the first meeting of the Fathers of Confederation here in September, 1864 of the Fathers of Confederation from which sprang the Dominion of Canada in 1867.

This year Prince Edward Island is celebrating the 100th anniversary of this meeting. Highlighting the celebration will be the Queen's visit in October, for whom she will officially open the new Fathers of Confederation Memorial Buildings in Charlottetown.

The island, which attracted more than 375,000 tourists in 1963 expects more than 320,000 this year. The tourist industry is the province's second largest, earning about $10,000,000 annually.

The population of 107,000 includes 18,000 French - speaking residents. Professor Antoni Blanchard, who at 32 still has a keen interest in Acadian history, describes their language as beautiful. "It is ancient French badly pronounced," he says. "But it is not a patois."

The rest of the population mainly is descended from Highlah, Scottish and Irish settlers. Since the Second World War a number of Dutch families have settled here.

Pace of life is noticeably unhurried and speed limits are low on the province's 2,000 miles of highways. Wages are lower than in most Canadian centres but cost of living appears correspondingly low. For instance, a haircut which costs $1.25 in Halifax is 75 cents in Charlottetown.

CITY GOES MODERN

With a population of 18,500, Charlottetown, the capital, is the largest city. It is the island's commercial and trading centre on the island. Founded in 1763 overlooking Hillsborough Bay in the centre of the south shore it was chosen as the capital by Capt. Samuel Holland, Canada's first surveyor.

Many sections of the downtown area are unlovely, but old wooden buildings gradually are being replaced by more modern structures. The city boasts many beauty spots around its outskirts.

The only other large centre or urban population is Summerside which has 7,343 people.

The island was discovered by Jacques Cartier in 1534 and later was settled by the French who called it Ile St. Jean. Before the white men upset things, the Micmacs used to spend the summer month fishing on the island. In the fall they would return to the mainland in canoes.

It passed into the hands of the English in 1758. The earliest settlers were attracted as much by the abundance of fish as by fertility of the soil. Farming is the province's third largest industry, earning $5,000,000 a year.

Rise of Soviet Consumer Impresses Western Visitors

By JOHN BEST

MOSCOW (CP) — It was a comfortably warm Friday morning. A couple of dozen people waited out side a medium-size hardware store in an apartment district on Moscow's east side.

Promptly at 11 a.m. the doors were opened and the shoppers filed into the store where they proceeded to buy a variety of durable goods, many freshly uncrated.

The people were obviously in a buying mood, a mood that contributes to one of the strongest impressions of a Westerner newly arrived in Moscow—the rise of the Soviet consumer.

To a growing extent, one is told, the demand of the Russian people for goods of all descriptions is being satisfied as the government pursues its policy of allowing Soviet citizens more of what, in this context, can be called the good things of life.

A byproduct of the new situation is a growing assertiveness on the part of the consumer, the beginnings of a tendency to take many more things for granted.

A built-in brake on the buying sprees is the price level which, in many lines, notably food, remains forbiddingly high.

FRUIT EXPENSIVE

Citrus fruits provide a striking example. In early June oranges were selling at one ruble, 40 kopecks a kilogram, or $1.61 at the official exchange rate of 83 kopecks to the Canadian dollar.

A kilogram is 2.21 pounds, so you might get five oranges for the equivalent of $1.37, or 10 for $2.07, depending on the size of the fruit.

Soviet officials tell you that commodity prices are offset by the low cost of living accommodation. The foreigner who pays the equivalent of $600 a year for a three - room apartment here is paying a lot by Soviet standards.

Many Russians pay only three or four per cent of their income for accommodation, but there is also quality to consider. Many Moscow families have what amounts to only a single room to live in, and not a very spacious room at that.

In the hardware store that morning the emphasis was on plumbing fixtures, of which a wide variety was offered. Wrapping procedures were informal. One lady bought a kitchen sink and walked out with it in a sack she had brought with her.

There was also a good trade in door locks, perhaps a reflection of a new-found feeling for privacy among Soviet citizens, associated with the growing availability of living space and the slowly diminishing need of families to double up in a single small apartment.

USE PREFABS

A symbol of the brisk pace of construction in and around the capital is the giant crane which hoists prefabricated units into position in the building of hotels and apartment blocks. In some areas the shells or entire rooms are placed in position one by one in a cell-like growth process that suggests the building of a beehive.

Another feature of the Soviet scene that strikes the newcomer is the female laborer. No matter how much one has read about it, he is still surprised when he comes to Russia and sees women working with shovels, sweeping streets or operating in heavy construction work.

Women also hold down a wide range of desk jobs and executive positions, operating with no lack of self-confidence and yielding or asking no quarter by reason of their sex.

A steady stream of Western tourists passes through Moscow on well-staged, well-supervised tours arranged by Intourist, the state travel agency. Russia is going all out this year to attract more of the lucrative, dollar-earning travel business. All-inclusive "deluxe" tours cost $33 a day for an individual traveller although much lower rates are available to members of group tours.

U.S. Appears Facing Closest Approach to General War Since the Korean Conflict

SAIGON (AP) — The United States appears facing its closest approach to a general war in Asia since the close of hostilities in Korea in 1953.

President Johnson has appointed his highest - ranking soldier to take charge in the hottest of the Asian hot spots —South Viet Nam. Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor knows his way around in these parts, and there is no doubt he is coming primarily to head a war effort that could lead to a head-on collision with Peking or even Moscow.

It seems unlikely Taylor's appointment will result in any major changes in the balance and organization of U.S. support efforts here.

Since 1961, the involvement of U.S. manpower in Viet Nam has been overwhelmingly military — especially at the working level, in the field.

With some small anticipated increases, U.S. civilian field workers will number about no more than 200 men and women. Of these, roughly 150 are field representatives of the U.S. aid mission, charged not only with distributing aid locally but with pursuing political, social and educational projects at the rice-roots level.

WORKERS FROM U.S.

Another 50 or so American field workers come from the U.S. Information Agency and the Central Intelligence Agency.

On the military side more than 16,000 of the 18,000 U.S. servicemen are in the field. Besides advising the Vietnamese on military matters, they work closely with Vietnamese rural officials in civil matters.

Psychological warfare, military intelligence and even some firms of civilian contractors are handled by military men.

There are no immediate prospects for increasing the number of U.S. servicemen here.

The significance of Taylor's job appears to be in that context. As co-ordinator of the entire American effort here, he could take over instantly as commander of the Vietnamese theatre if a major war should develop.

South Viet Nam has what appears to be an increasingly stable military dictatorship. Its leader, Maj. - Gen. Nguyen Khanh has promised to hold tight to the reins of power. He has shown an all-out willingness to co-operate with the U.S. allies. Relations between the Saigon government and Washington have not been so good in years.

But the Viet Cong has made steady advances. It has mounted a dangerous new offensive in Laos, and has built important diplomatic points in neighboring Cambodia. Washington apparently has decided the military command. But Premier Khanh said recently this question is not a problem to be examined if the situation changed.

He was talking about a general who is junior to Taylor, developed, Khanh and Taylor presumably would become co-commanders.

Taylor comes with the knowledge that Washington probably is willing to go to war even with Communist China itself. This knowledge has led to many of the restrictions on U.S. servicemen here.

Another big way, Taylor is expected to serve as over-all commander of a co-ordinated military and civilian establishment, with no clear line of distinction between them.

Anson Junction Was Created By Central Ontario Railway Crossing Grand Trunk Track

By BILL SEYMOUR

The question asked by numerous persons this past week has been: "Where is Anson Junction?"

By now a number of people, especially school children, know the answer. They have been taken on a special train to this historic centre.

For the benefit of those who do not know where it is, we shall attempt to tell you. Take highway No. 14 from Belleville to Stirling. Drive west on the main street of Stirling until you reach the Campbellford highway. Drive north on the Campbellford highway (crossing the CNR track) for a distance of approximately two and one half miles until you come to the second railway track.

Park your car in a convenient place on either side of the track; now walk west across the highway beside the railway track and some distance down you will see a small building beside the tracks. The track in connection by that building is Anson Junction.

How did Anson Junction get its name?

A farmer by the name of Anson Cummings lived on a farm to the east of the Junction, now occupied by Douglas Campbell. The junction is located on a farm owned by Mr. Cummings' brother, Gilbert, (that is to say the Grand Trunk Railway tracks) ran through both farms.

It was decided by citizens in the immediate area to name the junction after Anson. They carried it a little further. There was to be a post office too.

Mr. Cummings was born on March 23rd, 1832 and he died on March 23rd, 1898. In his younger days, Mr. Cummings was an avid hunter and even as he grew older he loved to go into the woods with his gun and hunting dog.

In speaking with Mr. and Mrs. F. Hutchinson who live adjacent to Anson Junction, much interesting information was brought to light.

AGREEMENT SIGNED

In March, 1883, an important agreement between the Grand Trunk Railway (known then as the Midland Railway) and the Central Ontario Railway was signed. The two railways crossed at Anson junction.

The agreement stated that at all times the Midland Railway trains would have the right-of-way. It was built there first, so its trains took priority at the crossing.

Secondly, it stated that the Midland Railway would supply the men to operate the station but the Central Ontario Railway would have to supply the oil, heat and wages for the two signal men.

After the signing of the agreement, a signal man and agent started to work at the station on May 20th, 1883. Alex McMullin and John Penrose.

Mr. McMullen was Mrs. Hutchinson's father.

At that time the station was a one-room building and the two men worked 12 hour shifts. As the railway grew so did the necessity for a larger station. A second station was built, and which however, proved to be too small in 1898 and so during anniversary this July.

that year the old Rawdon Station, located near Wellman's Corners, was brought down by rail and there it stood at Anson Junction until it was demolished in 1940.

LATEST STATION AGENT

Mrs. Hutchinson, who was born in a house which still stands near Anson Junction, can recall many instances as a little girl when her father was station agent at Anson. Mrs. Hutchinson still lives in the house in which she was born.

Part of their home, built in 1895, was used as the Anson post office. It was closed in 1913 when the Royal Mail service took over. Directly to the east of it was located Chard's General Store, which sat alongside the tracks. It was operated from 1883 to 1899. Then, just to the east of the store was located Anson Cummings' farm. On the opposite side of the highway is the home that was occupied by Mr. Penrose.

Supplies were left at the general store by the trains passing through. The store was located close enough to the track that supplies could be taken directly from the train into the store. A grain storage bin was located at the rear. Up until about 1926, farmers in the area shipped their livestock from this point to Toronto. The old store has since been moved across the road to the John Holmes residence. It was put atop a high cement wall and is used as a garage.

In 1912, a new station agent came to Anson junction in the person of Frank E. Hutchinson, who retained the post until 1939.

In 1914, Mr. Hutchinson married Miss Maude Mercy, eldest daughter, Hazel McMullen. Mr. and Mrs. Hutchinson will be celebrating their 50th wedding anniversary this July.

Large Number Join in Service To 'The Beaver'

By ALAN WALKER

LONDON (CP)—A large congregation in St. Paul's Cathedral joined in hymns and prayers Wednesday at a solemn memorial service for Lord Beaverbrook. Canadian - born publisher who died June 9.

Lord Denham, representing the Queen, took the traditional solitary red velvet seat at the front of the congregation and put his black top hat and furled umbrella on the floor.

Behind him on brown wicker chairs sat Commonwealth diplomats, politicians and Fleet Street editors and publishers who had been close to Lord Beaverbrook throughout his long career in England's street of ink until his death at 85.

Lord Rosebery, 52, who had been an especially close friend of The Beaver, gave the address from a scarlet and golden podium at the front of the immense stone cathedral.

"We are here to pay tribute to one of the most remarkable men who has lived in our time," Lord Rosebery said slowly as his words echoed around the columns and side-aisles of the venerable place of worship that dates back to the seventh century.

RECALLS FAST

Lord Rosebery spoke of Lord Beaverbrook's birth in Ontario and his early years in New Brunswick. He then referred to came to Britain and bought a near-bankrupt newspaper that he turned into the Daily Express with a circulation of more than 4,000,000.

Lady Beaverbrook attended the service along with many members of the Beaverbrook family. Lord Beaverbrook's Lord Beaverbrook's last year was brightened greatly by his wife, the widow of Canadian industrialist Sir James Dunn.

"It was typically owing to her untiring devotion that he lived so long."

Dark - garbed people filled most of the cathedral. But in unreserved seats at the back gaily-dressed tourists contrasted oddly with the sombre men and women in the rest of the seats.

More curious tourists gathered outside to see the dignitaries pass. One old man with a beard grew right in fear of being left behind in the therapeutic race.

"I sell his papers over on that corner," was the reply.

REPRESENTS HOME

Quinten Hogg, 55, president of the council, represented Prime Minister Douglas-Home. Sir Max Aitken, Lord Beaverbrook's son and heir, sat with Lady Beaverbrook.

Lady Churchill represented Sir Winston; Lord Avon — formerly Prime Minister Sir Anthony Eden—and his wife also were there.

Chief Canadian in attendance was the high commissioner in London, Lionel Chevrier. Louis Robichaud, premier of New Brunswick, led a delegation from Beaverbrook's adopted province.

Among the newspaper men present was Lord Bleasdon of Fleet, also a native of Canada.

Pearson Gives Chronological Account of Involvement in Film Production to House

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson Wednesday gave the Commons a detailed chronological account of his involvement in the production of the controversial CBC film, Mr. Pearson.

He said the project was started last September on the initiative of CBC producer Ross McLean, and was cancelled May 5 on the initiative of senior CBC officials.

He denied that he or the government influenced the CBC's decisions, but disclosed that he and some of his advisers saw "rough drafts" of the film and suggested some changes.

Here is the prime minister's account in summary:

Mr. McLean first suggested a candid, intimate documentary on a day in the public and personal life of the prime minister. He broached his proposal early last September in a telephone conversation with Diefenbaker and O'Hagan, the prime minister's press secretary.

Mr. McLean followed this up Sept. 9 with a letter to Mr. O'Hagan in which he asked permission to film such a program. He said new "arrangements for review" by the prime minister would be made to protect his privacy and government secrets.

PEARSON HESITATED

"Well, I still hesitated," the prime minister said, "and was conscious that this might be a difficult, indeed an impossible operation, for a government corporation.

"And I don't mind admitting that I was hesitant and had been more prolonged and had resulted in a negative decision."

The CBC then discussed the matter with Toronto firm, InterVideo Productions, headed by Richard Ballentine, to begin shooting of film and recording conversations in Mr. Pearson's office and at his official residence. Mr. Pearson learned only weeks later that InterVideo and not the CBC was tackling the assignment.

On Sept. 23 Mr. Ballentine wrote to the prime minister to remove his doubts about the merit of the film.

"The finished film," the producer wrote, "will be yours to judge when you choose. It is to be made public and, thus, will contain nothing to which you object."

Mr. Pearson agreed to this condition and intensive filming continued for several days. The TV crew recorded informal discussion between cabinet ministers, in the office and in cabinet meeting as the opposition had charged.

VICTORIA DAY DRAFT

All this was done on the understanding that the CBC would exclude from the program all which the prime minister objected to. On Victoria Day Pearson saw a "rough first draft" of film at CBC studios in Toronto. The prime minister found some sequences "inappropriate" and asked a member of his staff to ask the producer to cut them out.

They (film and tape sequences) were inappropriate because they were too personal. And there were one or two others which referred, in conversations with ministers, to matters which I thought should not be made public."

Sometime in January an edited version of the film was shown to members of Mr. Pearson's staff. "Certain of the deletions which I had brought to the attention of the producer had been made. Other deletions had not been made."

The CBC was asked to cut out more portions, especially those recording a "very personal lecture remark" by Mrs. Pearson, comments by Labor Minister MacEachen about a dock strike in Montreal and comments by Privy Council Secretary Gordon Robertson about Mr. Diefenbaker.

Another version of the film was previewed Jan. 21 for the prime minister and some aides in the Parliament Buildings. Mr. Pearson watched for 10 or 15 minutes then left for another engagement.

When he returned from a Washington trip he learned that some deletions he had requested still had not been made by the producer.

On Jan. 28, Reeves Hagan, CBC public affairs director, wrote to the prime minister and asked that the veto arrangement suggested in September by Mr. Ballentine "be now put aside and that the program be completed in accordance with the normal practices and practices of the CBC."

Mr. Hagan added that the prime minister was "fully entitled to raise objections" to selected items on his private life or government secrets.

On April 30, the CBC previewed still another version of the film for three cabinet ministers (Labor Minister MacEachen, External Affairs Minister Martin and Trade Minister Sharp) and some of Mr. Pearson's aides and their wives and secretaries. The prime minister himself could not attend.

"It was a decidedly normal procedure," he said.

CANCEL PROGRAM

The film was commented on the film but did not express their views to the CBC. On May 5, a CBC official told the prime minister's office and said senior officials had decided to cancel the program.

On May 30, the CBC announced the cancellation in a press statement. CBC Vice-President Ron Fraser said in an interview that the decision was not up to CBC technical standards—the sound, lighting, camera work and editing all were poor.

Mr. Hagan said in another interview that the film was a question of government or pressure.

On Wednesday, the CBC board of directors met in Ottawa to review the whole matter and consider Mr. Pearson's request of last week that the film be shown to end the controversy and charges of censorship.

The board was expected to announce its decision today.

4 Young Ottawa Children Beaten, Whipped at Picnic

OTTAWA (CP) — City police have questioned four — five teen-agers in connection with the beating and whipping of four young Ottawa children attending a school picnic in a west-end park Monday.

"Somebody will be put into a position where they can be disciplined," said Police Chief Reg Axcell.

"This sort of thing rarely happens although the molesting of children by perverts is not uncommon. It all depends on how bad you view this incident."

Police said three girls and a young boy were attacked by teen-age boys.

Two of the girls said they were struck with what they called a whip.

"We don't know what it was—a whip, a cord or a switch," said Deputy Police Chief Ab Cavan.

TWISTED ARM

The third girl said the boys twisted her arm.

The boy who was attacked said he was knocked into some bushes by a group of teenagers.

None of the children required medical attention.

The children, three of them girls of about 10 years old, were attending a St. George's School picnic in the west-end Park and Ride Drive in West Ottawa when the assaults took place.

Said one unidentified mother: "Two boys held my little girl, one on each side, and put their fingers in her mouth and stretching her lips down so she could not bite. They struck her with whips with thongs and beat her."

Parents said the children were left with welts on their backs.

One parent was critical of the Parent-Teachers Association — "the responsible people are trying to brush this off as a minor incident." she said. "But my child was both physically and mentally hurt by this. She thought these young men were going to kill her."

Peter Burtyn, vice - president of the PTA, said he did not realize the incidents were as serious at first as they later turned out to be.

"We notified police as soon as we returned home," he said.

Prince Charles Gets Hairnet, Judged Worse Than Beatles

LONDON (CP)—The British Safety Council said today it is sending a hairnet to Prince Charles because they are worried about the example he was setting with "a near-Beatle hairstyle."

The council expressed "extreme worry" about the haircut of the 15-year-old son of the Queen. Although his hairstyle is not as outrageous as another popular Britain, his is an example "regrettably" more likely to be followed, the council said.

The council is worried about the vastly increasing number of industrial accidents in Britain caused by long-hair and they have created the Absalom Award to publicize their campaign.

The council campaigns for safety at work. It says long hair often gets caught in machines. The victim is usually scalped.

Prince Charles took to a Beatle cut this past year, at the same time an electric guitar and professional-type drum kit were delivered to Windsor Castle.

The council, supported by trade from industry and government departments, said it is sending the hairnet to the prince's school at Gordonstoun, Scotland.

It explained that the prince gets the hairnet as No 8 on its blacklist of prominent people who wear long hair and thus set a dangerous example.

The first five places on the list go to the five members of the Rolling Stones, a beat group whose shaggy hair makes the Beatles look bald.

Sixth comes Screaming Lord Sutch, the distinguished pop star, with comedian Ken Dodd seventh.

Charles takes the No. 8 spot with the Beatles ranked joint ninth.

(Absolom was the third son of King David who was killed by his enemies after being trapped by his hair in a tree.)

The hairnet for the heir to the British throne will be sent mounted on an illustration of Absalom, hanging by his hair from a tree.

The council quoted psychologist Dr. Joshua Bierer on why the long-hair fashion has caught on.

His view: "The boys think that long hair is a sign of virility. They are not interested in what other people think, only that they are convinced in their own minds that they look virile.

"The root of the long hair craze is a desire by the youths for an over-identification with their mothers."

'Planted Articles' on Drugs Paid for Says Professor

VANCOUVER (CP) — Drug manufacturers pay for "planted articles" in leading publications dealing with new product, a professor said Wednesday.

Dr. Jesse D. Rising mentioned the articles as he warned doctors not to be stampeded by patient pressure into using unproven drugs in fear of being left behind in the therapeutic race.

He outlined some "abuses" in drug advertising and said doctors seeking information on new drugs are swamped with information.

In a speech to the annual convention of the Canadian Medical Association, Dr. Rising, professor of medicine and associate professor of pharmacology at the University of Kansas school of medicine, said the makers of new drug products have "little or no value."

Patients almost daily request doctors to give them the latest miracle drug, he said, and many doctors say jokingly they have to read leading periodicals to keep up with advances in drug therapy.

"It seems not to be understood by physicians that pharmaceutical manufacturers employ advertising agencies that in turn commission writers to prepare stories about their products for publication in leading magazines and news-papers.

"These planted articles have all the appearance of being genuine news stories or accounts of scientific progress in medicine, and lead patients to put pressure on their physicians to employ the latest miracle drug in their treatment.

"It is indeed a stoical physician who is not tempted to hurry up and use the drug for fear of depriving his patients of the latest scientific therapy."

In a press conference later Dr. Rising said he does not believe that every article on drugs is planted "but I would assume was planted for the protection of my patients."

He said doctors should await authoritative resume on a new drug, whether they have to wait two weeks or 20 years.

He said doctors should use this motto: "If in doubt, don't use it."

Youth Column

Demand Grows Across Canada That Vote Be Given to Youth

by BEN WARD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Agitation to give 18-year-olds the right to vote in federal and provincial elections is gaining momentum in Canada.

Four of the 10 provinces have already reduced the provincial voting age from 21 to teen-age levels, a fifth is on the verge of it, and action at the federal level is likely in the not-too-distant future.

There are some notable holdouts, however, and the battle is far from over. The tradition that 21 is the age of maturity—political as well as physical—appears to be dying hard.

A Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press showed this situation:

—Quebec and Saskatchewan give the vote at 18.

—British Columbia and Alberta set it at 19.

—Newfoundland is in the process of enacting legislation for voting at 19.

—Ontario's cabinet has discussed the idea of reducing the voting age.

—Moves to lower the voting age were defeated last year in the Nova Scotia and Manitoba legislatures.

—Servicemen may vote federally at any age.

OTTAWA TO ACT

Federal legislation to lower the voting age from 21 to 18 is one of the election pledges the Pearson government has promised to fulfil during the 26th Parliament, which could run until early 1968.

A tip that action might come sooner was seen last November when the Commons committee on privileges and elections voted unanimously to recommend such a move. The committee's report was given to the Commons but has not come up for consideration.

Prime Minister Pearson told a Young Liberals' meeting in Montreal May 6 that he planned to act on the measure "soon."

Approval by Parliament would add 780,000 names to federal voters' lists. There now are 7,000,000 eligible voters in the 21-and-over category.

Federal action might lead to extra pressure on the provinces to grant the vote at 18.

Sample reaction across the country tends to favor voting by the younger set. Proponents argue that with today's growing stress on education, an 18-year-old has a better grasp of national affairs—both on the historic and current standpoint—than the average adult.

GIRL WITH DOUBTS

Not all young people themselves are not unanimous in favoring a lower voting age.

"I don't think it would be a good idea unless' restrictions were placed on it, such as high school graduation," says Evelyn Weir, 17-year-old student in Sault Ste. Marie, Ont.

"I don't think in many cases a person 18 or 19 is competent to form opinions, yet I think that if a person is old enough to give his life for his country he should have some say in the government. People in the armed forces should have the vote."

Mrs. Carolyne Morrison, Conservative member of the Manitoba legislature, says:

"I firmly believe that our young people at 18, at least the legislature has been pressing Mr. Smallwood to go all the way now.

NO DECISION

Politically, that situation is reversed in Ontario where the Liberal and New Democratic parties have been urging the Conservative government to go to 18. Ontario Attorney-General Arthur Wishart says there have been cabinet discussions but no policy has been decided.

Those backing a lower voting age insist that 18 - year - olds would be encouraged to become even more politically informed if given the vote.

Apart from stock arguments about 18-year-olds already being asked to fight for their country and pay taxes, there are these observations:

John A. Hamilton, Stratford, C.I., high school principal: "Kids are informed enough to fill the time and I think today they are more intelligent as a group. Most people at 18 today have a good idea of where they are going."

Dr. D. B. Blewett, professor of psychology at the University of Saskatchewan: "Universal kids are informed enough to make a wise decision in the polling booths much further (than 18) you can go, I'm just not sure."

Mark Smerchanski, Liberal member of the Manitoba legislature: "Why not 18? I can tell you that people are more immature at the age of 26 or 30 or 46. The youth of today are far more Westernized than some of our middle-aged people."

Angels' Smith Still In Winning 'Rut'

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Willie Smith is in a rut, and Los Angeles Angels hope it gets deeper.

Smith, a refugee from the pitcher's mound, delivered the game-winning hit for the third consecutive night as the Angels whipped Washington Senators 9-5 Wednesday.

The newly coverted outfielder drove in five runs with a homer and a triple, lifting Los Angeles to its eighth straight American League victory, longest streak in the majors this season and longest in the team's 39-year history.

The home run, his third came in the seventh inning after Vic Power singled and Jim Fregosi walked and wiped out a 5-3 deficit. He added a triple in the eighth, again sending in Power and Fregosi.

The night before, the 25-year-old Smith socked a two-run homer for a 2-0 Angels' victory and Monday night he singled home the deciding run.

The Angels' spurt still leaves them in eighth place but has placed them only two games away from fifth. A victory over Kansas City tonight or Friday would vault them into a tie for sixth.

Smith's latest performance was an abbreviated one — he didn't enter the game until the fifth inning. Still he raised his batting average 21 points to .340 and increased his RBI total to 16 in 30 times at bat.

ORIOLES BEAT YANKEES

In other AL games, Baltimore Orioles defeated New York Yankees 7-4, Chicago White Sox trounced Boston Red Sox 8-1, Detroit Tigers battered Kansas City 9-3 and Minnesota Twins nipped Cleveland Indians 3-2 after losing 13-3.

Smith wasn't the only big hitter for the Angels. Power hit safely four times and Jim Piersall and Bob Perry each each. Dick Phillips had three hits for the Senators. Reliever Bob Lee picked up his fourth victory, all against Washington.

A three-base throwing error by relief pitcher Stan Williams in the eighth inning led to the Yankees' downfall. The error came on a bunt by Willie Kirkland with two men on, none out and the score tied 4-4.

Williams, trying for a force at third, flipped the ball into left field, permitting Bob Services and Jerry Adair to score. Kirkland raced to third from where he scored on Dick Hall's bunt.

Gary Peters hurled a five-hitter for his eighth victory against three defeats for Chicago. Ron Hansen's two-run inside-the-park homer in the four run first sparked the triumph. Boston rookie Tony Conigliaro fell into the left field stands trying to catch Hansen's drive.

Conigliaro was knocked unconscious for a while but recovered before going to the hospital where preliminary x-rays revealed bruises of the left ankle, knee cap and wrist.

The Tigers outslugged the Athletics on the hitting of Gates Brown and Dick McAuliffe. Brown hit two homers for three runs batted in while McAuliffe drove in three with two singles and a homer. Rocky Colavito fourth inning with a three-run spurted a five-run Kansas City homer.

Max Alvis led the Indians' first-game attack, hitting two homers, one a grand slam in the six-run third. Dick Stigman gave up six hits and struck out 12 in the Twins' triumph as Sam McDowell lost his first game after winning three.

Suns Win

Leafs Blank Virginians

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

When Milwaukee Braves called up Chi Chi Oliva from Toronto Maple Leafs earlier this week, Bill Gaul of Syracuse Chiefs took over the distinction of being the pitcher with the best won-lost record in the league.

Paul owned a 5-0 mark when Oliva, undefeated in nine decisions, left for the National League.

But Paul's glory didn't last long. He ran into the league-leading Jacksonville Suns Wednesday and wound up with his first defeat of the season. The Suns won 4-3 on Bob Lipski's three-run, second-inning homer.

The second-place Leafs followed suit on Ron Piche's five-hitter as the Verdun, Que., nativ blanked Richmond Virginians 3-0. A pair of seventh-inning home runs by Bob Sadowski and Jim McKnight supplied the Toronto runs.

Questions Hang Over Wimbledon

By AUBREY HIGGS

LONDON (Reuters) — Two questions hang over the fourth day's play in the Wimbledon lawn tennis championships today—one medical and one political.

The medical question involved the injured foot of diminutive Manuel Santana of Spain, the No. 3 seed in the men's singles.

Santana strained his achilles tendon during the closing stages of yesterday's second - round match with Russia's Toomas Leius and if it seemed likely he would be unable to continue into the third round match scheduled for today.

Santana said after the match, in which he handily beat the Russian 6-4, 6-2, 6-2, that he was not optimistic about playing today because the injury was "very painful."

The Spaniard was scheduled to play fourth-ranked American Gene Scott, in the third round which would reduce the men's singles to 32 players.

RACE MATCH SET

One of the big matches in the centre court today was between Canadian Maureen Mills Batkin of Montreal and unranked Bob Hewitt of Australia who both pulled off upsets in the second round.

Batkin, an 18-year-old resident of Miami the last four years, defeated South Africa's No. 1 player, Cliff Drysdale, 7-5, 3-6, 6-4. Hewitt upset Sweden's countryman Martin Mulligan, No. 8 seed, 6-4, 8-3, 6-4.

The political question hanging over Wimbledon came up because the draw today pits Russian Alex Metreveli against South African Abe Segal.

The Russians said last week that they would not play against a South African because they would walk out on the tournament as a protest against South Africa's apartheid (racial segregation) policy.

FRALLEN FALLS

In addition to Mulligan, another seeded player, Italy's tall Nicola Pietrangeli (No. 7) fell by the wayside. The Italian was beaten by Frenchman Davis Cupper Pierre Barthes 8-2, 7-5, 4-6.

Emerson got through the second round in four sets, beating tough left-hander Nikki Pilic of Yugoslavia, 6-3, 11-9, 3-6, 6-4.

But McKinley had a close shave against Tomas Koch, the 19-year-old Brazilian prospect who is rated in some quarters as a top player of the future.

At two sets all with Koch leading 1-0 and 40-30 against service in the fifth, the champion struggled to survive. He made it—but only just.

Plane's Win 8-6 Over Foxboro

Overcoming a 5-2 deficit with four runs in the fourth, Plane's Concrete went on to defeat Foxboro 8-6 in a South Hastings Baseball League fixture at Castleton last night.

The Camilton club will entertain Centreville, a new entry in the Eastern Ontario Baseball Association's senior division, at the Belleville Fairgrounds tonight. Game time is 8:30.

Plane's led 2-0 in the first but Foxboro tied it in the second and moved in front with three runs in the top of the fourth last night, prior to the winners' four-run eruption.

Don Dafoe was the winning pitcher, taking over from Harry Cole in the fourth. They gave up five hits, struck out five and passed seven. Gord Campbell started and lost for Foxboro, giving way to Keith Dickey in the fourth. They also allowed five hits, fanned eight and walked seven.

Ross Empey and Don Forsythe slammed doubles to pace Plane's at the plate. Don Dafoe, Ron Finch and Hugh Petrie clicked for singles.

Foxboro got a pair of base knocks from Glen Reynolds, a double from Pete Young, and singles by Howard Skelly and Rolly Belanger.

STUDENTS LEAVE

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — Two Oakville high school students left here today on a cross-Canada hitch-hiking mission to show off the proposed new Canadian flag. Tom Tyre and Bob McNair of Trafalgar High School plan to travel through Canada in six-eight weeks and hope to take the flag to Washington "to display it there."

Norman Defends Title

Ontario Open Underway

TORONTO (CP)—A field of 81 professionals and 98 amateurs teed off today in a bid to unseat last year's champion Moe Norman of Toronto in the Ontario open golf championship.

Alvie Thompson of Toronto, 1962 Canadian Professional Golfers Association champion, and Will Hemsworth of Winnipeg are expected to give Norman the toughest race for the $1,300 first-place prize money.

A 54-hole total of 209 or 206 over the Islington course was considered a top objective to defeat the colorful 32-year-old Norman.

Norman wrapped up the championship last year with a two-under-par 69 in the third round over the pine valley golf club layout for a three-round total of 212.

A total of $5,000 in prize money is at stake as well as three spots in the August world tournament at Oakland Hills, Detroit.

Five of the 82 professionals in today's field will not be eligible to enter the world tournament. They are Ted Kroll, assistant pro at Toronto's Northwood Club and his two assistants, Ken Girard and Phil Rowcroft, have all been declared ineligible by the CPGA.

Mandelmuy was reported to be under suspension because he took part in the promotion of golfing equipment. He had been warned by the Ontario branch of the association that his activities violated the by-laws.

His assistants were also suspended because they held no status exempt through him.

Minor Baseball Results

Lions Club got another strong pitching effort from Ron McTaggart while downing Keller's Little Giants 12-5 in a K.M.B.A. Tyke division game at Park Dale last night.

McTaggart hurled a three-hitter and struck out 18 batters on the Lion Club hilltop, Gary Edmunds was his battery mate.

Stan Brooks tolled on the Little Giants' rubber. He gave up 10 hits and struck out eight. Mike Burley was his catcher.

D. Jones lined a triple and two singles to spark the winners at bat. W. Grey had a double and single, D. Cane and D. McTaggart two singles each and G. Edwards a triple. R. DeGenova, Don McTaggart and H. Steenburg added singles.

Peter Wiseman had a double and single for the losers and Billy Coughlin got the other safety.

OFF TO NEW YORK

TORONTO (CP) — Northern Dancer, the famous three-year-old colt that this year won the Prakness Stakes, the Kentucky Derby and the Queen's Plate, left Wednesday for Belmont Park in New York. The Dancer, owned by millionaire industrialist E. P. Taylor of Toronto, will be there a few weeks before getting down to work again for the Travers Stakes at Saratoga Aug. 22.

Then They Took Away His Horse!

CALGARY (CP) — Tackle Don Luzzi finally mastered coach Bobby Dobbs' miracle mile Wednesday at McMahon Stadium. Then they took away his horse.

Calgary Stampeders of the Western Football Conference open each training camp with a mile run.

Players who fail to negotiate the distance in six and a half minutes are invited to try again until they succeed.

This year Luzzi thought he had it made. He bought a horse from a local pet food factory and the steed lasted long enough to make the mile in five minutes, 54 seconds.

However after they took away his horse it took Luzzi eight minutes eight seconds to cover the mile, despite a great finishing kick and encouragement of 5,000 spectators.

Sue Hilton Posts 3 and 1 Victory

EAST LANSING, Mich. (CP-AP)—Sue Hilton of the University of Western Ontario, Canada's 1962 junior champion, defeated Carol Thompson of Arizona State University 3 and 1 in quarter-finals of the U.S. national intercollegiate golf tournament Wednesday.

Miss Hilton was six over par with a 77 in eliminating Miss Sorenson of Wisconsin women's champion.

In the tensest battle of the day, Carol Cartwright of the University of Washington eliminated Mary Louvell of Arizona State on the 19th hole.

Catherine Cartwright of Kingston missed the championship flight but made the first flight. She lost her first match to Betty Tolin of Florida State, 2 and 1. She went to the consolation round Wednesday and beat Ruth Fender of Northern Illinois 1 up.

Miss Cartwright plays today (Thursday) in the consolation semi-final.

The Trots

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Wilbert Hopkins of Milton, some 30 miles west of Toronto, drove three of his horses to wins Wednesday, capturing both divisions of the Western Fair Trot for purses of $750 each.

He took the sixth race with Trust Account, trotting the mile in 2:13 and collecting $5.70. In the eighth race, his Victoria Lee trotted to a 2:12 3-5 win to pay $8.00.

In the fifth race he had a win with Allie Dale which returned $6.30.

Fastest mile of the night was turned in by Brother Hy which paced the mile in 2:09.

'Starless Bums' Vent Rage On Braves

—Phils, Giants Win

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

All Los Angeles Dodgers needed, it seems, was someone to hurt their feelings.

The necessary bruise to the self - esteem of the National League champions was applied last Monday when their colleagues saw fit to pass over their entire lineup in the annual all-star poll.

The Dodgers, who had frightened nobody except their own fans at the plate all season, promptly turned into tigers, hammering Milwaukee Braves 10-0 the night the figures were announced.

Still unsatisfied, they banded the Braves a repeat dose Wednesday, accumulating 19 hits and 22 total bases for a resounding 16-4 victory, their biggest offensive display of the season.

Maury Wills stroked four singles and drew a walk—in five times at bat, scored three runs, drove in one and stole his 24th and 25th bases. John Roseboro hit a home run, his second of the season.

HITS LIKE AN ALL-STAR

Each is hitting .296, a mark worthy of all-star consideration. Joe Torre of Milwaukee, the first team all-star pick, has a higher average than Roseboro but runner-up John Edwards of Cincinnati Reds trails the Dodger backstop by a point.

Wills is hitting 12 points higher than first team nominee Dick Groat of the Louis Cardinals and 19 points above second choice Leo Cardenas of the Reds.

Elsewhere in the NL, Philadelphia Phillies outlasted Chicago Cubs 9-8, San Francisco Giants shaded Cincinnati Reds 3-2, Houston Colts trimmed St. Louis Cards 7-5 and Pittsburgh Pirates topped New York Mets 3-1.

The Dodgers' assault on five Milwaukee pitchers helped Don Drysdale breeze to his 10th victory. The big right - hander chipped in with a single and double and drove in a run. Frank Howard contributed his 17th home run and Willi Davis had a double, two singles and four RBI.

JUST MISS .500 MARK

The victory left Los Angeles one victory short of the .500 mark and 2½ games behind fourth-place Cincinnati.

John Herrnstein's seventh-inning home run proved decisive for the league-leading Phillies, who blew an early 5-1 lead. Richie Allen hit a three-run homer for the Phils, his 16th of the season, and Ernie Banks poked his eighth for the Cubs.

Orlando Cepeda's two - run homer backed the 14-strikeout, seven-hit pitching of Ron Herbel in the Giants' victory over the Reds. Herbel's strikeout total was a single-game high in the NL this season.

Houston scored six runs in the seventh, overcoming a 3-1 deficit and chasing St. Louis starter Ray Sadecki. Mike White paced the Colts' attack with four hits.

Bob Friend set down the Mets for the 12th straight time in his career but needed relief help from Art McBean after Joe Christopher homered in the ninth. Willie Stargell drove in two Pirate runs.

Invaders Steal Kidd-Crothers Thunder

BY JOE DUFUIS

MONTREAL (CP) — Foreign invaders stole the thunder from Canadian aces Bruce Kidd and Bill Crothers Wednesday in a gala three-event track spectacle marking St. Jean Baptiste Day celebrations.

The spectacle in simmering 97-degree heat before a sparse crowd of about 3,000 in McGill Stadium attracted a cast of international stars with eyes on the Olympic Games in Tokyo this fall.

No records were set on the hard, dry track occasionally swept by huge clouds of dust blown about by wind gusts. The runners competed for attention with gymnastic and folk-dancing displays by 4,000 students from 36 Montreal high schools.

Winners of the three track events were Tom O'Riordan, a spry little speedster from Dublin, Ireland; Jamaica's George Kerr, 24 - year - old Olympic bronze medal winner; and Ronald Zinn, 25, from the United States Military Academy at West Point, N.Y.

MAKES STRETCH DRIVE

O'Riordan—running steadily and sure, put on a tremendous burst in the stretch to win the 2,000 - metre run, a distance France's Jean Fayolle, a late entry by 15 yards. Kidd finished third back in third place.

Kerr beat Crothers in a photo-finish in the 300 metres to avenge a defeat handed him recently in California by the Toronto whiz.

Kerr finished in 1:48, a yard ahead of Crothers timed at 1:48.1. The Compton relays in California, Crothers beat Kerr in the 800 metres by two-tenths of a second, finishing with a time of 1:48.2.

Zinn was a easy winner in the 20-kilometre walk with a time of 1:30:36, finishing 400 yards ahead of Henri Delarge of France.

O'Riordan, a 26-year-old Dublin accountant who had set his sights on beating Kidd, stayed in front of the six-man field until overtaken by Fayolle on the last bend before the finish line. "I was shocked when he passed me," O'Riordan said. "But I got my confidence back and I was able to run him out."

RAN AS PLANNED

"I ran a tight race as I had planned," Tom said. Kidd, who fell behind early, gave O'Riordan no worries after the halfway mark.

"I could see his shadow on the infield grass," O'Riordan said smiling. "I figured he was too far behind to catch me."

For his part, Kidd said he didn't up after about four laps.

"I quit," Kidd said simply. "I started the race to win, but when I got going, I just didn't feel like running." He said the track was fine, the heat didn't bother him and he had no physical ailments while running. "I just didn't run, that's all."

O'Riordan's winning time was a slow 14:07. Fayolle was more than four seconds faster than the Irishman. Kidd, who had to put on a last-minute kick to keep out British Lion Anderson for third place, was timed at 14:33.6. Kidd's best time for the 3,000 - metres is 13:43.8.

The walk event lost some of its lustre for the crowd because of the failure of Alex Oakley of Oshawa to show up.

No reason was given for Oakley's absence.

TRENTON — Al Beaugrand tripled home the tying run and scored the winner here last night as Trenton Commercial Printers pulled out a ninth-inning 2-1 win over Tweed Lombanks in one of the B. and D. softball loop's best games of the year.

Lombanks braved the league leading "Lions" in their own den and tamed them on a pair of hits going into the bottom of the ninth, leading 1-0 from the second frame on. The district's only two perfect-game pitchers, Eldine Healey and Pat Marsels, were locked in a tense mound battle.

Healey made the mistake that led to his downfall opening the Trenton ninth. He fielded Wannamaker's one-hopper and with plenty of time, lobbed it high to first, forcing LeSage to leap off the bag to glove the ball. Wannamaker was safe on the error but Healey struck out D. Cole to ease the situation a little.

Beaugrand, hitless in three previous trips, then cracked his triple deep to right field that lilns for the 1-1 score. Will Kennedy drove in the deciding run when Ground out to deep short field left D. LeSage no other play than to first as Beaugrand crossed the plate.

Tweed's lone tally in the 7th came after D. LeSage opened with a base hit to right field. Merzw beat out an infield hit and the lead man got to third on a passed ball. Marsels fanned Sherry and pinch-hitter Rich Morton hoisted out to deep right. Wannamaker doubled Merzw out at third but LeSage crossed the plate in the meantime.

The run looked like a big one as Healey went on to strike out 12. He walked only one and three of those pitches were perfect strikes, called balls by plate umpire Dusty Miller as he charged Healey with not having both feet in contact with the rubber. The pitcher

Lightfoots, Cementmen Get Wins

Lightfoots used a 7-6 victory over Ter-Haar Daubers to move back to the head of the class in the tight Commercial Softball League race last night.

In another tilt Point Anne held tight to fourth spot by trouncing Belvedere Hotel 14-4 at Point Anne.

George Young pitched a strong three-hitter to earn the Lightfoot victory. He struck out eight and walked only one while his mates gave him errorless support.

Ron Pointer went the route for Ter-Haar, giving up 10 hits. He fanned three and walked a pair.

Jim Sheridan hit a double and single, Rocky Garvin and Jack "Deacon" Whiting two singles apiece for Lightfoots.

G. Young had a triple, Bill Dickey, Don Dolan and Don Smith one hit each.

Dwight Duggan belied a two-run homge for the losers while H. Pointer and Bucky Ehler fanned three.

The Cementmen got ahead of Belvedere early and finished with seven runs in the sixth.

Jack Stewart, with relief help from Whalen in the seventh, buried seven-bit ball to get the victory. He struck out three and walked three. Carson and McFee split the Belvedere chore; tagged for 12 hits, they whiffed five and walked five.

Half a dozen errors and the election of Stewart and Casson in the third inning did little to help the Belvedere cause.

D. Maher, Tom MacDonald and G. Maher each got two Point Anne hits while Lloyd added a double. H. Powell, J. Stewart, Whalen, Bosworth, Akey and Colden also hit safely.

Perry and Ryan hit home runs for Belvedere, McLeod getting two hits. D. Lucas and Bena a single each. Perry added a double to the homer.

Temperament Cracking?

Yankees Really Are Human!

By GORDON BEARD

BALTIMORE (AP) — New York Yankees' dynasty may not be crumbling as their long-suffering opponents have been hopefully predicting, but their temperament shows signs of cracking.

After winning five consecutive games to take over the American League lead, New York has lost two in a row to Baltimore Orioles in un-Yankee like fashion.

The Orioles tallied seven runs with two out in the eighth inning Tuesday to score a 9-8 victory and wrest first place from the Yanks. After New York succumbed to the big inning—long a Yankee trademark—Mickey Mantle was ejected from the game for tossing a helmet from the dugout after being called out on strikes.

On Wednesday night, a three base throwing error by Yankee relief pitcher Stan Williams in the eighth allowed Baltimore to score three unearned runs for a 7-4 victory which increased their league lead to 1½ games.

Two runs scored when Williams threw the ball into left field while attempting a force play at third after fielding a bunt. A squeeze bunt scored the third run and Williams again threw the ball away on a back-handed toss.

SHOWS TEMPER

Mantle again showed his temper. After being retired when his grounder along the first base line was ruled fair in the third inning, Mantle flipped his helmet high over his shoulder and then argued briefly with umpire John Rice. The fans booed vociferously.

Before and after the game, several Yankees berated a Baltimore sports writer for quoting Elston Howard as saying after Tuesday's contest: "Those lucky so-and-sos. Robinson broke his bat on that hit and so did Orsino on his double."

The quote, in the 29th paragraph of a 30-paragraph story, did not escape Yankee eyes.

"I wasn't talking to you," Howard yelled at the writer after Wednesday's defeat. "When I tell you something, then you can write it.

Manager Yogi Berra was the calmest of all the Yanks after the two late-inning defeats.

"I think the league has better balance this year, and it should be a good race," he said. "But I still say we're gonna win it."

THE Arnold Palmer METHOD

THE 5-IRON SWING

I think the 5-iron is an important club to master. If you can learn to execute that compact 5-iron swing with this club, about ¾ is in the middle of your arc, chances are good you can handle out to the other clubs with little trouble.

The 5-iron swing should be almost as long as the swing you use on long irons, or even fairway wood shots.

Of course, the club head won't travel as far on the 5-iron, because the shorter club produces a shorter arc. However, you should definitely take a full swing on all normal 5-iron club shots.

Though the 5-iron swing is almost as complete as a fairway wood stroke,

I like to achieve the same tempo of motion on the 5-iron that I'd use on a shorter iron, such as the 9-iron, by combining a fairly long swing with a smooth even tempo. I get just the type of stroke I need on middle iron shots.

Never force the 5-iron shot or strive for extra distance. Strive solely for accuracy by applying a smooth, even-tempoed ball flying, stroke.

Sprague, 22, had been promised a shot at the title if he won the fight.

Govt. Lotteries Popular in 15th Century

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

Manhattan is for the birds. . . . Some Humane Society officials believe it has more pigeons than people—up to 8,000,000.

Quotable Notables: "We have 40,000,000 reasons for failure, but not a single excuse."—Rudyard Kipling.

Government lotteries go back to biblical times. . . . Roman emperors used them to finance building projects and increase imperial revenues, and they were popular in Europe from the 15th century on.

Ireland's Dublin Zoo is world famous for breeding lions. . . . In 105 years 40 lionesses there produced 565 cubs. . . . The maternal champ was Old Girl (1826-1874) who gave birth to 55 cubs in 13 litters in 13 years.

Contrary to popular belief, the old-fashioned handwringer washing machine is far from extinct. . . . More than 700,000 were sold in the U.S. last year.

Corn perspires. . . . During its growing season one ton of corn will yield by evaporation 1,000 tons of water.

Failure: Sleep with a pair of spinach under your pillow and you'll never get rheumatism. . . . Carrying an onion in your pocket will ward off diseases. . . . To keep from having cramps, wear an eelskin around your ankle.

Bowling balls have been found in Egyptian tombs dating back to 5,200 BC. . . . King Edward III and other British monarchs forbade bowling because, unlike archery, the game provided no training for war. . . . Although he banned his subjects from playing, King Henry VIII himself enjoyed bowling between executions.

Cultural news from abroad: Tahitians no longer rub noses as a sign of affection. . . . They have adopted the European custom of kissing each other on both cheeks when meeting or parting. (We've always thought the reason Eskimos rub noses is to help keep warm.)

Medicine is going in more and more for machine diagnosis. . . . Doctors now can feed a patient's symptoms into a new electronic computer and get a diagnosis 30 seconds later.

CANINE BLOOD DONOR — A German shepherd owned by Frank Fuchs (right) donates blood to a blood bank for dogs at St. Johns, Que. The bank was established by Dr. Jean Gosselin (left) in collaboration with Mr. Fuchs, instigator of the idea. Vet Sets up Blood Bank for Dogs

ST. JOHNS, Que. (CP)—A canine blood bank has been established by a veterinarian here in collaboration with a dog breeder.

Dr. Jean Gosselin, owner of the St. Johns Veterinarian Hospital, says a ready supply of fresh whole blood or blood serum would save the lives of many pets injured in accidents, suffering from diseases related to the blood system, or delivered of litters by caesarian section.

Donors for the blood bank are German shepherds from the van Leeuwenkamp Kennels, owned and operated by Frank Fuchs in St. Luc, just outside St. Johns.

"If you have a prize female worth $400 to $500 who's about to have a litter of pups worth maybe $100 each and she has to be delivered by caesarian, you'd be greatly relieved to know there is emergency blood available," said Mr. Fuchs, who suggested the blood bank.

Animals are more fortunate than humans when it comes to blood transfusions. No particular blood groups or types seem to exist and one dog can provide blood for any other dog in fact, canine blood can even be given to cats with beneficial results, said Dr. Gosselin.

Mr. Fuchs' German shepherds can give about half a pint of blood every eight weeks with out ill effects.

Shades of Davy Crockett Here Comes Daniel Boone!

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Ten years ago, a young Texan without much more to his name than the guitar on his back suddenly found himself famous as Davy Crockett.

His salary for three one-hour television stints as Crockett was $350 a week, to which was added $150 a week for signing away future rights to the films. This he earned about $6,000 as star of one of television's greatest successes.

Fess Parker will be drawing approximately $6,000 in his first week as Daniel Boone in new NBC series produced by 20th Century-Fox.

Times have changed. Fess' talk may still be backwoody, but he has cottoned to city ways.

"We're still working out a couple of items in the contract," he reported. "One of them has to do with merchandising, and it's mighty complicated. But I'm sure we'll find a solution."

SELL COONSKIN CAPS

That's for sure. If Daniel Boone succeeds—and there's a lot of important money riding on its chances—its backers foresee all those would Crockett coonskin caps will be on the market again.

That brought up the question: Just how different will Boone be from Crockett?

"Not very," Parker says. "This show probably wouldn't be going on the air if NBC hadn't broadcast the three Crockett films at the end of last summer. They created such a sensation all over again that a new series was suggested.

"We went to Disney's with the idea, but they weren't interested. Because of contractual matters, they wouldn't sell the rights to the character. We thought of going ahead with a series about Davy on our own, but the insurance company would take a risk on protecting us against an injunction."

The solution was Daniel Boone, which is being made by producer Aaron Rosenberg (Mutiny on the Bounty) as head man.

Actor Married for Years ..n Show Takes Honeymoon

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — A number of true-blue television viewers felt the New York area was scandalized recently. There was that nice, golf-playing Dr. Alex Stone, who has been married for years — seven years on ABC's Donna Reed Show alone —chasing around everywhere in the company of a good-looking brunette.

The truth is, Dr. Alex Stone-actor Carl Betz—was on his honeymoon. The honeymoon is long overdue. Betz and his artist wife, Gloride, have been married six months. There just hasn't been time.

Television situation comedies, particularly those with the eternally popular family set - up, can easily turn out to be minkand-caviar affairs for an actor. Not only does constant exposure in any role tend to typecast him but the character is likely to obscure the performer.

WORKS AGAINST FATE

Betz, a Pittsburgh native who started playing summer theatre stock near his home town, works against just such a fate. Last season, he devoted five months appearing every weekend on a Los Angeles' stage in two avant-garde plays, Samuel Beckett's Krapp's Last Tape and Edward Albee's The Zoo Story. You can't hardly get farther away from the Donna Reed show than that.

"It's my way of keeping my sanity," Betz says. "After such a long time on one part, an actor is in great danger of playing it carelessly — giving such a naturalistic performance — that it is almost lethargic.

"Doing a play, even if it is terribly hard work and takes every bit of your time off, does keep you sharp."
